LOCAL PEOPLE SAW THRILLING FLIGHT

A MIRACULOUS ESCAPE

Air Pilot, In Effort to Save Spectator, Crashes His Machine Into the Sand—Was Attempting a Flight to Washington.

Many of the 2,000 Plainfield excursionists who lingered on the beach at Asbury Park yesterday afternoon until the last minute before leaving for the Jersey Central Railroad station to make the return trip, witnessed an unscheduled monoplane flight made by George Dygott, an English aviator, who is attempting a trip from Garden City, L. I., to Washington and return. He started his flight yesterday and after stopping at Brighton Beach, continued his flight to Asbury Park, without incident until he attempted to make a landing for the night at Bradley Beach. As the mammoth bird swooped down on the beach a curious spectator ran out on the sand where a landing place had been cleared, and the aviator, in order to avoid striking him, crashed into the sand, his machine turning turtle. Mr. Dygott escaped injury but the rudder of his ship was broken. When the pilot first saw the spectator he was traveling at a heighth of about fifty feet and in making a turn in an effort to keep his machine in the air grazed a telegraph pole. Dygott's escape from serious injury was little more than miraculous for the huge motor driven bird hit the earth at a terriffic clip and threw him a distance of fifteen feet into the surf.

In speaking to a Daily Press reporter immediately after the accident Dygott said that he had maintained a speed of sixty-two miles an hour during his first day's flight and had flown at an average altitude of 5,000 feet. When asked for information concerning his route he said that he had followed the ocean on his trip to Bradley Beach and during the ten days he will remain at Asbury Park while his machine is undergoing repairs, he will map out a definite route for the rest of the trip. After arriving at Brighton Beach yesterday noon he said he had remained there until half past five tuning up his machine and leaving there at that time he arrived at Bradley Beach and landed at 6:20 o'clock.

Although he had just encountered one of the thrills of aircraft, Dygott was cool and directed the removal of his ship to safe quarters for the night, a number of willing beach hands helping to wheel the big machine far up on the sand. When asked if he intended to make exhibition flights at the seaside resort, Dygott said that he would probably soar several times before leaving in order to see that his machine was in good running order before leaving on the rest of his long trip.

The Plainfielders who made the trip to Asbury Park yesterday on the excursion under the auspices of the Trinity Reformed, Marconnier chapel, Netherwood Reformed and Mt. Pleasant Sunday schools, encountered ideal weather conditions and the surf bathing was at its best. Many took advantage of the run of fish near the Asbury Park piers and those who spent the day angling for the finny tribe returned with good strings. The trip was made in two sections and not an accident was recorded to mar the day's outing.

IN BOROUGH COURT.

In the North Plainfield court, this morning, Spencer Conway, a local ash carter, was arraigned before Recorder Gano for permitting ashes to spill from his wagon along the streets. A fine of $3 was imposed. John McMinta, of this city, was arraigned on the charge of being drunk and disorderly. He was sent to the borough lockup to spend a term of two days. Frank Hartemworth, of Cranford, was arraigned for auto speeding on Mountain avenue. The case was dismissed.

CIVIC CLUB FETE.

A successful lawn fete and musical was held at 519 West Fourth street, under the auspices of the Plainfield Civic Club, last night. A large number was in attendance and enjoyed the musical entertainment provided. The committee of arrangements was Frederick E. Chapman, J. R. Gates, F. G. Cox, H. Folkes, W. Randall, W. T. Perry and C. C. Murto.

ARE LINING UP NOW FOR THE PRIMARIES

Owing to the circumstances which will no doubt defeat the purpose of submitting to the voters before the primaries the small board question, candidates for an entire new large board of freeholders are getting lined up for the primary election. The nominees will be selected by municipalities and elected in the same manner. It is expected that all of the present members will stand for re-nomination although but few announcements of candidacies have been made.

According to the Geran election law, petitions of nomination for municipal offices may be filed until within ten days of the primary election and require only fifty signatures. This gives prospective candidates for the large board until September 13 to prepare their petitions. If the nominations were for election to membership on the small board, the petitions would need 100 signatures and would have to be filed with the county clerk on or before September 2.

When the large board organized January 1, of this year, the Supreme Court decision relative to the validity of the small board was pending. Sixteen of the Republican members were seated in lieu of other representatives having been elected in their respective municipalities. The Democratic members came in the same manner after the court's decision ousting the small board. Four of the Republican members Freeholders McMane and Director Cady, of Summit, and Randolph and Gruener, of Rahway, had another year of their elected terms to serve. The term of each expires December 31.

The other members are Freeholders Pierson, Fay, Hennessy and Bourdon, of Elizabeth; Doane and Wilbur, of this city; Smith and Perry, of Westfield; Teller, of Cranford; Krouse, of Linden; Crane, of Union Township; Jones of New Providence, Darby, of Mountainside; Meisel, of Springfield; Acken, of Clark Township, and Hall, of Fanwood Township. The formation of Hillside borough, by dividing Union Township, does not increase the membership, as the territorial representation remains unchanged.

The board to be elected has very little in the way of patronage to distribute, as most of the positions were filled for three-year terms at the organization meeting in January. County Collector Leavitt, County Attorney Codington and Superintendent Schwartz, of the Department of Weights and Measures, were each appointed for full terms. County Engineer Baner had been appointed for three years at a meeting a few weeks previously.

William Hulskamper's term as custodian of the Courthouse does not expire until April, 1914, and J. Edward Rowe, appointed as clerk on January 1 last, has still another year to serve. County Physician Westcott and Jail Physician Livengood each had a year more to serve at that time. Therefore the position of clerk, county and jail physicians and that of auditor, now being held by Major Benjamin King, until the first of the year, are the only positions the board will have to fill by appointment and election.

G. O. P. AND PROGRESSIVES MAY FUSE IN SOMERSET

Somerville, August 1.—There will be fusion between the Progressives and Republicans of Somerset county in the coming election if plans under way there between the leaders of both parties do not miscarry.

The proposed fusion will not come until after the primaries. It has been agreed, according to report from reliable sources, that neither the Republicans nor the Progressives place any candidate for Assembly in the primaries. It is further planned to have a meeting following the primaries at which an agreement upon a candidate will be reached. The man agreed upon will be nominated by petition and will be called a Progressive Republican.

A FAMILY REUNION.

An interesting gathering and reunion of the Von Conwenhoven—Conover family, was held last Saturday at Bellewood Park, Patenburg, when a large number of that family came together. The following officers were elected: President, Nathan Conover, of Clinton; vice-president, Walter Conover, of Philadelphia; secretary and treasurer, Mrs. Clymer, of Elizabeth.

BIG PLANT DESTROYED.

Bangor, Pa., Aug. 1—More than $1,000,000 loss was caused by a fire that destroyed the Flory plants early this morning. Assistance was sent from nearby cities. Six hundred men are made idle.

POURS HOT SHOT INTO SUFFRAGISTS

Mrs. Grace D. Goodwin Denounces I. W. W., Socialism and "Votes for Women."

BANEFUL INFLUENCES

Suffragists Ask Questions and a Socialist Interrogates Her—Meeting Under Auspices of the Plainfield Branch of the A. O. to W. S.

Though the attendance was small, due to the season, there was marked enthusiasm at the anti-suffrage meeting last night in the Washington School when Mrs. Grace Duffield Goodwin, of Westfield, denounced Socialism, the Industrial Workers of the World, and gave her reason for opposing equal suffrage. The meeting was held under the auspices of the Plainfield Branch of the New Jersey Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage. In the audience was Mrs. A. B. Jones, of Central avenue, one of Plainfield's most ardent suffragists, and Mrs. J. A. MacClary, of Rahway, agent of the Women's Political Union of New Jersey. Both asked questions after the speaker had completed her discourse. Arthur C. Maclay, of this city, presided, and made the introductory address.

Not infringing on the editor, the reporter considered Mrs. Goodwin a clever speaker and believed she showed a keen knowledge of existing conditions. The wife of a New York minister, she has worked among the poor and in the midst of foreign colonies of the New York Metropolis and other cities, composed of immigrants from Latin Europe. The ignorant or "undesirable" class among these foreigners she said was and is a menace to the country. Her remarks were objected to by a Socialist who sat in the rear of the auditorium.

At one time, speaking of the I. W. W., Mrs. Goodwin said, "The I. W. W. is composed of discontented foreigners of the Latin races, who have migrated to these shores and had their dreams of easily attained wealth shattered by the reality. They came here with a false idea of freedom and interpreted liberty to mean license." Again she said, "The I. W. W. is the most demoralizing industrial force ever imported from Europe for our instruction." Replying to an interrogation by Theodore Gottschalk, of Madison avenue, a professor of music, after she had remarked that the Socialist party was not an organization that would hold the country, Mrs. Goodwin said, "I will admit that under the guidance of a great man like Prince Bismarck, Germany was bettered by the Socialist party, but in France and the United States, Socialism is a menace to our institutions." At frequent intervals the orator identified the suffrage movement in California with the Socialist party.

Beginning her talk, Mrs. Goodwin said, "For fifty years equal suffrage has been advocated without opposition. But little advance has been made. Within a few years the anti-suffrage movement has sprung up and grown, in comparison to its growth within a few months here in Plainfield. At one time I was an ardent suffragist in the realm of my own mind, but when I had carefully thought the matter over I was an adherent for women's franchise no longer. Instead, I realized my duty to get out and help prevent such a calamity to this country as the realization of women suffrage would be."

Mrs. Goodwin then said she could always pick out suffragists in her audience because they invariably sat laughing at her remarks. She pointed this statement in the direction of Mrs. Jones, who had smiled slightly.

Continuing, the speaker told her hearers not to be coersed into assuming the arduous responsibility of having the privilege to vote. She said the suffragists were a noisy, nervous minority and that 90 per cent of the women of this country should not have to bear the burden of the ballot unwillingly, because the balance wished it, or thought they did. "Add to the electorate," she said, "and you add to the ignorant vote." In California, an equal suffrage State, the speaker asserted that 73 per cent of the women did not register or vote Here, Mrs. Goodwin, claimed that the Socialist helped the suffragists to obtain the ballot in California and in turn assisted the Socialists.

Mrs. Goodwin at this part of her talk said that if women were given the ballot that the antis would be the first to utilize the burden and try to improve conditions, because they were the most conscientious. She said the situation in California where the suffragists do not utilize their opportunity to improve conditions supported this assertion. When the question of local option was up for settlement in California, she said, only one-third of the women registered for the election and only one in eight of this number cast ballots. The speaker admitted that anti-suffragists do not take advantage of their right

WILL ESTABLISH A PUBLIC CLINIC

State Board of Health Met With the Local Charity Organization This Morning.

NEED IS NOW APPARENT

Estimated That 100 Are Now Ready to Take Advantage of the New Feature—Will Be Started In Two Weeks.

A need constantly making itself more apparent in this city and in the borough and which has been agitated for some time past by the local charity organization was supplied this morning when the State Board of Health met in the Plainfield Charity Organization Society's rooms and decided to establish a public clinic in connection with the dispensary now being carried on at the hospital. Miss Mabelle Phillips, the local officer for the charity organization, stated this morning that there are at present over 100 people in need of treatment that will be afforded by the establishment of the clinic and there is a need for a department at all times of the year. It is understood that the Anti-Tuberculosis League was active in bringing the State Board to Plainfield this morning to consider the proposition and this league has in its possession a fund that will be sufficient to carry on the clinic work here for a period of one year. By that time, those in charge think that it will be firmly enough established to make it a permanent fixture in the city's work and the necessary amount to run it for additional years can be raised at that time.

Active work in arranging for the clinic has already been started and the department will be opened in about two weeks at 109 Madison avenue. Mayor Percy H. Stewart and T. S. Davis, President of the local Board of Health, endorse the new proposition and have consented to do anything in their power to advance the movement. Local dentists will probably have charge of the public work and treatments will be given at once.

MINISTER ASSAULTED HER, WOMAN CHARGES

Mrs. Calidonia Brown, of 661 West Third street, called at police headquarters today and told a story of being brutally beaten Wednesday night by the Rev. Alexander Trent, pastor of the Church of God and Saints of Christ, at 523 West Third street, following services in that edifice. Tomorrow, being her Sabbath day, she refused to lodge a complaint of assault and battery against the clergyman, but contemplates doing so on Monday she says. In the meantime, Mrs. Brown is going to communicate with the Rev. Joseph Crowdy, of Philadelphia, who is the chief or head of the church, and will take steps to have him deposed from the ministry and pastorate of the local church.

Trent, the police say, only emerges from the protection of his home when absolutely necessary and then he is always accompanied by a body guard. N. C. Butler, a friend of his from Virginia, acts in this capacity. The minister fears violence at the hands of Mrs. Brown's three sons, Bert, Robert and Leander Brown, who chased him Wednesday night following the assault on their parent. "We didn't 'get' him yet," they say, "but we soon will."

Mrs. Brown said the pastor hit her several times with his fist and pulled her hair, after she denied giving her grandchild, Bert Brown, a nail to put in the collection plate.

DR. MURRAY'S GOOD WORD FOR CITY JUDGE DE MEZA

Among the Republicans who signed the petition of William G. DeMeza today, for the Republican nomination for city judge, was Dr. William H. Murray, a leading physician and former head of the health department.

"Yes, I'll gladly sign the petition and put my signature right under that of Charles J. Fisk," said the popular doctor. "I think that Mr. DeMeza is a good man," he added.

Many other prominent Republicans and prominent citizens signed the petition during the morning.

John P. Owens, the counsel for the defunct small Board of Freeholders, today anounced himself as a candidate for the Democratic nomination at that party's primaries.

WALLACE A. OVERLAND.

Wallace A. Overland, the three-months' old son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Overland, of 287 Maning avenue, died yesterday morning. The funeral services will be held tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock at the home of the parents. Interment will be at the Coontown cemetery.

21 U. S. SENATORS PLEDGE THEIR AID

MARTINE IS OPPOSED

Mrs. E. F. Feickert, President of the New Jersey Woman Suffrage Association, Writes An Interesting News Letter.

Washington, Aug. 1—Five hundred women presented to the Senate yesterday nearly 100,000 petitions urging the passage of the Chamberlain resolution for a constitutional amendment providing for "votes for women." They assembled at Hyattsville, a Maryland suburb, and came in automobiles driving up Pennsylvania avenue to the Capitol. Senators Ashhurst, of Arizona; Clapp, of Minnesota; Jones, of Washington; Chamberlain, of Oregon, and Owen, of Oklahoma, and Mayor Shepherd of Hyattsville, addressed the suffragists at the suburban rally.

Arriving at the Capitol they marched up the east steps of the Senate wing, and in the marble room presented basketfuls of petitions done up in yellow ribbons. The petitions were officially presented by Senator Owen.

Senator Penrose received 10,000 petitions from Pennsylvania. Senator Johnson, of Maine, received the New York petitions for Senators O'Gorman and Root, who were absent.

As the petitions were offered each senator made a speech. A majority were non-commital, bat the twenty-one declared they would work hard to have the Chamberlain resolution adopted.

A notable exception was Senator Thornton, of Louisiana. He announced himself unalterably opposed to woman suffrage and said he would do everything consistent with honor to secure the rejection of the resolution. It will not be taken up until next winter. Senators Owen, Ashurst, Poindexter, Jones, Works, Lane, Smoot, Clapp, Thomas, Sharoth and Hollis were among those indorsing the petitions.

Miss Alice Paul, chairman of the congressional committee, in a letter accompanying the petitions, said she spoke in behalf of 40,000 dues-paying members of the National American Woman Suffrage Association.

At Hyattsville yesterday morning the suffragists met at the baseball park and formed their automobiles in a semi-circle about the grandstand. Reading Clerk Martin Williams, of the House, introduced the speakers. Miss Paul, Miss Lucy Byrns, Mrs. James Lees Laidlaw, Mrs. Henry Lockwood and Miss Hazel MacKaye were among those on the stand.

The senators spoke encouraging words to the women. It was predicted that every State in the Union will permit women to vote within the next decade.

Senator Clapp took occasion to denounce Representative Thomas J. Heflin, of Alabama, and Solomon, of Jerusalem, for opposing the progress of woman.

"A young speaker (Mr. Heflin) brought my old friend Solomon of the Bible into this controversy," said Senator Clapp. "I am betraying no confidence when I tell you that Solomon is not to be blamed for being represented as he was by the young speaker. If Solomon were here today he would just as leave as not you would forget the only prominent part he took with the women.

"If I wanted to build a city or a great building I would put Solomon on the job, but if I wanted to build a home I would not go to him. Solomon had a grouch. He was disgruntled about something. He is the man that said spare the rod and spoil the child. There is nothing to me more brutal than a grown man beating a child.

"But I am willing to draw the mantle of charity over him, for he had a grouch, which may have been provoked by a multitude of mothers-in-law."

After the Senate speeches Miss Paul said to a newspaper correspondent:

"We are doing more without noise or militancy than the suffragettes of England have done. We entered the Senate marble room yesterday and got the 'glad hand' from many senators. There was no brickbat throwing or horsewhipping.

"We hope for and expect victory now. In the meantime, the suffragist cause will be pushed in every State."

Last night the suffragists gave a big banquet at which several members of the House and Senate were present. Senators Thomas, Ransdell

SENATOR MARTINE SIDES WITH 'ANTIS'

Announces He Will Vote Against Woman Suffrage Resolution.

Washington, D. C., August 1.—Senator James E. Martine, of New Jersey, is against woman suffrage. The senior New Jersey Senator announced yesterday afternoon to the delegates from that State who presented to him petitions for the passage of the suffrage resolution now before the Senate, that he would be glad to present their petitions, but would vote against the resolution.

Senator James E. Martine.
(Who Opposes Woman Suffrage Resolution.)

"I do not think," said Senator Martine, "that suffrage will tend to add to the dignity or welfare of women." The Senator added that he thought there was a very strong sentiment against suffrage on the part of New Jersey women.

Those in the delegation which presented the New Jersey petitions were Mr. and Mrs. Champlain Reilly and Mrs. E. F. Feickert, of Plainfield, and Miss Helen Lippincott, of Riverton.

It had been planned by the Jersey delegates to give half of the State petitions to Senator Martine and half to Senator William Hughes. When the delegates went to the marble room of the Senate, however, Senator Hughes was not on the floor and Senator Martine accepted all the petitions which contain more than five thousand names of New Jersey men in favor of suffrage.

Senator Hughes has never committed himself on the suffrage question although his wife is an active worker for votes for women.

ALLEN E. BEALS WILL SPEAK TO CHILDREN

The regular service at the Netherwood Fresh Air Home will be held on Sunday afternoon at 3.45. The speaker will be Allen E. Beals, who has been very actively engaged in the American Boy Scout movement in Plainfield. The special music will be rendered by the Children's Choir, which has always been an attractive feature of the Home. The usual meetings will be held the following week. On Tuesday a session will be held under the auspices of the C. E. Society of Hope Chapel. On Friday evening the meeting will be under the auspices of the Epworth League of the First Methodist church. The entertainment on Wednesday evening will be in charge of Miss Mary Alexander, and the soloist will be Ferdinand C. Inglehart, Jr., formerly soloist of the First Presbyterian church in this city.

The services last Sunday were largely attended and this greatly rejoiced the heart of Miss Curry. It is hoped that the service on Sunday will be even more largely attended.

PROCTOR'S SHOW.

Persons attending the first performance of Proctor's week-end bill were sentenced to an evening of unusual enjoyment. "A Day in Court," which presents a feminine idea of dealing out justice interspersed with catchy music and songs, comedy and dancing. Heenean & Malloy, in "Hogan the Mummer," exhibit some of the talent they possess for a comedy sketch of the burglar order which won praise for them in "The Thief," a Broadway production. They also appeared in "The Lion and the Mouse." LaFrance & McNabb in "The Argument," in which two "coons," one inside and the other outside of jail, argue the wisdom of chicken thievery, furnish laughs for all. Wheeler & Wilson, show some clever dances, among them being the "Subway," a figure in terpischore similar to the Tango. They are also clever vocalists and their songs are the latest. Bollinger & Reynolds, slack wire walkers and an excellent collection of photo plays, completes the program.

MAYOR INSTRUCTS OFFICER TO ACT

North Plainfield Health Board Will Assist In Cleaning Up Green Brook.

NEW VERSION OUTLINED

Mayor Clark Thinks That Estate Ought to Be Assessed—Plainfield Should Pay Its Share Because of Storm Sewers.

After awaiting the action that was not forthcoming, for nearly a week, Mayor Robert Clark, Jr., of North Plainfield, took a hand in the agitation that has been brought to the attention of the local and borough public, by the Plainfield Board of Trade, advocating a "cleaning up" of Tier's pond and tributary streams, and this morning he instructed Health Officer George Oliff to "get busy" on the proposition. Mr. Clark expressed an opinion to the effect that the pond in question was owend by the Boice estate and if that is true he said that the local and borough health boards should notify those wo have the estate in charge to clean out the stream of water, and if the proper action was not taken within a specified length of time the two health departments should enter into a joint plan for eliminating the nuisance and charge the expenses incurred to the estate.

While Mayor Clark has stated that the matter would be brought before the borough Council at its meeting tonight, he instructed Oliff this morning to start activities at once and not prolong the matter until after the Council had taken action. Neither health department has done anything in response to the open letter submitted to them by the Board of Trade and there is still a possibility that the civic organization will take the matter up with the State Board of Health if no satisfaction is secured locally.

In speaking of the proposed cleaning out of the brook and pond, Mayor Clark said that he understood that Plainfield had several storm sewers emptying into the brook at a point above the dam and as this polutes the water to some extent he thought that Plainfield should bear a portion of the expense involved in cleaning the streams. North Plainfield has no storm sewers above the dam, so that her disposal would in no way effect the sanitation of the pond.

DUNBAR CLUB UNABLE TO HOLD ITS WEEKLY DANCE

Owing to the repairs that are being made to the Washington school, the regular weekly dance and reception of the Dunbar Social Club will not be held at that place tonight, but it is hoped that the school will be put in condition by next week when the affairs will be resumed. A large number of the Dunbar Club members are planning to attend a similar dance to be given by the Nonpariel Social Club at its rooms on St. Mary's avenue, tonight, and this will form a substitute for the Washington school reception.

President John R. Gates, of the Dunbar Social Club, announced this morning, however, that the organization which he represents would not attend as a club, although a majority of the members would be present. When it was decided not to hold the dance in Washington school the Nonpariels turned over their club rooms to the Dunbar members, but owing to certain complications that would develop with the recreation committee, President Gates wanted it clearly understood that the club did not take advantage of the invitation as a body but would go as individuals.

WILL HAVE ONE MONTH IN WHICH TO BECOME RECONCILED

"Too much mother-in-law," was the excuse Samuel Mager, made in the City Court, this morning, when arraigned before Judge DeMeza on a charge of non-support preferred by his wife. It developed, however, that Mager deserated his wife ten days after the birth of his baby daughter. He was arrested by Detective-Sergeant Flynn, at 130 Ferry street, Newark.

After hearing the testimony, the court reserved decision for one month and expressed the hope that in the intervening time the couple would become reconciled. Mager said he would establish a home for his spouse in Newark, is she would consent to leave Plainfield.

Miss Edith Jeffrey, of Jersey City, who has been spending a few days visiting Miss Daisy, of this city, has returned home.

HOT SHOT INTO SUFFRAGISTS

to vote on educational matters but asserted that the suffragists, were also at fault in this respect.

Speaking of the education of the negro men to vote after they were freed from slavery and given the use of the ballot, Mrs. Goodwin said, "The most costly governmental experiment the United States has ever undertaken, was to learn the negro to vote and intelligently utilize his right of the ballot. To give equal franchise to the women would necessitate a repetition of this costly experiment. The negro women of the South are too ignorant to vote and the white Southerners will not stand for it. If it was a question of intelligent women voting, I would say, 'Let us have equal franchise.' My statement in regard to the negro women equally applies to the ignorant women among the aliens."

"The invasion of the women into the industrial world is another great mistake made in this country and is giving us new problems to solve every day. No woman expects to make a permanency of her industrial life and many that seek employment really do not need to. Men's wages have been lowered by women-workers. They have no family to support and therefore can work for lower wages. It can thus be easily seen how they are preventing men from earning a sufficient salary to support their loved ones."

In conclusion, Mrs. Goodwin said "The work of the antis is a matter of patriotism. Women are not built to take on any more nerve tearing job, a burden that voting entails. We have a more dutiful life to live."

SENATORS PLEDGE AID

dell, Ashurst and Owen were speakers, and Mrs. Laidlaw, Mrs. Susan Fitzgerald and Mrs. Mary Ware Dennett also made addresses.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 1—Wednesday was a rather uneventful day for the New Jersey delegation on its way to take part in the Washington suffrage demonstration on Thursday. The engine of Mr. Riley's car after "missing" persistently on Tuesday and filling the owner with forebodings as to what it might do later, suddenly decided to be good and sent the car along silently and swiftly as the pilgrims wanted to go, this being forty miles an hour a good part of the way from Belair to Washington, which was reached in time for luncheon. It had been prophesied that the roads from Baltimore on would be dreadful—instead of which there was a beautiful new State road all the way to the boundaries of the District.

While the party was eating lunch a terrific thunderstorm broke which caused havoc all over Washington. The business streets were filled with broken glass, tin roofs, neatly rolled up by the wind, and other debris. On Pennsylvania avenue many trees were uprooted and the parks and squares are covered with broken branches torn from trees which stand half ruined.

After the storm the New Jerseyites went to call at the headquarters of the Suffrage Congressional Union at 1420 F street, N. W. Miss Alice Paul Miss Lucy Byrns, Mrs. Brooks and the other women in charge were delighted to see the New Jersey delegates and presented them with quantities of yellow streamers and white plumes as additional decorations for their car. Miss Alice Paul is a Moorestown, New Jersey, girl and the suffragists are proud of the way in which she and Miss Byrns have organized the national work.

The program for Thursday is as follows: All the delegations will meet at Hyattsville, Maryland, a few miles out of Washington at nine thirty. The mayor of Hyattsville will present the keys of the city to the suffragists and make an address of welcome. Suffrage sentiment is very strong in Hyattsville and the people of the city are planning to turn out in force to greet the visitors. The automobile parade will form in Hyattsville and proceeding to Washington, will go directly up Pennsylvania avenue to the Capitol. There each State delegation will visit its own senators and present the petition which it has brought asking the Senate to vote on the woman suffrage amendment to the National Constitution. Most of the New Jersey representatives are suffragists, by the way, including Joseph Tumulty, secretary to the President, Congressmen J. Thompson Baker and Robert G. Bremner, and several other congressmen who are outspoken in support of the cause. On Thursday evening there will be a reception and banquet for the visiting suffragists and for senators and congressmen from the ten suffrage States at the Brighton.

COLLEGE POSITION FOR MISS WILSON'S FIANCE

New York, August 1.—Francis B. Sayre, who is to marry Miss Jessie Woodrow Wilson, second daughter of the President, announced Wednesday that he will accept the place offered him as assistant to President Harry A. Garfield of Williams College. He will resign as head of the abandonment bureau in the office of District Attorney Whitman just prior to the wedding in the latter part of November, and after the honeymoon trip will go to Williamstown, Mass., where he and his bride will make their home in February.

Mr. Sayre's duties for the first six months in his new position will consist of aiding President Garfield in shaping the administration of the college. He will study social conditions among the students and visit various cities to keep in touch with the alumni. Mr. Sayre was graduated from Williams in 1909.

A Bargain List For Saturday Shoppers

It's a partial list, however, because if we enumerated every bargain here we could fill this page. And they ARE bargains, not so called ones, real genuine old fashioned bargains.

There's not a great many—about two dozen—all dainty models, well made of good quality materials, including crash, lawn, chambray, linene, etc.; all this season's styles and originally selling up to $3.50. To get rid of them we have reduced the price to $1.98.

A GENERAL REDUCTION ON DAINTY LINGERIE FROCKS'

Simply because we want the rack room. There's still a complete assortment of sizes in the prettiest of models. Some in lawns, some crepe and some voiles, all handsomely designed and trimmed with the prettiest of laces and embroideries; some having embroidered panels front of bodice and skirt, and they are all reduced to get them out quickly.

Automobile Dusters
A $3.00 Value at $1.95

Parasols at a Big Saving

You want a sunshade this hot weather, no matter if on vacation or home. These prices are reduced to the very possible lowest figures:

$1.00 Parasols, covered in pongee, with contrasting borders of similar material, now reduced to 59c.

25c Pique at 19c Yard

In medium and wide wale and because here and there you will find a slight oil stain or imperfection, instead of selling it at 25c, we ask only 19c a yard.

59c Value at 39c

In both natural and white, made of a good quality material, with turn-back cuffs and in sizes from 14½ up.

$3.00 Net Waists $2.25

This is a new fall model, just in. It's a dainty conception of cream net with underbody of pink Jap silk; has elbow sleeves, and the new sloping V shape neck; both being trimmed with net ruffling; we introduce them to you at only $2.25.

Pillow Cases at 15

These are a specially good value at 19c, as they are made of a fine quality casing and are 45x36 in. size before hemming; we could easily get 19c for them, only we bought them at a price which allows us to sell them at 15c.

Yard Wide Dress Linens

MEN'S ROXFORD UNDERWEAR

We intended sending part of this purchase to our Elmira store but your response to our offer this week prompts us to keep it all here for our Plainfield patrons. So here you are, these fine balbriggan vests and pants, universally sold at 50c garments, reduced specially, while they last, to 39c.

MISSES' & JUNIORS' WASH DRESSES

Mr. Tepper purchased this lot of pretty frocks last Wednesday at a ridiculously low price. We expect them in by Saturday morning, when we will place them on sale and show them in one of our windows. If they don't come in by tomorrow they will be shown as soon as they do come in, so watch for them as they are something unusual. There will be just two prices: Children's sizes, 79c; Junior sizes, $1.19.

STORM IN WASHINGTON.

Showing Wrecked Building Where Two Lives Were Lost.

A rain and wind storm which resulted in the death of at least two persons and wrought more damage to the beautiful parks and public buildings of the capital than has been done by nature in ten years raged over Washington for an hour. Two men were killed in the collapse of a three story building in the northwestern part of the city. They were Walter E. Hilton, an official of the B. F. Saul Real Estate company, and Thomas Fealy, an aged employee of the company.

Sentient Alarm Clocks.

"Devil dogs" are a species of alarm clock used in Greece for the purpose of keeping persons awake, such as watchmen, stage drivers and railroad men. They are generally small black dogs. Should the person whom the "devil dog" is detailed to keep awake be a stage driver, the dog is strapped to a little stool beside him, and throughout the journey he keeps up a sharp barking, often causing the passengers to keep awake as well as the driver. At times he will pause for a minute or two to moisten his parched, rasped throat at the basin of water set before him and then begin again.

ACCUSES TOLMAN OF HAVING SCHOOL

Trenton Prosecutor Says He Had Eighty-two Offices.

VICTIMS URGE LAW'S LIMIT

Declares "Loan Shark King" Awaiting Sentence For Charging Usurious Rates of Interest Had School of Instruction In Swindling—Maximum Sentence Is Three Years and Fine.

Trenton, N. J., Aug. 1.—Prosecutor Martin Devlin, who gathered all the evidence against Daniel H. Tolman, the "loan shark king," awaiting sentence for charging usurious rates of interest, sometimes as high as 275 per cent, said in an interview that the expose of the Tolman system was the most startling in this section of the country in a great many years.

Mr. Devlin and his assistants after the raid on the Tolman establishment worked to unearth the extent of his operations in other cities and found that he has eighty-two establishments scattered throughout the country and that he has been conducting a "school" in connection with the establishment of these agencies.

"Tolman's system," said Mr. Devlin, "was a school of instruction in swindling." The prosecutor said Tolman employed a managing instructor, a woman who went about the country establishing these agencies and teaching girl clerks the system in running them.

"A great deal of evidence would have been produced showing the tremendous scope of Tolman's operations," said Prosecutor Devlin, "if his trial had not been halted by his changing his plea from not guilty to non vult, which is practically an admission of guilt, with the contention that the defendant did not know he was breaking the law.

"I have had anonymous letters from all parts of the country, evidently written by victims of the Tolman system, urging me to strenuously press the prosecution, in the hope that he will get the maximum sentence, which is three years in prison and a fine of $500."

BIG RESORT FESTIVAL.

2,000 Fill Long Branch Theater to See Double Coronation.

Long Branch, N. J., Aug. 1.—Two thousand people filled the Broadway theater to witness the double coronation, the queen of the dollies and the queen of the midsummer carnival, given by the Long Branch chamber of commerce.

In connection with the coronation a two part program was given, consisting of solos, sketches from "Hiawatha," recitations, fancy dances, etc., with Tali Esen of Ocean Grove in charge. The queen of the carnival is Miss Annabel Marie Lind of New York, who is summering in Allenhurst. There were fifteen in her party. The king is Langdon Morris of Long Branch, son of former Mayor B. Morris. The queen of the dollies is six-year-old Edwina Taber; the king is Gordon Riddle. Mayor Bryant B. Newcomb crowned both rulers and delivered the keys to Miss Lind, who is known as Queen Elizabeth V.

WOMAN COP AT ASBURY.

Asbury Park, N. J., Aug. 1.—Mrs. Nannetto Melvin was sworn in by Mayor Reginald Bennett as a police officer to do duty in plain clothes on the boardwalk. Mrs. Melvin did similar service at Baltimore, but comes to this resort now from Newport, where she has been getting herself acquainted with the methods pursued by the women officers.

Mrs. Melvin's advent of the boardwalk is the outcome of a plan formed by the women's club of Asbury Park which found it desirable to keep watch on the young girls who go unattended to the boardwalk and crowd the bathing grounds in the morning.

Her beat will extend from the Casino to Eighth avenue, and she will be empowered to make arrests and do the full service of an officer of the law.

SPECTATORS BAFFLE AVIATOR

Points Craft Into Sand and It Turns Turtle—Escapes Injury.

Bradley Beach, N. J., Aug. 1.—Flying at an average speed of sixty-three miles an hour George Dyott, an English aviator, arrived her from Brighton Beach and came to grief in making a landing when spectators crowded the beach and to avoid hitting a telegraph pole he was obliged to point his craft into the sand. The monoplane turned turtle, but Dyott had crawled back into his pilot's cabin and was uninjured. The rudder of the machine was broken.

Dyott says he flew at an average height of 5,000 feet. He followed the ocean and made the trip in an hour and a half. He will repair the rudder and after a few days exhibition here will continue his journey to Washington.

An Exception.

"Do you believe," asked young Dudeleigh, who is only five feet tall, "that brevity is the soul of wit?"

"Not in your case," replied Miss Biffington in a tone redolent with acrimony.

1714—Queen Anne of England died and was succeeded by George I.

1745—James Blair, first president of William and Mary College, died in Williamsburg, Va. Born in Scotland in 1656.

1793—The yollow fever appeared in Philadelphia, and resulted in nearly 5,000 deaths before it was suppressed in early November.

1834—Slavery ceased throughout the British possessions.

1838—Admiral John Rodgers, a famous naval officer of the war of 1812, died in Philadelphia. Born in Maryland, July 11, 1771.

1876—Colorado admitted to Statehood.

1904—Robert E. Pattison, governor of Pennsylvania 1882-6, and 1891-5, died. Born in Maryland, Dec. 8, 1850.

Plainfield, N. J., August 1, 1913.

It is about time that the State did something to put a stop to the high-handed work of the railroad "detectives." To them, human life is cheap and on almost any pretext they shoot to kill. Many a cold-blooded murder has been committed by these legalized malefactors and invariably they have succeeded in escaping their just deserts. It should be admitted that some of these "detectives" are law-abiding and God-fearing men but the majority of those we hear of are a bad gang. Only the other day, one of these "detectives" shot down a youth in one of our suburbs and we can heartily endorse the comment made by the New Brunswick Home News on that unfortunate incident:

"The brutal and unprovoked shooting of a boy at South Plainfield by a Lehigh Valley Railroad 'detective' is a plain indication that the law gives altogether too much leeway to irresponsible individuals who are engaged by railroad corporations to police the lines. These men are selected without any consideration of their fitness and are invested with all the powers of policemen by the perfunctory endorsement of the various municipalities in which they are to operate.

"Real policemen have to pass at least some test as to their qualifications, but these men, who may be called upon to act in every part of the State, are under no such restriction."

The American public should applaud President Wilson for the firm stand he has taken against the recognition of Huerta's rump government in Mexico. Huerta betrayed his best friend and his chief and usurped the reins of government and to prevent his unseating, so most people believe, had guilty knowledge of the assassination of President Madero. But meditation, as Wilson proposes, is useless as a remedy for the Mexican problem. Better "take the bull by the horns" and give Mexico a good spanking.

The contributing editor for tomorrow's issue will be Stanley E. Gunnison, Jr., an advertising expert. Mr. Gunnison resides in the Netherwood section and is much interested in its welfare. As chairman of the education committee of the Netherwood Residents' Association he has given much time to a study of the school problem in that locality and what he will have to say will be particularly interesting to the people living in the East End.

It is a favorite trick of the "Farmer-orator," James E. Martine, when stirring up enthusiasm at a political mass meeting to pay a tribute to the women in his audience. That he couples with an eulogy on the "Star Spangled Banner" and thereby works up his hearers to a high degree of enthusiasm. But we fear now that "Our Jim" has lost the women. He has come out against Equal Suffrage.

Fame is a funny thing, isn't it? Now there is young Francis B. Sayre, whose only claim to notority was that his father was a great man. Now, since the kid has become engaged to marry the President's daughter he is given attention in the editorial columns of the Metropolitan newspapers.

A petition placing Charles N. Fowler in the field as a candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor is being peddled about the city. Isn't it singular that no conspicuous member of that party here has anything to do with the movement?

Uncle Sam is up against a boycott. Germany joins with England in declining to exhibit at the Panama Exposition to be held at Frisco.

William Sulzer is having a hard time of it in trying to play the role of a Woodrow Wilson. It is "Get the hook" for him.

When you are about to go away on your vacation don't neglect to have the Daily Press follow you.

SMALL BOARD BILL TO BE INTRODUCED

Congressman Still Willing to Be Convinced On the Equal Suffrage Question.

Elizabeth, August 1.—At the special session of the State Legislature, which has been called by Acting Governor James F. Fielder, to amend the Commission Government Act for Jersey City, Assemblyman Griffin, of this city, will introduce a mandatory bill, calling for the election of the small Board of Freeholders of Union county at the November election. This bill, if passed, will prevent the necessity of a special election and save a sum of $20,000, the cost a special election would entail to the county.

A feature of the bill will be a provision to be known as the "District Provision," which will call for the representation of each district of the county on the Board. Thus, the principal cities of the county, viz.: Plainfield, Summit, Rahway and Elizabeth, will all be represented, instead of just Elizabeth, a state of affairs which has often happened.

NEW SHOW WITH OLD NAME ... TO BE HERE NEXT MONDAY

Originality is the tuning-fork of sweetest melody. It is the shibboleth this season of The Great Sig. Sautelle 9-Big Shows. That "something new" the world is always searching for, has been discovered by this wizard expert among showmen in things circussy. He scorns the monotonous sameness, and "damning iteration" of the humped-over, alleged wild wests. Those that have done "Deadwood Coach" acts from the days of the "Last of the Mohigans." This show recognizes a duty to the public that is entitled to the newest, best and most interesting.

The Sautelle Shows will give an exhibition at Plainfield next Monday. Mr. Sautelle's inventive brain cells, (invigorated by his few years' rest in tickling the soil of his farm), have labored and brought forth an almost miracle. He has corraled the greatest features, actors, acrobats, athletes, animals and general talent that ever foregathered at one time. It is an all-star aggregation; a bouquet of beauty, agility and nerve. It is the circus of the coming season. The Sig. Sautelle shows are co-ordinate—par excellence in themselves. Don't miss the parade.

TO LURE MOSQUITOES TO THEIR DOOM BY MUSIC

Atlantic City, August 1.—The Atlantic County Mosquito Commission, which has been granted a $26,000 appropriation by the Board of Freeholders to rid the county of mosquitoes, may try to lure the pests to death by musical vibrations generated by electricity.

According to information which the commission has received, Dr. L. O. Howard, of the Federal Department of Agriculture, has discovered that the hum of the mosquito, commonly attributed to the vibration of its wings, is really caused by respiration. Dr. Howard learned that this hum could be imitated by electrical vibrations, toward which mosquitoes precipitate themselves as if drawn by a powerful magnet. By attaching large strips of sticky flypaper back of the vibrating wires he has perfected an exterminator.

Dr. Howard is noted in the Department of Agriculture as an entomologist and is the author of several studies of mosquito problems. The local commission has addressed an inquiry to him with the idea of adopting his plan if it proves practical.

A CAMPAIGN OF ODDITIES.

When the Log Cabin and Hard Cider Enthusiasts Rejoiced.

Political enthusiasm has taken many forms during the lifetime of this nation. The Harrison-Van Buren presidential campaign of 1840 was in some respects the most remarkable the country has ever seen. "From May till November," says one historian, "it seemed as if all ablebodied citizens simply went about in processions to attend mass meetings."

The great oddity of the campaign was the log cabin, the coon and the cider barrel. The log cabin idea originated with an opposition paper which had said slightingly that "William Henry Harrison better go back to Indiana and stay there in his log cabin drinking hard cider."

The taunt was taken up by Harrison's followers. Log cabins sprang up all over the Union. In every town there was a house warming, and the log cabin was thrown open to the public amid general rejoicing. On the roof was a live raccoon, and a barrel of cider stood before the door, where any one who desired might drink all he chose.

It was a campaign of oddities. Some of the symbols have never been surpassed for genuine absurdity.—Magazine of American History.

SIMPLICITY IN THE HOME.

There Is Such a Condition as Having Too Many Furnishings.

Many nervous, irritable, dissatisfied, unhappy women would become calm and contented if they would store, give or throw away half of their belongings. Some have abandoned elegant residences and taken their families into hotels or boarding houses who could have continued to keep up their homes if, instead of giving up their houses themselves, they had done away with the superfluous furnishings.

Some one, often the mistress herself, must clean and care for every article of furnishing, no matter how humble its use or how ornamental its function, and this round of duties proves many times to be a grievous burden on delicate shoulders.

There is such a thing possible as having too many utensils and tools to work with, so that taking out, replacing and keeping them clean and in order add to the daily labor. Too much furniture in a room, so that walking through it seems a perilous attempt to steer a course without disaster, too many garments to wear, for time is consumed in caring for them, and even in choosing what to put on.—Suburban Life Magazine.

A Widow's Curious Cap.

A very curious cap forms the "widow's weeds" of the Australian aborigine in one part of the great island continent. Near the northeast bend of the Murray river it is the custom for widows to attend upon the tombs of their departed lords. Then after shaving their heads they cover them with pipe clay kneaded into a paste. The head is first covered with a net to prevent the clay from sticking too tightly to the skin, a misfortune which is partly averted by the amount of grease with which every Australian native is anointed. A layer of this clay several inches in thickness is plastered over the head and when dry forms a sort of skullcap exactly fitting the head on which it was molded. As it weighs several pounds, the widow's cap cannot be comfortable.

Weather Vanes.

The best weather vanes are made with the greatest nicety and precision, so that they balance perfectly and turn with the least possible wear. The vane is, of course, longer on one side of the socket than on the other or it would not turn with the wind, but its weight is the same on both sides. If it is a narrow vane, for instance, the weight of the solid head is easily made equal to that of the longer, projecting but thinner feather end, and all vanes, whatever they may be, are balanced as to weight and so adjusted that they turn easily and with the least possible friction.

Understanding.

A well known artist tells of an amusing colloquy in an art gallery where two young women were viewing a copy of Millet's "Gleaners."

One of the young women was carried away by her enthusiasm. "How beautiful! How wonderful! What art!" she exclaimed. "Above all, how natural!"

Then, after a pause, she said, "But what are those people doing?"

Drawing nearer to read the title, she was enlightened. "Oh, now," she added, "I see! Gleaning millet! How wonderful! How beautiful!"—Exchange.

A Substitute.

Mrs. Crabshaw—When the woman next door returned after being away a week her husband was just contemptible enough to say that he hadn't missed her. Crabshaw—I don't suppose he did. He had the talking machine going all the time.—Judge.

Musical Note.

Tardy Arrival (at the concert)—Have I missed much? What are they playing now? One of the Elect—The "Ninth Symphony." Tardy Arrival—Goodness! Am I as late as that?—Harper's Bazar.

Her Advantage.

"Your daughter has an angelic disposition."

"Yes; we always let her have her own way about everything."

Ought to Be.

"Is Mrs. Gillett a well informed woman?"

"Well, she's on a party wire."—Life.

TUTTLE ADVOCATES STATE REFERENDUMS

Congressman Described Warfare in Plainfield Between Suffragists and "Antis."

Washington, August 1.—While not believing that the time was propitious for the adoption of a constitutional amendment permitting women to vote, Congressman Tuttle, of the Fifth New Jersey district, declared upon his return from a vacation to Union county, that he believed State-wide referendums the solution of the problems at present. Mr. Tuttle described the "warfare" in Plainfield between the suffragists and the "antis" as "some war," and it appeared that he had been besieged while at home to announce himself on the issue.

Mr. Tuttle said that with a few more State-wide referendums, the true sentiment of all the people upon woman's suffrage would be procured. Then, he believed, a constitutional amendment would be in order. He would not vote for such an amendment now, he said.

The New Jersey Congressman's mind appeared to be open upon the subject, judging by his remarks upon the State referendums. His position upon the latter was doubly interesting, as the Union county members of the present Legislature voted against such a bill.

There are several other Representatives taking the same position as Mr. Tuttle upon the constitutional amendment, and the latter is said to have little or no chance of passing.

Supporters of the woman suffrage movement claim to be encouraged by the position of many Congressmen in advocating a State-wide referendum, and an effort to have such a referendum in New Jersey will be made next year.

Mr. Tuttle seemed glad to return to Washington, despite the heat and work confronting him. His home at Westfield was evidently too near the seat of "warfare" for him to have much of a vacation.

WILL BRING CROWELL BACK.

CAVE-IN IN BRONX.

(By Telegraph to The Daily Press.)

New York, Aug. 1—One man was killed and a dozen injured in a cave-in in the new Aqueduct at Moshoiu Parkway and Jerome avenue, the Bronx. All the men at work in the bore from the city line to the lower end of the Bronx were called to aid in the rescue work.

SENT TO BOYS' HOME.

John Chapman, of East Fourth street, the 13 years old colored boy who was arrested by Detective Sergeant John J. Flynn, for stealing a quantity of brass from the yard of Nathan Meyer, at 121 Watchung avenue, and held for the Juvenile Court by Judge DeMeza, was today sent to the State Home for Boys at Jamesburg. He was arraigned this morning before Judge Connolly in the Court of Special Sessions at Elizabeth. Chapman's father testified that his boy was incorrigable and stated that he wanted him sent to an institution in an effort to "break" him from following the ways of a criminal.

MULHALL GRILLED BY N. A. M. LAWYER

McCarter's Questions Edited by Reed, However.

LOBBYIST WAS POLICEMAN

Admits He Was Dismissed From Cleveland Force, but Blames Politics. Excited When Questioned Regarding Sale of Letters.

Washington, Aug. 1.—A lively row between Senator Reed and Attorney Robert McCarter, counsel for the National Association of Manufacturers, marked Colonel Mulhall's cross examination before the senate lobby investigating committee. Mr. McCarter insisted on asking questions himself; Senator Reed insisted that all questions should go through the committee. Chairman Overman ruled with Senator Reed.

McCarter precipitated the outbreak by asking Mulhall if he had not been discharged from the Cleveland police force ten years ago for violation of a state law. Mulhall replied he was dismissed for political reasons. Then he demanded counsel.

"I was advised by friends to refuse to answer," he exclaimed. "I want counsel. I insist on it and refuse to go on until I have it. I'll go to jail before I'll answer questions about my personal affairs thirty or forty years ago."

"Instead of being designed to throw light of this case, many of these questions are designed to throw mud at the witness," declared Senator Reed. "This is an investigation, not a trial. I insist you have no right to say a word here," he concluded, addressing McCarter.

All Questions Submitted.

Mulhall withdrew his demand for counsel, and the hearing proceeded with the attorneys submitting their questions to Chairman Overman.

"Is it not true that Samuel H. Springer, who resides at your house, tried to dispose of these letters to the Philadelphia Press and the Philadelphia Record?" Mulhall was asked.

"It's a vicious lie," he shouted.

He denied that he ever offered the correspondence to two magazines or to the New York Times. He denied having made a statement to Richard Barry, who was representing him, that the manufacturers' association would pay $150,000 for the documents if they could not be disposed of to papers or magazines.

Mulhall denied that he agreed Barry should sell the letters to the New York World for $10,000 and that he would be content with $5,000, but later he testified that at Barry's suggestion he did agree. He never paid Barry.

"Have you produced all letters between you and the association?" asked Senator Cummins.

"I believe I have not."

Counsel Knew of Payments.

Mulhall swore that payment of monthly sums to J. H. McMichael, one time chief page of the house; Harry Parker, messenger to the ways and means committee and the speaker's doorkeeper, were made with the knowledge and consent of J. H. Emery, counsel for the manufacturers. He testified that the payments began in 1909 and ran through most of 1910 and 1911. Questions were designed to show that Emery was on the Pacific coast and in Europe many months in those years. Mulhall contended that when Emery was away the three were not paid and the sums were made up later.

Mulhall swore that Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, and Jackson H. Ralston, attorney for that organization, tried more than a year ago to secure the letters he laid before the senate committee.

DYNAMITE UNDER A BED.

Three Tenants, Italians, Said to Have Left It In Tenement.

New York, Aug. 1.—Two sticks of dynamite, each about nine inches long, two fuses and a bottle of what is supposed to be nitroglycerin were found under a bed in a room on the second floor of a tenement house at 503 East Fifteenth street.

Two men and a woman, Italians, had occupied the two room tenement and had just given it up. Joseph Abuto, who is said to have been one of the men, and Margaret Marino, said to be the woman, were arraigned in Essex Market court, but could not be held on a short affidavit charging them with having explosives in their possession. They were served with summonses to appear in court later.

'LORD BARRINGTON' SEEKING A PARDON

Murderer, Who Posed As English Nobleman, Wants to Regain His Freedom.

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. —Announcement that efforts are to be made to secure a pardon or parole for Frederick A. Seymour, otherwise "Lord Barrington," who is serving a life sentence for the murder of James P. McCann near this city in 1902, has served to recall to the public mind this pseudo-nobleman, whose career is one of the most romantic in the annals of crime.

The further announcement that "Barrington's" fight for freedom will be based on an allegation that the man he was convicted of slaying is now alive in the person of James P. Maybray, whose band of swindlers was broken up by the Federal authorities several years ago after Maybray and others had been sent to prison, is generally regarded as but another illustration of the subtlety and resourcefulness of the bogus lord who is now behind prison bars.

There are those, however, who believe that the story is worthy of investigation. It is considered a rather strange conincidence that the three initials of Maybray should be the same as those of the alleged murder victim. Both McCann and Maybray were gamblers and followers of the races. When Maybray was arrested and tried in Iowa little could be learned as to his past history. And, the strongest point of all, there were many persons who, at the time of "Barrington's" arrest, conviction and condemnation to death, still believed that positive proof was lacking that McCann had ever been killed.

There is little doubt that the previous bad record of "Lord Barrington" had much to do with his conviction on the murder charge. He was known in Europe and America as one of the most picturesque figures in "polite" crookdom, for although he was of lowly origin his specialty as passing as a member of the British peerage went well in many cities and helped him to live without work for years.

He began his unique saunter through the calendar of crime when a 7-year-old boy by setting fire to a number of cottages near Brighton, England, where he was born. At the age of 16 he was given a sentence of ten years for burglary, the proceeds of which had netted him $10,000. Four years later he escaped, deceiving the police when apprehended by producing a pardon which was not discovered to be a forgery until later.

About this time, having previously taken the name of Frederick Sydenham Burgoyne, he decided it would be to his advantage to give himself a new surrounding by joining the army. A year after he enlisted he forged a furlough, fled from the army and committed a burglary for which he did a ten years' stretch. He also was arrested for the murder of an army officer, whose valet he had been, but was released for lack of proof.

While in prison he devoted himself to improving his education. When he came to America after his release in 1891 he was a well polished fraud. He posed here as the son of an English nobleman of rank and wealth. As such he won Miss E. Celestine Miller, of Brooklyn, an heiress with a fortune in her own right. With his bride he had the effrontery to return to England and establish himself in a home at Brighton. Soon stripped of every penny by her husband, the unhappy wife returned to America with her child, and "Barrington" was arrested and sent back to prison to serve out an old sentence.

Upon his release he again came to the United States and as "Lord Burgoyne," of the British peerage, was received in Philadelphia society. Here he wedded Miss Margaret Rafferty, also an heiress. After borrowing a large sum from her he disappeared and was next heard of in St. Louis as "Lord Barrington." In this city he met and married Miss Wilhelmina Grace Cochran, of Independence, Iowa. Miss Cochran later had her marriage annulled and was instrumental in sending him to prison. One of the strangest phases of the case at present is the fact that Miss Cochran is said now to be aiding him in his fight for freedom.

The crime for which "Barrington" is serving a life term was committed just ten years ago. James McCann, the alleged victim, was reckless. He drank heavily, went with a "sporty" srowd, and never worked. He lived upon the residue of a fortune which he had largely dissipated. He became "Barrington's" good friend and patron, and was arranging to back him in a hotel venture during the St. Louis world's fair.

On the night of June 18, 1903, McCann and Barrington visited numerous gardens and other drinking resorts in St. Louis suburbs. One week later the nude body of a man was found floating in an abandoned quarry near Creve Coeur lake. Friends identified the body as that of McCann. Barrington was at once arrested on a charge of murder. For five years he was in jail in St. Louis while his case was carried through the courts. The Supreme Court of the United States finally upheld his conviction and sentence of death. Notwithstanding this, many persons continued in the belief that the bogus lord was innocent of the murder charged against him. Owing, perhaps, to the prevalence of this sentiment the sentence was commuted to life imprisonment.

SENATOR GRONNA.

Declares That Tariff Bill Discriminates Against the Farmer.

Characterizing the Democratic tariff bill as "neither fish, fowl nor herring," a measure not framed on scientific principles of either free trade or protection and declaring it will not benefit the consumer because it will injure if not destroy the producer, Senator Gronna, a Progressive Republican, of North Dakota attacked the measure in the tariff discussion in the senate.

DEMOCRATIC SENATOR BOLTS TARIFF BILL

Thornton Attacks Measure Because of Free Sugar.

Washington, Aug. 1.—Prospects for an early agreement between senate and house on a date when the wool schedule shall become effective have gone glimmering. Majority Leader Underwood of the house advised Chairman Simmons of the senate finance committee that he did not consider such a plan feasible and thought the house would stand firm for having the schedule go into effect as soon as the bill passed. The matter would have to be settled in conference.

The senate bill provides that raw wool shall be placed on the free list Dec. 1 and reduced woolen manufactures rates shall go into effect Jan. 1.

Senator Thornton, Democrat, of Louisiana, who will vote against the bill because of free sugar, delivered in the senate debate an impassioned denunciation of his party's determination to put sugar on the free list in 1916. His was the first speech from within the Democratic party attacking the bill since it was reported to the senate.

"I owe to the people of my state a far higher measure of devotion than I owe to the Democratic party," he exclaimed. "Honor and duty alike demand that I vote against this bill while it embodies this provision."

He quoted from a report of the Democratic minority of the senate on the free sugar bill in July, 1912, which maintained that putting sugar on the free list was "not in keeping with the promises of the Democratic platforms to reduce present protective duties gradually toward and finally to a revenue basis."

"This report was signed by such stalwart tariff for revenue Democrats as Senators Bailey, Simmons, Stone, Williams, Kern and Johnson—all of whom, with the exception of the first named, are still members of the senate," said he.

MID-SUMMER DAYS AT POPULAR PLACE

Fresh News Items Gathered at Asbury Park For Daily Press Readers.

Asbury Park, August 1.—The youngsters who came to the sea-shore yesterday on the excursion of the Plainfield Sunday-schools had rare sport on the beach between the Casino and Arcade where varying tides had made a huge sand basin and then filled it with salt water. This freak of the breakers afforded a safe wading pool for the real young and the very timid, while in the deeper portion near the pier scores of boys went swimming. The day was an ideal one for Plainfield's visitors and on every hand there was ample evidence that the outing was being thoroughly enjoyed.

A woman policeman on the boardwalk is the latest of interest in Asbury Park. Mayor Bennett has decided to appoint Mrs Nanette Melvin, of Baltimore, for the remainder of the summer. She started on duty today and it will be her duty to preserve the morals of the beach-front and boardwalk. For this she will receive a compensation of $70 a month. Officer Melvin will wear no uniform. She will keep a watchful eye that the boys and girls, under and over thirty years, do not indulge in promiscuous hugging and kissing, nor disport themselves on the bathing beaches in a manner contrary to good morals. Mrs. Susan B. Smock, of the Woman's Club, of Asbury Park, secured the appointment of Mrs. Melvin. In granting her request Mayor Bennett has made a statement that the appointment is in the nature of an experiment and must not be taken as a reflection upon the morals of the resort or that Asbury Park is in any way losing its prestige as a clean, safe resort for women and children. "As a matter of fact," says the mayor, "the appointment of Mrs. Melvin is to insure the maintenance of that reputation. Thousands of new visitors are coming to Asbury Park every week. Some of these new comers might be a bit indiscreet, particularly the young people, and it is out of consideration for their feelings that I have selected Mrs. Melvin to supervise the morals of the beach-front rather than turn it over to the regular uniformed police force." Mrs. Melvin is 45 years of age, weighs 150 pounds, and has exercised a moral censorship at other resorts.

Beginning today visitors will again be welcome to visit the United States life saving station at the foot of Deal Lake. The crews went on duty at midnight last night after a two months' vacation. Drills will be held daily, except Saturday and Sunday. On Mondays and Thursdays there will be drills with the beach apparatus, Tuesday, capsize drill; Wednesday, signal drill; Friday, first aid drill. Great crowds always take in the capsize and apparatus drills.

Thirty members of the Master Builders Association of New Jersey met at the Metropolitan Hotel yesterday. President James Anderson, of Orange, presided. Reports submitted from all parts of the State show building operations to be very slack, but prospects good. It has been proposed that material men and dealers in building supplies be admitted to associate membership in the organization.

Dr. James Gilbert Mason, prohibition candidate for governor, addressed the North Jersey Shore Woman Suffrage League Wednesday night and expressed the opinion that women would make good voters because they were studying conditions more closely than men and were likely to be more fully informed.

Several thousand organists are planning to visit Ocean Grove next week to attend the national convention of organists at the auditorium. The program will be completed today and will include at least three excellent recitals. Memorial services were held in the Tabernacle yesterday afternoon to celebrate the founding of Ocean Grove. At 5 o'clock services were held in Founders Park where the first meeting of Ocean Grove's promoters was held in 1869.

John A. Githens, Jr., editor of the Progressive Times, was wedded yesterday morning to Miss Josephine Hersh, of Farmingdale, Bishop Scarborough officiating. The bride is the daughter of the late Nelson Hersh, who was well known as one of the editors of the New York Sunday World.

Among the Plainfielders registered at Asbury Park hotels are: Martinique—Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Lyman; Beachwood Inn—Edyth Bechtel, Mrs M. Brouard, Miss Brouard, Mrs. F. B. Newall, P. B. Newall, M. P. Newall; Thedford—C. A. Hall; West End—Mrs. S. F. Colby, Mrs. M. L. Lane, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Holbrook; St. George—Miss E. Thompson, C. V. Rittenhouse; Newburgh—E. R. Smythe, V. W. Shotwell. Registered in Ocean Grove: The Arborton—H. W. Hermann.

The temperature on the boardwalk at noon yesterday was 76; at 8 a. m., 75.

REFINING SUGAR.

Process by Which the Best White Products Are Obtained.

The method used by the best sugar refineries is subtsantially as follows: The raw sugar is dissolved in large cisterns on the ground floor, enough hot water being added to produce a specific gravity of 1.25. The solution is then drawn through a connecting pipe having a coarse wire strainer into large pumps, by which it is pumped into the highest story of the building, usually the seventh or eighth. It there passes into vessels heated by steam coils to a temperature of about 210 F. Milk of lime is added to the solution in these pans for the purpose of neutralizing any acid which it may contain.

From these pans the liquid passes down to the next floor, where it is filtered through a series of bags, each made of two thicknesses of cloth, an outer one of coarse and an inner one of fine cotton. The bags are inclosed in boxes to prevent cooling. After leaving these the sirup is run through filters of boneblack, which absorbs all the coloring matter left in it. After leaving these it is pumped into vacuum pans—large vessels heated by steam and exhausted by air pumps. The pressure being thus reduced, the liquid is boiled at a lower and lower temperature until, at 140 degrees, evaporation is complete and the sirup rapidly crystallizes into sugar.

This is the process by which the best white sugar is made, while poorer qualities are prepared by a method less complete.—St. Louis Republic.

NAMING A JAPANESE BABY.

Sometimes It Is a Rite as Solemn as a Bishop's Election.

Often the naming of a Japanese baby is a simple matter, for the father or grandfather speaking before the company the name of some famous man, if the child is a boy, or of some favorite flower, if it is a girl. For girls, Hana, flower; Yuki, snow; Ai, love, are the favorites of parents with a poetical strain.

The sterner country folk choose for their daughters Matsu, pine; Take, bamboo (if the bamboo joints are exact, hence the exactness of virtue); Ume, plum, since the plum bears both cold and snow bravely. For boys, Ichiro, first boy; Toshio, smart; Iwao, strong, and Isamu, brave, are very popular.

Where belief is strong in the power of a name the family in holiday dress often assembles in a large room. Each writes a name upon a slip of paper and lays it reverently before the house shrine. From the group a very young child is chosen and led before this shrine, and the fate of the name is decided by the small hand which reaches out for a slip. Though it is a festive occasion, the selection of a name is made with a seriousness worthy of the election of a bishop. Many believe devoutly that this rite influences the baby's entire future, and therefore the one whose slip is chosen incurs from the moment of choice great responsibility for the child's welfare.—Frances Little in Century Magazine.

FROZEN COAL MINES.

The Way They Manage to Reach Their Fuel in Holland.

It was not until 1883, when Poetsch invented the "freezing method," that Holland's coal fields became of any practical value.

Where coal is encountered immediately under the solid rock there is a stratum of drift sand that contains great quantities of water. This condition of things made it practically impossible to build the shafts. The freezing method, however, has successfully solved the problem, and Holland now has a flourishing mining industry.

On the spot where the shaft is to be dug from twenty-five to thirty borings are made down through the drift sand to the solid rock in a circle five feet larger in diameter than the projected shaft. Pipes are then sunk into these bore holes, and through these is circulated by powerful freezing machines a chemical solution cooled down to below zero.

In this way the drift sand containing the water is frozen as hard as a rock after the freezing machines have been working day and night for two months. In this frozen cylinder of sand a shaft is then dug and lined from bottom to top with strong segments of cast iron securely soldered together with lead.—Chicago News.

MURPHY DEMANDS PROOF OF SULZER

Tammany Leader Offers to Take the Stand.

RESENTS 'BAGMAN' CHARGE

In Letter to Frawley Challenges Governor to Produce Proofs of Campaign Gifts—Agents of Executive Are Busy Seeking Corroborative Evidence.

New York, Aug. 1.—Charles F. Murphy, the Tammany leader, moved by Governor Sulzer's repeated attacks, culminating in the statement given to the press on Wednesday, sent this letter to Senator Frawley, chairman of the committee now investigating the governor's campaign fund and administration:

305 East Seventeenth Street,
New York, July 31, 1913.

The Hon. James J. Frawley, Senate Chamber, Albany, N. Y.

Dear Sir—This morning's papers report Governor Sulzer as saying that "large contributions from contractors, the officeholders, the special interests and prominent Democrats interested in the campaign were made through the bagman direct to Mr. Murphy."

These insinuations are untrue. If Governor Sulzer has any information as to misconduct on my part relating to campaign contributions I request him to furnish it to your committee, and I will appear for examination at any time. Yours truly, CHARLES F. MURPHY.

So far as known, this is the first time Mr. Murphy ever volunteered or even expressed a willingness to take the stand in any public inquiry.

Mr. Murphy's letter was given to the newspapers last night. It was written from the Tammany chief's town house.

Time and time again, particularly in municipal scandals involving the district attorney's office, Mr. Murphy has been mentioned as a probable witness. But Mr. Murphy never was called.

When the Stilwell case came up a few months ago it was thought that Mr. Murphy might be called. When the Cohalan case came up the Tammany chief wanted it understood that the matter was strictly one between Justice Cohalan and his accuser, and that they would have to settle it between themselves.

Murphy Tired of "Slander."

Friends of Mr. Murphy said that he was tired of being "slandered" by the governor; that even such a reticent politician as he could not be expected to sit back and simply reply "Nothing to say" to attacks upon his character. The chief considered it the right time, they said, to come out and fight his enemy in the open.

The governor was caustic in his remarks about Mr. Murphy in his statement of Wednesday. Here is the "bagman" paragraphs to which Mr. Murphy now objects:

The large contributions from the contractors, the officeholders, the special interests and of prominent Democrats interested in the campaign were made through the bagman direct to Mr. Murphy. The statement of expenses of the campaign filed through the state committee show that I was elected for less money than any other man in recent years. And yet I have been reliably informed that there was more money contributed in my campaign to Mr. Murphy than for any other candidate for governor in twenty years.

I want Mr. Murphy to explain the difference between what he accounted for through the state committee and what he received through the bagman. I want this matter probed to the bottom. Before I get through it will be probed to the bottom.

"Mr. Murphy knows we are collecting evidence of gigantic frauds, and he is putting every obstacle in our way to protect and shield the thieves," the governor added.

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 1.—Governor Sulzer refused to comment on the offer of Charles F. Murphy to take the stand before the Frawley committee. Senator Frawley has left his hotel and is believed to be on his way to New York.

"I have no doubt Mr. Murphy's letter will reach me," said Senator Frawley. The committee will be glad to receive any information Mr. Murphy may have to give. We will be very glad to hear from the governor if he has anything in substantiation of the accusations made in his statement."

Governor Sulzer, it was said at the executive mansion, would have no statement to make regarding any matter relating to the Frawley investigation.

It is known that an agent of the governor has been at work gathering evidence in an effort to show that contractors contributed secretly and in a large way to the Tammany campaign fund last fall.

FUSIONISTS NAME MITCHEL FOR MAYOR

Beats Out Whitman on the Ninth Ballot.

New York, Aug. 1.—Collector of the Port of New York John Purroy Mitchel was nominated for mayor at an early hour today by the fusionists who have combined to beat Tammany Hall. The nomination was made on the ninth ballot, after one of the hardest convention fights of years. On this ballot Mitchel got just the required 45 votes necessary to nominate. District Attorney Whitman got 43. Borough President McAneny was out of the running early.

After balloting for hours the fusion committee of 107 seemed to be rapidly approaching a deadlock. The committee met in the Fifth Avenue building in the large banqueting room, with Norman Hapgood in the chair, and from the first it was seen that a hard and long fight was ahead.

The executive committee could give the entire committee no definite lead, and the speakers who proposed the three candidates, Collector Mitchel, District Attorney Whitman and Borough President McAneny, had such good ground in support of their particular choices that it was clear that if mere argument was to prevail the issue would be doubtful.

At the first ballot the vote was almost even—Mitchel, 32; Whitman, 29, and McAneny, 28. As soon as the vote was taken again the collector began to forge ahead and Mr. McAneny began to lose.

After the first three ballots Mr. McAneny's supporters seemed to realize that there was little chance of winning out. A number of them threw their votes to Mr. Whitman, and the lines began to be drawn tightly between the district attorney, who had behind him the Republicans, and Mr. Mitchel, who was able to count on the support of the Progressives.

For four ballots Mr. Mitchel came steady with 34 votes, a gain of two over the first vote cast, and Whitman drew steadily on the McAneny rank. It was not until the sixth ballot was taken at about 12:15 o'clock that Mitchel went up two more votes and Whitman, who had also been steadily rising, dropped back one vote.

After the sixth ballot Mr. Mitchel gained steadily until the ninth, when he was nominated.

FIVE DEAD IN RACE QUARREL.

Many Others Reported Stabbed at Construction Camp.

Steubenville, O., Aug. 1.—Four white men, all foreigners, and a negro were stabbed or shot to death at a camp near Fernwood, according to a story told by a frightened Finn who came here and reported the occurrence to the sheriff. The participants were employed in pike repair work. The fight started as a result of quarrels between several racial factions.

A number of others were either stabbed or wounded, according to the man's story. He said the bodies of the dead men had been hidden under hay in a nearby field.

POSTOFFICE ROBBED AGAIN.

Cracksmen Blow Open Safe and Take $500 In Stamps.

Syracuse, N. Y., Aug. 1.—The postoffice at Liverpool, a village in the outskirts of this city, was blown open and robbed for the second time within a year some time during last night.

The police say the job was done by professionals. The thieves got away with $500 in stamps.

Weather Forecast.

Increasing cloudiness, followed by showers this afternoon and night; tomorrow cloudy, somewhat lower temperature in the interior; moderate southeast winds, becoming variable.

—There's no job in this city that cannot be filled by a really capable worker—and all capable workers, temporarily out of work, watch the Press "help wanted" ads closely.

Are You Utilizing 100% of Your Advertising Possibilities?

Advertisers may fail in accomplishing the full measure of their possible earnings and handicap their growth by contenting themelves with less than their full selling capacity; others, by means of intelligent advertising, approximate the possible 100 per cent. volume of sales with no increase of "over-head" expense.

But how about the merchant who is advertising, but who is not realizing 100 per cent. of his possibilities?

In advertising, as in merchandising, the point must be reached where expense of operation is overcome and profits begin.

In advertising, as in retailing or manufacturing, it's the last certain per cent. of effort that counts.

Some very clever advertisers in Plainfield are spending large sums of money in advertising without securing 100 per cent. in results, and a few are hitting the "bull's eye." Waste is responsible for most advertising failures.

But what about the under-advertised business—the store that is on the right track, but limits its advertising to the development of 50, 60, or 80 per cent. of the sales of which it is capable.

This type of business most frequently is the specialty store that has sufficient capital and sufficient credit to do a much larger business, but is not willing to venture the needed ten, twenty-five or fifty per cent. added advertising effort to achieve the full results.

The store, for instance, that is doing a business of $40,000 or $50,000 annually, but with facilities for doing an additional $50,000 without added fixed expense, could well afford to spend $5,000 in advertising to get that $50,000 extra business. And the Daily Press would give it to him.

The Daily Press' circulation embraces the class and the best of the mass in Plainfield, and will yield rich returns to any advertiser who appeals to it intelligently.

"The proof of the pudding is in the eating thereof." The proof that the Daily Press readers respond to advertising is the year-in and year-out use of its space by discerning advertisers.

It is quite true that even an under-advertised business may pay a pleasing profit; but why not more profit, at no extra fixed expense, for the moderate outlay of a Daily Press advertising appropriation?

Think of the "pure v-e-l-v-e-t" business, entailing no extra investment except advertising, on which the net profits would possibly equal the net profits of the entire business now done on the under-advertised plan.

MEN CONQUER GIRLS.

Allenhurst, August 1.—The All-girls baseball team went down to defeat here Wednesday in the presence of a gathering of society women. A team of men scored twelve runs while the bloomer team was securing five. The girls couldn't stand the heat after the seventh inning and the game was called off. Captain Catherine Ughetta played third base and stopped everything that went in her direction. She was to have pitched, but at the last minute it was decided that her twirling arm wasn't in the right condition and a man battery was substituted. Robert Hahne slipped them over, with Tom Albertson behind the bat. The girls are inclined to blame their defeat on the man umpire, who couldn't appreciate the grace with which they slid to bases.

A FEW CHANGES MADE IN FOOTBALL RULES

Committee Met Yesterday In New York—New Features Added.

Despite the howls of reformers, football will be played this Fall practically the same as last season. The football rules committee in session in New York the early part of the week found little to occupy their attention as nearly all the members agreed that the game as played in 1912 approached the perfect mark as far as the rule book can make it.

One somewhat important change, however, will permit the kicker to stand at any distance from the line of scrimmage when booting the ball, instead of at least five yards back as heretofore. It is expected that this will put a premium on quick kicking from directly behind the forwards and add a new feature of always welcome uncertainty.

Another alteration makes possible unrestricted substitution in the last or fourth period of the game. Previously men who had been removed from the game could not again be put in play except at the beginning of some subsequent period.

It often happened that an unexpected substitution was necessary in the last period, but under the rules no one who had before taken part in the contest could be used. The rule relating to substitution was therefore changed to read: "Player may be returned once at the beginning of any period or at any time during the fourth or last period."

A specific penalty has been placed upon advancing beyond the lines in case of a puntout. In this case the punter's angle will be moved five yards away from the nearest goal post along the goal line. If the punter-out makes a deliberate attempt by a feint to draw the opponents off-side the referee must not permit him to kick the ball until the opponents have had time to return behind their restraining line.

In the rules regarding the conduct of players after a forward pass or after a kick insertion of the words "after the pass has been made" now makes it clear that players may interfere with one another until the pass is actually made.

A relic of the old time when the ball was not always snapped back with the hands has been eliminated. The rule which read "by one continuous motion of the hands or of the foot" has been shortened by cutting out the words "of the foot."

A MINISTER'S FISH STORY.

Atlantic Highlands, August 1—The followers of Izaak Walton have met with such success that they have become very numerous. The great catch of the season thus far was made by the Rev. Gorge Douglas, of Flushing, N. Y., a summer resident, when he landed with the aid of his wife a thirty-six and a half pound sea bass. Another fishing party returned with 190 "blues."

ORTLIEB WILL PITCH FOR PLAINFIELDERS

Dunellen Coming Here With the Same Lineup Tomorrow Afternoon.

Umpire—Wilcox.

George Ortlieb, who recently returned from a tryout with the Lawrence team of the New England League, and who is a familiar figure in local baseball togs, will heave the pellet for Plainfield tomorrow against the Pets old rivals, Dunellen. Minus the services of Bob Bogardus, an old time war agitator and one who has entered into many conspiracies for the downfall of the Plainfield ballists, the Dunellen team will be without one of the fixtures that has made its appearance on Parker Field one of the greatest of fandom appetizers. George Voehl is acting in the managerial capacity and will bring the same delegation of ball artists to Plainfield as trimmed High Bridge last Saturday afternoon.

Cliff Randolph is being saved by Manager Dorflinger to do duty against the Royal Giants in New York Sunday afternoon and he will warm the bench tomorrow. After an absence of two weeks, Joe Harter will be back in a Pet uniform and Moran will play centre field again.

Games Tomorrow.

Park Avenue vs. First Presbyterian.
First Baptist vs. Monroe M. E.

Hope Chapel will again be idle tomorrow afternoon, while the Monroe and First Baptist teams, two of the closest contenders for the title, will be fighting it out on one field and the Park Avenue and First Presbyterian nines will clash in the other attraction. If Monroe should succeed in putting one over at the expense of the league leaders, Hope Chapel would hold tight to its present claim on the runner-up rung but if the leaders should capture the engagement it would place them just one full game to the good and the Chapelites would probably experience some difficulty in making up the gap at this late date.

The Park and First Presbyterian aggregations will indulge in a little battle all by themselves but this contest will have no effect on the standing of the clubs.

Spicers vs. West Ends.

The Dixie Giants having been formally entered as City League contenders, they will lineup against the Saurer league leaders here tomorrow afternoon, thus affording the league fans an excellent opportunity of getting a glance at the real calibre of baseball the new team is capable of putting up. Little can be garnered from their past season's performances but the contest tomorrow will afford them an excellent opportunity of displaying the stuff they have in them as ball player.

The tail end Spicer combination will take on the West Ends in the second game on the card tomorrow afternoon. Spicers have not won a game in so long that the West End A. C. bunch are really pessimistic of their chances of a victory. The result of this contest will have little effect on the team standing, however, but the Saurers, in their game with the Dixies will have to win to keep in the lead if the West Ends also come out in the van.

High Bridge at Somerville.

Plainfield will entertain the Dunellen Central New Jersey Leaguers at Parker Field tomorrow afternoon, this being the fifth struggle between these two rivals, each having won a pair of games. Besides being the rubber game the clash has additional interest in the fact that the Dunellen combination is coming here under new leadership, George Voehl having taken up the managerial reins as a successor to Bob Bogardus.

The game originally scheduled for Somerville between the Somerset county seat delegation and the High Bridge nine and which was agitated to be played at the latter place, has been shifted back to its former place on the schedule and as a result High Bridge will journey to Somerville.

Washington, August 1.—"Ty" Cobb was a White House caller yesterday. He came with representative Tribble, of Georgia, and President Wilson greeted him warmly. Cobb invited the President to see one of the Detroit-Washington games, especially that to be played tomorrow when a cup will be presented to Walter Johnson.

The President said he would try to attend.

CLOSE GAME RESULTED IN A VICTORY FOR LAURELS

A slim margin of two markers separated the Laurel A. C. and Red Stars at the completion of their battle on Parker Field yesterday afternoon, the final score being 11 to 9 in the Laurels' favor.

Good hitting on the part of McCormick, Roddy and Snyder was largely responsible for the victory of the Laurels while Smith starred in the same department for the losers.

HER DIAPHANOUS SKIRT COSTS A BASEBALL GAME

A diaphanous skirt lost the Westport team a game of ball yesterday in South Norwalk. The Westports were five runs ahead in the ninth inning, when the South Norwalks went to bat.

Then the young person with the skirt got between the sun and the players as she stood near third base. Anything was a hit—some were three base hits. The Westport team had no eyes for the ball, with the result that South Norwalk batted out the game.

Manager McArdle went out on the field to say a few words to the players, put his hands over his eyes to hide the sun and came back.

CARLSTROM AND BRUGGY ARE HITTING AT A FAST CLIP

Playing in the New England League yesterday afternoon in a double header between Lawrence and New Bedford two local boys were the leaders in hostilities of the bargain-day bill. Albie Carlstrom, who formerly played short for the Plainfield Pets, won the second game with a two-bagger into center field and also did some heavy clouting in the first.

Carlstrom was at bat three times in the first game and he tallied a brace of hits, one of which was a two-bagger. He had ten putouts without an error. In the second game he was at bat three times and had one hit, that home run. Two runs, nine putouts and an assist were his contributions. Errors? Not Carlstrom.

Frank Bruggy, who formerly played with Bound Brook, appeared in the role of catcher in both games. In the initial session he had six putouts and an assist and in the second he had three putouts, an assist and an error.

GOV. FIELDER CAN'T CALL AN ELECTION

Attorney-General Gives Opinion and Vote Problem Is Still Unsolved.

County Clerk Calvert yesterday received the following letter from Governor Fielder unquestionably settling the doubt as to the Executive's power or authority to call a special election on the small Board of Freeholders referendum:

"My Dear Mr. Calvert:

"The attorneygeneral advises me, in compliance with my reqnest for an opinion, that he finds no power in me to issue a call for an election pursuant to the petition presented to you for the submission to the voters of Union county of the act relating to the reorganization of Boards of Chosen Freeholders.

"Very truly yours,
"JAMES F. FIELDER,
Acting Goxernor.

"Mr. James C. Calvert,
"County Clerk,
"Elizabeth, N. J."

Upon receipt of the letter Mr. Calvert issued the following statement:

"The situation regarding the calling of a special election in pursuance of the prayer of the petition for the purpose of submitting to the people the adoption of the act providing for a small Board of Freeholders, remains as stated several days ago. I have not found, nor have I been referred to, any statute or other authority vesting in me the power of calling this election, and my efforts to have the election called by higher authority have been unsuccessful.

"I shall be glad, as stated several days ago, to receive and consider any advice on the subject from those interested."

It is contended that the Hennessy act may be amended at the special session of the legislature, called by Governor Fielder for August 5. The fact that Governor Fielder did not mention any such intention in his letter to Mr. Calvert, however, is held by some to be indicative that freeholder legislation will not be considered at the session.

The letter and statement positively settle the question of the election being held under the law in its present condition. It must be amended before an election is possible.

Take Care of Your Books.

Summer is a hard time for books. They are either left forlornly home along on the bookshelves, where they are at the mercy of the moth and dust and darkness—all their enemies—or they are passed carlessly about from person to person in the effort to meet the constant demand for "something to read" among summer vacationers.

Careful use is the best thing for books. It exposes them to air and sunshine, which keep them fresh and free from mould and mildew and other sorts of banes that shorten the lives of leather and paper. But careless use is, of course, the quickest way of shortening their precious lives.

Lend Your Books.

Just because you are afraid of having your books harmed by careless handling, you should not be stingy with them. The person who has plenty of books on hand and refuses to lend them—in fact, does not offer to lend them—is not worth having a summer vacation.

If you yourself treat your books with respect, and speak of them as if they were worth while, it is probable that those to whom you lend them will take proper care of them. Of course, if you know from experience that any one tears or soils books she borrows, you are quite justified in refusing to lend her any more.

Mark every book that you lend plainly with your name. You can simply write this in ink on the fly leaf, or you can put it on a book plate which is pasted on the inside of the front cover. These books plates are inexpensive. Keep a list of the books you lend and the person to whom you lend them, so that you will always know just where your books are.

On the Shelves.

When your books are safely on their shelves, do not think that you can stop taking care of them. The shelves, if they have glass doors, should be kept free from dust and dirt.

Some Cookery Suggestions

GREEN PEAS.

DINNER MENU.
Barley Broth.
Veal Cutlet With Tomato Sauce.
Potato Puff (a Leftover).
Boiled Peas.
Sillabub.
Cake
Coffee.

WHEN selecting peas break the pods and see whether they fill the pods. They should never be allowed to grow until they crowd the pods.

Shell them just before they are to be used. You should wash the pods before removing the peas. Do not wash the peas.

When Boiling Peas.

If they are to be boiled have ready boiling salted water. Boil the peas fifteen or twenty minutes without covering them. As soon as they are done take off the fire.

For the dressing take to each pint of peas one ounce of butter and a saltspoonful each of sugar and salt. Put these into the water in which the peas have boiled and reduce it until there is just enough water left to moisten them, then serve.

With Other Foods.

Scalloped Peas and Cheese.—Stew a pint of peas until soft. Put a layer of peas in a baking pan, then a layer of cracker crumbs, with bits of butter, salt and pepper. When all are used put a layer of grated cheese on top, then add the liquor from the peas and almost enough milk to cover. Bake until a crisp light brown on top.

Peas and Potatoes.—Drain one quart of stewed peas and put them in a saucepan with one cupful of cold boiled potatoes cut in small pieces. Add one pint of sweet milk. Season with salt, pepper and butter, boil up and serve with toast or crackers.

Cooked With Fish.

Scalloped Salmon and Green Peas.—Take one can of salmon broken into small pieces, a pint of stewed green peas, two cupfuls of thin white sauce and bread or cracker crumbs. Butter a pudding dish, sprinkle with crumbs, put in layer of salmon and peas, cover with white sauce; repeat until all is used. Cover well with cracker crumbs and bake in hot oven until crumbs are brown. Serve hot.

To make the sauce take two tablespoonfuls of flour, two teaspoonfuls of butter, a cupful of hot milk, one-quarter teaspoonful of salt, pinch of pepper. Melt the butter in saucepan until it bubbles. Add the flour, salt and the hot milk. Cook until it thickens.

He Watched It Grow.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—How the Corn Plant Came to Earth.

JACK and Evelyn climbed on daddy's knee. It was time for the story to begin, and this was what daddy said:

"Long ago the Indians had nothing to eat but the game which they got in hunting or the fish they caught from the stream.

"In this far off time there lived in a beautiful part of the country a poor Indian with his wife and his children.

"This Indian's eldest son, a lad named Wunz, loved to wander in the woods studying the flowers and plants that grew there.

"'The Great Spirit made all things,' thought Wunz. 'Could he not make it easier for us to get our food than by hunting and fishing?'

"One night as he lay on his bed he had a wonderful dream. He seemed to see a bright light at the lodge door, and a beautiful stranger entered. He was a young man with a waving green plume in his yellow hair.

"'I am sent to you, my friend,' said the stranger, 'by the Great Spirit. He knows how you wish to help every one, and he means to help you.'

"Then the young man told Wunz to rise and wrestle with him, for it was only by overcoming him he could win. Wunz rose, and they wrestled, but the stranger soon overcame him.

"The next night the stranger came back and again they wrestled, and though Wunz was again beaten he did better than on the night before.

"The third night the stranger again entered the door.

"'You have struggled bravely,' said he to Wunz. 'At last you shall win. As soon as you have thrown me to the ground you must pull out my plume and strip off my cloak. Then I shall seem to you as one dead. But do not fear. Clear the earth of roots and weeds, make the ground soft and lay me in it. Then cover my body and leave me. Never let the weeds or grass grow over my bed. Once a month cover me with fresh earth. Thus you will help your fellows. When I rise again, teach them what I have taught you.'

"It happened as the stranger said. One day, to his joy, Wunz saw the green plume coming through the ground. Instead of his lost friend, however, there sprang up a strange plant that in many ways looked like him.

"In the autumn Wunz asked his father and friends to follow him to the lonely spot where it grew. It was now a tall plant, with nodding plumes and a stately green cloak, from underneath which peeped amber clusters.

"'It is my friend!' exclaimed Wunz softly. 'It is maize, the Indian corn. We need no more depend alone on hunting or fishing for food, for as long as this gift is prized and cared for it will give us a living.'"

IN PRESERVING FRESH FRUITS

Timely Hints For Housewives Who Prefer the Work of Their Own Hands to the Sweets Sold In the Shops.

ALTHOUGH excellent jams, jellies and preserves may be purchased nowadays, the thrifty and fastidious housewife very often prepares her own. If you have a place where you can grow a little fruit this is no doubt an economy, or if you are near large city markets where fruit in quantities can often be purchased cheaply it is most commendable.

If the fruit is home grown have it gathered on a fine, dry day, early in the morning. It should not on any account be overripe, as once it is ripe the substance in the fruit called pectose, which is what jellies when boiled and cooled, begins to lessen in quality and quantity. If you use overripe fruit do not expect the jam to set well.

The amount of pectose in fruit varies with different seasons, and this is why it is sometimes almost impossible to get jam as firm as it really ought to be. There isn't enough pectose in the fruit to make it jelly, and so it won't get firm.

If you have to buy your fruit always pick out that which is dry, ripe and sound. Damp or overripe fruit will cause jam to ferment or turn moldy.

Some fruits never jelly really well. Peaches, grapes and pears, instead of forming a good jelly, become gummy. Add to such fruits some strained juice from unpeeled and uncored apples, cut up and stewed till soft in a very little water. Use this juice instead of the water ordered or add it if no water is supposed to be used.

If jam is to set properly and keep well it must be allowed to boil until a little will set in a jelly when poured on a plate and left to cool.

To merely simmer jam is not boiling it. The surface must be bubbling all over if it is to really boil, and it must be kept boiling till it is cooked.

It is hard to say how long any jam should boil, as the time varies according to the amount of pectose in the fruit. Some years there is more, some less.

With jams like raspberry, in which one wants the fruit to remain whole, it is a good plan to boil sugar and water first, then add the fruit, or, if no water is to be used, put the sugar and fruit in the pan and let them stand by the side of the fire till the sugar is dissolved before beginning to boil.

Fruits with hard skins, such as plums, should always be cooked with the water first. If fruit and sugar are boiled together, at first the skins are hard and tough. When the skins have softened add the sugar, but do not let it actually boil again till the sugar has dissolved.

Always crack some of the stones from plums, etc., and add the kernels to the jam.

Have the vessel not more than three parts full, so that you may be able to boil the jam fast without its boiling over.

Boil steadily, skim and stir well, and in order to lessen the risk of burning it is a good plan with an open fire to raise the pan a little, so that the bottom of it does not actually come in contact with the flame.

If two kinds of fruits are to be used cook the hardest variety before adding the other. For instance, when combining blackberries and apples cook the apples first.

When the preserve looks thick, turns clear looking and is reduced in quantity pour a little of it on to a saucer, cool it and note if, when cold, it will wrinkle up into a jelly.

Meantime keep the pan off the fire for a little while, for fear the remainder should become overboiled while the specimen is cooling.

Dainty Brassieres.

With the present models in corsets brassieres are a necessity, and heavy linen ones cannot be worn with evening attire. But one that may be appropriately worn with the daintiest apparel is fashioned of deep cream net. Running around it are four large tucks, with a space between each set of two. This successfully thickens the material without making it coarse. In a wavy line two inches below the top is a garland of pink chiffon rosebuds with silver leaves. The shoulder straps are formed of a fold of the net about an inch and a quarter wide.

THE ICEBOX.

When buying an icebox the best is the cheapest.

All cooked food should be partly cooled before putting it in the icebox.

Butter will not absorb other food odors in the icebox if it is put in a tightly covered glass jar or bowl.

Never put canned things in the icebox without removing them from the cans first. Ptomaine poisoning has resulted from carelessness in this regard.

Ladies' Home Journal Patterns

The finest pattern articles in the world printed exclusively in Plainfield in The Plainfield Daily Press. Ladies' Home Journal Patterns are on sale at A. E. Force & Co., "The White Store."

Whether in Draped Effect on the Mother's Frock, or Placed at Low Waistline on the Boy's Blouse, the Belt Is An Important Feature of Up-to-date Fashions.

Such a knowing air, these prettily draped girdles give to the simplest frock. Perhaps that is the secret of their popularity. One can make a plain little dress of inexpensive material, buy a yard or so of silk, satin or moire, drape it in some new way around the figure, taking care though that the line is becoming, and with little trouble or expense, one can have a dress that is quite good enough for any ordinary day-time wear. If you choose a dress like the illustration, 7647-6931, make it of blue linen or ratine, or linen crepe—a nice gray-blue, with collar and cuffs of white linen hemstitched. Cover some big button molds with silk such as you use for girdle, and make a flat bow of it for the neck. Black moire would be good, or if you can match up a dark wistaria satin to your material, you will find this a charming contrast. But be sure to take a good sized sample of the material with you when you buy the silk, so as to get just the right shade. It is amazing what a difference the littlest bit of wrong shading makes in the style value. Finish the front edge, where the blouse closes, with a frill of ecru plaited net or batiste. The picot-edged frills are newest. Use a wider width for the sleeves. If you are making many dresses, it would really pay to buy fine batiste by the yard and have it plaited. The skirt is a simple five-gored model closing in front, and the lap may be trimmed with buttons to harmonize with the waist. Six sizes for the blouse, 34 to 44, and five for the skirt, 22 to 30, to make the dress in medium size, 5½ yards 36-inch material required. 15 cents.

An Attractive Bureau Set for the Summer Bedroom.

One needs many fresh bureau covers to keep a summer bedroom attractive and there is a pretty new custom of having the pin-cushion cover match the bureau scarf. These designs might be stamped on round thread linen, if the set is to be used all the year round, while if it is to be used only in the summer home, fine cotton poplin or a good quality of lawn may be used, although these materials are never as satisfactory as linen for covers of this kind. The scalloped edge should be worked in well padded buttonhole-stitch, in white and the dots may be worked solid or as eyelets. The flower sprays may be embroidered in solid work, outline-stitch and seeding or they may be worked in colors, using three shades of yellow and soft green for a yellow bedroom or three shades of old rose and soft green for a pink bedroom. This bureau scarf is 16 inches wide by 40 inches long and should exactly fit the top of the bureau or dressing table on which it is to be used. It can easily be made a little smaller by omitting part of the scallops when transferring the design, or if you wish a larger cover, linen lace may be sewed to the edge. The pin cushion cover is 7 3-4 inches square. The transfer patterns for stamping these two covers is 15 cents

UNUSUAL SIGHT IN U. S. SENATE

Mrs. Feickert Tells Interesting Story of How Suffrage Obtained Nation's Ear.

STORM THE CAPITOL

Advocates of "Votes for Women" Command Respect and Consideration In Federal Lawmaking Body —Contrast to Militancy.

(By Mrs. E. F. Feickert, President New Jersey Woman Suffrage Association.)

Washington, D. C., Aug. 1—Thursday was a great day for suffrage! For the first time in the history of this country the enfranchisement of the women of the United States was discussed upon the floor of the national Senate by members of that body.

The day began with the assembling of eighty automobiles carrying over 400 members of visiting delegations, at Hyattsville, Md., at 10 o'clock in the morning. A grandstand had been erected at the ball park and the automobiles lined up before it four rows deep while exercises of welcome were conducted, in which the members of the Congressional Union and many men prominent in the official life of Washington participated. The following inscriptions decorated the stand:

"'Woman's place is in the home. The sweatshop is the place of thousands of women."

"The Lord giveth the word. The women that publish the tidings are a mighty host."

"We prepare the children for the world; let us prepare the world for the children."

Mayor Shepherd, of Hyattsville, made an appropriate speech presenting the suffragists with the freedom of Hyattsville and the key to the city.

Congressman Smith, of the Fifth Maryland district, and Senator Jones, of Washington, spoke—the latter saying among other things, "While I do not like to confess it, it is true that we members of the national legislature pay more attention to the voice of those who can enforce their sentiments with the ballot than we do to the voice of those who cannot."

Senator Owen, of Oklahoma, dwelt on the service which the country expects from its women, that of properly raising and training the men and women of the next generation, saying that a man was only what his mother made him, and concluded with, "If women are good enough to teach men the best things of life, they are good enough to emphasize their belief in those things in the only way which properly counts in the political life of this country, the ballot."

Senator Ashurst, of Arizona, who a few weeks ago submitted the unanimous report of the Woman Suffrage committee of the United States Senate in favor of suffrage; Senator Chamberlain, of Oregon, and Senator Moses Clapp, of Minnesota, also spoke. Senator Clapp took the occasion to criticize Congressman Heflin, of Alabama, who recently attacked the suffragists and held up the women of King Solomon's day as examples for the women of today. Senator Clapp said that while "Brother Solomon was unuestionably an authority on building, he personally did not admire his ideas of women," concluding, "While I might consult Solomon in regard to building the four walls of a home, I should not consult him in regard to the building up of my family life."

Mrs. Mary Ware Dennett then responded to the addresses of welcome on behalf of "the members of the Congressional Union, the thousands of members of the National Suffrage Association and the four million voters of the country."

The automobile procession then left for Washington. It was a beautiful sight to suffragist eyes, the long line of cars decorated in yellow and white, with flying banners and streaming pennants. The Capitol was reached at twelve o'clock and the various State delegations ent to the marble room in the Senate wing and sent for their respective senators, giving them the petitions from home asking for favorable consideration of the suffrage constitutional amendment. The New Jersey delegation was sorry to learn that Senator Martine is not a suffragist. Senator Hughes, however, is a member of the Paterson Equal Suffrage League, of which his wife is vice-president. The New Jersey petition contains over 5,000 names which was very satisfactory, as they were all ogtained in less than a month. Many people signed it at the Men's League convention in Ocean Grove last week. The suffrage delegates had seats in the private gallery through the courtesy of Senator Overman, of North Carolina. Twenty-five senators spoke for the amendment, among them being Senators LaFollette, Shafroth, Owen, Ashurst, Poindexter, Jones, Works, Lane, Thomas, Gallinger, Clapp, Thomas and Hollis. Senator LaFol-

SUFFRAGISTS TRAVEL IN GYPSY FASHION

Residents of Westfield had visions of a gypsy camp being established in their midst yesterday afternoon when a covered wagon driven by a black horse was pulled through the main thoroughfares, the occupants being completely hidden from the public view by the gypsy like covering of the wagon. Westfield has been a common stopping place for these wanderers in days gone by, but during the last few years the place has not been inhabitated by a tribe, or since Jerseyland, the well-known recreation park, went out of existence.

Their fears were somewhat allayed however, but their curiosity increased when it was found that the wagon was inhabited by a band of "Suffrage Hikers" and members of the Women's Political Union, of New Jersey, who are traveling through a large section of the State in the interest of "Votes for Women." The wagon was of the light delivery variety and contained Miss Rose Weiss, Mrs. May Walsh and Mrs. E. A. Hylands, of Newark, and the hikers were the guests of Mrs. Rule, of Woodlawn avenue, and delivered addresses in the street meeting held in Mountainside last night. Several of the Westfield suffragists journeyed out to Mountainside in automobiles to hear their sisters preach.

Before going to the home of Mrs. Rule where they were to spend the night the suffragists attracted much attention by driving their black horse through the city streets. The animal wore a sunbonnet and a mosquito netting blanket. A set of steps was carried in the rear of the wagon, but there were not used by the hikers in climbing into the wagon, masculine tactics being indulged in. A sign on the side of the vehicle bore the words "Votes for Wamen in New Jersey in 1914."

CO. K BOYS OFF FOR CAMP FIELDER TODAY

Fifty members of Company K left today for Camp Fielder, Sea Girt, under the command of Captain Charles A. Peterson. They were joined by Company M of Somerville, and Companies F, I and C, of Elizabeth.

The local boys took their full equipment and will go in heavy marching order, wearing khaki uniforms with canvas puttees, olive drab shirts and campaign hats.

The special train carrying the soldier boys to the camp of instruction was made up at Somerville with two passenger and one baggage coach for the Somerville and Plainfield companies. After leaving Plainfield, the first stop was at Elizabeth where four passenger and two baggage coaches were added to the train bearing the Elizabeth companies. The camp site will be reached about 2.30 this afternoon when the camp will be established.

Tomorrow morning the regular divine services will be held, and the regimental parade will occur during the afternoon. Monday will be occupied largely by rifle practice with a second battalion parade in the afternoon.

EXAMINATION ON AUGUST 18.

ROUTINE BUSINESS IN BOROUGH COUNCIL

North Plainfield Body Asked to Authorize Macadamizing of Watchung Avenue.

Representatives of Foster & Goetz, owners and developers of Hudson Terrace, in Watchung avenue, requested of the Borough Council at its meeting last night, that steps be taken to macadamize Watchung avenue from Codington avenue to Johnston's Drive. Mr. Foster, who acted as spokesman for the real estate firm, said the owners of Hudson Terrace would be willing to pay their share of the assessment if the work is done in advance, so as to make the burden of expending money from the borough treasury as small as possible. He said he also voiced the opinions of Louis K. Hyde, another extensive owner of land in Watchung avenue. Mayor Robert Clark, Jr., said he was not sure that the work could be done this year, but that the Council would consider the matter.

Councilman Edmund Rushmore introduced an ordinance concerning dogs, which will act as an amendment to the dog ordinance now in effect. The Rushmore document authorizes the mayor to issue a proclamation at his discretion, which will prohibit dogs from running at large and compel the canines when on the street to be firmly fastened to a leash and accompanied by a person over the age of 12 years. The ordinance will take effect October 1.

Overseer-of-the-Poor Becker was granted an application for $100 for his department. Recorder Gano's report for July showed that the borough police had made 51 arrests and collected $60 in fines. Warrants amounting to $2,885.37 were ordered paid, which included $250 for special election purposes. The street committee reported that $933.52 was expended during July.

The following building permits were granted: Clarence L. Thorn, addition to dwelling on Grandview avenue; Theodore Mason, garage in Jackson avenue; W. H. Laird, garage at 18-21 Somerset street; Standard Improvement and Realty Co., of Dunellen, frame dwelling in Howard street; H. L. Keller, addition to house in Watchung avenue; Alfius M. Stein, contractor, garage in Mountain avenue; W. A. Coddington, owner, John McCollough, contractor, addition to Father Miller's house at Manning and Watchung avenues.

SPUR ON CENTRAL R. R. ACCOMMODATES WORKMEN

Somerville, Aug. 1—The spur from the main line of the Central Railroad to the H. W. Johns-Manville plant, has been completed and the first train to carry employes to the plant was placed in operation yesterday. The spur has been constructed by the Central at a great expense.

All employes of the plant living in Somerville, Raritan and Bound Brook will now be able to commute daily to their work. Heretofore the trip was made by trolley to Finderne, after which the employes walked a half mile.

JOSEPH GREEN AGAIN ACCUSED AS A THIEF

Joseph Green, of West Fourth street, was remanded for further hearing on Monday morning, when arraigned today before City Judge DeMeza on a charge of larceny preferred by the A. M. Griffen Company, hardware dealers, of East Front street. The complaint charges him with stealing a quantity of lead from the latter's premises.

Green was arrested several years ago for grand larceny and held for the Grand Jury, but received mercy at the hands of Judge Atwater, at Elizabeth.

FUNERAL FOR BABE.

The funeral of Wallace A. Overland, the three months' old son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Overland, of Manning avenue, was held this morning at the home of his parents, Rev. Cortlandt H. Mallery, rector of the Church of the Heavenly Rest, officiating. Interment was at the Coontown cemetery.

CAUSED DISTURBANCE.

Salvatore Philgreen, of Cottage place, was arrested last night by Patrolman Craig who charged him with raising a disturbance. Arraigned this morning before City Judge DeMeza, he received a suspended sentence.

SENTENCES SUSPENDED.

Suspended sentences were meted out to William and Joseph Fitzgerald and Peter Crowley when arraigned this morning before City Judge DeMeza charged with disorderly conduct. They were arrested by Patrolman Craig, in North avenue.

PLANS FOR OPENING OF PUBLIC CLINIC

Anti-Tuberculosis League Will Supervise Work of New Department Here.

Arrangements are being made by the Charity Organization for the opening of the Anti-Tuberculosis league clinic which will be established at 109 Madison avenue within the next two weeks and a definite schedule of work is being drawn up for the innovation. Dr. Fred Hughes, Dr. Sidney R. Titsworth and Dr. Edward Krans will be in charge and the clinic will be opened three afternoons and two evenings each week.

The purpose of holding the clinic open in the evening is to afford men who work in the shops an opportunity of securing treatment and for anyone else who finds it impossible to come in the afternoon. A fee of ten cents will be assessed for each treatment but if the patient finds it impossible to pay this fee the treatment will be given without charge.

ALLEGED BURGLAR NOT THE RIGHT MAN

When Arraigned Before Accuser In Court She Exonerates Him of Charge.

Abraham Levine, of Newark, who was arrested this morning in East Front street, near Farragut road, by Detective-Sergeant John J. Flynn, as the man who entered the home of J. H. Nicholson, of Rahway road, Wednesday, was proven innocent when Mrs. Nicholson positively asserted that he was not the man she chased from her home. Mrs. Nicholson as soon as she entered headquarters said, "No, that is not the man; the one that I saw in my home, was a tall man and wore a dark suit. He did not have any moustache, either."

Talking to a Daily Press reporter, Mrs. Nicholson told of her exciting experience Wednesday night. Her story showed that although women run and scream and grow pale at the sight of a mouse, they are cool and level headed in trying situations. "When entering my dining-room before retiring for the night," she said, "I saw a man groping his way through the darkness in the dining-room. I yelled to my husband and gave chase as the man ran. I was within several feet of him as he ran into the back yard. But I could not get him. I always sleep with a loaded revolver under my pillow; wish I had time to get it. I would kill anyone without hesitation, that entered my home."

According to Detective Flynn, Levine is an ex-convict, having been sent to jail for bigamy. The entire local police force have been looking for him since Mrs. Nicholson's home was entered. Levine travels about the country in a red wagon accompanied by his 8-year-old son, buying and selling poultry.

THE NEXT EXCURSION.

Ten hours at the shore still remains the important feature of the Hope chapel excursion to be held next Saturday. This outing is the only trip of its kind to be run from Plainfield on a Saturday and it promises to be as great a success as in former years. The excursion leaves the city in two sections, the first section leaving the Grant Avenue station at 7:56 and the North Avenue station at 8:00, the second section following immediately. On the return trip the trains will leave Asbury Park at 8 o'clock.

FAREWELL RECEPTION.

With fifty friends and acquaintances present, a farewell reception was tendered to Theodore Fredericks and George E. Leighs, both of West Fourth street, at the home of the latter last night. The evening was largely spent in music and games which were enjoyed by all those present. The young men will leave this city Monday for Cottonwood, Idaho, where they will enter the employ of a large warehouse.

GULICK GETS VERDICT.

District Court Judge Walter L. Hetfield yesterday gave a decision in favor of C. E. Gulick, who sued the Vitaphone Co., for $277.50, which represented commissions due on sales of stock for the defendants. The case was contested last week. Gulick was represented by City Judge DeMeza and V. W. Nash, Jr., was the defendant's lawyer.

GREEN BROOK MATTER UNSETTLED IN BORO

Health Officer Oliff Did Not Appear Before the Council Last Night.

The cleansing of Tier's pond and Green brook, is as far from being realized today as on Thursday, July 24, when the investigations made by several members of the Plainfield Board of Trade, revealed the filthy conditions of these streams. At the meeting of the North Plainfield Council, last night, it was expected that Health Officer George Oliff would be asked to explain his inactivity, but he was not present. A letter was read from the local Board advising that Plainfield and the borough co-operate in having the nuisance eradicated. A short discussion followed and a motion was made to refer the subject to the Street Committee.

Councilman Alexander Milne is chairman of this committee and was not present at last night's session. Councilman Julius Stahl is acting in his stead, however, and in reply to interrogations by a Daily Press reporter, stated that he contemplated no immediate action.

"The clearing and cleansing of Tier's pond is a large undertaking involving heavy expense. I think it will cost close to $5,000 to remove several feet of dirt from the bottom of the stream, which is the only remedy for the odors that issue from the vicinity of the pond," said the Councilman.

A contractor who was present, said the pond would have to be drained, which he asserted, in itself was a big undertaking. He gave the opinion that a concrete drain would have to be built in the middle of the small body of water, to do this work.

In the meantime, the summer is getting near to a close and in winter it will be impossible to do the work.

The Plainfield Board of Health asked today if anything was being done toward the cleaning of Tier's pond, Health Officer Chandler said: "Anything that is required of the Board of Health to do in that connection will be done as soon as possible."

WIFE DESERTER TO APPEAR BEFORE STEWART

Richard Collins, formerly employed in a local store, last May deserted his wife according to a complaint sworn out against him by Mrs. Collins, who lives in Rahway road, and was arrested Thursday in Dover. Chief Kiely went to that place yesterday to get Collins, and the prisoner gave bail to insure his appearance before Mayor Percy H. Stewart, who will occupy the bench while Judge DeMeza is on his vacation. Although Chief Kiely requested the justice of the peace before whom Collins received a hearing, that bail be placed at $500, Senator Fitzherbert, who represented the latter, succeeded in having the amount made but $100.

ARREST NEGRO WANTED ON A SERIOUS CHARGE

Detective Sergeant John Flynn returned yesterday from White Plains, N. Y., with James Crowell, colored, 25 years old, formerly of this city, who was arrested on a serious charge preferred by 19 years old Mary Arrandew, a West Indian girl, who lives in West Third street.

Miss Arrandew recently threatened to commit suicide unless Crowell married her. She appeared before the last Grand Jury, which indicted Crowell after hearing her story.

A NEW CONCERN.

After having remodeled two lofts for their place of business, the Victor L. Drellich Company will start the manufacture of boys' wash suits at 318-322 West Front street on Monday. One hundred and twenty-five sewing machines have been installed. After the factory has been put into proper working order, a total of 200 women will be employed by the new company within the course of the next two weeks. Mr. Drellich, the head of the concern, for many years connected with the Regatta Outfitting Company, of West Seventeenth street, New York, has moved to this city recently and has made his home on Craig place.

COUNCIL GOING TO SEA GIRT.

Elizabeth, August 2—The City Council last night accepted the invitation of the Second Regiment, N. G. N. J., to attend the Sea Girt encampment on Governors' Day, August 8.

HIS BIKE STOLEN.

Street Commissioner Andrew J. Gavett reported to the police today that his wheel was stolen yesterday from the rear of his office.

ELECTRICAL STORM PLAYED HAVOC HERE

A violent electric storm, accompanied by wind that raced across the State at a terrific velocity yesterday afternoon did hundreds of dollars worth of damage to crops and shade trees in this vicinity, at the same time bringing relief to the farms. Sharp flashes of lightning followed by terrific claps of thunder caused the weaker sex to seek refuge in a dark closet or attic while the bolts of lightning played havoc with the trees. Limbs were ripped from huge elms and maples in different sections of Plainfield and the street department was kept busy until a late hour last night cleaning up the debris.

Charles R. Titsworth's house at 909 Madison avenue was hit by a bolt of lightning which struck the chimney and traveled along the electric light wires doing considerable damage to the exterior of the structure. Mrs. Titsworth was alone in the house at the time and telephoned fire headquarters. Chief Doane went to the place in his automobile and after examining the building found that nothing was burning. One of the houses in the row on East Fourth street opposite the gas house was struck and the bolt traveled down between the walls setting fire to a portion of the woodwork. The smouldering wood was put out with little damage resulting, however, by members of the household. Another house on Westervelt avenue occupied by Frank Saunders was hit and a portion of the roof torn away.

In some portions of the city the streets were flooded from curb to curb and traffic was made impossible, wagons being emerged up to their hubs. Telegraph wires between this city and New York were put out of commission an communication was cut off for the greater part of the afternoon and last night.

During the storm the trolley wire at Lyde Park, Scotch Plains, broke in several places, delaying the west bound cars for 30 minutes and the east going trolleys for 15 minutes.

CHILDREN INCURABLE, DESERTED BY FATHER

Three children cared for by the Borough of North Plainfield will be taken to a private sanitarium today because they are victims of an incurable contagious disease. Their mother is dead and their father has deserted them. He is being sought daily in other cities and according to Overseer of the Poor Fred Becker a clue to his whereabouts has been unearthed.

Mr. Becker appeared at the North Plainfield Council meeting last night and asked the borough fathers' advice on the case, which is a pitiful one. Because their disease is contagious it is dangerous to the other inmates to have them near the home, although to date they have been strictly confined to an isolated ward of the institution. The overseer of the poor in explaining the case, said it would cost the borough at least $600 to have them properly taken care of. Mr. Becker was advised by the Council to find the most reasonable and suitable place to have the children sent and report at the next meeting of the Council, which will be held Wednesday night, August 13.

WILL MR. CLARK ACCEPT BORO MAYORALTY AGAIN

The terms of Councilman Alexander line and L. B. Woolston, of North Plainfield, expire this year. The latter, when asked last night at the meeting of the Borough Council, whether he was going to run or the ocffie again, said, "No, I am not," Mr. Milne is absent from the city and could not be found to voice his future political aspirations.

Mayor Robert Clark, Jr., was also asked if he was a candidate for renomination, and in his usual evasive as well as jovial manner replier "You will have to ask the birds for that information."

A Day On the Hudson

Every Wednesday until Sept. 10th inclusive, a special excursion to West Point and Newburgh will be run, via New Jersey Central, with direct connection at Jersey City Terminal with splendid steamer Robert Fulton, of the Hudson River Day Line. Round trip tickets from Plainfield, $1.50; children half fare. Last connecting train leaves Plainfield 7.58 a. m. See circulars for service and rates from other Plainfield stations.—Adv.

CANDIDATES FOR COUNTY OFFICES

Political Bee Is Buzzing In Somerset and Close Races Promised.

MANY PETITIONS OUT

Three-Cornered Fight for Sheriff—Sebring and Fitzga Again Oppose Each Other—Possible Fusion For Assembly Candidate.

Three officials will be elected in Somerset county this year by the entire vote of the county. An Assemblyman, County Clerk and Sheriff, and while the is little doing as yet in the matter of the Assembly, a number of candidates have signified their intention of running for the other two offices. Azariah M. Beekman, of Somerville, a leader in the Democratic party, will have practically no opposition from that faction in running for the nomination for assemblyman as he seems to meet the approval of all involved. No candidate has been talked of by the Republicans nor has there been any suggested by the Progressive party. There is some talk, however, of a fusion between the two parties and while this suggestion has taken no definite shape as yet, there is a possibility that a candidate suitable to both will be selected in the very near future.

William de LaR. Anderson, of North Plainfield township, a former assemblyman from Somerset county, has presented a proposition to the political leaders that neither side nominate a candidate for the office at the primaries, but after the primaries have been held the leaders of both factions get together and agree upon a candidate who will be nominated by petition, and such candidate will be known as a Progressive Republican. When asked if he had any idea of seeking the nomination, Mr. Anderson said:

"I have not given the matter very much consideration. I expect to be a candidate for a member of the Township Committee of North Plainfield township. If, however, the Progressive Republicans of Somerset cunty think I would make the strongest man, I shall not refuse to answer the call of party service."

The only Republican candidate in sight for the office of county clerk seems to be A. G. Anderson, and he has already held the office for two terms, having been elected by a large majority for the first time five years ago. Walter C. Linbarger, of North Plainfield, secretary of the Wilson Democratic League of Somerset county, is out for nomination to this office on the Democratic ticket. So far as is known the Progressives have not placed a man in the field but will probably support Mr. Anderson.

The office that is likely to produce the liveliest contention and for which the fight will be closest is that of sheriff. Joseph Fitzga and Charles Sebring will fight it out for the Republican nomination and on the Democratic side there will be a tri-cornered struggle between Charles Hamilton, Joseph Buck and Thomas E. Gibson. Many of the candidates for township offices are getting ready to file their petitions and in the course of a few weeks the political bug will be buzzing throughout the county.

NO ORNAMENTAL WORK FOR LIGHTING SYSTEM

The Light Committee of the Common Council will report at the meeting of the latter body Monday night that it does not favor "ornamental" lighting for this city, as advocated by the Board of Trade. It is thought that the additional cost of erecting ornamental poles in the business and residental sections of the city is the reason for the committee's stand.

A. E. Force, who is chairman of the lighting committee of the Board of Trade, when asked today what action the Board would take, providing the Councilmanic Committee report as stated above, said he did not know. "We will wait and 'see' what the committee report says and our course of action will be settled at the next meeting of the Board of Trade," Mr. Force added.

SIGNED "FRANK BERGEN."

Elizabeth, Aug. 2.—The name of "Frank Bergen" was used by a stranger who passed a worthless check upon Neureiter & Horre, coal dealers. Chief of Police Peters was notified of the occurrence, and it was stated yesterday that the alleged forger had left the city. A ton of coal was ordered by the man to an address in Erie street, and he offered a check for $14 in payment. He received the change and departed. There was no house located at the number given, the coal men learned when they went to deliver the order.

FINAL PREPARATIONS FOR NAVAL AND ARMY EXERCISES

New York, Aug. 2—Governors Island, the headquarters of the Eastern Division of the United States Army, was a beehive of activity today. Everyone there, from Major General Thomas H. Barry, the commander of the division, down to the humblest private, being occupied in the arrangement of the final preparations for participation in the joint naval and army defense exercises to be held in the coast defenses of Long Island Sound next week, beginning at midnight tomorrow night.

The joint exercises are to be the most extensive held in this section since 1905. Troops have been mobilized from the artillery districts of eastern and southern New York, Narragansett and Boston. The navy will be represented in the maneuvres by practically the enire Atlantic fleet, as well as several flotillas of destroyers.

The war game will not be played with an idea of seeing whether the coast defenses or the navy will come out victorious. The rival forces will be used merely to test certain problems of defense. With this end in view there will be searchlight maneuvres with other exercises to demonstrate the efficiency of fire control and fire action. It is expected that the exercises will be especially valuable in showing improved methods which have been evolved since the exercises in 1905.

ANIMAL ACTS THE BEST EVER WITH SAUTELLE'S CIRCUS

Notice of the coming of the Great Sig. Sautelle Shows, Circus, Menagerie, Hippodrome and Wild West to Plainfield next Monday, would be more interesting if a schedule was given of the actors, stars and features. Sig. Sautelle's educated horses are a ranking attraction. No handsomer or better trained equines ever stepped proudly into a ring. Miss Rose Reynolds, with her performing lions, startles by her bravery and fearlessness. Captain Frank Cramer, the Bostock of the cages, in his desperate encounter with Rajah, the man-eating lion, sends thrills and shudders down the backs of the onlookers.

And the third bravest animal trainer and subduer, Miss Delorees Franciscos, should be enrolled here as star of the animal kingdom. This brave little lady juggles with leopards, jaguars and panthers as if they were housecats. She whips them into line; sends them over and through burning hoops; jumping high obstructions, rolling and tumbling over the arena, at the will of their imperious mistress.

Combined with these unparalleled feats of wondrous skill and bravery, the big elephants amaze audiences with their remarkable intelligence and lumbersome skill, so to speak. These animals are most "knowledgeable," and show admirable training, combined with animal nature novelty. This will be the show of shows, and, as "Tody" Hamilton would say: "unequaled, unsurpassed and unapproachable.

Don't miss the big pageantry parade that leaves the show grounds at ten by morning sun.

NILSSON WILL OBSERVE SEVENTIETH BIRTHDAY

Stockholm, Aug. 2.—Christine Nilsson, famous a quarter of a century ago as one of the world's greatest lyrical and dramatic artists, will observe her seventieth birthday anniversary tomorrow in quiet retirement at her summer home near the village of Hussaby, where she was born August 3, 1843, the daughter of a poor peasant.

The once famous singer, who is known in private life as the Countess de Miranda, made her operatic debut in this city more than fifty years ago. She first studied here under Berwald, and later in Paris was tutored by Victor J. Nasse and Wartel. When she first appeared in London, in 1867, she scored a great success, especially in "Faust," and her future was assured. Her debut in New York was made in 1870 and was hailed with great enthusiasm in the musical world. In speaking recently of her visits to America Mme. Nilsson said:

"I love dearly America and think often of all the success I had there, and will always keep that dear and splendid country in affectionate memory in my heart."

Since her retirement from professional life some twenty-eight years ago, the famous singer has divided her time between the south of France and her native Sweden. The Coun Angel Miranda, who was her second husband, died in 1902.

Happenings Due Next Week

Washington, D. C., Aug. 2—The trial of the so-called Diggs-Caminetti white slave case, the postponement of which resulted in the resignation of United States Attorney McNab, of San Francisco, and his charges that influence had been brought to bear upon Attorney General McReynolds to delay the trial, is scheduled to begin Tuesday before Judge William C. VanFleet in the United States District Court at San Francisco.

Beginning at midnight Sunday and continuing through the week, the Long Island Sound and Narragansett Bay region will be the scene of the most extensive joint naval and army defense exercises that have been held in some years. Vessels of the Atlantic fleet and the artillery corps of the New York and New England districts will engage in a series of maneuvres for the purpose of working out important problems of coast defense. The highest officers of the army and navy will witness the exercises.

Following a rather tame campaign, the Democrats of Virginia will engage in a primary Tuesday for the purpose of selecting candidates for governor and other State officers to be voted for in November. H. C. Stuart, of Russell county, is the only candidate for the gubernatorial nomination, and several other candidates on the ticket will be named without opposition. The principal contests are for the nominations for lieutenant governor and attorney general.

Several thousand eminent leaders of medical science from all parts of the world will assemble in London the middle of the week for the seventeenth meeting of the International Congress of Medicine. Another notable gathering of world-wide character will be the International Geological Congress, which is to begin its session Thursday in Toronto.

Numerous other important gatherings are scheduled for the week. Among them will be the national convention of the Knights of Columbus, in Boston; the national convention of the Catholic Total Abstainance Union, in Philadelphia; the international convention of the Catholic Order of Foresters, in Louisville; the national meeting of the Fraternal Order of Eagles, in Baltimore; the annual meeting of the League of American Municipalities, in Winnipeg; the annual meeting of the United States League of Building and Loan Associations, in Milwaukee; the Western Canada Irrigation Congress, in Lethbridge, and the annual meeting of the Canadian division of the International Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, in Montreal.

Other interesting events of the week will include the Perry centennial celebration at Milwaukee, the "Stampede" carnival at Winnipeg, the national rowing championships at Boston, and the international track and field championships of the Pacific coast, at Victoria, B. C.

FOR THE CAUSE OF HOME RULE.

[illegible], Mass., Aug. 2—Measures for sustaining the Irish parliamentary party and its leader, John Redmond, in the closing stages of the Home Rule struggle, will be discussed by the national executive committee of the United Irish League of America at an important meeting in this city tomorrow. National President Michael J. Ryan, of Philadelphia, is here to attend the meeting, together with Patrick Egan, former United States Minister to Chile, and a number of other noted leaders of the Irish cause. The principal object of the meeting is to devise ways and means by which the Irish party may be sustained financially as well as morally in the final stage of the Home Rule fight. As a result of plans to be formulated at the meeting, it is expected that $40,000 will be raised to aid the cause. The meeting also will map out a program of mass meetings to be held in every large city in the United States.

The departure of the cook or maid does not prostrate the lady who knows the efficiency of Press want ads.

Not a home in this city but has its quota of discarded furniture, rugs, stoves perhaps, a wheelbarrow maybe.

A few cents for a Press want ad and some one who needs the very article that lies rotting in your garret will call and pay you for it.

You are better off—new owner is pleased—and the article itself is contributing to the reduction of the high cost of living.

A Bargain List For Saturday Shoppers

It's a partial list, however, because if we enumerated every bargain here we could fill this page. And they ARE bargains, not so called ones, real genuine old fashioned bargains.

There's not a great many—about two dozen—all dainty models, well made of good quality materials, including crash, lawn, chambray, linene, etc.; all this season's styles and originally selling up to $3.50. To get rid of them we have reduced the price to $1.98.

A GENERAL REDUCTION ON DAINTY LINGERIE FROCKS

Simply because we want the rack room. There's still a complete assortment of sizes in the prettiest of models. Some in lawns, some crepe and some voiles, all handsomely designed and trimmed with the prettiest of laces and embroideries; some having embroidered panels front of bodice and skirt, and they are all reduced to get them out quickly.

Automobile Dusters

Parasols at a Big Saving

You want a sunshade this hot weather, no matter if on vacation or home. These prices are reduced to the very possible lowest figures:

$1.00 Parasols, covered in pongee, with contrasting borders of similar material, now reduced to 59c.

25c Pique at 19c Yard

In medium and wide wale and because here and there you will find a slight oil stain or imperfection, instead of selling it at 25c, we ask only 19c a yard.

59c Value at 39c

In both natural and white, made of a good quality material, with turn-back cuffs and in sizes from 14½ up.

$3.00 Net Waists $2.25

This is a new fall model, just in. It's a dainty conception of cream net with underbody of pink Jap silk; has elbow sleeves, and the new sloping V shape neck; both being trimmed with net ruffling; we introduce them to you at only $2.25.

Pillow Cases at 15

These are a specially good value at 19c, as they are made of a fine quality casing and are 45x36 in. size before hemming; we could easily get 19c for them, only we bought them at a price which allows us to sell them at 15c.

Yard Wide Dress Linens

MEN'S ROXFORD UNDERWEAR

We intended sending part of this purchase to our Elmira store but your response to our offer this week prompts us to keep it all here for our Plainfield patrons. So here you are, these fine balbriggan vests and pants, universally sold at 50c garments, reduced specially, while they last, to 39c.

MISSES' & JUNIORS' WASH DRESSES

Mr. Tepper purchased this lot of pretty frocks last Wednesday at a ridiculously low price. We expect them in by Saturday morning, when we will place them on sale and show them in one of our windows. If they don't come in by tomorrow they will be shown as soon as they do come in, so watch for them as they are something unusual. There will be just two prices: Children's sizes, 79c; Junior sizes, $1.19.

RUSHED TO THE RESCUE.

Then They Made a Tactful, if Ignoble, Retreat to Safety.

An amusing story of the adventure that four men had with an irritable bull is told by a correspondent of the London Field. It contains a hint that may be useful to some reader who shall hereafter find himself in a similar disagreeable situation.

A farmer had a bull that he thought perfectly docile. One day he was quietly walking behind the herd when without any warning the bull turned and came straight at him. He had a heavy club in his hands, and he struck the animal with all his might over the head and eyes several times, when the club broke. For the moment he did not know what to do and thought it was all over with him, when he remembered that some one had told him that a bull would not attack you if you lay down, so he threw himself flat on his face and shouted for help, and three of his men who were not far off came running to the rescue.

When they got within about twenty yards he told them to come on their hands and knees, and in this way they came up alongside of him. The question then was what to do. They came to the conclusion that the only thing left was for all of them to retreat backward on their hands and knees. This they did, and the bull, never more than a yard off, followed them up with his head slightly on one side. Meanwhile he snorted and bellowed, and his eyes, showing all the whites, looked, the farmer said, as if they would come out of his head. At last the men reached the river bank, slipped over the edge and so escaped.

CUT THE RED TAPE.

Sarah Bernhardt's Lesson to Belgium's Customs Officials.

In the bad old days not so very long ago travelers, when they reached the Belgian frontier, were compelled to leave their compartments in the middle of the night in order to be present at the customs examination of their luggage.

A train in which Mme. Sarah Bernhardt was traveling reached the frontier at midnight, and the customs officials made their customary raid into her compartment. Roughly awakened from her beauty sleep and not in the best of humor, Mme. Bernhardt refused to descend.

The officials uncoupled the actress' carriage, dumped her luggage on the platform and went through it with conscientious vigor.

By this time the train was about ready to start.

"You are not going to leave without me?" cried the actress. "Be so kind as to couple my carriage at once."

"When we have completed our examination," replied the inspector and went on rummaging with redoubled zeal. But he did not know with whom he had to deal. The actress took up a portmanteau, placed it between the rails a few yards in front of the engine and calmly seated herself.

"And now," she said, "you can go on if you please."

The officials were helpless, and the Bernhardt car was attached to the train. This lesson in manners soon afterward produced a change in the Belgian customs.—London Telegraph.

Incidental Music.

One afternoon a couple from an adjoining town presented themselves to a Boston divine and asked to be married just as he was about to enter the pulpit to conduct an afternoon service. The minister replied that he regretted that he could not at that moment comply with their wish, but that immediately upon the conclusion of the service he would take pleasure in performing the ceremony. The lovers after demurring seated themselves in the rear of the church. When the minister had finished the service he made the following announcement: "The parties who are to be joined in matrimony will present themselves at the chancel immediately after the singing of Hymn 415, 'Mistaken Souls That Dream of Heaven!'"—Exchange.

Spelling by Ear.

The young French stenographer, whose progress in English had not kept pace with her proficiency in shorthand, was puzzling over some notes she had taken of a recitation at a public entertainment.

As she transcribed them the recitation began like this:

La fanthi wurlaf swidheu,
Oui panju oui pelone.

"That's easy," said the expert to whom she submitted the notes. "It is part of a poem that begins:

"Laugh and the world laughs with you, Weep and you weep alone."

—Chicago Tribune.

The Very Worst.

Schoolmistress—Now, tell me the truth, Johnny Jones. You know what will happen if you tell a lie, don't you? Johnny Jones—Yes, ma'am; I'll go to a bad place. Schoolmistress—Yes, and that isn't the worst of it. You'll also be expelled from school.

A Failing Most Folks Have.

"Don't you think every one ought to look for the good in the world?"

"Yes. But instead of looking for the good they seem to be looking for the good things."—Houston Post.

His View of It.

Bond—Don't you realize that marriage broadens a man? Benedict—Oh, yes. I suppose it can be put that way, but "flattens" is the word I've always used.—London Tit-Bits.

No man was ever so much deceived by another as by himself.—Greville.

The purpose of the rural organization service is the aiding of the 6,000,000 farmers of the United States to bring about betterment in their social and economic condition.

INCREASE IN STREET DEATHS

Forty-one Persons Killed by Vehicular Traffic During July.

New York, Aug. 2.—Of forty-one persons killed by vehicular traffic on the streets of New York city in July, 1913, the National Highway Protective society's report shows that twenty-five were children under sixteen years of age. Automobiles killed twenty-six, wagons killed eight and trolleys seven. This is a material increase over July, 1912. In Manhattan there were no fatal accidents on the streets and avenues protected by the traffic squad.

Child Dies From Snake Bite.

Lacrosse, Wis., Aug. 2.—Mary, seven-year-old daughter of Anton Erickson of the township of Bristow, near here, died from the effects of a rattlesnake bite. The child was bitten while she was picking blackberries, and, though medical help was prompt, it failed to save her.

THREE STATES SWEPT BY ELECTRIC STORM

Railroads and Wire Services Are Badly Crippled.

New York, Aug. 2.—Violent electrical storms with high wind velocity and cloudbursts raged in eastern Pennsylvania, spread through New Jersey and reached this city.

Miles of railroad tracks were flooded in Pennsylvania, washouts occurred at different points and telephone and telegraphic service to the west and south suffered severely. Baltimore, Cleveland and Cincinnati were entirely cut off from communication by phone with New York.

At Manunka Chunk, N. J., a cloudburst swept 200 feet of Pennsylvania railroad track down an embankment, carrying a tower and station with it. At Egg Harbor, N. J., the park lake burst a concrete dam, causing heavy damage.

Last night New York city was cut off from all telephone communication with Baltimore, Pittsburgh, Cleveland and Cincinnati. A single line, through a circuitous route, remained open to Chicago. At the offices of the American Telephone and Telegraph company it was said that the electrical storms had spread throughout the Catskill ranges and that worse disturbances had not been experienced for many years. The burning fuses by lightning constituted the main source of the interruption.

Although the center of the telephonic disturbance was reported to be just a little south of Philadelphia, the telephone service to that city remained open. The real trouble, so far as it hit the lines of the American Telephone and Telegraph company, centered in Newtown Square, a little village about eighteen miles to the west of Philadelphia. A large switching station is maintained there. Full details of what had happened to the station could not be learned, but it was feared that the entire station had either been washed out or destroyed by lightning.

CUTS QUINLAN'S YEAR TO 10 DAYS

Paterson Recorder Reduces I. W. W. Man's Term.

HAD MOCKED POLICEMAN

Agitator Is Denounced as Irresponsible by Court—Warned if He Is Found Guilty Again of Similar Offense Maximum Sentence Will Be Imposed.

Paterson, N. J., Aug. 2.—Patrick Quinlan, the Socialist and labor agitator who was sentenced to one year in the county jail by Recorder Carroll on a charge of disorderly conduct, had the sentence reduced to ten days in jail. Quinlan had made no plea for a reduction of his sentence. Quinlan was brought before Recorder Carroll in this city.

"For the last five months," said the recorder, "irresponsible persons like you—for I am entirely convinced that you are irresponsible—have been maligning public officials who were placed in office by the will of the people and making statements which you yourself know to be untrue for the purpose of stirring up a feeling of hatred in the hearts of the more ignorant class."

The recorder said he would reduce Quinlan's sentence to ten days, declaring that his purpose in imposing the maximum penalty was to demonstrate the majesty of the law, and he warned Quinlan that if the latter was found guilty again of a similar offense the maximum sentence would be imposed.

William S. Glanz, secretary of the Passaic county Socialist party, asked the recorder if he would not impose a fine instead of a prison sentence, but the court refused and Quinlan was taken back to jail. In an address at a Socialist meeting here last Saturday night Quinlan had said:

"Elect a Socialist mayor and then you won't have cops like Bummy Ryan batting you over the head with a club."

Subsequently Police Sergeant Ryan swore out a warrant for Quinlan, who was arrested on Wednesday. At the trial Quinlan's counsel argued that the words quoted did not constitute disorderly conduct.

NEARLY ROASTED IN BOAT.

Fishermen Have Narrow Escape When Lightning Explodes Engine.

Egg Harbor, N. J., Aug. 2.—Unconscious and badly burned, Henry Babcock and Andrew Morrell, Harrisville fishermen, were picked up by an oyster boat and rushed to a Bass river physician. Morrell has not regained consciousness, but Babcock told of their experience.

The men had set out to spend the day fishing. About noon a mass of dark clouds passed over them and lightning struck their engine. In a moment the engine was a mass of flames.

Morrell, stunned, was unable to move, but Babcock feebly tried to extinguish the flames. What followed later he did not know. He was conscious, however, of awakening and finding the boat in darkness. The engine was wrecked and the oily floor of the boat was scorched.

TRIES TO KILL SLAYER OF DOG

Burlington Veterinary About to Shoot Assemblyman Disarmed by Wife.

Burlington, N. J., Aug. 2.—Dr. James Fitzpatrick, a veterinary surgeon, tried to shoot Assemblyman Robert Peacock, whose automobile had just killed the doctor's bulldog. He was prevented from doing so by his wife.

Dr. Fitzpatrick, who is over sixty years of age, found the assemblyman at the entrance to the Auditorium theater. Drawing a .38 caliber revolver, he rushed at Peacock, exclaiming he was going to kill him, but Mrs. Fitzpatrick grabbed his arm when he leveled the weapon and succeeded in disarming him. The doctor was partly pacified and went home. Peacock is averse to taking any steps against Dr. Fitzpatrick, and no arrest has been made.

LOAN SHARK SENTENCED.

Tolman Must Keep Out of Business For Three Years.

Trenton, N. J., Aug. 2.—Daniel H. Tolman, known as the "loan shark king," was sentenced by Judge Gnichtel in Mercer court to pay a fine of $1,000 and costs and was placed on probation for three years. During the probationary period the court said Tolman must not engage in the loan business, and if he did, no matter in what part of the country he was operating, the Trenton authorities would bring him back, and he would be given a prison sentence.

The maximum penalty for the offense on which Tolman was indicted is $1,000 fine and three years' imprisonment.

WHY NETHERWOOD SHOULD HAVE A PUBLIC SCHOOL

During my residence in Netherwood it has been my pleasure to talk many times with those who have ante-dated me by many years in the section, but I have been unable to find anyone who could bound Netherwood. If you inquire of the Netherwood Residents' Association you will find that the boundaries are the arbitrary lines laid down some two or more years ago when the organization was founded, simply to indicate an area to which they would limit their membership. Ask some citizens who have been in and known the county for twenty-five years and they will say it means all the east end,—and then as a last resort if you inquire of the City authorities you will find that there is no map of Netherwood and no definite lines are known. So we are taught to believe then that Netherwood is not on the map.

There is, however, a great portion of City territory comprising almost the entire Second Ward of Plainfield that is on the map. It is found when assessments are levied far easier than any other area in the city. It is on the map when acreage and mileage are counted, and it is very materially on the map when a children's census is taken. Inasmuch as this is the section for which the Netherwood Residents' Association has for two years been struggling to have a school erected, it is this section to which I shall refer when I maintain that Netherwood should have a school.

Not only is there no public school in this great area, but since the city appropriated its first money for educational purposes the small children of this section have been required to travel long distances to receive an education at the hands of the public school system. In inclement weather this has made education too costly in many instances in that it has at times caused serious illness. There are those who insist, and among them can be found members of the present Board of Education, that a distance of a mile and a half for small children is not great, and to walk to and from school two or three times a day is not over-taxing them. In their endeavor to bolster a much and justly criticised school management, they seem at times bereft of all reason and willing to defend conditions as glaring as the present lack of school accommodations in the Netherwood section. When citizens of this community prepared recently a petition and requested residents familiar with conditions to sign it and urged immediate action, they were at first informed that petitions carry no weight with the president of the Board of Education. This was later modified and when they further urged that a kindergarten and primary school be erected they were informed that the two are not generally established together, though it was later reluctantly admitted that every primary school in Plainfield has a kindergarten. When a partial census of the children of the district was submitted as evidence of the necessity of early action on their part, they were informed by the Board that a census of public school children alone is all that should be and was taken, and that the private, parochial and non-attendants should not be counted, and this they maintained in spite of a statute in the school law stating clearly to the contrary.

I have heard it said by members of the Board of Education that certain residents do not want a school and that they have whispered their opposition to it privately. The Netherwood Residents' Association has not counted in their canvas the man who would not express himself. At considerable expense of time and money this association has endeavored to get an expression of opinion from the residents of this section on the subject. Some five hundred letters were sent to residents of the district whose names and addresses they could obtain, each was addressed impartially, and the matter of the school's erection was explained and a petition enclosed which they were simply asked to sign or to refrain from signing as their judgment dictated.

Approximately two hundred were returned with petitions signed and two or three with letters opposing the proposition. This shows the relative feeling. There were substantially three hundred from whom no replies were received. It is eminently unfair to consider all these latter in opposition. Some considerable allowance should be made for the natural change of residence in a suburban section and for those who for one reason or another have failed to respond. My experience has been that forty per cent. of favorable replies to a circular of this sort shows a decided feeling in advocacy of the movement and that a committee perforce could not count any opposition that secrets itself.

An open expression was asked on a matter of public import and no reply can only be construed to mean no count. On civic matters generally I have always been of the opinion that secret opposition is not a forceful weapon and when citizens unselfishly unite on a progressive movement—and the opposition becomes simply obstructive in its purpose—success will, invariably, ultimately crown the effort.

It is only fair in discussing this question that the public should know all the facts. This would better enable them to judge whether the objections to a school are well founded. Let me first say that the present agitation started about two years ago when the Netherwood Residents' Association unanimously adopted a resolution advocating the immediate erection of a school and directed its committee to leave no stone unturned in accomplishing their purpose. Over a year ago the committee waited on the Board of Education and presented its claims. A subsequent letter from Superintendent Maxson speaking for the Board assured the association of the Board's desire to meet the needs of the system, and bespoke early action.

Shortly after followed the appropriation of $230,000 for a high school addition and future attempts for action of the Board on this school proved futile, we being told that this appropriation made any other prohibitive at this time. The last hearing of the committee before the Board was in July when the result of the committee's work was tendered. Nothing at this time indicated that the matter would receive even serious consideration, the Board having been recently pretty generally criticised for certain acts and seemed in no spirit to be shown.

One recent appointee to the Board first expressed himself in no uncertain terms for a Netherwood school. He signed the petition then being circulated; he urged that he could not be a forceful advocate at this time because he was a minority man; he would, however, be there to advise and counsel. He was informed of the progress of the work of the committee, time and again approving it, and said, that while his children were in a parochial, they would go to a public school if one were erected. Under the magic spell of the majority, that forceful majority of the Plainfield Board of Education, he now speaks in general accord with every action past and present of that body. He isn't sure now where a school should be built and his children will stay in the parochial school until they are nine or ten years old at least, and that appropriation of $230,000 for a new high school now meets with his approval, irrespective of the lack of accommodations for elementary school children throughout the city. Furthermore, his signing the petition of the Residents' Association in nowise, he now maintains, commits him to the support of the Netherwood school, though the petition reads in parts "We believe that no better location could be found, etc."

Notwithstanding the attitude of several members of the Board of Education, I urge the following reasons, "Why Should Netherwood Have a School?"

1st. Because a Residents' Association having studied for two years the condition in the district and city at large have come to the unanimous conclusion that they are justified in demanding immediate action—favoring a school for Netherwood.

2nd. Because the Chamber of Commerce, familiar with conditions generally throughout the city, carefully considered and recommended nearly a year ago the urgent need of a school in Netherwood.

3rd. Because a great section left entirely without any public school reflects on the system at large, and when the question, "has Netherwood any school?"—is answered in the negative,—an irreparable reflection on the city is sustained.

4th. Because the only approach to a correct school census that has been made in recent years is the one submitted by the Netherwood Residents' Association at the July meeting of the Board of Education which shows approximately 400 children in a district having no public school.

5th. Such conditions prejudice new-comers toward the district and the section is thereby being discriminated against.

6th. Because the distance to the nearest school for many small children is considerably over a mile and in some cases nearer a mile and a half.

Let me say that I thoroughly appreciate the problems of any Board of Education and especially that of Plainfield. Due allowance should be given for the many sacrifices continually being made by its members, but such wanton neglect as has characterized their attitude in regard to the school conditions in the Netherwood section deserves nothing but the severest of criticism.

IMITATION PEARLS.

They Are Made With Essence d'Orient, a Fish Scale Product.

As the real pearl comes from the oyster, so to a large extent is the manufacture of artificial pearls dependent on a certain species of fish. The complete processes of manufacture are, of course, trade secrets, but it is interesting to know that it is from the brilliant scales of the ablet, or blay, that essence d'orient is produced, as with this essence imitation pearls are made.

The blay is a small fish with a green back and a white belly, and the essence is obtained exclusively from its white scales, which are covered with a pigment of metallic appearance. They are first treated with ammonia and then with fish glue, a powder being first obtained and then a paste which can be easily spread on glass.

In the early stages of pearl manufacture, about 1656, this essence d'orient was applied to little balls of plaster, but the temperature and the damp heat of the human body modified the adhesive qualities of the pearly matter and caused changes of color. In 1680 a Parisian named Jacquin invented a method of covering small glass balls with this essence, thereby producing the first practical artificial pearl.

In the north and east of France and in Germany blay fishing is actively pursued. About 4,000 are required to produce a pound of scales, which in turn gives a quarter of a pound of essence. —New York Press.

WINDOW GLASS DECAYS.

It Gets So Brittle In Time That It May Be Cut With Shears.

It is generally supposed that glass is practically immortal. But it has been demonstrated that glass exposed to the elements will decay and in time become so rotten that it is worthless.

Window glass exposed to the heat and cold and varying winds will, after a number of years, become so brittle that it can be cut with a pair of shears. It is said that light and darkness have different effects on glass, and this alternation alone will cause it to become fragile and in time worthless.

It is almost impossible to remove old windows from a building without breaking many of the panes of glass. New glass can be handled with much more carelessness.

There is a certain elasticity to new glass that leaves glass which has faced the weather for a number of years.

Street fakers who travel throughout the country selling scissors will obtain a lot of old window glass and show the crowds how wonderfully their shears will cut by clipping off strips of the glass just as a person would cut paper, when in fact the feat is due to the fact that the glass is actually rotten.—Harper's Weekly.

Many Names of the Thames.

The Thames has been the cause of much controversy. Its name has been variously stated as Tameses, Tamese, Tamises (at the juncture of the Isis and Tame, near Dorchester), Tamisa, Tamesa, Thamisia, Thamesis and finally Isis (where it flows between the Oxfordshire and the Buckinghamshire shores). Thus at Oxford it is still often called the Isis until it receives the shallow river Tame just below Dorchester, from which point it is called Thames. Historians trace this error to an early attempted division of the Latin word Tamesis into two words, Tame esis or Tame isis, suggested perhaps by the existence of the Tame in Buckinghamshire. The Saxons called it the Thames, ancient maps and documents designating it Thamesis Fluvius.—From "In Thamesland."

A Pioneer Tourist.

Thomas Pennant was the great pioneer of the tribe of tourists. He discovered Scotland, Ireland and the Isle of Man, taking with him a tame Welsh artist of genius to illustrate his travels. "I have had the hardihood," he wrote in 1771, "to venture on a journey to the remotest part of north Britain." So alluring was the account of his exploration that the country has ever since been inundated with southern visitors. Of Ireland he was able to make only an imperfect report, because of the "conviviality" of the people, and of the Isle of Man his impressions have perished. Pennant corresponded with Linnaeus and met Voltaire, whom he found to be a "master of English oaths."—London Standard.

Harvard Then a College of Children.

In 1685, when elected president of Harvard, the Rev. Increase Mather refused to resign the pastorate of the North church in Boston for the sake of "forty or fifty children." Therefore he used to ride back and forth from Boston to Cambridge, charging to the college the cost of shoeing and baiting his horse and mending his saddle. Many of these students were but twelve or thirteen years old.

Arrangements have been completed by the Ladies' Home Circle of the Reformed church at Lebanon, for the annual harvest home, which will be held on the church grounds Tuesday afternoon and evening, August 12.

DEFENDED HIS COTTON.

Andrew Jackson Showed He Had a Grim Sense of Humor.

A Virginian veteran used to tell how Andy Jackson used bales of cotton in the ramparts that he threw up in defense of New Orleans, and it was naturally a matter of indifference to him whose cotton he employed.

Some of the cotton happened to belong to a rich merchant. The merchant followed his bales with doglike devotion. He could not bear to tear himself away from them. He was standing over them when Jackson happened to draw near, and, running up to the chief, he said: "Monsieur, it is damage for your men to take my cotton. All property is sacred and must be protected."

"But," said Jackson, "are you sure this is your cotton?"

"Oh, sure, most sure," said the merchant. "I know the marks, all of them. Et puis, alors, this cotton, sir, must be defended."

Jackson turned to a private and told him to fetch a musket at once. The musket being brought, the general laid it in the merchant's arms and said with a grim smile:

"My friend, you are the most proper person I know of to defend your own property. Stay here, then, and do so. Stir at your peril."

ENERGY OF RADIUM.

One Ton of It Would Equal in Power 1,500,000 Tons of Coal.

If one could utilize the energy of a ton of radium through a space of thirty years it would be sufficient to drive a ship of 15,000 tons, with engines of 15,000 horsepower, at a rate of fifteen knots throughout the whole thirty years. To do this 1,500,000 tons of coal are actually required, says the Chicago Tribune.

These are not fanciful figures, for the energy is there, though, as a matter of fact, it is unlikely that man will ever produce much more than half an ounce of radium a year.

Still, the fact is important for this reason—that science is convinced that the radium in radium bromide is not the only element which possesses this marvelous store of energy, but that the calcium in gypsum and the sodium in common salt contain also this energy content.

The evidence of the wonderful atomic energies in the common elements of every day material is rapidly accumulating, and scientists are of the opinion that perhaps these same discoveries may in time alter the whole future of the human race.

The Kitchen Sink.

It is a statistical fact that farm women die earlier than do farm men and that those who survive the years of drudgery break in health sooner than do the men. The opposite is true in town. There is no doubt in my mind that the biggest factor in the development of this state of affairs is the woeful lack of labor saving contrivances in the farm woman's home. Many houses in the country are still without that greatest of labor savers—a kitchen sink, a sink with a pump or faucet and with a drain leading out from it. The carrying in and out of water is the most laborious and back breaking task of all the hard tasks belonging to the housekeeper. There is no substitute for a kitchen sink. If you can add but one thing to your home this year and if you have no kitchen sink let that be the addition.—Farm and Fireside.

Why People Travel.

Because they think they are going to learn something, and it is only by traveling that they can discover that knowledge does not come by travel.

Because it helps them to get better acquainted with their neighbors—some of whom they are bound to fall in with on their travels.

Because the doctor tells them they ought to.

Because it costs more than they can afford.

Because they don't know all the disagreeable things that will happen to them.

Because it is the only way in which they can discover how comfortable they are at home.—Life.

Hum of the Wires.

Anything that is stretched is apt to be thrown into vibration by the force of the air blowing against it. If it vibrates so fast as to produce the air waves that our ears can hear then that is what we call sound. This is what happens to the telegraph wires when they hum, and if we put our hand on the telegraph pole we shall feel that the wires vibrate strongly enough to set the whole pole trembling too. But when the air is quite still the telegraph wires do not hum.

Very Attentive.

"I can't get old Snip the tailor to pay any attention to me," remarked Dubbleigh.

"That's strange," said Slathers. "He's most assiduous in his attention to me. Sends me three or four bills every month."—Harper's Weekly.

The John Wanamaker Store

Broadway and Ninth, New York

"I Thought You Had Overadvertised Your August Furniture Sale"

(Original)

said a man of wide knowledge and discrimination—a man who has traveled much—who knows the famous furniture stores abroad and who has seen many of their special exhibitions there—a lover and a student of fine furniture—

"Now I Find You Have Understated It"

"I did not believe that any American store had such a collection of beautiful furniture—surely no other store of our country has!"

Why did this gentleman change his mind?

Because he came and SAW.

We began at the top furniture gallery—the Seventh. A whole floor of bedroom furniture and bedding and nothing else. He was interested, but not keenly so.

Then we walked over the Sixth Gallery—at least an acre of dining-room furniture—some of it shown in special exhibition rooms. Our visitor's interest grew.

When we came to the Fifth Gallery, with its exquisite living room, library and hall furniture—the small artistic pieces so much in demand now—and entered the "Period Rooms" and then the House Palatial, he began to talk. "Wait!" we said. "This is not all."

Finally we came to the Auditorium on the first gallery—

and surveying the picture as he saw it from the entrance, he said:— "I owe you an apology—I thought you had over-advertised the furniture; I find you have understated its merits." After examining each exquisite piece of furniture by itself and in its relation with the whole collection, he added:— "Surely there is no assemblage of furniture in all America to compare with what you have shown me—considering the quality, comprehensiveness of variety, quantity and prices asked."

The furniture in the Auditorium consists mainly of reproductions from museum pieces—assembled one by one or suite by suite—but it all is from our regular stock; nothing brought in for the occasion just to make an impression.

And all is marked at August prices, showing economies of 10 to 50 per cent.

The Furniture on the Fifth, Sixth and Seventh Galleries embraces every kind of good furniture from a simple little oak chiffonier for $6.25, an oak bureau for $14.50 up to magnificent bedroom suites at several thousand dollars.

The assortment all through is well balanced. There is not a furniture want, we believe, that cannot be supplied, if good furniture is wanted.

FACTS AND COMMENT ON NEW YORK NEWS

New York, August 2.—New York city has almost as many telephones as the three leading cities of Europe combined. Today the American metropolis has more than half a million telephones linked together in a system that requires 1,500,000 miles of wire and sixty-seven telephone exchanges to make it the most complete and up-to-date system in the world.

There is at least one man who has already made up his mind that the New York Giants are to figure in the next world's championship series He is J. W. Gibson of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, Quebec. Mr. Gibson is so sure that the McGraw team will finish at the head of the National League that he has written a New York hotel that he is coming here to see the contests for the world's pennant, and that he wants accommodations for himself and wife for the first three weeks in October.

Women entering crowded street cars in New York from now on should look for the man wearing a blue button. It is a tiny button, but it can be found, and the wearer is a member of the Men's League for Woman Suffrage, and one of his principles is to give his seat to the first woman who needs it. The button has for the field the sky blue of freedom, the chevron of suffrage in yellow across it, within this the scales of justice for which the league stands, and below the two letters "M. L." for the name of the organization.

Something like a millenium is expected to result from the new taxicab law which has gone into effect this week. The law is supposed to do away with shaky old rigs and abolish the "pirate" cabmen. It also regulates charges and numerous other matters in relation to the hack business. But one of the greatest reforms which it is designed to accomplish is the abolition of the exclusive cab stands before the big hotels and club houses. Heretofore, it is said, the proprietors of big hotels have reaped handsome profits by farming out the cab stand privileges in front of their places. The charges, the character of the drivers, or the quality of the service mattered little to them. The new law permits any taxicab or other public vehicle to take its stand before the hotels without restriction. Thus is the honest and hard-working New York bonfac deprived of another source of "easy money."

The adoption of an emblem typical of the greatest city of the western world is planned by the Merchants' Association, an organization formed to boom New York as an industrial centre. The association has inaugurated a prize competition for the purpose of getting designs from which to make a selection for the emblem. After the selection has been made the association will urge merchants and manufacturers to place reproductions of the emblem on packages being shipped from the city. In this way the association plans to keep before the eyes of the business men of the entire world the greatness of New York as a manufacturing and distributing centre.

Which reminds us that New York city has now developed into not only the greatest commercial centre of the Western Hemisphere, but the greatest port of the world. The latest figures available on the commercial activities of London and New York give the later a supremacy over London of nearly $200,000,000 for the year. New York city has today more than five times the amount of commerce which was carried on by the entire country half a century ago. It is pointed out that the striking character of New oYrk's supremacy as the new centre of the world's trade is shown by the fact that with the opening of the Panama Canal this city will be nearer to the Asian, Australasian, South American and many of the African markets than any of the great European ports.

PENSIONS ARE DELAYED; INVESTIGATION IS ON

Through the inability of Miss Day, superintendent of the State Board of Children's Guardians, to make investigation into the claims of the score or more widows of this county who have petitiontd for pensions under the widows' pension act, Judge Connolly, yesterday announced that hearing in each case would be postponed until next Thursday.

A similar announcement was made by the court last Friday. It was based on a communication received by County Clerk Calvert from Miss Day in which she stated the rush of work put upon her by the act had so clogged her department that it was impossible to reach the petitions from this county until some date in the future. She expressed the hope in the last letter that her agents would be able to make investigations in this county during the coming week.

ATLANTIC CITY STARTS NIGHT BATHING AS FAD

Atlantic City, Aug. 2—Worried by the popular favor into which night bathing has sprung, beach officials are considering the advisability of either curtailing the practice or providing sufficient protection to make this latest fad safe. Fully 2,000 bathers were in the surf between South Carolina and Maryland avenues, Thursday night, and many times that number are expected before the season closes.

A petition containing the names of several cottagers is being prepared for submission to the city commissioners, requesting that at least two life guards be assigned to night duty on a central section of the beach, and that a searchlight be installed.

K. OF C. DELEGATES GATHER FOR NATIONAL CONVENTION

Boston, Mass., Aug. 2—Knights of Columbus are arriving in Boston for the first event of the long program to be carried out at the national convention of the order, which lasts the entire work. The preparations for the reception and entertainment of the thousands of visitors are complete and there will be no difficulty in accommodating the great out-of-town throng.

Tomorrow will be devoted to the reception of the visitors. On Monday the supreme officers and national board of directors will hold their annual meetings. At 9 o'clock Tuesday morning the religious service that always marks the opening of the convention will be held in the Cathedral of the Holy Cross. When this is concluded the delegates will embark for Nantasket and the first of the business sessions of the convention will be held aboard the boat. The sessions will continue through the week and will be interspersed with a variety of entertainment.

Few fraternal societies of America have had such a strong, healthy growth as the Knights of Columbus. From New Haven, Conn., where it was founded in 1882, it has extended into nearly every State and into Canada. There are at present 52 State councils and more than 1,500 subordinate councils, with a total membership approaching 300,000. The present national officers are supreme knight, James A. Flaherty, of New Haven; national secretary, William A. McGinley, of New Haven, and national treasurer, D. J. Callahan, of Washington, D. C.

lette, of Wisconsin, and Senator Owen, of Oklahoma, made especially elouent pleas.

When the time came to take up the tariff debate, Senator Simmons, in charge of the bill, secured an agreement that it be laid aside until the suffrage petitions remaining could be received.

Last night the suffragists ended their demonstration with a big banquet at the Brighton apartment house, by the congressional committee of the National Woman's Suffrage Association. More than a score of members of the House and Senate and other public men were present.

An organized campaign to secure the submission by Congress at this session of a constitutional amendment conferring the right of suffrage on women throughout the United States was advocated and subscriptions aggregating $1,051 were pledged within ten minutes after the chairman, Miss Alice Paul, issued the call.

CUTS QUINLAN'S SENTENCE.

Paterson, Aug. 1.—Recorder Carroll decided yesterday that he had been too harsh Thursday in sentencing Patrick Quinlan, Industrial Workers of the World leader, to a year in jail for disorderly utterances, and cut down the punishment to ten days. He warned Quinlan, however, that he would receive the mamimum sentence if convicted before him of a like offense again.

DIGGS-CAMINETTI WHITE SLAVE CASE OPENS MONDAY

San Francisco, Cal., Aug. 2.—Everything is in readiness for the beginning of the trial on Monday of the celebrated Diggs-Caminetti white slave case, which developed into a cause celebre when it was made the medium for an attack on the official conduct of Attorney General McReynolds and incidentally involved the Wilson administration in criticism. The fact that the Republican members of the House of Representatives are expected to bring the case up for debate at the first opportunity will cause the trial to be followed with additional interest.

The case had its beginning last March, when Drew Caminetti and Maury Diggs, the defendants, are alleged to have eloped with Marsha Warrington and Lola Norris, two high school fraternity girls of Sacramento. The elopement led to the arrest and indictment of the two young men on charges of white slavery.

The case attracted considerable attention at the time because of the prominence of the defendants' families. Diggs is a nephew of Marshall Diggs, once a member of California's senate, a man of wealth and strong political connections. The younger Diggs was State architect until recently and lived in Sacramento. He is twenty-seven years old and has had the reputation of being a "high roller."

Caminetti is the son of A. Caminetti, former State senator, and recently appointed commissioner of immigration by President Wilson. Drew Caminetti, the defendant, was a noncommissioned officer of the National Guard of California and was a clerk in the office of the State board of control until March 8 last. He is twenty-seven years old.

Diggs and Caminetti have long been intimate friends. Both are married and have families.

Under the names of Fisher and Whitman, it is alleged that Diggs and Caminetti began to court the Norris and Warrington girls last winter. Finally, things went so far that when the real identity of the men was discovered by the girls the relations of the four did not break off. It was after this that the plan to leave the city began to take shape—the journey that was to land the two couples in the Federal net under the white slave law.

Once upon the train, the girls gave themselves up to the plans for the elopement and ceased to rebel. The four traveled in one stateroom. On arrival at Reno, Nev., in early morning the party went to a hotel. Four days later the two couples were arrested living together in a bungalow at Reno.

All Sacramento was aroused over the elopement, and fearing possible violence, Diggs and Caminetti were smuggled into the city in automobiles upon their return. A mob waited for them at the railway station, but the police succeeded in protecting the two men.

United States District Attorney John L. McNab went to Sacramento and made a personal investigation of every feature of the case. After the two were indicted on charges of white slavery leading citizens all over the State appealed to the district attorney to take early action in the case.

The case was put on the calendar of May 19, ready to be set for trial in June. Thereafter it was postponed from time to time until matters were brought to a head on June 23 by the resignation of District Attorney McNab. In telegraphing his resignation to President Wilson Mr. McNab said:

"I am ordered by the Attorney General over my protest to postpone until autumn the trials of Maury Diggs and Drew Caminetti, indicted for a hideous crime which has shocked the moral sense of the people of California, and this after I have advised the Department of Justice that attempts have been made to corrupt the Government witnesses, and friends of the defendants are publicly boasting that the wealth and political prominence of the defendants' relatives will procure my hand to be stayed through influence at Washington."

Attorney General McReynolds and Secretary of Labor Wilson, the latter brought into the case by the fact that the elder Caminetti, as commissioner of immigration, was one of his subordinate officials, denied that any influence had been brought to bear upon them to obtain a postponement of the Diggs-Caminetti trials. President Wilson thereupon accepted the McNab resignation.

It was expected that Thomas E. Hayden, associate counsel for the Government in the Diggs-Caminetti cases, would lead in the prosecution. Learning of protests that he was too inexperienced as a criminal lawyer to participate in the case, Mr. Hayden tendered his resignation to Attorney General McReynolds. The case will now be prosecuted by Attorneys Sullivan and Roche, the Government's principal counsel.

SULZER IN NEW MURPHY ATTACK

Governor Plans Probe of All State Departments.

HENNESSY INVESTIGATOR

Tammany Men Said to Be Uneasy at Latest Move by Governor—Friends of Executive Say Frawley Committee Will Be Offset.

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 2.—John A. Hennessy, who, in succession, has been confidential adviser to the governor, executive auditor, prober of the Palisades park commission and confidential investigator for the highways department, will start on the political warpath to get the scalp of every Tammany brave holding an important state position. He is fortified with a commission from Governor Sulzer authorizing him to investigate every state department.

The appointment of Hennessy, who is authorized to employ the best counsel available and begin public hearings on Aug. 11—the day the legislature reconvenes—was pronounced by Tammany men to be a plan to steal some of the thunder of publicity from Murphy's Frawley investigating committee.

Hennessy No Mean Foe.

Two things seem certain to the minds of the Sulzer partisans who are aware of the course Mr. Hennessy will pursue. One is that Hennessy, whose astuteness is conceded by all of Murphy's Albany lieutenants, will run the Frawley committee a dead heat in digging up revelations calculated to reflect discredit on persons against whom they are aimed.

The other is that before Hennessy gets through he will furnish enough material to justify the governor in removing from office men prominent in the state service who have cast their lot with Murphy.

It was generally conceded that among the big Murphy men whom Hennessy will pursue are State Commissioner of Excise Farley, Superintendent of Public Works Peck, Conservation Commissioners Moore and Fleming and State Superintendent of Elections Voorhis.

The Moreland act, under which Mr. Hennessy was named, gives him the right, Governor Sulzer believes, to invade the political subdivisions of the state. Relying on this interpretation, Mr. Hennessy could go into counties where the organization leaders are hostile to the governor and turn things topsy turvy. Whether he intends to go this far is not known.

THREE DIE IN MANHOLE.

Aged Street Employee Falls and Two Rescuers Also Lose Lives.

Wilmington, Del., Aug. 2.—"Doc" Bouldman, seventy years of age, the oldest employee in the street and sewer department, was assigned to clean out a manhole and had been in the inlet only a moment when he threw up his hands and fell. Jacob Monk, who was working with Bouldman, shouldered the unconscious man and started to climb out. He had reached the rim when he also lost consciousness and dropped back.

Bert Trusty of Newcastle, a driver, saw Monk's futile efforts, leaped from his wagon and let himself down into the pit. He raised Monk and tried to hand him up to persons standing in the street, but fell back overcome.

The crowd got Trusty, Bouldman and Monk out, but they failed to respond to pulmoter treatment and were declared dead by the Delaware hospital physicians.

MISS KENNEY OUT OF JAIL.

Weak From Hunger Strike, She Is Sent to Nursing Home.

London, Aug. 2.—Miss Annie Kenney, associate of Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, was again released from Holloway jail under the "cat and mouse" act. Miss Kenney, who was rearrested at the London pavilion suffrage meeting last Monday, was so weakened by four days of hunger striking that the prison authorities sent her to a nursing home.

Miss Sylvia Pankhurst also was released from Holloway jail on ticket of leave. Since she was imprisoned last Sunday for trying to lead a mob to Downing street she has not eaten, and on several nights she refused to sleep.

TO AIR M'ADOO CHARGE.

House Bill Wants Facts on Depression of United States Bonds.

Washington, Aug. 2.—Representative Neeley, one of the so called insurgent members of the house banking committee, introduced his resolution directing investigation of Secretary McAdoo's charge that New York bankers were depressing the price of the government 2 per cent bonds to influence action on the currency bill.

Barber Claims $200,000 Estate.

Chicago, Aug. 2.—Joseph Shetler, a barber at Bloomington, Ill., will file claim for the $200,000 estate of William Henry Lee, the publisher, who died here recently, leaving no will and supposedly without heirs. Shetler announced that he was a half brother of Lee and asserted there are no other heirs.

JOHN PURROY MITCHEL.

The selection of Mr. Mitchel as the fusion candidate for mayor is not relished by the Republican organization leaders. Many of the most influential men in the organization are in favor of putting a third ticket in the field headed by District Attorney Whitman, but nothing of a definite nature has been decided upon. Of course such action could not be taken should Mr. Whitman decide to accept the fusion nomination for district attorney.

BRYAN ASKS $100,000 TO HELP AMERICANS

Wants United States Citizens to Quit Mexico.

Washington, Aug. 2.—The secretary of state, Mr. Bryan, asked the house to appropriate $100,000 to care for destitute Americans in Mexico who may find it necessary for their safety and well being to leave and who are unable to pay for their own transportation.

After a conference with President Wilson Mr. Bryan declared that the United States was in no way being pressed for action in Mexico and issued the following statement:

"The statement which appeared in some of the morning papers to the effect that the European governments are bringing pressure to bear on the United States to compel aggressive action in Mexico is entirely without foundation."

Administration officials were pleased to observe the report from the City of Mexico that a reform element in the Mexican chamber of deputies was arranging to submit peace proposals to both factions in the revolution. So far as is known the policy of the American government will be to await the outcome of negotiations of this character.

The chief difficulty in negotiating peace, it is admitted by Mexicans of all factions, is the selection of a nonpartisan provisional president. The suggestion was made by some prominent Mexicans here that on account of the scarcity of men of ability who had not taken part in the Mexican disputes and changing politics it might be expedient to select one of the veteran diplomatists now representing Mexico in posts abroad. Men of such character, it was said, had no political affiliations and would give the situation the benefit of their experince in fields of diplomacy. Senor Corrvarubias, at present minister to Russia, and Senor Gilbert Crespoy Martinez were being mentioned.

ASTOR ESTATE TAXES FIXED

Vincent Astor Must Pay $2,700,000 on His $88,900,000.

New York, Aug. 2.—Guided by the report of the appraisers of the estate of John Jacob Astor, Surrogate Cohalan fixed the taxes to be paid by certain beneficiaries under the will as follows: A tax of $2,741,883.90 on William Vincent Astor's $88,959,99.80; a tax of $100,006.88 on the $2,917,672 left to the posthumous child, John Jacob Astor; $177,570.32 tax on the $4,851,758 left to the daughter, Muriel Astor, and $290,455.84 on the $7,673,896 bequeathed to John Jacob Astor's second wife, Madeline Talmage Force Astor.

Under the law the rate of taxation is increased the greater the amount of the legacies.

The entire transfer tax on the Astor estate as fixed by the surrogate was $3,316,992.01.

VENEZUELA NOW CAUSE OF WORRY

State Department Officially Hears of Revolt.

LIKELY TO SEND WARSHIP

Understood Navy Department Has Been Asked to Dispatch Two Ships, One of Which Will Be Armored Cruiser or First Class Battleship.

Washington, Aug. 2.—It was officially brought to the notice of the state department that Cipriano Castro, the former dictator of Venezuela, had landed on Venezuelan shores to take charge of the forces already assembled for the overthrow of the Gomez government.

A United States warship will probably be dispatched at once to Venezuela. From present indications it is likely that the cruiser Des Moines, now at Brunswick, Ga., will be selected for this duty. The state department, it is understood, has asked the navy department to send two ships, one of which will be an armored cruiser or a first class battleship. Naval officials, however, are inclined to think that the Des Moines will prove satisfactory for the purpose.

More serious than anything else in the situation so far as the interests of the government at Washington are concerned is the fact that the American legation at Caracas is now in charge of a clerk, there being neither minister nor secretary of legation there. Richard Bigges, a young man from Baltimore, appointed to the diplomatic service only a year ago, is the only representative of the authority of the United States at Caracas. State department officials admit the impropriety and danger of the situation, and an effort will be made to find some experienced man in the diplomatic service who can be sent to Venezuela immediately.

Veterans Displaced.

Secretary of State Bryan has displaced most of the veterans of the diplomatic corps who are perfectly familiar with such Latin-American disturbances as have now broken out in Venezuela. In most of the countries the experienced men have been replaced by new appointees, but no one has been named for Venezuela.

General Rafael Hernandez, known in Latin-America as "El Mocho," called at the state department coming over from New York, where he has made his headquarters for several months. He was denied an audience with Secretary of State Bryan, but to subordinate officials he said that he wished to assure the government of the United States that he was not assisting in the promotion of the Castro revolution and that he is most friendly to this government. As a matter of fact, El Mocho is known to be bitterly anti-Castro, but he is not taken seriously by any one officially familiar with Latin-American events.

Castro Starts Rebellion.

Caracas, Venezuela, Aug. 2.—A government circular sent out informs the governors of the states throughout the country that the faction of Cipriano Castro, the former president, has started an armed rebellion within the republic.

The federal council has authorized President Gomez to assume dictatorial powers until the rebellion is crushed.

ONE FIRE IN TEN NOW IS SET

Used to Be One In Four—Great Decrease In Total Fires.

New York, Aug. 2.—Fire Commissioner Johnson gave out a statement that twelve men who had been indicted for arson had fled from the city and had probably gone to Chicago or to other western cities. Other men against whom the fire marshal had evidence of incendiarism had also left the city.

The percentage of incendiary fires, the commissioner said, had fallen from 25 per cent to about 10 per cent. In July there were ninety-nine fewer fires than in July, 1912. The first seven months of the year show a reduction of 1,949 fires from the same period last year. This indicates a saving of about $2,500,000 in fire loss estimated on averages.

TO HAVE EMBASSY IN SPAIN

Foreign Affairs Committee Reports Favorably on Raise of Status.

Washington, Aug. 2.—Bills to raise the American legation at Madrid, Spain, into an embassy, providing an ambassador instead of a minister to Spain at a salary of $17,500 a year and providing a separate minister to Paraguay, were favorably reported to the house by the foreign affairs committee. The minister to Uruguay has officiated in a double capacity in both Uruguay and Paraguay in the past.

Postmasters For One Cent Postage.

Denver, Aug. 2.—Officers were elected by the Association of Postmasters of the first class and Dallas, Tex., was chosen as the place for the next meeting at the closing session. D. T. Gerrow, Jacksonville, Fla., was chosen president. Resolutions urging one cent letter postage and a differentiation between postage rates on advertising and reading matter in magazines and periodicals were adopted.

—Renting a flat, or house, or other property, is strictly "a classified advertising matter." Any other way of finding tenants is impracticable, costly and—sometimes—impossible.

Advertisers may fail in accomplishing the full measure of their possible earnings and handicap their growth by contenting themelves with less than their full selling capacity; others, by means of intelligent advertising, approximate the possible 100 per cent. volume of sales with no increase of "over-head" expense.

But how about the merchant who is advertising, but who is not realizing 100 per cent. of his possibilities?

In advertising, as in merchandising, the point must be reached where expense of operation is overcome and profits begin.

In advertising, as in retailing or manufacturing, it's the last certain per cent. of effort that counts.

Some very clever advertisers in Plainfield are spending large sums of money in advertising without securing 100 per cent. in results, and a few are hitting the "bull's eye." Waste is responsible for most advertising failures.

But what about the under-advertised business—the store that is on the right track, but limits its advertising to the development of 50, 60, or 80 per cent. of the sales of which it is capable.

This type of business most frequently is the specialty store that has sufficient capital and sufficient credit to do a much larger business, but is not willing to venture the needed ten, twenty-five or fifty per cent. added advertising effort to achieve the full results.

The store, for instance, that is doing a business of $40,000 or $50,000 annually, but with facilities for doing an additional $50,000 without added fixed expense, could well afford to spend $5,000 in advertising to get that $50,000 extra business. And the Daily Press would give it to him.

The Daily Press' circulation embraces the class and the best of the mass in Plainfield, and will yield rich returns to any advertiser who appeals to it intelligently.

"The proof of the pudding is in the eating thereof." The proof that the Daily Press readers respond to advertising is the year-in and year-out use of its space by discerning advertisers.

It is quite true that even an under-advertised business may pay a pleasing profit; but why not more profit, at no extra fixed expense, for the moderate outlay of a Daily Press advertising appropriation?

CHANCE IS SATISFIED.

Frank Chance, manager of the Highlanders, emphatically denied yesterday the report he would resign as leader of the Yankees at the close of the present season. Chance was at a loss to explain the rumor, which originated in Los Angeles. He stated he is perfectly satisfied with the present outlook for the team and the condition under which he is working.

"Long Tom" Hughes, of Washington, says that when his pitching days are ended he wants to become an umpire.

The Cincinnati Red Birds have been badly crippled of late with Tinker, Bescher, Marsans and Berghammer on the sick list.

Now that the Pirates and the Cubs are playing on their home grounds they may be able to shorten the space between them and the Giants.

"Cy" Seymour says he's mighty sorry to leave the Boston Braves, as he regards Manager Stallings and the members of the team as the best ever.

Pitcher "Baron" Knetzer, the Brooklyn hold-out, has "jumped his job" with the Trolley Dodgers and signed with the Pittsburgh Federal League club.

With Montgomery, Mobile and Atlanta packed in together at the top, the Southern League race is so hot that it causes the fans to perspire when they lamp at the percentage table.

Catcher Frank Gibson, who belongs to the Detroit Club, is making a great record at Nashville. It is expected he will return to the Tigers at the close of the Southern League season.

The youngsters are doing the heavy batting in the American League, but in the National League the veteran players, Cravath, Crandall, Kling, Titus, Wagner and Huggins, are leading the bunch.

Los Angeles, San Diego, Santa Barbara, Oxnard, San Vernardino, Long Beach, Bakersfield and Santa Ana will form the eight-club circuit of the re-organized California Winter League.

It is said that the Buffalo Club has refused an offer of $10,000 for Frank Truesdale, the Bisons' second baseman. The St. Louis Browns tried out Frank a year ago, but turned him back.

CARLSTROM SIGNED BY BOSTON RED SOX

World's Champions Get Former Local Player For $2,500, Says Report.

Alban Carlstrom, formerly a member of the Plainfield baseball team, playing shortstop, but late of the Lawrence nine in the New England League, has been sold to the Boston Americans according to an announcement made by the Lawrence management today. The consideration paid for the Elizabeth youngster is said to be $2,500 and he will report to the world's champions as soon as the present New England season ends.

Carlstrom was signed by the Red Sox two years ago, but after a short trial was returned to the minor organization for further seasoning. Since his return to Lawrence he has been used in nearly every position on the field and recently been playing first base, a position entirely new to him. He has made a reputation for himself with the willow and is one of the best fielders and base runners on the league circuit. The Boston Americans have held a string on Carlstrom ever since he was returned to Lawrence and the management of the world's champions have been angling for his services for sometime past.

He was a member of the Plainfield team in the Central New Jersey League two years ago and played in the game when Plainfield won the championship of the league over Somerville in a playoff on Crescent Oval.

ARROW A. C. CANNOT SHAKE PRESENT JINX

Loss Column Now Totals Five Close Defeats and Team Is Still Losing.

By defeating the Arrow A. C. with a count of 7 to 4 on Parker Field yesterday afternoon, the Red Stars crept one game nearer the Laurel A. C., the present league leaders, who have yet to drop their first contest. The old jinx continues to follow the Arrow club and the players are trying hard to break their losing streak which has now totaled up to five games. Six aggregations now play on the league schedule and some tight fighting is taking place in each encounter for the pennant.

RAIN HALTS TWO OF THE SENIOR GAMES

Schedule For Next Week Includes Six Games to Be Played.

PARKER FIELD SENIOR LEAGUE.

Yesterday's Results:
Parker A. C. 4, Ironsides 3.
Rovers 2, Ironsides 2 (Game called on account of rain).
Athletics vs. Parker A. C. (Called off on account of rain).

Standing of the Clubs:

	W.	L.	P.C.
Athletics	4	0	1.000
Rovers	3	2	.600
Parker A. C.	1	3	.250
Ironsides	0	3	.000

Scheduled for Next Week:
Monday, 1.30—Rovers vs. Athletics.
Monday, 3.30—Ironsides vs. Rovers.
Wednesday, 2.30—Parker A. C. vs. Rovers.
Friday, 10.00—Ironsides vs. Parker A. C.
Friday, 1.30—Athletics vs. Ironsides.
Friday, 3.30—Parker A. C. vs. Athletics.

The rain curtailed one contest on Parker Field in the seventh inning yesterday afternoon and made the playing of the third game impossible. The Rovers and Ironsides were deadlocked at the completion of seven rounds of play while the Athletics and Parker A. C. combinations did not get an opportunity to match their strength.

Earlier in the day the Parker A. C. scored a 4 to 3 victory over the Ironsides, this being their first victory of the season and the Ironsides failed to break their losing streak.

CLOSE GAME GOES TO PARKER A. C.

Trio of Runs in the First Helped Materially In Winning the Game.

Playing on Crescent Oval yesterday morning, the Parker A. C. combination defeated the Ironsides by a count of 4 to 3. The Parkers scored three runs in the first inning on hits by Clarke, Gleason and Rosenthal and a pair of free passes. The Ironsides tied the count in the third when Dunning singled and Brennan and Gullberg drew passes. C. Gullberg's double brought in two runs and an error by Ruttledge on Dilts' grounder scored Gullberg.

The Parker A. C. got what proved to be the winning run in the fourth on Bohl's double and Ruttledge's single. Denny pitched an excellent game the Ironsides getting but one hit in the last six innings. Bohl led the hitting with two doubles and a single.

RAIN STOPS CONTEST AFTER MAN DOUBLES

Bryniarski's Home Run In the Fifth Ties the Score Before Game Is Curtailed.

The game between the Rovers and Ironsides, of the Parker Field Senior League, was curtailed at the end of the seventh inning with the teams deadlocked with a score of 2 to 2 by the rain, yesterday afternoon. The Ironsides scored their two runs in the fourth on Kyle's double and Gullberg's triple and Blanchar's misplay. The Rovers first one came in the second when Cantor singled and stole second and scored on Blanchar's hit to left. Bryniarski's homer in the fifth tied the score. Blanchard opened the seventh with a double but the game was called at this point.

DISCENSION IN THE FIRST BAPTIST CAMP

Four of the Players Have Quit and Will Go to Flemington This Afternoon.

Discension has asserted itself in the First Baptist Sunday-school League team camp and many of the stars of the aggregation will be missing this afternoon when the league leaders lineup against their old rivals, the Monroe M. E. nine, one of the strongest contenders that they have to deal with in the race for the title. The old story of too much individual glory is assigned as the cause for the disruption and many of the players threaten to hand in their permanent resignations unless conditions are remedied satisfactorily in short order. As it stands, Herbert Stine, Carroll Taylor, Pierson Bailey, Percy Bailey and George Townley have secured berths on the All-Plainfield combination which will go to Flemington this afternoon under the leadership of Louis Slocum, the local pitcher, to lineup against the team of that place in an exhibition game.

When Captain Pierson, of the First Baptist team, issued the batting averages of the players who are trying for the high individual average and the cup that goes for the best record, his figures were widely disputed and unless they are rectified according to the wishes of the parties involved a number of the players will quit the team, at least, this is what they claimed this morning. The players who are effected claim that their batting averages are much higher than those published by Pierson and they assign the error to inefficient scoring which has made itself so prominent wherever amateur baseball has been played in Plainfield this season.

Lou Slocum will take a team to Flemington made up of the following local stars: Stine, c.; Slocum, p.; Pierson Bailey 1b.; Coyle, 2b.; C. Taylor, ss.; Townley, 3b; Percy Bailey lf.; Ayers, cf.; Carty, rf.

PETS WILL PLAY ROYALS TOMORROW

Pets Are Part of the Double Bill Arranged for Lincoln Giants' Field.

Plainfield will be one of the two teams to tackle the strong Royal Colored Giants in a double header on the Lincoln Giants field tomorrow afternoon, Cliff Randolph being kept on the bench this afternoon to rest up for the encounter tomorrow afternoon. The Royals are considered to be one of the fastest colored combinations in Greater New York and Randolph will receive a real test when he is opposed by Wickham, the wonderful ebony colored heaver.

Last Sunday afternoon the Royals defeated the Atlantic City nine of the Tri-State League and this inspired them to take on two different attractions for tomorrow afternoon. Plainfield will oppose the home team in the first encounter and the Ironsides, of Newark, will lineup against the Royals in the second. The Ironsides defeated the strong suburbans last week and are prepared to take a fall out of the colored ballists tomorrow. Plainfield is also optimistic of victory and it is likely that the Pets will give the Giants a strong run for their money. A number of local fans will accompany the Pets to New York tomorrow and the game will be played on the Lincoln Field at 136th street and Fifth avenue.

BIG DAY FOR MARTIN.

Out of four trips to the plate in a game between Rochester and Baltimore yesterday afternoon, Jack Martin returned safe hits three times, one of the bingles being a scorching double to the center field fence. His playing was not alone confined to his stick work, however, for he scored a run, and two putouts and three assists without an error. He also figured twice in one triple play. Rochester was defeated 9 to 4.

GARLAND GETS "PRO" OFFER.

Fred Garland, the pivot man for the Somerset A. C. basketball team of New Brunswick, is wanted to play professional basketball by manager Heckers, of the Kingston team, in the New York State League. Garland is recognized as one of the best players in the State and demonstrated his ability as a basket cager here several times last year playing against Y. M. C. A. quintets.

How to Buy Meat.

A good deal of actual illness is caused by meat which is not fresh when it is eaten. Even if the meat is not in such a bad condition that it produces illness, it surely does not give as much nourishment as fresh meat gives. Hence it should be part of the duty of every economical housewife to see that her family is furnished with fresh meat in the best condition possible.

In order to make this duty easier for the women of Philadelphia, the health inspectors of that city recently issued a list of instructions concerning the proper way to buy meat.

To begin with, do your own marketing in the warm weather, that you may have a chance to inspect the meat you buy before you pay for it. Make sure that it is fresh, not simply by asking the butcher to give you fresh meat, but by examining it for signs of freshness.

How to Tell.

Beef, if it is fresh, is of a rosy color. The fat is creamy in color, and is firm and elastic in quality. The beef should not be wet, but almost dry when you touch it. That which is wet and flabby is not fit to eat. Lamb should be light red and the fat should be white and hard. The best is close grained. Poultry should be pink and yellow, in color, and firm and plump. Any tendency to lividness or greenness should be looked on suspiciously; there should be a fresh odor and the skin be unbroken and never bruised. The eyes should not be deeply sunken in and the head should look clean. An authority on cooking has recently pointed out that in America few but the Jews—who always insist on freshly killed chickens really understand the deliciousness of fresh chicken, but that most of us are lazily content with the atrocious cold-storage chickens which are supplied us by the butchers. If you want a fresh chicken, see that it answers the requirements set down. Fish should have red gills, moist scales, clear eyes and a rigid body. Flabby flesh and dull eyes indicate staleness.

After the meat comes from the market do your part to keep it fresh. Put it immediately on ice. Put it in a dish and slip a paper bag over it, to keep out insects and odors. Save all paper bags to cover meat in this way.

Be even more cautious about canned meat than about uncanned. If there is any suggestion that the contents of a can are not in first-class condition, heat a little of it. If the meat is tainted, there will be an offensive odor when it is heated.

FROZEN DESSERTS.

DINNER MENU.
Lentil Soup.
Cold Sliced Lamb.
Potatoes au Gratin.
Creamed Onions.
Lettuce Salad.
Frozen Caramel Custard.
Coffee.

AMONG frozen desserts custards are better in both flavor and nutriment than the cheap ice creams prepared from a poor quality of cream and thickening of cornstarch, flour or gelatin. A frozen custard is exactly like a French ice cream, except that the cream is left out and one or two extra egg yolks are used in its place. Freeze like an ordinary ice cream.

Hot Weather Custards.

Frozen Vanilla Custards.—Frozen custards are prepared from egg yolks, milk, sugar and flavoring. For a plain dessert flavored with vanilla or any simple extract use four yolks, four cupfuls of milk, five tablespoonfuls of sugar and a pinch of salt. Prepare as one would a boiled custard, but do not let it thicken. It should be a velvety puree only, and it should be stirred while cooking to prevent curdling.

Frozen Caramel Custard.—Take a quart of milk, the yolks of six eggs, a cupful and three tablespoonfuls of sugar. Put the milk into a double boiler to become hot. In the meantime melt the three tablespoonfuls of sugar in a quarter of a cupful of water and let it cook to a rich caramel, stirring it constantly to prevent burning. Add gradually two cupfuls of boiling water and stir in the cupful of sugar. Let the sirup boil for fifteen minutes. Mix it with the boiling hot milk and when bubbles reappear add the egg yolks, beating constantly to prevent curdling. Put the custard where it will become perfectly cold and then freeze it as one would ice cream.

A Nut Cream.

Almond Cream Frappe.—A delicious frozen dainty is the following: Take half a gallon of thick cream whipped stiff. Make it sweet. Turn it in the freezer and when nearly frozen put in a coffee cup of grated sweet almonds, also six bitter almonds. Last, the juice and scraped pulp of six large oranges should be added. Then freeze.

Frozen Fruit Pudding.—Take two quarts of milk, six eggs, one-half pint jar of cream, one-half pound of candied cherries, a cupful of sultana raisins, a tablespoonful of gelatin. Heat the milk in a double boiler, then pour over the beaten eggs. Return to the double boiler and cook till it sticks to the spoon, then add the gelatin that has been soaked in a little cold milk and strain when cold. Add the cream whipped stiff. When nearly frozen add the fruit. Turn a few times and pack well.

The Fairy Invites Susan.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

Susan Receives an Invitation to the Feast of Dolls.

EVELYN had put her doll to bed and she and Jack were waiting for daddy to begin his story.

"Let us hope dolly will have pleasant dreams," said daddy, patting his little girl's head. "Let us hope she will have a nice dream of the land of dolls as all good dolls should have."

Daddy went on. "Once there was a little doll who talked in her sleep and told many wonderful things of her dreams.

"This dolly was named Susan, and once she had been very beautiful.

"And Susan belonged to a little girl named Ruthie. Once Ruthie loved Susan very much, but I'm afraid she loved her too hard, for, after awhile, Susan began to look as if she had been in the wars.

"Susan was sobbing herself to sleep one night when the dream fairy suddenly stood before the doll.

"'Jump right into my carriage,' said the fairy. 'You are invited to attend the feast of dolls.' Susan jumped into the carriage, and away they went.

"The dream fairy stopped at the door of one of these houses and Susan peeped in. Two little girls were sitting on the floor with about 200 dolls around.

"'You see,' said the dream fairy, 'the little girls in this country take very good care of their dolls. You might not think it, but some of those dolls are 200 years old and belonged to the little girls' great-grandmothers' great-grandmother. When they were little girls the old ladies were careful of their dolls so that their little great-grandchildren might have more dolls to entertain at the feast of dolls.'

"Susan limped into the house, and the dream fairy, after presenting her to the two dear little girls in silk kimonos and with their puffed hair stuck full of what looked like hatpins, was introduced to all of the 200 dolls, some of whom were dressed like court ladies and gentlemen; some of them like farmers and sailors and soldiers, and some of them just like plain little boy and girl dolls.

"And they all asked Susan her age. If you wish to be polite in Japan, you must ask the person you are talking to how old he or she is, so the dolls, of course, asked Susan. And they looked very much surprised when she told them she was not quite a year old.

"'Go home, you naughty creature!' exclaimed the doll. 'Why, I'm 200 if I'm a day, and you look older than I do. It's wicked to tell fibs!'

"And Susan must have gone, for next morning, Ruthie found her sleeping, as usual, in her little bed."

JOLLY GAME FOR SUMMER.

Here's a Very Tiny Story That Kiddies Just Learning to Read Can Pick Out For Themselves With a Little Effort Some Rainy Day.

Out in the sunshiny garden,
Where loveliest flowers grow,
Two little maidens are playing,
With bright eyes and cheeks all aglow.

Two little light footed maidens
Dancing about through the grass.
Birds in the tree tops are calling.
Butterflies pause as they pass.

Each flower that nods there so gayly,
Haunt of the grumbling bee,
Seems to be coaxingly calling,
"Little maid, please gather me."

BIG SISTER'S WARNING.

Big sister comes to the rescue,
Warningly raises her hand.
"We mustn't touch the nice flowers,
You know it is mother's command."

Mischievous fingers are pausing
When, laden with sweets for his bower,
A bee, big and fat and fil tempered,
Crawls out of the heart of the flower.

Passing Pennies.

Here's a jolly game for summer evenings. Place five chairs in a row and five chairs opposite them, with a small table at each end. Ask ten children to take the seats, with a captain at each head of the line. Then the captain takes five pennies that are given him and lays them on the head table. Every other child must hold out its hands for the penny to be dropped into them, the palms flat and close together. Now the captains sitting beside the head table start sending the pennies to the other end. They pick one cent off the table, drop it in the next child's hand, then the third person picks it out and drops it in the next hand, and so on until the last player is reached and the coin is laid on the foot table. As soon as the fifth cent reaches the foot table it is sent back by the same process. The side getting the five coins "home" first wins. The faster this game is played the more exciting it is.

BOBBY'S BALL.

Lit-tle Bob-by was in the gar-den a-lone.

He felt ver-y lone-ly. He had played with all his toys till he was tired of them. Now he did not know what to do with him-self.

"I wish I had a ball," he said, "a ball that I could throw up in the air and bounce on the ground."

And then a voice be-hind him said:

"Catch!"

And a ball came flying through the air to-ward him. Bob-by held out his hands and just caught it. It was a love-ly big, bounc-ing, red and green ball.

There be-hind him stood dad-dy.

"I thought you might like a ball, Bob-by boy," said dad-dy, "so I brought you one home."

That Settled Teacher.

"Sammy!" exclaimed the teacher wrathfully. "I'm simply disgusted with you. Here the whole class has learned the list of the presidents of the United States—every one except you. We've been studying them for two weeks now, and you don't know half of them. Why, when I was your age I could recite the entire list without missing one."

"Yes'm," said Sammy, in all innocence and seeing a splendid loophole for escape. "But, teacher, there wasn't half so many to remember then."

When Cleaning Rugs.

Avoid hanging rugs on the line, as it weakens the edges. Do not use a wire beater. Place the rug on the grass, beat lightly with a rattan beater on both sides. After this is done sweep on both sides, taking care to sweep with the nap. Wipe off with a cloth, wet in water and turpentine.

It is to the Dainty Trimming and Pretty Frabrics, That the Summer Frock Owes Its Charm.

Summer frocks, except those intended for very formal wear are quite simple in design, but such charmingly pretty materials are used for making them, and the laces and embroideries that trim them are so attractive, that one quite forgets their real simplicity. Surely never before were there so many lovely summer fabrics offered at such reasonable prices. Voiles, and crepes, plain and flowered and figured and dotted and striped, lawns, an dimity, batiste, mull, ratine, eponge linen, and a host of other fabrics equally good-looking.

Best of all they are not high-priced, so that a woman who makes her own clothes, can with a good pattern, make herself wonderfully pretty dresses at little more than two dollars each.

A dress like 7388, in raspberry linen, with the collar that extends into long revers of eyelet embroidery, or embroidered ecru batiste would be pretty enough to wear anywhere in the daytime, particularly with a girdle of wide black velvet ribbon. The closing is at the side-front, and the sleeves that are in the "comfy" elbow length are finished with turn-back cuffs of embroidery. Patterns are obtainable for this design in five sizes, 34 to 42, and of material 36-inches wide 4¾ yards will be needed for the 36-inch size.

One of the new slightly curved yokes is shown on the other figure, which is a dress formed by combining blouse 7636, and skirt 7861. Below the yoke the waist is gathered, and it is intended to hang loose and almost sloppy in fact, this is the edict of the Paris fashion makers. Nothing must look tight or fitted. Our blouses and dresses must look almost as if they were hanging off us. For this reason all new materials are soft and drapy, even the cheap voiles and crepes, in flowered effect would be suitable for making this blouse, while plain voile or crepe could be chosen for the skirt. Isn't the suggestion of draping at the back of the skirt cute? This is formed by a tuck on in front of the skirt that is stitched as far as the side-back, then left loose to trail off into nothingness in the most irresponsible way. This is a new and clever way to achieve drapery, and it is an idea that can be worked out in any kind of fabric. Five pattern sizes, 34 to 42 for the blouse, and 22 to 30 for the skirt. 3¼ yards 36-inch material for the blouse, and 3 yards for the skirt in medium size. 15 cents for each pattern.

Fresh, embroidered collars and cuffs give a distinctive note to a plain little frock of linen, serge or ratine and these are all very simple to embroider. Pattern 14325 includes a collar and cuff set which is illustrated embroidered in blue buttonhole-stitch on printed linen. Cretonne, figured linen or plain linen might be used for making this collar and cuff set and the embroidery might be done in white or a color.

Pattern 14634 includes three dainty designs for collars, suitable for wear with blouses, morning frocks, misses dresses, or on suits, and these may be embroidered in buttonholing and solid work in white or a color. The price of each pattern is fifteen cents.

ANTI-SUFFRAGE

Conducted by Plainfield Branch New Jersey Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage.

I think Miss Chittenden must have thoroughly enjoyed reading the criticisms in her report on the effect of woman suffrage in California. Because, as usual, these criticisms serve to bring out more and more plainly the fact that the woman's vote is unnecessary to secure registration tending to promote the welfare of women and children.

Says Miss Todd: "In the legislation which the women have brought about in California, not one of the bills was a typical feminist bill, but simply humane bills advocated also by intelligent men in States which have not woman suffrage. Twenty States, for instance, have passed a mother's pension bill and only eight of them were States where women voted."

Miss Nenona Marlin, commenting on Miss Chittenden's report, picks out several of her statements for animadversion, and does not see that they are really arguments against the need of equal suffrage.

"Children are not to be separated from the parents because of poverty"—in the Press for last Saturday, I quoted the admirable provisions on this subject made in Ohio and there seems to be a growing sentiment throughout the country that this is the best and most economical way of attacking the problem.

"School teachers are to be pensioned"—Miss Marlin says, "I would respectfully refer all interested to the pension system for teachers which exists in our own 'little old New York.'"

"Old people are to receive an annual income"—Miss Marlin says, "Not all 'old people,' only those who fail through inability, infirmity or misfortune to lay up a sufficient amount to secure them a competence in old age." Much of the good of such a law would depend on its provisions; it might easily be a premium on improvidence or be used so as to destroy responsibility on the part of children.

"Prisoners are to be paid for their work in jail." The whole problem of our penal institutions is being gone into most thoroughly, and the task of helping the prisoners to support their families without making trouble in the labor market, is being looked into. Industrial legislation must, of necessity, be slow, for the conditions are very complex. For instance, a nine-hour labor law for women failed to pass in Wisconsin because, amongst other reasons, it included domestic servants.

"The matter of shoes and dress for school children has been brought up frequently in all States, and I have been implored by parents to explain the necessity for simple, comfortable clothing in the schools. The girl graduates are taking the matter into their own hands."

Don't you see, the critics, in defending California grant us all we ask. Everything that California has done has been accomplished at less cost of nervous strain in the non-suffrage States—some things without even having to legislate about them?

The argument of the usefulness of the women's votes is disproved by the suffragists themselves

The real question now is, have the minority the moral right to take from the majority their political independence and force them into the arena of political combat.

ELIZABETH B. SYKES.

The chief disability of the anti-suffragists is that they are a party supporting a negation. They stand for an ideal of life positive, definite and important. They stand against a lot of ideas that range all the way from radicalism to anarchy, but they seem to stand for nothing but objection to the ballot.

Now, that's too bad! The antis are not giving themselves a fair show. The position which circumstances have placed them in is not just to them. They ought not to be "antis" at all. True, they are a conservative party, and a good part of the stock in trade of any conservative party is opposition to disturbance; but they are not the "end-seat hogs" that so many of the suffragists so delight to represent them to be, and they are not women employed in the disparagement of women, their abilities, their responsibilities, and their part in life.—Life, July 3rd.

WOMEN WARRIORS.

Amazons of Old Appear to Have Been Dames of High Degree.

For a long time it was held that the story of the Amazons, the valiant race of women warriors, so great a favorite with the Greeks and other peoples of antiquity, was a mere poetic myth, but within recent years archaeological researches have indicated that there were indeed women fighters of high rank in those remote days.

A couple of years ago there was unearthed a sepulcher in that part of Italy known as Etruria in which was discovered a war chariot of bronze and iron, wherein was crouched the skeleton of a woman. About this skeleton were the remains of rich robes and ornaments of gold and ivory, such as in the old traditions the Amazons wore in battle. The bronze work and the terra cotta vases fixed the date of the tomb as about 800 B. C.

The first stories of the Amazons assigned them to the northeastern part of Asia Minor, but Etruria was peopled from Asia Minor and had attained a high degree of skill in certain of the arts long before Rome was founded. Such evidence as this tomb affords is, in the opinion of more than one authority, more convincing than the pictures of Amazons on the old vases or such legends as that of Queen Penethesilea, who was said to have led 5,000 women fighters to the aid of Priam during the Trojan war.—Harper's Weekly.

BLACK SEA DEAD LINE.

The Black sea, which in some parts has a depth of more than 6,500 feet, is poisoned by sulphureted hydrogen wherever the water is deeper than 1,200 feet. This accounts for the curious fact that there is no organic life below that depth, excepting perhaps some bacteria of very low order, impregnated with sulphur.

The causes for this phenomenon are explained by the quick outflow of the fresh water through the Bosporus, while salt water coming from the Mediterranean enters through a deeper current into the depths of the Black sea. The waters on the surface are, therefore, controlled absolutely by horizontal currents of considerable force, and vertical currents which might carry the noxious gases from the bottom to the surface and fresh oxygen from the surface to the bottom are hardly ever noticeable.

The water at great depths is so saturated with sulphuric gas by the disintegration of organic matter sinking to the bottom by reason of its weight that no fish or other living being which needs oxygen for its organic system can exist beyond a stated depth.—London Standard.

Made In Glasgow.

It was a long and tedious train journey, says the Glasgow News, and the other two occupants of the compartment had exhausted several other topics and were now "on" about cockfighting. "When I was a lump o' a laddie in Blant're," said one of them, "I had a wee bantam that could bate ony bird ye could pit before him. Weel, this Sunday mornin' he bate twa cocks, yin efter the ither, but he wis that sair torn that to pit him oot o' pain I thrawed his neck and threw him on the midden. Then we took oot anither pair o' birds, and yin o' them crawed his challenge, when up me wee bantam staggered tae his feet, gied a cock-a-leerie-law, and drappit doon deid aff the midden." "Ye're an awfu' man, Wully," said the other man solemnly. "Are ye no' feart ye drap doon deid yersel'?"

Not Sufficiently Explicit.

"I think we met at a summer resort two or three years ago, didn't we?"

"Perhaps we did. Your face looks very familiar to me."

"It ought to. I proposed to you one evening and you accepted me."

"Did I? Do you remember where it was?"

"It was on a hotel veranda, behind a lot of palms and rubber plants."

"Oh, you will have to be more explicit than that. Nearly half of my engagements have taken place with that kind of a stage setting."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Not an Uncommon Experience.

"I don't know whether or not it's because they have a personal grudge against me," said the smiling cynic, "but I know when I ride in full daylight on a street car with which I'm perfectly familiar the conductor calls every cross street loudly and clearly, but when I'm trying to find my way on a dark night in an entirely new neighborhood he's silent as a church on a Monday morning."—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Jumbled Wrong.

Manager—My dear madam, your complaint is a very foolish one. The stage director did not slander you because he gave your role to another actress. Actress—Of course he slandered me. Didn't he take away my character?—Baltimore American.

He Knew.

COMPANY K AT TARGET PRACTICE

Plainfield Citizen Soldiers Start First Day At Sea Girt Camp In Vigorous Manner.

3 MEN ON STATE TEAM

Local Guardsmen Signally Successful —Have Good, Substantial Food, and Cooks Are Doing Splendidly.

(From a Staff Correspondent).

Camp Fielder, Sea Girt, Aug. 4.—When first call was sounded on the bugle soon after daylight this morning in the camp of the Second regiment, N. G. N. J., the forty-five men of Company K, of Plainfield, tumbled out of their blankets prepared for a day of activity. Since arriving Saturday afternoon they had been having a comparatively easy time of it, but this was changed with the opening of today's work. Accompanied by Companies F, I and C., of Elizabeth, the K boys, forming the first battalion of the regiment, went to the rifle range for an all day effort to qualify as many as possible as marksmen. The company in the regiment which turns out the largest number of skilled riflemen receives the regimental trophy for proficiency in rifle practice, and Co. K hopes to "bring home the bacon" before the week is over.

An added incentive to the men of the company to do their best on the range came from the fact that the Plainfield organization has been signally honored in the choosing of the eighteen men who will go to Camp Perry, Ohio, to compete for the National Trophy in the matches to be held there next week. Three of the Plainfielders, Captain Charles A. Petersen, Lieutenant A. R. Phillips and Quartermaster Sergeant J. A. Thompson have been chosen as members of the State team, more than from any other single organization in the State guard. There are sixty-eight separate companies and other organizations with fully 4,000 members, so it can readily be seen why the Plainfield boys are proud of the number picked from Company K. In preparation for the trip to Camp Perry, Lieutenant Phillips and Sergeant Thompson have been detached from active work and will be on the range all the week. It is probable that Captain Petersen will act as team adjutant.

Major William B. Martin, of Elizabeth, and well known in Plainfield, will captain the State team at Camp Perry.

Company K Notes.

After being delayed in Elizabeth about half an hour, Co. K, with Co. M, of Somerville, and Cos. F, I and C, of Elizabeth, arrived at Sea Girt Saturday afternoon at 3.20. Owing to a heavy wind and rain storm which struck the camp Friday, soaking all the tents and canvas of the Fourth Regiment, the Second Regiment boys did not have to erect their tents as those vacated by the Fourth were left up to be dried.

The Plainfield boys straightened out their quarters and were ready with hearty appetites when mess call sounded Saturday night at 6.30 o'clock. At that time Cooks Stephen D. Millwater and Herbert Klein served the boys with their first meal, which consisted of stew, bread and butter, coffee and prunes. The boys all claimed that the meal was A1 and the "best they ever ate."

The bugle calls were unnecessary Sunday morning as the men were all out in the Company street before 5.30 o'clock and the first call was scheduled for 6 a. m. The schedule carried out Sunday morning was: First call, 6 a. m.; reveille, 6.10; assembly, 6.15; fatigue, 6.30; sick call, 6.35; mess, 7.00; inspection of quarters, 9.00; church call, 10.30; mess, 12.30 p. m.

From 12.30 to 5.00 p. m., when first call for parade sounded the citizen soldiers went bathing or visiting. The company assembled for parade at 5.10 p. m. and marched out onto the parade ground at 5.15. At 6.30 the evening mess was served after which most of the Plainfielder's scattered to Manasquan, Spring Lake, Belmar and Asbury Park to visit friends.

The mess prepared for Sunday was: Morning—Fried potatoes, bacon, bread, butter and coffee. Noon—Pork and beans, hamburg steak, bread, butter, coffee and rice pudding. Night—Mutton stew, bread, butter, coffee and Jello.

Some of the commissioned and non-commissioned officers of the company, including the captain, second lieutenant, the quartermaster sergeant and senior corporal, played Bean Brummel yesterday and visited at Asbury Park, Bradley Beach and Belmar. Mrs. Charles Petersen, wife of Captain Petersen, is staying in Ocean Grove during the encampment.

WELL KNOWN COUPLE WEDDED AT ST MARY'S

Miss Helen Lynch Married to Daniel Gray, of Dunellen, Saturday.

Before a host of relatives and friends that filled St. Mary's church Saturday afternoon, Miss Helen Lynch, daughter of Thomas J. Lynch, of East Fifth street, was married to Daniel Gray, of Dunellen, the affair being one of the most elaborate held at that edifice this season. Both the bride and bridegroom are popular among a large circle of acquaintances in this city and Dunellen. Mr. Gray now resides in Dunellen, but has been active in social affairs in Glen Ridge, East Orange and New York, and guests were present from each of these places. Miss Lynch was educated in the local schools and has been active in local social gatherings since her graduation.

The ceremany was performed by Rev. B. M. Bogan, and Miss Mary Smith, the church organist, played the wedding march, which was from Mendelssohn. The couple were attended by Miss Elsie Knowlton, a close friend of the bride, as bridesmaid, and Edward Gray, a brother of the groom, was best man. Miss Lynch was attired in white charmeuse trimmed with Duchess lace and pearls and she wore a bridal hat. The bridesmaid was gowned in white voile over corn colored silk and wore a large picture hat. The bride carried bridal roses and the bridesmaid tea roses.

Following the services at the church a reception was held at the bride's home which was attended by about forty relatives and friends. The home was decorated in blue and white and the dining-room was banked with palms and ferns. The couple received many presents including cut glass, silver ware, linen and money.

KNIGHT'S EXCURSION TO BE BIGGEST EVER

Forty Coaches Engaged For Annual Outing to Asbury Park.

Watchung Council, Knights of Columbus, which has always had the reputation of conducting the largest excursion out of Plainfield to Asbury Park, is planning to make the annual event on Thursday even bigger than ever. Arrangements have been made with the New Jersey Central for forty coaches. The committee will distribute free tickets to 1,800 children, the outing being intended especially for them and every detail has been planned with that end in view. This is the only excursion where a charge of seventy-five cents is made for children's tickets.

Beside the executive committee there will be a sub-committee of about one hundred knights to look after the comfort of the excursionists, and especial attention will be given to elderly people who plan to go to the shore. The train will leave Grant Avenue at 7:45, Plainfield at 8 o'clock and returning will leave Asbury Park at 6:30 o'clock. The committee in charge comprises the following: Arthur A. Cannon, chairman; Charles L. Kling, John J. Carty, Robert McCormack, Garret A. Keating, Michael Caffrey, Timothy J. Meany, Thomas F. Carty, John J. Kenney, Harry J. Pasch, John Kyle, James C. Hurling, Andrew E. Kenney, Patrick Mohan, Harry J. Forristel, Joseph McCarthy, Joseph F. O'Keefe, John A. McNally, Joseph T. Brady, John Geary, Michael T. Moynihan, John T. Dineen, John G. Stillger, George H. Riley and John H. Traynor.

HAROLD VIELE WEDS MISS VERA CUMMING IN NEWARK

Miss Vera H. Cumming, daughter of Mrs. May Cumming, of 71 Oriental street, Newark, and Harold Viele, of this city, were married in the parsonage of the Eighth Avenue Methodist Episcopal church in Newark last Friday night, the ceremony being performed by Rev. Dr. S. F. Bowman, a friend of the bride.

Miss Cumming was attended by Miss Marion Haase, of Wakeman avenue, Newark, and the best man was John Higgins, of Jersey City. Mr. and Mrs. Viele expect to make their permanent home in Rochester, N. Y., but will reside here for some time yet.

KING'S GREETING TO LOCAL SCOUTS

Denmark's Ruler, Through Allen Morgensen, Sends Message to 1st Pres. Troop.

UNUSUAL COMPLIMENT

Local Boy Was Visiting in Denmark and Was Presented to King—Latter Praised Boy Scouts of United States, Especially Local Troup.

Allen Morgenson, son of Olaf E. Morgensen, a civil engineer in New York, who resides at 1213 East Front street, has been the means of bringing unusual honor to Troop 5, Boy Scouts, of the First Presbyterian church, Plainfield, as well as the Boy Scouts of America, the greetings of the King of Denmark being conveyed through him to both.

Mr. Morgensen and his father have been visiting in Denmark, the latter's native country, and during their visit attended the international encampment of the Turkish-Bulgarian and Danish troops at Kalo, Denmark. There were about 1,000 Boy Scouts present. The King learned that there was representatives of America in attendance and expressed a desire to meet them.

Morgensen was escorted to where the King stood and was given a cordial handshake and through him greetings were given to the Boy Scouts of America, and especially to Troop 5, of Plainfield. The young man not only felt proud of the honor of meeting the King, but was especially pleased that he was able to convey the greetings as expressed by the King. The message was received by Head Scout Master Allen E. Beals, of this city, on Saturday, and was announced at the session of the Sunday-school at the First Presbyterian church, yesterday.

WOMEN JUMP WHEN AUTO HITS THEIR CARRIAGE

Mrs. Eli Long, of 74 Grove street, and her house guest, Miss G. Longadreff, saved themselves from probable serious injury this morning, by jumping from a carriage when an automobile owned and driven by Isaac Schwed, the local merchant, crashed into the vehicle. The accident took place shortly after 8 o'clock in Park avenue, between West Front and West Fourth streets. The carriage in which the women were riding was owned by the Campbell livery stables in North Plainfield.

POOR CHILDREN TO ENJOY ANNUAL OUTING

The annual outing of poor children of the city will be held at Boynton Beach, tomorrow, under the auspices of the Charity Organization Society. It is planned to take about 300 children to Boynton Beach in automobiles. Miss Mabelle Phillips, agent for the society, has arranged the details for the outing. A number of Plainfielders have agreed to loan their cars to take the children to and from the beach.

The start will be made from the Babcock building at 2 o'clock in the afternoon and when the children arrive at the beach they will be provided with tickets for all the attractions. Ritz has, as usual, donated ice cream for the youngsters and they will also be given fruit and candy.

RETIRED ARMY OFFICER TELLS OF HIS REFORMATION

Reynolds White, a former captain in the United States regular army, but now a worker in the Salvation Army, held the attention of a crowd at the Salvation Army meeting in Wayside Park, last night, when he briefly recited his autobiography. He said after receiving an honorable discharge from the army, overindulgence in intoxicants soon made him penniless and an outcast from society. He wandered into a Salvation Army meeting and was converted.

The camp-meetings will come to a close tonight following brief services.

WILL BE MARRIED TONIGHT TO AID SALVATION ARMY

To raise money to aid in the work of the Salvation Army, Miss Edna Black and George Nichols, of Brooklyn, at the Army camp-meeting in Wayside Park, Dunellen, will be married tonight at a ceremony to which admission will be charged. Brigadier George F. Casler will perform the ceremony. A wedding feast will follow.

LOCAL SWIMMER ON BEACH DUTY

Charles Hurtt One of the Most Conspicuous Figures at Asbury Park.

HAS RESCUED MANY

Local Heavyweight Is a Finished Long Distance Swimmer and Has No Fear of the Briny Deep—Some of His Feats.

On the life guards' stand at the Casino batning grounds at Asbury Park is daily perched a striking contrast in avoidupois, one brown mountain of flesh that would scare a boarding housekeeper to death, and a little bunch of toughtened, sun burnt muscles. The big fellow is Charles Hurtt, better known as "Fat" Hurtt, of this city, while his companion is Frank Kelley, of Asbury Park. Excursionists who made the trip to the shore with the Trinity Reformed Sunday-school last Thursday were attracted by the mammoth structure sitting on one of the high stoqls watching out for their safety while they were in the briny deep and many who know the big fellow heard some of the thrilling tales he is always ready to relate concerning his experiences in cheating Neptune out of a body or two. Hurtt is popular with the younger set in this city during the winter months and is recognized as a peer among local swimmers.

The big fellow is not giving away his flesh, however, but when he wants to see how much of the superfluous material he loses after a few battles in the surf he goes to the nearest coal office. His friends who saw him last Thursday at the shore confide that just now, while he is in training, as it were, he weighs a trifle less than 300 pounds. Kelley, his ever present side partner, is a genial fellow and whenever he wants to get weighed he goes to the postoffice and jumps on the scales. He isn't quite in the featherweight class, however, for the bunch of tigthened muscles makes the dial hover around the 150 pound mark.

Doubtful comments by the uninitiated as to the ability of the pair to save a drowning person are frequently heard along the sands. Some persons can't see why the big fellow from the Queen City wouldn't go to the bottom like Mrs. Newlywed's biscuits and why the little fellow wouldn't be toyed with by the waves like half of a straw hat.

Hurtt is somewhat of a long distance amphibian, as many of his friends in this city well know, and as a swimmer he has few equals when it comes to endurance. On two occasions he swam sixteen miles without a rest, from the Battery to Coney Island, and was one of the competitors in a race over this course in 1907, finishing second. The following year he finished third in a similar race and in 1909 he was disqualified on the grounds of professionalism because of his summer occupation, he having secured a position as life saver at Asbury Park in that year and has since been one of the permanent fixtures on the popular New Jersey beach, having made many thrilling rescues during the last three years, which have earned him country wide praise.

When asked what he would do if a powerful drowning man got in front of him and grabbed him around the neck. Kelley, the Plainfielder's sire part, said:

"Knock the wind out of him."

Hurtt, in reply to the same question, raised his fist and laughed:

"I should worry."

MISS MARY O'KEEFE THE BRIDE OF JACOB HANCE

Miss Mary O'Keefe, daughter of Mrs. Bridget O'Keefe, and Jacob Hance, both of South Plainfield, were married at the Sacred Heart R. C. church, that place, yesterday morning. Rev. J. F. Baldwin officiated. The couple was attended by Miss Isabel DeLaney and William Hance as bridesmaid and best man.

After the ceremony the couple left on the Buffalo express for Waverly, N. Y., where the bridegroom will take a new position for the Lehigh Valley Railroad Company. He was formerly an operator at South Plainfield.

A. BEALS AT FRESH AIR HOME.

A delightful service was held yesterday afternoon at the Netherwood Fresh Air Home, when Allen E. Beals, the leader of the Boy Scout movement in this city, addressed the mothers and children. Hymns by the children's choir formed the musical feature of the service. A great number of guests from this city were in attendance at the service. The Y. P. S. C. E. of Hope chapel and the Epworth League of the First Methodist church will conduct the camp services on Tuesday and Friday nights respectively.

MAYOR CLARK TO SEEK RE-ELECTION

MAY BE NO OPPOSITION

Several Borough Offices Will Be Sought By New Aspirants This Fall—Frank Rowley Out For Assessor, W. Smalley Jr., For Council

A well founded rumor was circulated in the borough this morning to the effect that the present mayor would run without opposition on the Republican ticket for re-nomination in the fall, notwithstanding his evasiveness on the subject. When asked by a Daily Press reporter last Saturday if he would again be a candidate, he replied: "You will have to ask the birds for that information." The birds referred to are evidently his constituents in the borough and they are willing to say positively that Mayor Robert Clark, Jr., will again be the choice of the people for the mayoralty next fall. While he has not definitely stated that he will run it is expected that his boom will be launched within the next few days and his supporters are contemplating little or no opposition.

The terms of Councilman Alexander Milne and L. B. Woolston expire this year and while the latter will again be a candidate for the office, Mr. Woolston has stated that he would not again aspire to the councilmanic job. William L. Smalley, Jr., will run for Mr. Woolston's chair in the council, having been induced to aspire to the political honor after Mr. Woolston had formally announced that he would decline any further offer.

George F. Brown, who has served the borough in the capacity of collector and treasurer for a number of terms, will again be in line for election and as yet no opposing candidate has made his name heard. Rumor has it that Frank Rowley, the present clerk of the North Plainfield Board of Education, will seek the nomination for assessor. Dr. Justus H. Cooley now holds that position and has served for a number of years.

LOYAL ORDER OF MOOSE ENJOY BAKE AND SPORTS

Under the auspices of Plainfield Lodge, No. 310, Loyal Order of Moose, a clambake was held at Picton, yesterday. There were about 150 members and friends present. A. J. Rodier, of this city, prepared the bake, which was served at 1 o'clock. The afternoon was devoted entirely to athletic events, including quoits, races and a baseball game.

MISS WINDHAM SUCCUMBS AFTER BRIEF ILLNESS

Miss Louise D. Windham, aged 35 years, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. August Windham, died this morning at her home, 18 Greenbrook road, following an illness of two weeks with complications. She was born in New York and had lived in the borough about fifteen years. She was an active member of Warren chapel. She leaves three brothers, August Windham, of Brooklyn; Charles Windham, of Washington, and Edward Windham, of the borough; also two sisters, Mrs. Jesse Dayton and Miss Emma Windham. The funeral will be held at the late home Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Rev. Frederic L. Greene will officiate.

AT STATE Y. M. H. A. GATHERING.

Samuel Rothberg and Jacob Abrams, of this city, attended the session of the State executive committee of the Y. M. H. A. at Atlantic City, yesterday. Plans were made for the annual State convention to be held at New Brunswick next month.

IT'S A GIRL.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Fisk, of Garden City, L. I., are parents of a girl, born to them yesterday. Mr. Fisk is a son of former Mayor and Mrs. Charles J. Fisk, of this city, and prior to his marriage lived in Plainfield.

CIRCUS JOYS FOR BOYS OF ALL AGES

All Roads Will Lead to Sautelle Shows This Afternoon and Tonight.

Circus day! Right in mid-summer too, when the small boys do not have to play hookey, and the big boys are not half so busy with their work as they would be in any other month but August. Sig. Sautelle's Nine Big

Shows, as they are officially known, are here for one big, grand, glittering, glorious and gorgeous day, as the press agent puts it, and according to all reports they have the biggest show that has been in Plainfield for some time.

The show arrived in town yesterday at noon, and the working men soon had finished putting the tents up on the lot at Grant avenue and West Front street. This morning there was a street parade through the principal streets of the city, and this afternoon the show is being given its first performance, which will be repeated tonight.

The circus is a combination of the Sautelle, Lowande and Rollins shows. Sig. Sautelle is one of the oldest showmen in the business today, and he personally takes charge of affairs at the lot, selling tickets and superintending everything in general. He is an indefatigable worker, and he hates idleness so much that last winter, when getting the snow ready for the road, he personally painted all of the wagons used for display in the parade.

Probably the strongest feature of the show is the riding. The Lowande troup, bar none, are the finest ridders in the country today, and that is not press agent talk either. It is a solemn fact, admitted by showmen, great and small. Oscar Lowande is the peer of all male riders in the country, and his string of Arabian horses are well worth seeing. George W. Rollins has a great wild animal exhibition, and there is a half hour of wild west that is said to be splendidly done. The other circus features are all there, too.

'LEW' THOMAS RETURNS FROM PHILIPPINES

Visits Old Acquaintances Here After An Absence of Twelve Years.

Lewis Thomas, formerly of Dunellen, who has been in the Philippines for the past twelve years, and who returned to New York in July, was in Plainfield today calling on old acquaintances. Mr. Thomas left here on June 15, 1901, in company with about six hundred school teachers en route for the Philippines, it being his intention to see that part of the country.

These teachers were the first to be sent to the islands after the United States got control and their departure was one of unusual interest. Mr. Thomas immediately took a position in the schools, having supervision of a certain district. A few years later he gave up that work and engaged in other lines. Being a newspaperman he found little difficulty in securing work with newspapers in the islands. During his absence Mr. Thomas has enjoyed excellent health and has prospered. He is a graduate of Princeton, and after leaving college was engaged in newspaper work in this city before going to the Philippines. He is now visiting his mother in Brooklyn. A little later he plans to write a book from the material gathered during his long absence, and he may go on the lecture platform.

DISPLAY OF FIREWORKS.

The Italians of this city have engaged Parker Field for Friday night Aug. 15, when they will hold their annual fireworks exhibit in connection with the Mt. Carmel celebration. An Italian band has been engaged for the occasion and the greatest pyrotechnic display ever shown in this city is promised.

BUSINESS COLLEGE VACATION.

The regular two weeks' vacation at the Plainfield Business College and School of English, begins today and school will reopen Monday, August 18.

A NOVELTY IN FIRE FIGHTING

IRON BURNED READILY

Flames have been known to consume high buildings and reduce them to a few smouldering embers, to transform a whole town into a barren waste, or even to reduce mammoth ice plants containing thousands of tons of seemingly unburnable material into a heap of debris; but seldom, if ever, have fire-fighters been called upon to assist in extinguishing a fire that was burning in a pile of iron and steel shavings. Chief Doane and his men answered a call to put out a fire in the Rushmore Dynamo Works on South avenue, Saturday night, and when they arrived on the scene which illuminated the sky with a ruddy glow, they were confronted with a sight that the veteran chief describes as little short of miraculous. A huge heap of iron that had been ground into shavings was burning with a glow and blaze that resembled a burning load of hay or pile of dried embers.

The miniature pieces of iron were red hot and sizzled with deafening sound as the two streams of water were played upon them. After nearly two hours of battling with the extraordinary fire, during which time the heap of shavings was raked over and soaked until all evidences of steam were entirely smothered, the chief ordered his men back to the department, firmly convinced that the last spark had been smothered.

Fire was discovered in the iron heap early in the evening by Mr. Rushmore and several of his employes who were in the building at the time, which had presumably been started by the heat issuing from a rubbish fire near the shavings which formed a combustion with the iron particles. With the aid of a small hose in the plant the men extinguished this fire, or at least thought they did, and Mr. Rushmore called Chief Doane on the telephone to tell him about the mystifying incident. The fire chief was interested in the manufacturer's story and expressed a wish that he might have been on hand to witness the curious sight.

Shortly after this conversation had taken place, however, the chief was given his opportunity for Mr. Rushmore called him up once more, this time to ask for aid in extinguishing a second fire in the same place. Tons of water were played on the blaze that had apparently rekindled itself and it was thought to be entirely out when the firemen left Saturday night.

Shortly after noon yesterday Chief Doane was again called to the South avenue plant where the watchman had discovered a third blaze in the same heap of iron. Two streams of water were played on the burning ore for over two hours and after the mass of red hot material was once more soaked and raked over the men were ordered back to the headquarters, Chief Doane again being satisfied that all evidences of fire had been wiped out.

In speaking of the novel piece of fire fighting yesterday afternoon, Chief Doane said:

"I have been engaged in the fire-fighting business for over forty-eight years and in all that time, never has an incident come to my attention that could rival this one. The iron shavings burned with a ruddy glow and intense heat and when we arrived at the fire Saturday night the heavens were lighted up by the reflection coming from the blaze in the rear of the Rushmore plant. When we left Saturday night we had gutted the heap with tons of water and had pulled the pile apart and got at the heart of the blaze."

When asked if there was anything in the pile besides iron and steel which would really burn if set on fire by a spark or other means of ignition the chief replied:

"Not a particle of anything but steel and iron shavings, such as are stored in several other factories in the city, and if really combustible as this fire would substantiate, the other factories are in danger of experiencing a like occurrence at any time."

When asked if he had finally extinguished the fire the chief refused to aver any definite opinion, saying that he thought he had it out the first time as Mr. Rushmore also thought when he played the company's hose on the original blaze, but apparently there was still something burnable left.

Mr. Rushmore, who is an expert in the handling of steel and iron, was equally as mystified over the incident and said that he intended to make a thorough investigation into

GOMEZ PLANS BIG FIGHT ON CASTRO

Venezuelan President Is at Head of Recruits.

EXPECT BITTER STRUGGLE

Castro, Who Has Large Following, Issues Proclamation Calling Gomez "Crazy and Ferocious, With Mark of Traitor on His Forehead."

Willemstad, Aug. 4.—Juan Vicente Gomez, president of Venezuela, at the head of a big army embarked for the state of Falcon, where General Cipriano Castro is awaiting him with his revolutionary followers.

Castro has a large following and has issued a proclamation calling Gomez crazy and ferocious, with the eternal mark of traitor on his forehead.

The government is in the dark as regards the situation in the state of Falcon, as telegraphic communication between Coro and Caracas has been interrupted since the rebellion.

However, the Venezuela capital has received alarming reports from Falcon concerning the activities of Castro, government officials who refused to accept his leadership having been either imprisoned or killed.

Look for Bitter Struggle.

That the struggle between the two armies is bound to be a furious one is regarded as certain by the representatives of other countries here. They realize the intense hatred Gomez and Castro bear each other and have known for some time that Castro had made careful preparations to wrest the government from Gomez. Castro has the following proclamation:

"War has become inevitable. I declare myself in the field against Juan Vicente Gomez, whose treason and usurpation of power since 1908 have become a real catastrophe calling me from private life.

"Crime extends its horrible wings over the whole republic of Venezuela.

Calls Gomez Traitor.

"The crazy and ferocious Gomez bears on his forehead the eternal mark of a traitor. His brutal look and his perfidious smile encourage his few followers to finish the ruin of the fatherland.

"Heroic Venezuela acclaims me again to revindicate her rights.

"I am a slave to honor and duty, and I accept the honor.

"My program in regard to domestic affairs is to save my country from threatening anarchy, and my foreign policy is to join hands with civilization and progress on the basis of equity and justice.

"Everybody in Venezuela should take arms and contribute to the salvation of the fatherland."

Gomez is aboard the warship Maresa Sucre, formerly the Isla de Cuba, which was purchased from the United States last year. Troops have been mobilized at Caracas to leave for the coast ports to be transported by warships to the state of Falcon.

DISTRICT ATTORNEY SLAIN.

Two Deputies Also Die and Six Hurt In California Hop Riot.

Sacramento, Cal., Aug. 4.—District Attorney Manwell and two deputy sheriffs of Yuba county were shot and killed and six others were wounded, including two women, when a sheriff's posse endeavored to quell a hop pickers' riot at Durst's hop field in Wheatland.

The governor has been asked to call out the militia.

Governor Johnson ordered five companies of militia held in readiness to move to Wheatland. A special train was made up to carry them to the scene.

JOHN D. "STILL A BOY."

Oil King Exchanges Congratulations With Man 105 Years Old.

Cleveland, O., Aug. 4.—John D. Rockefeller, seventy-three years old, and Ebenezer Roberts, 105 years old, congratulated each other on their mutual excellent health at the Euclid Avenue Baptist church yesterday.

"I was once a boy, but I am an old man now," said Mr. Roberts. Mr. Rockefeller laughed and said:

"Well, I once was a boy, and I am still a boy."

Mr. Roberts declared he was feeling fine and good for another twenty-five years.

Heavy Rains Help Texas Cotton.

Austin, Tex., Aug. 4.—Heavy rains fell here, covering practically the entire cotton growing region of the state. The drought was beginning to injure cotton seriously. The rains will add enormously to the yield.

SOCIETY MAN KILLED AS TRAIN HITS AUTO

S. O. Pell and Chauffeur Dead; Laimbeers Dying.

New York, Aug. 4.—S. Osgood Pell, realty broker and society leader, was killed, as was a chauffeur whose name has not been learned, and Mr. and Mrs. William Laimbeer of the Hempstead colony were mortally injured when the limousine automobile in which they were was hit by a Long Beach express.

The accident occurred at the first crossing west of Long Beach, between that resort and Lynbrook. The train was crowded with persons who had been spending the day at the resort.

Mr. and Mrs. Laimbeer and Mr. Pell and, it is said, another man were in the limousine, bound, it is believed, for Hempstead, where the Laimbeers have a country home.

The train had just crossed the trestle and left Wreck Lead with no stop ahead of it to Lynbrook, where it slows down to take a switch. It was one of the electric trains that make a speed of sixty miles an hour at times, running between the Pennsylvania station in this city and Long Beach.

The only eye witness to the crash found was William Watson of Long Beach. He says the express sounded no whistle, and no bell was rung at the unprotected crossing. The persons in the car never saw nor knew their danger.

The electric motor, the heaviest of the kind made, with the full force of the train behind it, struck the limousine squarely in the center. The chauffeur was hurled forty feet to one side of the road.

POLICE JOY RIDE FATAL.

Chauffeur Killed and Commissioner and Three Others Hurt.

Waterbury, Conn., Aug. 4.—Robert Kiersted, police chauffeur, was instantly killed by the overturning of a big touring car attached to the police department, and four others were badly hurt, as follows:

William A. Johnson, police commissioner, ribs broken and internal injuries; Henry O'Connor, registrar of voters, ribs broken and internal injuries; Christopher Dunphy, saloon-keeper, cut and bruised; Alphonse Valone, boxing instructor, cut and bruised.

Doctors say that Johnson's case is not serious and that O'Connor may not survive.

STEAL ENVOY WILSON'S PURSE

Pickpockets Jostle Him at Brooklyn Bridge and Get $100.

New York, Aug. 4.—Henry Lane Wilson, ambassador to Mexico, lost a pocketbook containing something more than $100 through the work of pickpockets at the Manhattan terminal of the Brooklyn bridge.

The ambassador had driven down as far as the bridge with some friends who were bound for Brooklyn and went into the bridge terminal with them. There he got into the usual afternoon bridge jam and after being jostled a little more vigorously than seemed necessary felt for his wallet, which had been in his hip pocket. The wallet was gone.

A report was printed that Ambassador Wilson had lost some valuable state documents along with the wallet. This he denied emphatically.

5 NEW YORK GIRLS DROWNED

Caught by Current In Bathing Near Sligo, Ireland.

London, Aug. 4.—Five girls who returned recently to Ireland from New York to visit relatives were drowned at Strandhall, near Sligo, Ireland. They were Lizzie Ford, Margaret Fraine, Lizzie Murtagh, Mary Ann Murtagh and Lizzie McNulty.

The girls were bathing when Lizzie Ford, who was a good swimmer, dared the others to go further out into the stream. A strong current was running, and all were carried away and drowned despite efforts made by a policeman who jumped into the water to rescue them.

BRYAN AGAIN PUTS OFF TRIP

Secretary Says He May Resume Lecture Tour Today.

Washington, Aug. 4.—Secretary of State Bryan again postponed starting on his Chautauqua trip, which was interrupted ten days ago by the necessity of his presence in Washington.

He had intended to leave before the end of the week to resume his lectures, then he planned to go Saturday night, but announced that he would not leave before last night. Yesterday afternoon he said he might start today.

It is believed the postponements have been at the wish of the president.

Lightning Sets Houses on Fire.

KILLS GIRL, THEN SHOOTS HIMSELF

Bodies Side by Side In Suicide Pact.

WIFE THREATENED PAIR.

Secret of Double Tragedy Is Revealed by Note In Which Despondent Couple Asked That They Not Be Separated Even In Death.

New York, Aug. 4.—In a suicide pact the bullet riddled bodies of Harry G. Elliott and Ellen Sibley were found side by side on an elevation in Macomb's Dam park known as the "Lovers' Leap." Fear of separation through the intervention of Elliott's wife, who threatened when she found them together to have them arrested, is attributed by the police as the motive underlying the crime. A letter was found near the bodies which read: "We have sinned and wish to die and be buried together."

That Elliott shot and killed the young woman and then ended his own life is indicated by the position in which the bodies were found. She was stretched out on the ground with her corsets under her head as a pillow, her arms folded and her eyes closed. His body was close beside hers, with a revolver lying near his outstretched hand. He had apparently folded her arms and closed her eyes after killing her and then fired the shot that ended his own life. The bullet took an upward course and imbedded itself in the brain. The girl had been shot in the heart and the right temple.

Contained in the letter was an implication that they feared they would be parted and that it would be better to be together in death than separated in life. The letter, which bore yesterday's date and was signed by the two, reads as follows:

To Whom It May Concern—This is to certify that we two, both, have agreed to die together. We have sinned, but we both love each other, and sooner than part we die together. Our wish is that our bodies will not be parted in death.

ELLEN SIBLEY.
HARRY G. ELLIOTT.

Threatened by Wife.

Investigation by the police disclosed that the couple had been in fear since Saturday afternoon, when a woman who said she was Mrs. Elliott found them living in a house in West One Hundred and Forty-sixth street and threatened to have them arrested. Mrs. O'Dea, with whom they had been living as Mr. and Mrs. Elliott, at 201, ordered them out. Elliott put a revolver in his pocket just before he left. The girl, who was in tears, wrote a note. The police believe it was to a relative and not the one found near the bodies.

A card bearing the name of Elliott and the address 218 West One Hundred and Forty-eighth street enabled the police to clear up the mystery surrounding the death pact. Albert Lewis, a resident at that address, said that he met Elliott for the first time four weeks ago. Elliott, he said, was an Englishman, cultured, well educated and had been twelve years in the English army. He met Elliott in a social way. Elliott, he said, introduced the girl as Mrs. Elliott. He said they had come on here from Chicago.

ENDS LIFE ON VACATION.

About to Take Train to Meet Wife and Children.

New York, Aug. 4.—On the eve of taking a midnight train to New England to join his wife and family on their summer vacation, William L. Kilborn, for many years holding a responsible position with the New York Life Insurance company, committed suicide at his home, 91 Winthrop street, Flatbush. His body was found lying in bed with a gas tube clenched in his fist.

Mr. Kilborn was fifty years old. He and his wife and family had lived in the Flatbush home for many years and he was a prominent member in the Lenox Road Baptist church. Mrs. Kilborn went to Lakeport, N. H., two weeks ago with her two daughters and her son for a vacation. Mr. Kilborn was to have gone there. He had purchased railroad and sleeper tickets and had completed preparations for this trip.

MISS WILSON'S WEDDING.

White House Being Prepared For Ceremony In November.

Washington, Aug. 4.—The White House is by no means the quiet and comfortable place these days that it appears, as a small army of paperhangers, painters, and carpenters are busily at work remodeling the interior in preparation for the wedding of Miss Jessie Wilson and Francis B. Sayre, which is to take place the last week in November.

It is not expected that the Wilson family will return from Cornish, N. H., the summer capital, much before that time.

New $40,000,000 Merger.

Steubenville, O., Aug. 4.—The merger of the Labelle Iron company and the Wheeling Steel and Iron company and the Whitaker-Glassner company, involving approximately $40,000,000 has been completed. The principal plants are here and at Martin's Ferry.

SLIP SHOD LEGISLATION.

Another evidence of the haste and inefficiency of the New Jersey Legislature is shown in the latest muddle over the Union county freeholder situation. As is known to all, it was through a defect in the law that the action of the people of the county in adopting the small board was nullified, after two elections on the subject had been held, one to adopt it, and the other to elect commissioners.

In order to correct the legal defects which had upset the will of the people of the county, Governor Fielder submitted the question to the special legislative session held in June, and that body passed an act providing for new elections on the question. Petitions properly signed were presented to County Clerk Calvert, but that official upon examining the law failed to find any provision for calling an election to decide this much discussed question. He explained the predicament to Governor Fielder for whom the attorney general decided that Mr. Carvert was right in his contention that the Legislature had failed to make provision for calling the special election.

It is but a repetition of an old, old story. Time and time again acts have been rushed through the Legislature, without any one troubling to learn whether or not they fully covered the ground intended to be covered. The courts have often been compelled to nullify laws which were much needed and would have fulfilled the wishes of the people of the State, simply because of the carelessness and inefficiency of the men who are elected with the expectation that they will give time and care to the work for which they are chosen.

The present Legislature is no worse than many of its predecessors. Until some plan is worked out to provide legal talent to carefully scrutinize and examine all legislation presented, the conditions cannot be improved. The attorney general has more than enough to do now, and his office cannot be criticised for slip shod legislation of this kind.

GIVE ALL FREE SPEECH.

Probably nothing has ever happened in this State to so thoroughly discredit Jersey justice as the proceedings of the police court of the city of Paterson during the strike just ended in that city. The judge of that court has seemingly disregarded all semblance of respect for the constitutional rights of citizens to assemble and discuss their grievances.

Wild talk does not constitute riot nor does criticism of police or public officials or employes of labor constitute a public disturbance. If there be one thing above another which should be fee and open it is free speech, however severe it may be in its denunciation of what the speaker honestly believes to be wrong. The harm done by this police justice lies in the fact that outside of the State, and possibly within it, the public do not distinguish between this ignorant, prejudiced or partial judge and our other courts.

It is a higher crime against free speech to send Quinlan to jail for one year for denouncing a policeman as "Bummy Ryan," than any crime he has committed. Such action only tends to bring the administration of justice into utter disrepect, and to make it all the more difficult to sustain just judicial conduct.

Company K, Plainfield's representative in the Second Regiment of the State National Guard, is at Sea Girt for a week's encampment. For several years the Government has taken the citizen soldiery under its care and given the members practical work in the school of the soldier. At Sea Girt there is too much show for the men to accomplish any real good, and it is a pity that the grounds at that place were not abandoned long ago, except for the State rifle range, the best in the United States with one possible exception. National Guardsmen cannot learn much of real value while working under "pink tea" conditions, surrounded by big groups of summer girls from nearby resorts. The soldier boys have a good time, but they do not gain a whole lot of practical good from such an encampment.

The high cost of living does not trouble F. J. Cross, a London food reformer, if we can believe the newspaper stories about him. Forty-two cents a week feeds him, and here is what he eats: Three loaves of bread, one pound of meal, pound of rice, five ounces oleomargarine, two ounces lard, half pound potatoes, half pound sugar, cents-and-half's worth tea, pepper and salt.

AXE AND OPEN RAZOR THE TOOLS THIS MAN USED

Charged with threatening Miss Mary Peligrim, of Cottage place, with an axe, Frank Saundy, of 760 North avenue, when arrested yesterday afternoon, was found to have a razor with open blade on his person, by Detective Sergeant Flynn, who searched the prisoner.

Saundy was arrested by Flynn, after a telephone message had been sent to headquarters saying that a fight was taking place in Cottage place. Flynn found Miss Peligrim hiding under a bed. She said Saundy had attempted to strike her with an ax. Saundy will be arraigned late this afternoon before Mayor Percy H. Stewart.

J. O. STEVENS MAY BE THE CHAMPION COMMUTER

In connection with the offer of a New York newspaper to give the oldest comuter traveling into New York a free ticket for six months, it has been suggested that the name of J. O. Stevens, of Clinton avenue, who has been going into the city over the Jersey Central for the past forty-two years, be sent in. Previous to Mr. Stevens' coming to this city, he was a commuter on the N. Y., N. H. and H. Railroad for a period covering eleven years.

Making an allowance for a two weeks' vacation each year, Mr. Stevens has covered approximately 604,800 miles between this city and New York during his residence in Plainfield.

PERSONAL.

Mrs. John Manley, of East Ninth street, is visiting her sister who is seriously ill in Albany, N. Y.

Mrs. A. E. Force, of West Front street, is stopping at Clinton Villa, Asbury Park.

E. J. Skimmer, of Elmwood place, is spending his vacation at Ocean Grove. He is registered at the Howard House.

Mr. and Mrs. Chester Gaskill, of Grant avenue, have been entertaining out of town friends.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Frank French, of Washington avenue, the borough, entertained Rev. Dr. E. P. Johnson, of New Brunswick, yesterday. The latter preached at Trinity Reformed church in the morning.

Rev. Abram Duryea, of the Bergen Reformed church, Jersey City, assistant to Rev. Dr. Cornelius Brett, will be the regular preacher at Trinity Reformed church, next Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Rowley and children and Mr. and Mrs. Milton Barkalew, of the borough, are sojourning along the Jersey shore.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank C. Krewson, of Summit avenue, are spending the month of August at Califon.

Mr. and Mrs. George E. Cowling, of this city, left Saturday for Ocean Grove, where they have rented a cottage for the month of August.

Mrs. William Emhart, of Philadelphia, is visiting Mrs. Sadie Chandler, of Codington avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Clark Price, of Sandford avenue, who have been spending some time at Lake George, will leave soon for their former home in Dayton, Ohio, where they will remain for an indefinite time.

Mr. and Mrs. Max Tepper, of 806 West Front street, will remove this week to West Seventh street.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

During the absence of the regular quartet at Trinity Reformed church, the Christian Endeavor Society's double quartet is taking part in the Sunday services. The choir will serve until September 1.

The regular communion service will be held at the Netherwood Reformed church, Sunday, August 17, which will be the last service for Rev. Royal A. Stout. September 1 he will take up the work of his new charge in Philadelphia.

The Christian Endeavor Society of the Netherwood Reformed church will meet tomorrow night at the home of Miss Ida Apgar, of 305 Johnston avenue.

The mid-week prayer meeting will be held at the Netherwood Reformed church, Wednesday night. The subject will be "The Father's Love."

The Dutch Arms of the Netherwood Reformed church will meet Friday night at the home of Horace J. Martin, Sr., East Second street and Leland avenue.

FLATLEY CAN RUN.

The fleetness of foot possessed by Patrolman Martin Flatley, stood him in good stead Saturday night when he had a chase of several hundred yards for Clarence Johnson, who escaped after being arrested for the North Plainfield police department on a charge of assault preferred against him by Michael Cronin, of Somerset street. Johnson was being led to a call box at Park avenue and East Front street, when, with a sudden wrench, he tore loose from his captor. He ran eastward along East Front street with Flatley in pursuit. The latter caught his man at Watchung avenue.

The thirty-first annual convention of the supreme council of the Knights of Columbus will open at Boston today.

J. J. Carroll, of West Sixth street, who represented Plainfield Lodge, No. 310, L. O. O. M., at the supreme lodge convention at Cincinnati, has returned home.

Martha Washington Council, No. 23, D. of A., will celebrate its seventeenth aniversary tomorrow night.

CO. K AT TARGET PRACTICE

full preparing meals for the company, but they are doing it well.

The usual tricks are being played on the new men in the company. Private John Dress was sent all over the camp Sunday morning trying to get a hundred yards of skirmish line for the first sergeant. He had been ordered to report to several officers and had returned to Company K street before he became aware of the fact that he was being "strung."

Private Bedell Wills, another "rookie," was sent out by the first sergeant to wind up the "wind clocks." After going to all three and examining each for the mechanism to run them and not finding the spring cranks, he reported to Col. Libby to inquire where he could obtain them. Col. Libby ordered him to report back to his first sergeant and tell him the clocks were out of running order. This ends the chances of catching other "rookies."

Lieutenant J. B. Conkling, Corporal H. S. Perrine and Private Charles Post, who were unable to get away with the main body of the company, left Plainfield Saturday night at 7.28 and arrived in camp about 12.45 Sunday morning.

Although all the corporals in the company are "rookies," they are handling their men as though they had had several years experience.

Lieutenant Phillips with the aid of First Sergeant George L. Apgar and Quartermaster Sergeant James A. Thompson, selected the men who will shoot on the Company K team this year in the match for the John Roger Williams Trophy. The Company K team won this trophy last year.

Battalion Adjutant and First Lieutenant "Bert" Littell, of Plainfield, mounted guard yesterday morning.

First Sergeant George L. Apgar was the ranking non-commissioned officer in the regiment yesterday morning, and was in command when the men marched to church at the Governor's cottage. All of the commissioned officers went to services with the Colonel. Practically all of the forty-five men in the company attended the service.

Company K has three officers and forty-five men in camp out of a total present enlistment of fifty, or ninety percent of those on the roll. It is about the best showing in the regiment.

Merton Glover, of Company K, was detailed as Governor Fielder's orderly yesterday—quite an honor for a new man.

OUR ANNUAL SALE OF THE FAR-FAMED

A. P. C. WASH FABRICS AT 5c

THIS IS THE EVENT THOUSANDS HAVE WAITED FOR

WE'RE POURING OUT A VERTIABLE NIAGARA OF THESE GOODS
COLORS AS IMMOVABLE AS THE PYRAMIDS
A. P. C. FABRICS CAN BE WASHED OVER AND OVER AGAIN

This annual record event has become a classic in merchandise events. It is at once the wonder and the envy of would-be competitors. Imitations of this sale have in the past fallen flat. They will be more or less ignored by the people now.

Almost everyone knows that this sale of ours dwarfs all others into insignificance. In the few years we have been engineering these sales we've sold over a hundred thousand dollars' worth of the A. P. C. Fabrics. There is no parallel for this achievement in America. No Newark store has cast even a shadow upon it.

THE BASIS OF THIS YEAR'S SALE IS UPWARD OF 90,000 YARDS OF THE HIGHEST GRADE A. P. C. UNFADABLE WASH FABRICS

The worth of these goods has been universally recognized. The thousands of people who have bought them here and made them into pretty house and outing dresses and into children's frocks have given them the severest tests and have found them serviceable in the highest degree and absolutely fast in color.

The new and beautiful designs, most of which are exclusive with us, that have been brought out this year, will fascinate and delight all who come. The variety of designs and colorings is very wide indeed. Some make up nicely into Summer dresses, others are particularly adapted to morning dresses, others especially nice for waists and blouses, others are likable for children's school frocks, so that every need can be satisfied in this wonderful collection of A. P. C. Wash Fabrics.

THE PRICE this year will be lower than ever before, so that we will break the record in more ways than one.

An ample sales force will be here to serve you and we will make speedy deliveries of the goods.

OUR MID-SUMMER SALE OF

RICH AUTUMN SILKS

AT MUCH LESS THAN OCTOBER PRICES

If you want to put the dressmaker to work early and have your silk dresses ready for the Fall when it comes, you now have the opportunity to do so and a good reason for doing it. Not only do you have the advantage of the early services of your dressmaker, but a price advantage that means undoubted savings to all who participate in this week's selling.

It should be remembered that the silks we offer are of the most dependable sort—the black rich and perfect, the colors, that will be in greatest demand when the Fall season opens.

It is well known that our silks, the standard in quality and the best in their class, are always fairly priced. It is upon these facts that we have built such a splendid silk business. So when we say that these August prices are lower than those that will prevail in October we give you assurance of savings so certain that any woman will see the advantage of buying now.

ASBURY BEAUTY TO BE PRINCESS

Girl of 16 Will Take Cinderella's Part In Celebration.

IN CARNIVALS FOR YEARS.

Miss Virginia Hope Kelsey, Daughter of Hotel Proprietor, Has Been Identified With Sixteen Asbury Park Baby Parades—Loraine Hazolrigg Is Picked as Member of Queen's Court.

Asbury Park, N. J., Aug. 4.—Miss Virginia Hope Kelsey's appointment to be the Princess Cinderella of the Asbury Park baby parade pageant was announced by the queen's committee of the Carnival association. She is only sixteen years old, notwitstanding the fact that she has been identified with sixteen Asbury Park baby parades.

She won her first prize in the show when she was two years old and she has taken a trophy every season since. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Kelsey, owners of the Plaza hotel of this city, and is one of the prettiest girls who have been connected with these annual entertainments. She is a striking brunette with a beautifully clear skin and large black eyes and probably has as large an acquaintance as any young girl in the resort.

Another appointment as maid to the queen's court this week was that of Miss Loraine Hazolrigg of Asbury Park.

The Asbury Park carnival begins next Friday night with a so called "Night In Venice," a boat carnival with music on Deal lake. The queen's coronation will take place with elaborate ceremonies the succeeding Friday night in the Ocean Grove auditorium, staged by Tall Esen Morgan. On the following Thursday will be held the court ball, then the baby parade on the afternoon of Wednesday, Aug. 27, closing the events.

WAITERS QUIT; GUESTS WORK

Long Branch, N. J., Aug. 4.—The failure of the management and negro waiters of the Hotel Normandie, Normandie-by-the-Sea, to agree upon a payday caused a small riot and strike at the dinner hour and the arrest of Albert Gould, a waiter.

The waiters, headed by Gould, walked into the hotel offices and demanded their wages. The management refused payment until tomorrow, the regular monthly payday. The negroes refused to go to work and sat around the lobby.

Justice Collins was notified, and he appealed to the waiters to return to work. They again refused, and the guests were forced to serve themselves with the assistance of bellboys and other attaches.

Warrants were issued for three other waiters, but they left the hotel.

CAMDEN LOSES BEQUESTS.

Priest In Will Didn't Designate Any Particular Charity Organization.

Camden, N. J., Aug. 4.—Camden charities will lose sums of money on account of the construction placed on the will of the Rev. Father Michael Tarnaski, former pastor of St. Joseph's Polish Catholic church at Liberty Park, by an opinion filed by Vice Chancellor Leaming. The priest, in making out his will, did not designate any particular charity to which the money should be left, and that fact led to the heirs in Poland bringing suit.

The court holds that the bequests to relatives are void and should be paid, but makes void the bequests to charity. Most of the estate, which is valued at about $40,000, is left to the children of a sister of the dead priest in Poland.

KILLED YEAR AFTER WEDDING

Goes Back For Wife's Present and Engine Hits Him.

New Durham, N. J., Aug. 4.—Peter Hansen, thirty-three years old, an engineer on the West Shore railroad, was run over by a freight engine in the railroad yards here. His head and both legs were severed.

Yesterday was Hansen's first wedding anniversary. He returned to his home at 9 Fifth street after his run and remembered that he had left a present for his wife in the train shed. He went back to get it, and the engine struck him as he emerged from in front of a line of freight cars.

OLD SHORE DRIVER DEAD.

W. F. Norcross, Oldest Atlantic County Resident, Succumbs at 86.

Mays Landing, N. J., Aug. 4.—William F. Norcross, eighty-six years old, one of the oldest and best known residents of Atlantic county, died at his home here after a brief illness. He had extensive knowledge of early surveys made in South Jersey, some dating back 300 years, and during litigation over titles he was often summoned into court to give expert testimony.

Advertisers may fail in accomplishing the full measure of their possible earnings and handicap their growth by contenting themelves with less than their full selling capacity; others, by means of intelligent advertising, approximate the possible 100 per cent. volume of sales with no increase of "over-head" expense.

But how about the merchant who is advertising, but who is not realizing 100 per cent. of his possibilities?

In advertising, as in merchandising, the point must be reached where expense of operation is overcome and profits begin.

In advertising, as in retailing or manufacturing, it's the last certain per cent. of effort that counts.

Some very clever advertisers in Plainfield are spending large sums of money in advertising without securing 100 per cent. in results, and a few are hitting the "bull's eye." Waste is responsible for most advertising failures.

But what about the under-advertised business—the store that is on the right track, but limits its advertising to the development of 50, 60, or 80 per cent. of the sales of which it is capable.

This type of business most frequently is the specialty store that has sufficient capital and sufficient credit to do a much larger business, but is not willing to venture the needed ten, twenty-five or fifty per cent. added advertising effort to achieve the full results.

The store, for instance, that is doing a business of $40,000 or $50,000 annually, but with facilities for doing an additional $50,000 without added fixed expense, could well afford to spend $5,000 in advertising to get that $50,000 extra business. And the Daily Press would give it to him.

The Daily Press' circulation embraces the class and the best of the mass in Plainfield, and will yield rich returns to any advertiser who appeals to it intelligently.

"The proof of the pudding is in the eating thereof." The proof that the Daily Press readers respond to advertising is the year-in and year-out use of its space by discerning advertisers.

It is quite true that even an under-advertised business may pay a pleasing profit; but why not more profit, at no extra fixed expense, for the moderate outlay of a Daily Press advertising appropriation?

Think of the "pure v-e-l-v-e-t" business, entailing no extra investment except advertising, on which the net profits would possibly equal the net profits of the entire business now done on the under-advertised plan.

WHITMAN FOR FUSION TO DEFEAT TAMMANY

Indicates He'll Not Run Independently For Mayor.

Bretton Woods, N. H., Aug. 4.—District Attorney Charles S. Whitman dictated this statement:

"I shall do nothing that will endanger the success of the fusion ticket and help elect a Tammany mayor. You may be very sure of that. I have always fought Tammany and shall continue to do so.

"Beyond this I shall make no statement until after I have an opportunity to confer with my friends in New York To do so would not be fair to those loyal men who stood by me in the fight. I have sent my congratulations to Mr. Mitchel. I admire him very much."

On the authority of friends who have talked with Mr. Whitman since his arrival here, however, it can be said that Mr. Whitman will accept the fusion nomination for district attorney.

There is but one consideration which may stand in the way of the district attorney accepting the place offered him on the fusion ticket.

This is a strong inclination which he feels just now to retire from public life and accept a guarantee of $30,000 per year as a member of a big law firm in New York city.

It is this problem which the district attorney desires to discuss with his friends in New York before reaching a definite decision.

It is known to the district attorney's friends that since his defeat for the fusion mayoralty nomination he has never yielded to the spirit of Republican revolt against the ticket selected to the extent of accepting the Republican nomination for mayor on a third ticket.

U. S. MARSHAL'S THROAT CUT

Young Women See Fierce Fight With Jackson Brothers.

Mobile, Ala., Aug. 4.—As the result of a fight on Santa Rosa island, a government reservation near Pensacola, Deputy United States Marshal Orville McNair of that city had his throat cut and was stabbed several times in the back. Samuel and Rufus P. Jackson brothers and wealthy cattlemen of Flomaton, Ala., quarreled with him here McNair will die.

It is said witnesses that McNair and two young women were seated on the old pavilion talking when the Jacksons passed. They took seats by the girls, whom they had never seen before, and McNair took offense and a fight started. McNair is said to have drawn a revolver and fired two shots, both of which went wild. Then he clubbed one of the Jacksons, knocking him down. In the struggle that followed McNair's throat was cut.

29 HURT TO SAVE CHILD.

Driver Overturns Autobus by Driving Into a Culvert.

Hammond, Ind., Aug. 4.—Twenty-nine persons, all of Chicago, were injured when Martin Roy, a chauffeur of the autobus in which they were riding, drove into a culvert to avoid running down four-year-old Mary Bankowhowas here.

The bus turned over on the occupants, but, with one exception, none was severely injured. Martin Roy was cut about the eyes, and at a hospital here it was said he might lose his sight.

The party was returning from a night's outing at a Lake county summer resort.

TWO ARRESTED FOR AUTO SPEEDING IN LAST TWO DAYS

Patrolman Martin Welch was on the lookout for auto speeders on West Seventh street on Saturday and Sunday. As a result Charles Scherfesten, of Rahway road, and J. D. Lawrence, of Hoboken, were arrested and the former was arraigned this afternoon before Mayor Stewart in the police court, the executive sitting in place of City Judge DeMeza, who is in Maine on his vacation.

After severely reprimanding the Plainfielder and telling him of the stringent steps that have been taken to enforce the speed laws in this city, the court fined him $50. Lawrence will be arraigned sometime next week.

THIMBLE CLUB ENTERTAINED BY MR AND MRS. WOODHULL

Members of the Thimble Club, of this city, were delightfully entertained for two days last week by Mr. and Mrs. Floyd T. Woodhull at their summer home, "Barwood," Halsey Island, Lake Hopatcong, returning home Friday evening. During their stay there was not an idle moment for the guests and all thoroughly enjoyed the genuine hospitality of the host and hostess.

One of the pleasing features was the trip on the lake in Mr. Woodhull's fine new motor boat, "Kate," which was operated by Edson Woodhull who assisted in making the stay of the women one never to be forgotten. The guests included Mrs. L. M. Leek, Mrs. William B. Marchant, Mrs. J. Hervey Buchanan, Mrs. Robert Clark, Jr., Mrs. Winfield Schomp and Miss Lillian A. Force.

SHOTWELL FAMILY HELD REUNION ON SATURDAY

Members of the Shotwell family of this city, Brooklyn and Washington, D. C., enjoyed their annual reunion Saturday night at the summer home of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Shotwell, on Belvidere avenue. The occasion also marks the thirty-third wedding anniversary of the latter. Their children, Miss Laura Shotwell, of this city; Mrs. G. E. Burall, of Brooklyn, and Mrs. A. D. Barrows, of Washington, D. C., were present and assisted in receiving the guests. The reception room was profusely decorated with flowers. The table decorations were purple and gold.

Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. J. V. Vail, Frank Vail, Arthur Vail, Mr. and Mrs. Abram Cadmus, Mrs. George Palmer, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Vail, of Brooklyn; Miss Esther Karner, Newel Karner, Mrs. William Sanford, William and Freeman Shotwell; Mrs. Fred Kernigan, of Los Angeles, Cal.; Mr. and Mrs. George Shotwell, of Glen Ridge; Mrs. William Lightfoot, of Westfield, Mrs. Bisper, of Kansas City, Mo., and the Rev. and Mrs. A. D. Barrows, of Washington, D. C.

KILLED TWO BATS.

John Manley, of East Ninth street was annoyed by a lively bat that was flying around his home Saturday night, and after chasing the animal about the house for some time succeeded in killing the animal. Last night a second bat, evidently a mate to the one he destroyed made its appearance, and after another chase he succeeded in killing that one. Today Mr. Manley is carrying the animals about town wrapped up in a small paper covered package having some genuine amusement at the expense of his friends.

HOLD SERVICE OUT-OF-DOORS.

The congregation of the Netherwood Reformed church held its services on the lawn adjoining the church, last night, and found it cooler than meeting in the edifice. The electric lights were used for the recent festival illuminated the grounds nicely. Rev. Royal A. Stout, the pastor, preached, and Horace J. Martin, Jr., had charge of the music, with Ralph Martin at the organ. A similar service will be held next Sunday.

CYCLE AND AUTO COLLIDED.

Harry Hortish, of 205 Liberty street, while learning to ride a new bicycle yesterday afternoon in front of his home, ran into a passing automobile, owned and driven by Max Tietze, of 1350 West Front street. He sustained bruises about the body and several cuts about the head and face. The accident has been reported to the police, but no arrests will be made.

SUPREME LODGE OFFICERS.

Thomas Y. Bye, who was the first dictator of Elizabeth Lodge, No. 393, Loyal Order of Moose, was elected as outer guard of the supreme lodge, which met in annual convention at Cincinnati. Mr. Bye was elected over six other candidates. In 1911, Mr. Bye was deputy supreme deputy of the State, having in charge all of the lodges in South Jersey.

SCHOOLMASTER KIPSEY.

Grover F. Kipsey, formerly supervising principal of Warren Township schools, has been engeged as school teacher at Warrenville for the coming year. This action was taken at a meeting of the school board on Saturday night. Mr. Kipsey is a student at the New Jersey Law School, and will arrange to attend the night sessions next year.

Soup From Corn.

Some housewives do not realize the possibilities in corn for the making of delicious soup. Yet not only one, but many good soups can be made from this distinctively American vegetable.

Green corn soup is the easiest to make. To make it, boil young corn until it is tender and then grate off the kernels from the cobs. Force them through a vegetable presser, season them with salt, pepper and melted butter and mix with hot milk, thickened with flour and water. For a quart of milk a cupful and a half of corn pulp would be wanted, and two tablespoonsful of flour. Serve very hot.

Green Corn Puree.

Puree of green corn is more difficult to make but it is delightful in its unexpected flavor. Wash and drain a quart of sweet corn, and put it into a saucepan with two quarts of boiling water, two or three small onions and a little thyme and parsley. Add two or three cloves, a carrot cut in small pieces and salt and pepper. Boil until the corn is tender. Then pour the liquid through a sieve and remove the onions, carrots and other flavoring ingredients. Rub the corn through the sieve after cutting it from the ears. Return the puree to the fire with a little rich broth and two ounces of butter. Stir over the fire a few minutes and serve.

Another corn soup is made in this way: Stew a knuckle of veal and strain the broth. Add to it the corn grated from twelve uncooked ears and a teaspoonful of farina. Cook it for half an hour and season it with salt and pepper, a little chopped parsley and a hard boiled egg chopped fine. Add a cupful of milk and the yolks of two eggs, beaten together, and serve the moment it reaches the boiling point.

Green corn and tomatoes together make a tempting soup. Cut up two pounds of beef in small pieces and put it in a saucepan with three quarts of water. Boil gently for two hours and skim it. Add several large and ripe tomatoes and boil for another hour. Then pass it through a sieve and return it to the fire. Boil the kernels from a few ears of corn tender in salted water, strain them, add them to the soup, and add also butter, pepper and salt. Serve with croutons.

CHICKEN PATTIES.

LUNCHEON MENU.
Savory Patties.
Baked Potatoes.
Toasted Brown Bread (a leftover).
Crackers.
Cheese.
Tea.

PATTIES are bound to be culinary failures unless the patty shell is good. Those purchased ready for use may or may not be satisfactory.

How to Make the Cases.

Excellent patty shells may be made according to these directions: Take a good puff paste and roll to one-fourth of an inch in thickness. Then cut into rounds with a plain or fluted cutter which has been dipped into flour. Cut the centers from half of these rounds. Brush the edges of the whole rounds with cold water and press the rings on them. Chill on ice and bake for twenty-five minutes. Bake the center, cut from the rings for covers. Take out any uncooked paste before filling.

Savory Patties.—To every quarter of a pound of cold chicken or fowl allow two ounces of ham, half a teaspoonful of minced lemon peel. Season with pepper and salt to taste. Mince together finely. Line some patty pans with puff paste, add sufficient mince to fill each nicely, cover with a lid of paste, brush over with the yolk of an egg and cook in a moderate oven.

Rich Patties.

Patties With Truffles.—Make eight patty cases out of any good puff pastry and keep them hot. Beat up four eggs, season with salt and a little grated nutmeg. Peel and cut two truffles into small dice. Melt one ounce of butter in a pan, put in the truffle and cook for a few minutes; then add the egg and two tablespoonfuls of cream or milk. Stir over the fire till the mixture is thick and creamy. Neatly fill in the cases with a teaspoon, heaping the mixture rather high. Sprinkle a little chopped truffle on each and serve.

Chicken and Ham.

Patties With Ham and Chicken.—Mince fine the white meat of cold boiled or roasted chicken. Mix with half the quantity of minced ham. Put in a saucepan with half veal stock and half cream, the juice of half a lemon, the skin of half a lemon grated, a paste made of a tablespoonful each of butter and flour, rubbed together, and salt and red or white pepper to taste. Put on the fire and cook for ten minutes, constantly stirring. When cooked it should be of the proper consistency to fill into patty shells.

He Takes His Master's Mail.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—A Dog That Stays at a Big Hotel.

JACK had been saying that if he went to the seashore to spend a month, as a neighbor had done, he would not leave his dog behind with the gardener.

"But, you see, Jack," said daddy, "they couldn't very well take a big collie like that with them. Hotels don't take in people with dogs."

"Well, they ought to," Evelyn remarked severely. "I wouldn't stop at any old hotel that wouldn't take Shepple to stay."

"I'm afraid, then, we would better stay at home this summer," daddy replied, "because most hotels won't take dogs, and I should hate to have to sleep outdoors, even with Shepple as a pillow.

"There is one hotel in New York that takes in one dog, but he is a very special dog, and I think I shall have to tell you about him.

"He does not live at this hotel all the time, but only comes with his master to visit it for a few weeks now and then. These visits are sometimes months apart, but though, in the meantime, many other dogs have been turned away from the doors of this hotel, Reigo, as he is named, is always welcomed.

"He is a handsome Boston bull terrier, and his master never goes anywhere without him. During the day the dog stays with his master if he is about the hotel, but at night Reigo sleeps in a comfortable place that has been fixed up for him in the basement.

"Every morning at 8 o'clock the porter of the hotel goes to the basement and leads Reigo up to the main corridor of the hotel. It is not really necessary for the porter to go with him. The dog knows his way all over the place.

"As soon as the porter frees him the dog runs over to the counter, where mail and keys are cared for in the hotel. He barks and jumps into the air until his master's mail is given him. When the clerks hand it to him, together with a couple of morning newspapers, the dog trots off to the elevator.

"When he reaches the floor where his master is staying he jumps off and trots down the hall. Just how he knows where to stop when there are so many doors is a question, but Reigo never makes a mistake.

"Putting down the papers and mail, where he can guard them, Reigo barks—once, twice, three times. He keeps on marking until his master lets him in.

"Then, when he and his master have breakfasted, they may go out for a walk, and Reigo is a happy dog. He trots close to his master, and he never notices the other dogs they meet on their walks, though living alone in a hotel perhaps he is lonesome enough sometimes. When he goes home with his master no doubt he has wonderful tales to tell the home dogs. Does Reigo enjoy these trips? Well, I should judge so, for he always seems to be in a very good humor."

BREAKFAST DISHES.

Remains of a Ham Furnish Material For Toothsome Tidbits.

Fried ham rolls are one of many delicious breakfast dishes which can be made from the remains of a ham. Mix half a pound of finely chopped ham with four ounces of bread crumbs and two mashed potatoes. Melt two tablespoonfuls of butter in a saucepan and add it to the mixture and three tablespoonfuls of white or brown sauce. When hot stir in a well beaten egg. Season highly with paprika and a few drops of lemon juice. Spread on a plate and let cool. Shape the mixture into even sized rolls, brush over with egg, roll in bread crumbs and fry in deep hot fat to a golden color. Drain the fried rolls on a cloth or paper, dish up and serve plain or with tomato sauce.

Lentil Omelet.—Cook half a grill of lentils in stock or salted water till tender and drain them. Melt two tablespoonfuls of butter in a saucepan, fry in it a peeled, minced shallot, put in the lentils and fry for a few minutes. Moisten with two or three tablespoonfuls of brown sauce, season with pepper and salt and keep hot. Break six eggs into a basin, beat up well with two tablespoonfuls of milk or cream, season with salt or pepper and pour into an omelet pan containing about two tablespoonfuls of butter (hot). Stir over the fire with a fork till the mixture begins to set. Spread the cooked lentils over the omelet and fold in the sides. Let it take color, a nice golden brown, and turn out carefully into a hot dish.

Bacon Toast With Tomatoes.—Cut some streaky bacon into rather thin slices, place them in a saucepan with just enough water to cover and let its contents boil for a few seconds. Then drain the slices of bacon carefully, put them in a frying pan and fry until crisp over a quick fire. The bacon should be of a delicate brown when cooked. Have ready some oblong slices of toasted brown bread, butter them well and trim the sides to the size of the bacon. Cover the pieces of toast with the bacon and dish up; put a small, round slice of fried tomato (these can be fried in the bacon fat) on the top of each slice of bacon, and send to table hot.

SMART COAT COLLARS.

Bulgarian Embroidery Exploited on the Newest Models.

An extremely effective round collar for a coat or one piece dress can be made of medium weight white linen with an embroidered design of daisies.

Over a well fitting pattern cut the linen collar, first stamping the border of daisies, placing one daisy head close to another until the collar is edged with the flowers. Allow two inches of material to extend beyond the border.

COLLAR FOR SCHOOLGIRL.

Pad the daisy petals lengthwise with four strands of darning cotton, that the flowers will stand out in bold relief. Using mercerized cotton of a medium weight, embroider the petals with satin stitch at right angles with the padding.

Blue and red embroidery brightens the simple sailor collar of tan linen pictured, which is designed for the schoolgirl, but is equally good looking for her elder sister. The gay tie matches the embroidery, and it is knotted in the newest fashion.

For the Tea Table.

A woman who has lived abroad for many years where they make a cup of tea as carefully as they make a cake says the lemon should never be cut until it is to be used. Have a small, sharp knife on the table and cut each slice as desired, never cutting a dishful of lemons to stand for an hour or even a few minutes.

A good tidbit for the tea table can be made with biscuit and marmalade. Break each piece in two, making thus two squares; put on a row of Neufchatel cheese around the edge and a drop of orange or tangerine marmalade in the center. This makes just the right sized wafer and has a luscious flavor.

Instead of lemon in the tea try a maraschino cherry and a teaspoonful of the wine that comes with them. Or another flavor that may be used in tea is rum. This is called Russian tea. One uses no sugar or cream or lemon and just a teaspoonful of rum.

Color Novelty.

Some of the new rich colorings which are finding prominent place in the millinery world are known by high sounding names. A new russet green is called verte de russe; marron rouge is a rich red brown; cog de roche or nasturtium red, vatican purple; prune and twine color are also in the best of favorites.

The New Silhouette.

Perhaps you laughed at the new silhouette when you saw the early season models Paris sent over. And it really didn't seem possible that after the dear little narrow straight-line frocks women had grown to love, they could throw them over for the loose, sloppy blouse, that practically shows no demarcation between waistline and hips, the upward tilt of girdle in front, the skirt with draperies massed in front, and also with upward line, the peg-top effect below the hips where the fullness billows out, only to narrow into the feet in the most absurd way. But the fact remains, the new silhouette is slowly making its way and it is one of the fashions that will stay for the season at any rate. When these gowns were first shown, every one but the initiate said, "We are to have fuller skirts, and hips are to be larger." But while there is no more material in the new skirts, it is massed just below the hips, and only the slender, or the very well-corseted woman can wear them. The corsets beneath are just as straight of line and close-fitting of hip as ever.

But at least the new fashions have novelty, and, developed in soft silks, charmeuse, crepe de chine, faille or crepe meteor, in sand color, old blue or cedar green they have a certain fascination. Even in the cheaper cotton voiles and crepes they work out attractively. Strange as it may seem, they are not difficult to make. Take the model illustrated, for example, 7812. The blouse is quite simple, in drop-shoulder effect, with the smart Robespierre collar, and a suggestion of the bolero effect, which gives a chance to work in a bit of the gorgeous Futurist silks or tapestry for the vest. The skirt is in four sections, formed in soft plaits and draped up toward the front and back, with fullness below the hips. There is a V-shaped section at the foot of the skirt in front, but if you prefer the slashed effect this may be omitted. There are five pattern sizes, 32 to 42, and for size 36, 5½ yards material 42 inches wide will be needed. 15 cents.

Answer—If I lived next door to your studio I might be tempted to tell you of some quieting remedy. Better consult a throat specialist.

Sporting Editor:
Query—Is there or is there not such a word as "alright?" C. G. H.
Answer—Not quite yet. Against the creation of such a word lie two present obstacles—one is that no dictionary has yet given this form vocabulary entry, the other is that without such sanction the gentlemen of the green eyeshades who spell for the community will not admit the word. There is a new dictionary coming in September and perhaps alright will be found among its entries. No reason can be adduced why alright is not all right; so long as we have already and almighty, the principle is accepted.

FIRST BAPTIST TAKE A FULL GAME LEAD IN THE SUNDAY-SCHOOL LEAGUE

SUNDAY-SCHOOL BASEBALL LEAGUE.

Saturday's Results.
First Baptist, 13; Monroe M. E., 1.
First Presbyterian, 6; Park Avenue, 5 (eleven innings).

Standing of Clubs.

	W.	L.	P C
First Baptist	7	1	.875
Hope Chapel	6	2	.750
Monroe M. E.	4	4	.500
First Presbyterian	3	5	.375
Park Avenue	0	8	.000

Although the Park Avenue Baptist boys plugged through eleven innings of gruelling play and came their nearest to annexing a victory, the unshakeable jinx asserted itself in the eleventh and the Presbyterians lowered their colors, making the eighth defeat for the Parks this season. Hope Chapel was defeating a Bound Brook nine while the First Baptist players were increasing their lead to one full game at the hands of the Monroe Avenue M. E. contingent. The Monroes put up a disappointing exhibition of baseball and failed to show any of their famous aggressiveness against the Baptists.

First Baptist now leads the league with Hope trailing one full game in the rear. The Hope nine has been idle during the past two weeks but will get back on the job again a week from next Saturday, there being no games scheduled for this week.

CITY BASEBALL LEAGUE.

Saturdays Results:
West End A. C. 8, Spicer 6.
Saurers 21, Dixie Giants 0.

Standing of the Clubs.

	W.	L.	P. C.
Saurer	7	2	.778
West Ends	7	3	.700
Dixie Giants	5	5	.500
Spicer	1	8	.111

Saurers resumed its winning streak Saturday afternoon by trouncing the Dixie Giant ballists and the West End's team a close fall out of the Spicer combination. The Dixie Giants have entered the league race, taking the Royals' standing over and are now firmly planted in third place taking a beating every week at the hands of one of the two top notchers.

The drubbing administered to the Dixies Saturday was one of the most one-sided of the season and the colored ballists never had a lookin after the league leaders got going.

MORAN ON VACATION.

Earl Moran, outfielder on the Plainfield baseball club, of the Central New Jersey League, left today for Asbury Park, where he will spend a two weeks' vacation. His place will be filled by a substitute during his absence.

LEAGUE WILL MEET.

An important meeting of the Sunday-school Baseball League will be held next Friday night when matters of importance will be disposed of. Charges of alleged professionalism have been preferred against several of the players in the league and they will be given a hearing Friday night.

PLAINFIELD AND SOMERVILLE ARE FIGHTING FOR THE FLAG

BALL LEAGUE.

Saturday's Results.
Plainfield 4, Dunellen 1.
Somerville 6, High Bridge 1.

Standing of the Clubs.

	W.	L.	P. C.
Somerville	9	3	.750
Plainfield	8	4	.666
Dunellen	5	7	.417
High Bridge	1	7	.125

Present indications do not look exceedingly bright for the Plainfield Pets, for while the locals are fattening their average at the expense of the weaker aggregations Somerville is doing likewise, and the Queen City representatives will at least have to wait until they stack up against Somerville to even tie matters up again. Somerville now enjoys a one-game lead and won again Saturday at the hands of High Bridge, while the locals were trimming Dunellen.

The Central League fight has now narrowed down to a battle between Plainfield and Somerville and the Somerset county seat players appear to have an edge on the argument. The season is rapidly nearing a close and Somerville and Plainfield will meet on Parker Field for the crucial game in the near future. Should Plainfield lose the next contest it would just about squelch the locals' chances of copping the bunting. High Bridge is entirely out of the question, but Dunellen is a team that cannot be figured on by dopesters with any degre of accuracy, for while the cornhuskers will trim Somerville on one occassion they will turn around and oblige by accepting an unmerciful defeat on the second. Plainfield has entertained a respect for the Dunellenites all season but easily captured the game of Saturday afternoon without the least exertion.

BATTERY ERRORS COSTLY TO PETS

Spills By Randolph and Torpey Responsible for Plainfield's Defeat.

RANDOLPH WAS STRONG

Royal Giants, of New York, Fail to Spoil His Reputation As a Ball Artist—Royals Won Two Games In the Same Afternoon.

Playing the first game of a double header with the Royal Colored Giants on Olympic Field, New York, yesterday afternoon, the Plainfield Pets, an amalgamation of players from nearly every combination in the Central New Jersey League, was defeated by a count of 3 to 1 by the New York aggregation. Although Randolph and Torpey worked marvelously as a battery and had the colored ballists completely at their mercy most of the time, to this pair must be charged the Pets' defeat. In the fourth, the inning in which the home nine sewed up the contest, Torpey when two were out, thought momentarily that there were three occupants on the sacks and threw to first, letting in Thomas and Handy with what proved to be the winning tallies. The third run of the home team came in the stretch stanza when Earl made a scratch hit which was meant for Conti, but Randolph, instead of letting his third baseman take the chance, ran out and made a stab at the pellet and made a fizzle out of it.

Ball twirled some mysterious shoots at the Plainfielders, and to him must be credited, to a large extent, the fact that the visitors did not again rally and tie up matters after the spills that were made in the fourth and seventh stanzas. Plainfield players, although they got on the sacks at different times during the encounter, were unable to reach the guta percha except in the fourth when Washburn crossed the platter on Samuel's bingle.

Stallings pulled off two double plays that were well nigh miraculous. He made a stellar catch of Handy's hot fly in the eighth doubling Thomas at first and caught a hot fly off Webster's wagon tongue in the seventh and doubled Earl up at second. Earl made a beautiful put out of Stalling's long hit that was ticketed for a circuit clout.

In the second game with the Royal Giants on the same field, the Ironsides, of Newark, went down to defeat by a count of 3 to 1, this making the second contest won in the same afternoon by the same score by the Royals.

C. J. HAND SCORES POINTS FOR PRESIDENT'S CUP

Clarence J. Hand won the first three points for the President's cup at the Park Golf Club, Saturday, returning a card of 103, 26—77, while Dr. H. K. Carroll and Charles B. Morse divided the remaining points, each posting a net score of 88. In the "goats" competition, Charles B. Morse and H. H. Woodland defeated Oliver B. Hill and Clarence J. Hand.

These scores were posted for the President's cup:

Clarence J. Hand, 103, 26—77; Dr. H. K. Carroll, 94, 6-88; Charles B. Morse, 98, 10—88; William P. Taylor, 82, plus 7—89; H. L. Moody, 102, 13—89; J. L. Watson, 110, 19—91.

AN OFF-DAY IN LEAGUE.

Because of the Hope Chapel excursion no games have been scheduled in the Sunday-school League for next Saturday and most of the teams will be idle. While several of the contenders will go to the shore in a body others will schedule an outside contest in order to keep in trim for games to come.

PETS DEFEATED DUNELLEN TEAM

A Close Score But Easy Victory For the Locals Who Led All the Way.

HARTER BATTED 1,000

Besides Hitting Like a Demon He Stole Bases and Fielded in Brilliant Stylye—George Ortlieb Wild at Times.

History repeated itself on Parker Field Saturday afternoon when the Dunellen team of the Central New Jersey organization took one of its old time beatings at the hands of the Plainfielders who had everything their own way from the time the first ball was pitched until the pellet was pocketed for the final put out. Dunellen was in the fray at all times, but the Queen City aggregation were complete masters of the situation and held the upper hand all the way, teasing the Dunellenites at various intervals to make the farce take on the aspect of a real ball game. The final score of 4 to 1 was plenty decisive enough to declare the Plainfielders the winners, but if they so desired the locals could have profited by slip ups and bingles so that the tally card would have been much larger.

George "Germany" Ortlieb recently returned from the New England League where he played with the Lawrence team, a former member of the Plainfield combination and one of the pitchers who has adroned nearly every mound in Central New Jersey during his varied career from the time he first let out a "bawl," did mound duty for the winners Saturday and the visitors were completely baffled by his cross fire slants. While he failed to do any remarkable stunts along the strikeout line, he handled the batters with rare discretion, making them pop short infield hits or lay down rollers that were easily fielded. He let his infielders do the work during half the contest and then shifted the line of defense to the outgarden, giving the guardians of that territory an opportunity to show their ability as sprinters, for the hits seldom reached them and were running catches for Joe Harter and Howard Craig, the infielders who pedal it to the out garden several times during each game that is played by the Pets to pull down flighty bingles, or forced the outfielders to come up to the boundary line of the infield.

Many new faces made their appearance for the first time this season on Parker Field in Dunellen uniforms, but the veteran, Warry McLaughlin, was still on the job and had the locals guessing at certain stages but when hits meant runs the Plainfielders generally produced the swat that told.

Joe Harter and Garretson were the shining lights in Saturday's contest, doing excellent work in the field and at the bat. Harter brought the fans to their feet on several different occasions by pulling down seemingly impossible running catches and his base running was an exhibition that is seldom equalled in professional circles. With the willow he was equally as good, getting three bingles out of three times at the plate, batting 1,000 per cent. for the afternoon. Garretson got two bingles and put up a great game around the first station. The Pets fielded without an error Saturday while their rivals made four bad spills, this accounting to some extent for the run getting, although three out of the four made by the locals were earned.

HIGH BRIDGE IS TROUNCED AGAIN

Somerville Easily Disposes of the Tail Enders on Somerset County Field.

GAME UNINTERESTING

Hickey's Homer a Feature—Gerard Led With the Bat for Losers, Getting a Pair of Bingles—Few of the Visitors Reached First Base.

Somerville literally walked away from High Bridge in the game at that place on Saturday, allowing the tailenders but six hits and one lone tally. Kraft let up on his strike-out, and allowed his team mates to earn some put-outs whenever High Bridge by chance landed on the sphere, 23 of the latter being taken by the infield and four by the outfield.

In the thir inning L. Dineen hit out a two bagger, followed by a timely bingle by Gerard, scoring Dineen. Casey went out to short. F. Dineen got on by a nice rap and got as far as second on a fielder's choice when Kiley went out, Kraft to Wiltse. Howley struck out and ended the session. Three men got on the sacks in the fourth and fifth innings, two getting as far as third, but no runs resulted. It was a case of one, two, three in the sixth, seventh and eighth innings.

In the last time up Miller got on through an error of Cunningham and had been advanced as far as third on fielders' choices when the game ended, Wiltse getting all the put-outs, assisted by Kraft and Hickey.

Somerville did nothing in its first try. In the second inning Porter got on by a two-bagger, and was brought in by Conti, after two men were out, the latter getting winged at third.

The game was won in the fourth session, Grimes starting the rungetting by landing for a two-bagger. Torpey walked and Wiltse whiffed. Hickey hit out to left, who made good. Porter then landed for his second two-bagger, bringing in Grimes and Torpey, and crossing the rubber himself on Conti's timely bingle. Nolan went out on a foul fly, leaving one man on base.

sixth, when he landed for a circuit clout, the ball going over the centre-field fence. Conti and Nolan also got on the sacks in this session, but failed in landing.

Somerville's last run was made in the seventh, when Grimes got a pass, stole second and got third on a fielder's choice, and was brought in by Wiltse, although the plucky shortstop was preparing to make a squeeze play, which would probabaly have been successful even if Wiltse had not landed on the sphere. All this after two men were out. Hickey got a pass, but Porter went out, second to first, and closed the session. There was nothing doing in Somerville's last try.

PARK JINX APPEARS IN THE ELEVENTH

Two Singles Brought Victory to Presbyterians After Hard Fought Contest.

Although it took the First Presbyterian Sunday-school leaguers thirteen long innings to prevent any record breaking stunts to be pulled off in the way of a Park Avenue victory Saturday afternoon, the Presbyterians finally unearthed the Park jinx in the last session and after they had let him loose found it easy to win by a count of 6 to 5. In the eleventh Murphy got a berth at first, went to second on P. Dunning's single and scored on Buckle's safety, ending the battle.

The loser's tallies came spasmodically and the Presbyterians had to do some rushing toward the end of the regulation number of rounds in order to tie matters up and justly escaped from a beating by pulling counters across in the seventh and eighth.

Both twirlers were in excellent trim and each amassed a goodly pile of strikeouts, besides baffling the batters considerably in every frame. Neither was accorded what might be called gilt edged support, but the fielders performed farely well and the battle was made interesting by what spills were made during the first nine stanzas.

NO DISCENSION IN TEAM'S CAMP

Statement Made By Two Players Proves to Be Erroneous.

BAILEY NOT CONCERNED

His Name Was Mentioned by the Trouble Makers But He Did Not Know Anything About the Argument.

Following a statement made to the sporting editor of this paper last Saturday morning to the effect that discension reigned in the camp of the First Baptist Sunday-school League baseball team, an assertion that was proffered by Hefti, Austine and Carrol Taylor, two of the regular members of the aggregation, Captain Pierson, of the same combination, was taken unawares by the information that was offered and was evidently entirely in ignorance of any so-called "discension" if there really was any brewing. The fact that several of the First Baptist players were approached by a local manager and asked to play in Flemington, Saturday afternoon, probably offered them an excellent opportunity to "get even" or soothe up a "sore headed" feeling and they took this means of advertising their wares. After the manager of the Plainfield team, who had offered them a berth for the afternoon, found that he had a surplus of material on hand he turned them down and they were seen in their regular positions on the First Baptist contingent.

In making the statement which now appears to be entirely erroneous they brought into the deal one member of the First Baptist team who was entirely ignorant of their designs and he was surprised to hear that he was selected to fill a position on the other nine. This member was Pierson Bailey, and in justice to him and the team itself, Captain Pierson, who is now acting in the capacity of manager for the league leaders, has made the following statement::

"Sporting Editor:

"With regard to the item in Saturday's issue of your paper which was headed 'Discension in the First Baptist Camp,' we ask that you make the following correction. You state that the writer issued the batting averages of the players who were trying for the high individual average and the cup that goes for the best record. The score book was left in the hands of the writer during the vacation of our manager and in order to get a line on what each fellow was doing I made up the records and gave them to each individual player with the understanding that they were not official but simply to get an idea what each one was doing. Upon Manager Fountain's return official averages will be given out for publication.

"E. B. PIERSON,
"Capt. 1st Baptist B. B. Team."

TROUBLE MAKERS WERE CENSURED

First Baptist Team Meets and Adjusts Matters Satisfactorily to All.

At a meeting yesterday morning of the First Baptist Baseball team it was decided to appoint a committee of three to go over the scoring records for the season, and to issue averages which will be taken as official in determining the standing of each individual player.

The above records will be turned over to Harry Joseph, who was appointed official scorer for the balance of the season. A motion carried wherein Captain Pierson was instructed to appoint such a committee to act with himself in figuring such averages. The following were appointed: Carlton Smith, Daniel Randolph and Pierson Bailey.

The matter of a recent newspaper item in which a discension in the team was charged was taken up and each member expressed himself forcibly upon the action of one of the players who has caused this. With this one exception the boys are working together harmoniously and all feel confident of winning the Sunday-school race.

With the next game all the players will have returned from their vacations and the regular team will again be put on the field. Each player has been putting up a good article of ball and all deserve praise for the games they have played.

The following attended the meeting: Assistant Manager James Spratt, Captain Pierson, Smith, Bailey, Randolph, Stine, Banks, Savidge and Joseph.

FORFEITED GAME TO THE RED STAR TEAM

Player Wanted to Umpire and Caused the Sudden Curtailment.

Playing in the Parker Field Junior League Saturday morning on the playground diamond, the Jackson Bible Class combination forfeited to the Red Stars in the seventh inning when the score stood 5 to 4 in the latter's favor. Houston wished to umpire as well as play and this was the cause of the sudden ending of the contest. This is the first case where dispute has ended in a forfeit in the junior organization and the Jackson's were warmly roasted by the other teams for their unsportsmanlike action.

Heavy ground made the going hard and the fielding was ragged. The game, as far as scoring was concerned, however, was close and exciting up to the time it was curtailed and the spectators who witnessed it were shown some good baseball.

Score by inninigs:

PLAINFIELD BOYS FAILED TO SCORE

Aquatic Meet at Camp Wawayanda On Saturday For Y. M. C. A. Members.

Waywayanda, August 4—In the aquatic meet held by the second section of campers last week, Elizabeth Y. M. C. A. swimmers again copped the victory, scoring 845 points against 547 points by Montclair, their nearest opponents. Fred Woodruff, who participated in the meet last season, broke the record in the total number of points scored, and this has not yet been equaled. With the exception of two Elizabeth boys all the other Betsytowners entered in the meet won first, second or third place, and already the boys are seeing visions of winning the Hilton Bull Memorial Cup.

A number of Plainfield boys at the camp competed in the meet but failed to get in the prize list.

The results of the meet are as follows:

95-pound class, 25-yard dash—First, Spencer Blake, Elizabeth; second, Fred Bauer, Rahway; third, Philip Hall, Elizabeth. Time, 19 1-5 seconds.

50-yard dash—First, Spencer Blake, Elizabeth; second, Fred Bauer, Rahway; third, John Talbot, Montclair. Time, 47 3-5 seconds.

SMITH'S PITCHING HELPS IN VICTORY

Carlton Smith's pitching was the main cog in the machine that defeated the Monroe Avenue M. E. Sunday-school leaguers Saturday afternoon and the First Baptist teammates assisted him by circuiting the bases thirteen times while he was allowing but one counter to simmer across the platter via a Monroe uniform. But five hits were taken out of his delivery and he whiffed seven of the oppositions with apparently no effort. Hefti, on the other hand, proved to be no puzzle to the winning swatsmiths who dented his offerings for fifteen lusty bingles, many of which were extra base clouts and will materially boost the Baptist boys' individual records in the race for the silver batting cup.

While the battery were doing a large portion of the work for the winners, not a man made an error and the openings in which the Monroes could have scored were few and far between. By defeating the opposition Saturday afternoon, First Baptist gained a one game advantage in the race for the pennant and are now leading the Hope contingent by a margin of over 100 points. Thirteen stolen bases were credited to the victors, nearly every man on the team annexing some of the loot.

Catches by Pierson Bailey and Pennoyer featured the contest and the hitting laurels were garnered by Townley and Savage, the former getting four and the latter three bingles.

HOPE CHAPEL AHEAD IN THRILLING GAME

One Run In the Third All that Was Scored During the Encounter.

Playing independent ball at Bound Brook against the Y. M. A. team of that place, Saturday afternoon, the Hope Chapel Sunday-school leaguers won one of the best played games of amateur baseball that has ever been staged in this vicinity, coming out ahead by a score of 1 to 0. The Plainfielders got their lone and solitary tally of the encounter in the third inning when Thorn came home after W. Mathews had dropped a third strike. In this round two men fanned the air after Thorn had got his birth and the third man also whiffed at three wide ones but the backstop let the pellet slip between his fingers and before he had recovered it Thorn had touched the plate. But three hits were taken out of Mathew's delivery while the Bound Brookers could get but one more than that number out of Schott's offerings.

Tight twirling gave the fielders little opportunity to make errors but three being credited during the contest, none of the two being made by Hope Chapel resulting in any scoring.

RALLY IN EIGHTH WON FOR WEST ENDS

Spicer Combination Outhit Rivals But Lost Encounter Through Fielding.

A rally in the eighth inning that resulted in a contribution of two runs, was the only thing that saved the West End A. C. from having to battle through an extra number of innings in its City League clash with Spicers' nine Saturday afternoon, these two runs giving them the upper end of an 8 to 6 count. Montross, who twirled for the losers, was in tip top form, and while he held the opposition to seven scattered hits, while his teammates were pounding Denny's offerings for ten, he was accorded ragged support and his infielders lost the game for him.

Features of the game were the playing by Herman Rosenson, a former Plainfield High School star, and Alberts and Campbell also did good work along this line.

DOC SCANLON PITCHES SECOND NO-RUN NO-HIT GAME OF YEAR

New Brunswick, Aug. 4.—In the course of his peregrinations in the bushes Charles Hercules Ebbets would do well to come out here some Sunday and take a peek at a promising pitcher named Doc Scanlon. Doc used to twirl for the Superbas when baseball was even more in its infancy than it is now. Yesterday afternoon, for the second time this season, the doctor pitched a no-hit and no-run game. The South River team was his victim, New Brunswick winning by 9 to 0. Only one man reached first through a base on balls that should really have been a strike-out.

While Scanlon is the "property" of Philadelphia, having been shipped here by the trade route, Ebbets might be able to undo the dicker and send Stack back to the Phillies in exchange for the busher, Doc Scanlon.

FLEMINGTON FAIR OPENS NEXT WEEK

Many Local Entries in the Annual Sweepstakes Expect to Take Purses.

MANY NOVEL RACES

Horse Racing Features—Big Purses Offered to Induce Competition—Adam Blair, Thos. Brantingham and Lester B. Harris Interested.

Plainfield and Westfield horse fanciers will contribute liberally to the list of entries registered for the annual fair horse races at Flemington which will begin next Tuesday and continue throughout the week. An attractive racing card has been announced for the week with prizes aggregating $5,000. The track is in first class condition and it is expected that many of the horses will make new records. A prize of $100 in gold will go to the owner of the horse winning the fastest heat, providing the track record of 2.07 is beaten.

Running races with substantial purses will be held each day of the fair and a ball game is being arranged between Lou Slocum's All Stars of Plainfield and the Flemington aggregation which defeated the locals last Saturday afternoon. Entries for the foot racing will not close until the night before the fair opens and many local runners are expected to take part in the events on the program which will be announced in a few days by the busy committee arranging for the holding of the fair.

In the 2.14 pace (Union Hotel) for a purse of $400, "Review Bells," owned by Lester B. Harris, of this city, and driven by Tom Brantingham of Park avenue, will be one of the competitors against such cracks of the track as "Dr. Wilkes" and "Carrie Dillon." In the 2.24 trot for a purse of $400, Adam C. Blair's "Downing" will start, and Blair's "Woodspite" will be at the starting wire in the 2.20 trot for a purse of $400. In the 2.18 pace "Sugar Bowl," driven by Tom Brantingham, of this city, will be one of the contestants and will have as a running mate so formidable an animal as "Reba Ambulator," owned by J. G. Ten Eyke, of Westfield. Saturday afternoon will be devoted to novelty races and there will be a quick hitch race, a mule race, bull race and motorcycle races.

All of the Plainfield competitors are out for the money prizes and each expects to return with a fair share of the gate receipts.

PADDED TERRILL A. C. WAS WALLOPED BY NETHERWOOD

On Sunday the Terrill A. C. went down in defeat before the fast-going Netherwoods on the latter's grounds, by a score of 1 to 9. Raffincellia, the manager of the Terrill's, was confident of scoring a win as he had Coughlan, the hard-hitting backstop of the West Ends behind the plate and Curtis, a clever infielder whose playing is well known in local baseball circles, guarding the keystone sack.

The Terrills could do nothing with Denny's delivery, while the Netherwoods knocked Venitz for eighteen hits or a total of fifteen runs. The batteries for the teams were: For Netherwood, Denny, Dodd; for the Terrill A. C., Venitz, Coughlan.

The score:

Netherwood	3 0 1 1 3 4 2 1 x—15

NOT AN AMATEUR LEAGUE.

According to information coming from good authority, the Sunday-school Baseball League does not boast of being an amateur organization. The players in the organization have agreed not to take money while they play in the league but former records are not adherred to. Many of the men playing ball in the organization have previously accepted compensation for playing baseball, basketball and football but the rules of the league are based on this year alone.

DEFEATED AT FLEMINGTON.

Flemington, Aug. 4—Flemington defeated the West End A. C. team, of Plainfield, Saturday afternoon by the score of 6 to 1. The score:

Putting Out the Lamps!

Every Kind of Gas and Electric Lamp Will, Tomorrow, Tuesday, Be Put Out at Half or Less Than Half, in the

AUGUST SALE of LAMPS

Such an offering as this occurs only at rare intervals—twice a year, just at the every-six-months "writing-up" of our stock books.

Practically every one of the hundreds and hundreds of beautiful table and hanging lamps you have seen in the "House of a Thousand Lamps" (as the Wanamaker Lamp Store is familiarly called), together with a great many more quite as beautiful that you have not yet seen—each one is offered for half or less than half its original and normal price. Among these lamps you will find the choicest examples of the art of lamp-designing and fine craftsmanship—lamps that are as ornamental as they are useful.

There never was a home that did not need at least one more lamp, and there is no home but will find in this great collection "just the very thing."

RATE CUTTING STOPPED

This state has passed a law making it illegal for insurance companies to discriminate in their rates charged on risks of essentially the same hazard.

The unfair and unbridled cutting in rates has been stopped, and where the assured has heretofore looked at the rate first and the company second, the order of things has been reversed and the company will now come first.

The strength and reputation of the companies in this office are unquestioned.

SOLDIER BOYS IN FIELD DRILLS

Company K, With Other Second Regiment Men, Taught Field Firing.

MANY EXCEL ON RANGE

Ten Experts, Eighteen Sharpshooters and Twelve Marksmen In Local Company Out of a Total of 48 Men and Officers in Co. K's Camp.

(From a staff correspondent).

Camp Fielder, Sea Girt, Aug. 5—The first battalion of the Second Regiment including Co. K, of Plainfield, transferred their attentions this morning from the rifle ranges, where they spent the entire day yesterday, to the parade grounds, where, under the direction of Major William B. Martin and the regular army instructors they are going through a course of instruction in close and extended order formations and field firing.

The firing work was particularly interesting to men of the battalion following their training on the rifle ranges yesterday. Major Martin, himself one of the crack shots of the State, amply prepared the men of the battalion for target work but the field firing problems which are being worked out to give the men an opportunity to fire under possible conditions that would arise in time of actual warfare. In these problems no ammunition will be used, however, until next Friday morning, when it is expected that the entire regiment will line up against and proceed upon a hidden army of 10,000 theoretical enemies who will be entrenched in the rifle pits. The control of the firing on the ranks of the enemy and the complete discipline which must be observed if accidents are to be avoided are the objective points of the instruction that the men of the first and third battalions are getting today.

The second battalion took its place on the rifle ranges today and are shooting in a highly satisfactory manner. Major John H. McCullough is on the firing line with his men and is aiding them in every way he can to bring their record scores up to a high point of efficiency.

The third battalion will do the honors at parade tonight.

Last night Acting Governor Fielder was the host at a dinner given in honor of Colonel Horace M. Reading, commanding the regiment. Those who attended were Adjutant General Wilbur F. Sadler, Jr., Colonel Austen Colgate, Colonel William C. Schauffler and Colonel William Libbey, of the governor's staff, Colonel Horace M. Reading, Lieutenant Colonel George L. Foreman, Major William B. Martin, Major John H. McCullough, Major Conrad Hall and Captain Adjutant William E. Pedrick.

Rev. John Handley, chaplain of the regiment, is serving in a two-fold capacity this week. Besides looking after the chaplain's services he has charge of the feeding of the officers in the big mess hall. Captain Handley, as he is best known in camp, displayed a wonderful ability for providing the hungry officers of the New Jersey soldiery with enough to eat without overrunning the funds available for the appeasement of their appetites. Consequently he was given the opportunity to look after the welfare of the State and the officers simultaneously. The mystified air of the officers as they come from the mess hall speaks for itself and the satisfaction of the commissary department heads tells what the source of supply thinks about it. It is needless to say that Captain Handley is a popular man about camp.

The Second Regiment will have no companies going back home without their week's pay owing to the fact that there was an insufficient number of men in camp to warrant the State paying them. Last week two companies of the Fourth Regiment, of Jersey City, did not receive their pay after they had been here all week because they had but 35 and 37 men respectively and the military code calls for nothing less than 38. Captain Farr, of Campany L, of Princeton, discovered a shortage in the ranks of his company and sent a detail of men back to Princeton to arrest two men who had not shown up in camp. They were brought back last night.

Gossip From Company K.

The results of the shooting of the Company K men on the rifle range yesterday excelled the results expected by the officers. Ten men qualified as expert rifle men, eighteen men as sharpshooters and twelve as marksmen.

Activities in the athletic line are being aroused by the branch of the Army Y. M. C. A. installed on the camp grounds. A baseball league between teams from the three battalions is the first result of these activities. Two games are played each day by teams representing each battalion. Sergeant George B. Howell, of Co. K, is captain of the First Battalion team and expects to win the

HAS COMMUTED FOR FORTY-FOUR YEARS

Thomas Young, of South Plainfield, In Line For the Veteran's Prize.

Local and suburban residents who have been commuting to New York regularly for a number of years are beginning to speculate on their chances of winning the gold watch offered by a New York newspaper for the person who can produce credentials substantiating his claim to being the oldest commuter traveling to and from the Metropolis. The contest will be decided on years of travel and not age and anyone who has been plying between these points for a quarter of a century or more is beginning to gather together his old commutation passports in preparation for handing in their claims.

The latest competitor to make his appearance is Thomas Young, of South Plainfield, who seems to have a fairly well established right to the award. Mr. Young has traveled between South Plainfield and New York for the last forty-four years, or since he moved to that village in 1869. He is eighty-two years old and up to the present time has been late but once in his place on the floor of the Produce Exchange. He is remarkably active for a man of his advanced years and takes an active interest in his poultry farm during his leisure moments. He has purchased commutation tickets to the number of 536, or one for every month in the forty-four years.

JULY TEMPERATURE AVERAGED 75 DEG.

The Total Precipitation For the Month Was 1.75 Inches.

The average temperature for the month of July was 75.2 degrees, according to the report of Weather Prophet John Neagle, and the normal temperature for the month was 73.9 degrees. The average daily excess as compared with the normal was 1.3 degrees. The accumulated excess of temperature since January 1 was 690 degrees and the average daily excess of temperature since January 1 was 3.2 degrees.

The highest temperature was 100 degrees on the 30th and the lowest 52 degrees on the 18th. The greatest daily range was 35 on the 8th, the least daily range 17 on the 14th, average daily range, 26.9; average maximum temperature, 88.6; average minimum temperature, 61.7; highest recorded for this month for 27 years, 104 degrees in 1901; lowest recorded for this month for 27 years, 43 degrees in 1890.

The total precipitation for this month was 1.75 inches; normal for this month, 5.40 inches; deficiency of this month as compared with the normal, 3.65 inches; accumulated deficiency since January 1, 5.70 inches; greatest precipitation in 24 hours, 0.52 inches on the 9th and 10th, prevailing wind direction was southwest. The number of clear days was 15, number of partly cloudy days, 13; number of cloudy days, 3; number of days with 0.01 inch or more of precipitation, 5; thunder showers on the 5th, 25th and 29th.

CITY COURT FINES LAST MONTH AMOUNTED TO $339

There were 299 cases considered last month by City Judge William G. DeMeza, according to his report presented at the August meeting of the Common Council, last night. Of this number 38 were fined, sentence was suspended on 187, 24 were committed to the county jail, 13 held for the grand jury, 6 turned over to the probation officer, 2 were turned over to other departments, 3 were released on bail, one was not tried, 3 were held under bonds for non-support, 21 were discontinued and 21 were dismissed.

Fines amounting to $339 were received and the general disbursements amounted to $15. There was paid to former Officer McDonald $1.70 for the transportation of prisoners and $26.45 to Detective-Sergeant John J. Flynn for the same purpose. The sum of $295.85 was turned over to the city treasurer, William F. Arnold.

SELECTION OF AN OVERSEER IS DEFERRED BY COUNCIL

The Common Council, at its meeting last night, did not select a successor to Henry L. DeForest as overseer-of-the-poor, laying the matter over for the present. Mr. DeForest's resignation was presented and referred to the aims committee. Heretofore the appointment of an overseer-of-the-poor has been made by the Mayor, but a recent law invested this power in the Common Council.

As previously stated there are a number of candidates for the office including Garret T. Dunham, who is now Mr. DeForest's assistant; Alexander D. Ayers, who was overseer-of-the-poor for many years, and who was succeeded by the present incumbent. As nine Republicans and two Democrats comprise the Councilmanic body the new appointee is sure to be a Republican.

DAVID N. GROENDYKE DIES IN BOROUGH

Native of New Jersey and Had Lived Here Thirty-three Years.

David Nevius Groendyke, a highly esteemed citizen and resident of the borough for thirty-three years, passed away yesterday afternoon at his late home, 91 Mercer avenue, following a short illness. Mr. Groendyke was born in northern New Jersey August 7, 1834. His family removed to Illinois during his infancy and his early life was spent in the west. His reminiscences of pioneer life in that new country were full of thrilling interest. He returned to New Jersey when he had attained his majority and purchased his late home on Mercer avenue in 1880.

Mr. Groendyke married Jennie Hegeman, daughter of John S. and Fanny K. Hegeman, of Hunterdon county, fifty-five years ago last October. The couple celebrated their golden wedding anniversary October 29, 1907 Mr. Groendyke retired from active business about twenty-five years ago. He was a familiar figue on horseback, as he spent much of his time riding and driving. He was especially fond of children of whom he counted many among his friends.

Mr. Groendyke was a member of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church of which he was a regular attendant until prevented by failing health. He will be greatly missed in his home to which he was tenderly devoted and by a large circle of relatives and friends. There survives a wife and two daughters, Mrs. John Gray Foster and Mrs. D. M. VanVliet, of Washington avenue. The funeral will be held at the late home Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock. Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson, of the First M. E. church, will officiate in the absence of Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, who is abroad.

WARREN TOWNSHIP TO BALLOT ON NEW SCHOOL

A special election will be held in Warren Township, Thursday, August 14, when the voters will ballot on the location of a new school or whether the present institution in Warrenville, which has been condemned by the State authorities, shall be remodeled necessitating an expenditure of $1,500. The questions the voters will be asked to vote upon, in substance, follow:

(1) Shall the Township of Warren erect a two-room school building on the Steffens property, between Warrenville and Mt. Bethel at an expenditure of $6,900, approximately, or (2) shall the Warrenville school building be remodeled and put in first class condition as required by the State authorities, at an estimated cost of $1,500 and a new one-room institution be erected at Mt. Bethel at an expenditure of approximately $3,500?

At the regular meeting of the Warren Township Board of Education, Saturday night, the bid of Rev. George Bowers, to transport the township's high school pupils to the North Plainfield institution, was accepted. He has acted in this capacity for the past three years. John C. Cooper, of Warrenville, was awarded the contract for cleaning the township school buildings and for supplying coal and wood during the winter months.

HOST FOR JUNIOR SUFFRAGISTS.

Mrs. E. F. Feickert, president of the New Jersey Woman's Suffrage League, was the host at her home in Dunellen, Sunday afternoon, for a gathering of about sixty members of the Newark Junior Equal Suffrage League, the guests ranging in age from sixteen to twenty years. The young people enjoyed Mrs. Feickert's hospitality following an invitation she issued at a recent suffrage meeting.

SAD STORY TOLD BY DESERTED WIFE

Mrs. Richard Collins Appears to Press Charge Against Husband.

Mrs. Richard Collins, of Rahway road, told a pitiful story of her struggle to support herself and children, when testifying yesterday afternoon before Mayor Stewart in the City Court, where her husband, who was arrested in Dover last Thursday, was arraigned on a charge of non-support. "Myself and year-old child accompanied him to his place of business the morning of May 31—we expected him home at night, but he did not return," she said, speaking of the day her husband is charged with deserting her. Continuing, Mrs. Collins, who showed evidence of the ordeal through which she has passed, told of days of waiting for her wayward husband. Although cared for at first by neighbors, she said she was finally forced to apply to former Overseer-of-the-Poor Henry L. DeForest for aid. She obtained employment and has been working since.

Collins wrote to a friend in this city from Dover, evidently relying on the latter to keep his whereabouts a secret. He did not inquire about his family. Through the recipient of the letter Mrs. Collins, however, learned that her husband was in Dover. The police were notified and the alleged deserter arrested. He has engaged State Senator Herbert Fitzherbert, of Morris county, to defend him.

One of Collins' first acts when appearing at headquarters was to seek out the newspaper men. He made a request that the "story" of his case be kept from print, remarking that some day he would return the favor.

The court proceedings took on an informal aspect, neither Mr. or Mrs. Collins being asked to take an oath to tell the truth. Both the defendant and complaining witness, after telling their stories of maritial unhappiness, were instructed to appear in the court with witnesses on Monday, August 11.

Collins said he deserted his wife because she went out with other men and frequently came home intoxicated. His wife absolutely denied this and challenged her husband to present witnesses in support of his allegations. The prisoner added that he was prepared to support the child. Mrs. Collins in reply to questions asked by Assistant Corporation Counsel Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., said when living with her husband, he only gave her amounts ranging from 50 cents to $3 a week toward her support and intimated that he spent his money foolishly.

The couple, when living in Paterson, underwent a similar experience. Collins deserted his wife and was arrested. He was ordered by the court to pay his wife a specified amount for one year.

SEVENTH ANNUAL OUTING FOR THE WHITE STORE EMPLOYES

Following his annual custom, A. E. Force, proprietor of the "White Store" on West Front street, is the host today of his employes at an outing which is being held in the Watchung mountains. Over fifty people left in the stage provided for the trip to the scene of the festivities this morning and will enjoy a program composed of sports and other forms of outdoor entertainment the entire day and part of the evening.

A dinner was served in the mountains this noon and some of the talented members of the party furnished after dinner amusement for the members of the party which added greatly to the jollity. This is the seventh annual affair of this kind and the Force store is closed today while the outing is being held. The return trip will be made in the auto stage by moonlight.

GREEN HELD FOR GRAND JURY ON THEFT CHARGE

Max Michelson, a junk dealer of Chatham street, identified Joseph Green, of West Fourth street, in the city court, this morning, as the man who had sold him a quantity of lead stolen last week from the yard of A. M. Griffin Co., hardware dealers, of East Front street. As a result Mayor Stewart held Green in $300 bonds for the Grand Jury.

Green was arrested Friday by Detective-Sergeant John J. Flynn charged with the theft. Testifying in his own behalf, he denied in vain that he ever stole the lead and asserted that he was never in Michelson's establishment in his life.

FORMER MAYOR'S CHAUFFEUR FINED $50 FOR SPEEDING

"There have been many violations of the auto speed law in this city, although the majority of autoists have respect for the law and realize that the citizens of a municipality must be protected against reckless drivers and speeders," said Mayor Percy H. Stewart, when imposing a fine of $50 yesterday afternoon, on Charles Scherefstein, chauffeur for former Mayor George Viehman, of New Brunswick. He was arrested Saturday by Patrolman Welch for speeding. The chauffeur acknowledged he was driving his employer's car along West Seventh street at the rate of thirty miles an hour.

J. D. Lawrence, of Hoboken, who was arrested Sunday by Welch on a similar charge, will be arraigned in the City Court, Monday morning, August 11.

MAYOR STEWART FOR GOV. FIELDER

Plainfield's Executive Tells Why He Favors His Candidacy.

Believing that he has been a creditable representative of the people and has consistently carried out the Wilson policies of which he is an ardent advocate, Mayor Percy H. Stewart is supporting the candidacy of Governor James F. Fielder for a renomination. Upon the recent visit of the Governor to this city when he spoke on the Jury Reform measure, Mr. Stewart presided at the meeting and in introducing the speaker, expressed the hope that he would succeed himself as the State's chief executive.

Mayor Stewart in speaking of Governor Fielder's candidacy said:

"I feel that Governor Fielder has been a very creditable representative of the people of Hudson county for several years as Senator and previously for several terms as member of the Lower House. He has consistently carried out the Wilson policies since becoming acting Governor, and he is now the logical candidate for the Gubernatorial nomination in regular form.

"For the past several years the Democratic party has laid down several well-defined principles of government which it promised to carry out if entrusted with power. Some of these principles have already been enacted into law, and the people of the State are now enjoying the benefit of them. The present campaign must be fought out on principles rather than men, and since Governor Fielder has fully subscribed to the principles which the people have approved on two occasions, he, more than any other man mentioned for the Democratic leadership, should be entrusted with the mantle of party responsibility."

PAINTERS' UNION OBJECTS TO FIREMEN WORKING

The painters union in a communication to the Common Council at its meeting, last night, complained about firemen being permitted to do painting about the local fire houses, claiming that the work should be done by "fair" labor. Heretofore, if there has been a little job of painting to be done the firemen would do it during spare moments when not engaged in other work. The matter was referred to the fire and building committee.

A communication was also received from the Building Trades Council stating that some of the contsruction work being done for the Union County Furniture Company on West Front street was in violation of the building code. This was also referred to the fire and building committee.

A POPULARITY CONTEST.

A piano voting contest has been inaugurated by the Reliable Jewelry Shop, of 245 West Front street, which is issuing votes with all purchases. The first prize will be a $450 Howard piano, and to the next five highest contestants will be given $325 certificates, which may be applied toward the purchase of Howard pianos similar to the first prize. Eight silver prizes will be awarded those securing the highest weekly vote during the contest. Individuals and organizations may enter the contest.

LOCAL AUTO COMPANY LOW ENGINE BIDDERS

International Motor Co. Would Furnish Fire Apparatus to City for $7,000.

The International Motor Company, of this city, submitted the lowest bid for furnishing the city with an auto fire engine, at the August meeting of the Common Council, last night, its figure being $7,000. In all five bids were received, all for four-cylinder engines and said to comply with the specifications set forth.

The other bids were as follows: Nott Fire Engine Company, $7,850; Robinson Fire Engine Manufacturing Company, $7,950; Seagrave Company, $8,975; American-LaFrance Company, $8,500 and $7,500.

All these bids were referred to the fire and building committee. President George S. Clay inquired of the representatives of the different concerns if the bids included engines that had never been used and he was informed that they did.

A little later Councilman P. J. Reville submitted a proposition from the International Motor Company to allow a thirty days' trial of a motor driven fire engine for $25 a week, the city to furnish the gasolene and oil and the company to furnish a driver. This was referred to the fire and building committee, it being understood that this offer is not to interfere in any way or obligate the city as regards the company's bid to furnish an engine at a specified price.

CLAY WOULD STOP SOFT COAL SMOKE

City Counsel Has Drafted Ordinance to Stop Nuisance In City Factories.

His attention having been called to the fact that many factories throughout the city are burning soft coal, led President George S. Clay, of the Common Council, to speak of the matter at the August meeting of that body last night. He said that he had received a number of complaints and he thought it was about time that steps were taken to abate the nuisance, if possible. He suggested that Corporation Counsel Charles A. Reed be requested to take the matter up and inform the Council as to what can be done.

Walter L. Hetfield Jr., assistant to Mr. Reed, was present and he informed Mr. Clay that the corporation counsel had drafted an ordinance at the request of the Board of Health, which he thought would cover the objections raised by the president.

Councilmen P. J. Reville heartily endorsed Mr. Clay's suggestions adding that only recently his attention had been drawn to the general burning of soft coal not only at the local factories but by engines on the New Jersey Central, and he referred to one section where a man had been unable to secure a fair rental for his property because of the smoke nuisance.

ANOTHER DELEGATION OF BOYS ARRIVE AT CAMP ENDEAVOR

Thirty-six boys from the Presbyterian Labor Temple, of Second avenue, New York, came to Camp Endeavor, Scotch Plains, yesterday, to spend the next two weeks. The boys of the Presbyterian Mission, New York, returned home early in the day.

Camp Endeavor has undergone many improvements since it opened on Monday, July 7. A baseball diamond and basketball court has been laid out on the site and it is probable that several tennis courts will be constructed within the next few days.

The camp is conducted by the Union County Christian Endeavor Union, under the management of Fred C. Lounsbury, of this city. The object of the camp is to give poor boys of the county and the Metropolitan district an opportunity to enjoy a vacation under healthful and wholesome conditions. A meeting of the official board of the camp will be held Thursday afternoon to decide whether the next consignment of vacationists will be invited from New York, or municipalities in Union county.

BETTER STREET LIGHTS ORDERED

100 P. C. MORE LIGHT

Increased Cost Figured to Be Not Over $2,000—Objections Expected to Come From Public Service Corporation.

Plans for improving the general street lighting conditions of the city were incorporated in a resolution which was offered by Councilman P. J. Reville, chairman of the street lighting committee, at the August meeting of the Common Council, last night, and it was passed by a unanimous vote after a recess of fifteen minutes. While the councilmen seem to feel assured that the provisions of the resolution if carried out will not break the city's contract with the Public Service Corporation, there are some people who have expressed their doubts on this point and believe that the Public Service Corporation will not comply with the resolution without objections.

The resolution provides that the city enter into an agreement with the Public Service Corporation from October 1, 1913, to October 1, 1915, to supply 32 candle power Tungsten lamps throughout the city, replacing the 25 candle power lamps now used, except as the city may direct, that 60 candle power Tungsten lamps be placed in certain sections as directed by the city and that 350 candle power Tungstens be placed in the business section as the city may direct, all to furnish 80 per cent. efficiency.

The idea is to provide the whole city with better lights by installing the 32 candle power Tungstens, while in the less important business sections and at important points place the 60 candle power Tungstens, and to give the business section the 350 candle power Tungstens. One councilman in speaking of the change declared that it would give the city 100 per cent. more light at an increased expense of from $17,000, which is paid at present, to $19,000.

The Council decided on the above plans after receiving the report of Prof. Gans, of Stevens Institute, an expert, who was employed to go over the whole lighting situation in this city. He recommended the use of the Tungsten lamp, explaining that it would give 100 per cent. more light and would be generally more satisfactory. Corporation Counsel Charles A. Reed also played an important part in assisting the Council to arrive at a definite conclusion in the matter.

Nothing has been said about the use of ornamental poles, but it is expected that there will be some changes in this respect in the business section, at least.

HAD HIS HAND OVER MUZZLE WHEN REVOLVER WENT OFF

While cleaning a revolver in his home on Central avenue yesterday afternoon, Daniel F. McNamee, fourteen years old, sustained a painful injury to his left hand when the weapon was accidentally discharged. The revolver was one of the 22 calibre, seven-shot variety, and he had used it on the Fourth of July, keeping the pistol loaded in a drawer at other times during the year. Returning home yesterday afternoon he spent some time in cleaning the instrument and after finishing this work placed the bullets back in the barrel and was placing it in the drawer when it went off while his left hand was over the muzzle.

The injured youth was alone at the time of the accident and went to the office of Dr. H. V. Hubbard, directly across the street, and was later taken to the office of Dr. Norman W. Currie where the wound was dressed. Tetanus anti-toxin was administered later in the evening and no serious results are anticipated.

ARRAIGNED ON THREE CHARGES SAUNDY GETS A $5 FINE

Frank Saundy, of 760 North avenue, arraigned on three separate charges before Mayor Stewart in the city court, yesterday afternoon, was fined $5. Mary Peligrim, of Cottage place, the complaining witness, said he threatened her life with an axe and struck her several times; he was charged with disorderly conduct and Sergeant Higgins who made the arrest, found a razor in the prisoner's coat pocket. As a result a charge of carrying concealed weapons was lodged against him. The evidence showed, however, that Saundy was attacked by Mrs. Peligrim, rather than being the attacking party. He was fined $5 however, for carrying the razor.

PATRONIZE OUR STORE

SAVE YOUR COUPONS

Absolutely without cost a T. Howard Piano as shown above. This is open to anyone, and nomination blanks may be obtained at the Reliable Jewelry Shop, or cut out from this ad. This will be the most interesting proposition ever presented to the people of Plainfield and vicinity, and everyone has an equal chance to win this Beautiful Upright Parlor Grand Piano.

168 Pieces of Rogers' Silverware Given Away During This Contest

Just a Little Hustling and You Will Win.

We will issue trade coupons with every purchase at our store. These coupons represent one vote for each cent purchased. The person holding coupons representing the largest number of votes at the end of this contest will receive as a first prize this beautiful $450 T. Howard Piano free of cost, and to the next five highest a $325 certificate good on a $450 T. Howard Piano will be issued. These coupons are transferable and if you are not interested in contesting for the above prizes you can help some friend or Society. We will give eight silver prizes to those getting the most votes weekly, provided the contestant has personally brought them in.

All votes to count must be brought in at least monthly as colors will be changed. Unlimited Postal Cards good for 1,000 Free Votes will be furnished to any contestant free, also Coupons good for Free Votes will be published in the Newspaper. Any of our customers or any other person in this town or surrounding country can become a contestant, and we will give 5,000 votes free to each person who enters as a contestant; so don't delay but send your name right in. Our object is to interest you, and through you get friends to patronize our store. We want a chance to show you that you can get better goods at less price here than elsewhere. We expect the greater volume of business to more than offset the expense of this contest to repay us, as we would rather sell to 100 people One Dollar's worth each than to 10 people Five Dollars worth and you can see that a smaller per cent. of profit will mean more to us by selling 100 people than even a larger percentage of profit we could get from selling 10 people. We will give you even more for your money than we have in the past.

We Can Save You Money and Are Ready to Prove It.

RULES OF THE CONTEST:

1.—Any person can become a contestant and receive 5,000 votes free.
2.—Names will not be published or made known.
3.—A number will be assigned to each contestant.
4.—Color of votes changed monthly and unless recorded in time are valueless.
5.—No clerk or person directly or indirectly interested in this store will be allowed to participate in this contest.
6.—Votes must be recorded every Wednesday.
7.—Contestant receiving most votes on Feb. 1st, 1914, will receive the T. Howard $450.00 Piano, and the 5 next highest will each receive a $325.00 certificate on a T. Howard Piano.
8.—Contest opened Aug. 1st, closes Feb. 1st, 1914. Prizes awarded Feb. 2nd, 1914.

A building permit has been issued by Inspector T. O. Doane to Roth & Company for the erection of a two-story brick building at 130-132 East Front street. The building will have a frontage of fifty feet and a depth of 105 feet. The first floor will have two stores while the second floor will be occupied by lofts. The approximate cost is $38,000.

Other permits granted during the past week are: To Dr. F. J. Hughes, to erect a hollow terra cotta dwelling at Park avenue and West Seventh street, to cost $11,000; to L. M. Livingston et al., to erect a frame dwelling at 911 West Sixth street, to cost $4,000; to A. P. Atwood, to erect a frame garage at 815 First place, to cost $299; to John M. Hunt, to erect a frame dwelling at 254-256 Netherwood avenue, to cost $2,300;

During the month of July thirty-one permits have been granted, ten for dwellings, six for barns and garages, fourteen for alterations, and one for a brick building. The approximate cost of the dwellings will be $50,040, of the barns and garages, $1,190; of the alterations, $35,200, and of the brick building, $35,000, making a total approximate cost of $121,430.

MINOR MATTERS FOR COUNCIL MEMBERS

Will Comply With Mosquito Commission Request—Many Lights Wanted.

The Councilmanic street committee, through a resolution offered by Councilman F. J. Blatz, and adopted at the August meeting of the Common Council, last night, was authorized to comply with the request of the Union County Mosquito Commission in abating the nuisance at West Front street and Rock avenue, where it is alleged that swamp conditions allow mosquitos to breed. The resolution carried with it an appropriation of $100 to cover the expense of the work.

Jacob B. Bauer, county engineer, offered to sell the city a county map for $25, but as ther is a similar map in the street commissioner's office the offer was refused.

Rev. C. H. Mallery, rector of the Church of the Heavenly Rest, petitioned for two lights, one on West Fourth street, between Clinton avenue and Bergen street and another on Clinton avenue, between West Fourth street and Astor place.

The Public Service Corporation informed the Council that it had installed two lights on Cedarbrook road and removed one light on West Front street, as directed.

Communications were received from the Plainfield Development Company asking that a section now known as West Ninth street be changed to Stelle avenue, where it runs through property owned by the company; also that Stelle avenue, between Grant and Hobart avenues, which has been improved, be accepted. Both communications were referred to the street committee.

Jacob Sachar petitioned for lights on Girard avenue and Sachar place, where he has recently erected several new houses. This was referred to the light committee.

Mayor Percy H. Stewart appointed Edgar Dunn poundmaster for the balance of the year and the appointment was confirmed. Overseer-of-the-Poor H. L. DeForest reported expenses of $686.81 for the past month. A communication from the Columbia Knickerbocker Company, of New York, in reference to the $27,000 street improvement bonds was filed, as was also the agreement between the city and VanZandt & Voorhees relative to the furnishing of supplies for the fire department.

Street Commissioner A. J. Gavett reported the granting of 28 sewer permits last month. Horace G. Adams, clerk of the District Court, reported receipts of $169.51, expenditures of $46.88, with a balance of $122.65, which had been turned over to the city treasurer, W. F. Arnold.

Resolutions offered by Councilman C. C. Randolph and adopted, authorized the transfer of $1,500 from the general fund to the poor fund and $3,500 from the general fund to the fire fund; the borrowing of $8,000 on account of sewer extension work and the appropriation of $250 with which to purchase assessment maps for the special committee appointed by Mayor Percy H. Stewart.

Councilman P. J. Reville offered a resolution which was adopted, appropriating $40 with which to make repairs to No. 1 and 4 engine houses. Other resolutions offered by Councilman Randolph and adopted provided for a contingent fund of $15,000 for the coming year, that amount not being in excess of 1 p0er cent. of the money to be raised for taxes; $39 was ordered refunded to J. Edgar Graham on account of a sewer assessment and $25.08 was refunded to the Home Real Estate Company on account of property on Hunter avenue, the sum having been previously paid.

Deeds of Mr. and Mrs. George White and Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Sachar giving the city a perpetual right of way for a sewer, were recorded. On motion of Councilman C. C. Randolph the ordinance repealing the ordinance to widen Madison avenue, was adopted on third reading.

SOLDIERS IN FIELD DRILL

Battalion Adjutant Lieutenant A. I. Littell, of Plainfield, is kicking as usual about the noise made by the cooks of Co. K early every morning.

If the sergeants of Co. K don't stop their talking and laughing every night after taps they are liable to receive a reprimand and placed on the list of those who must remain on the camp grounds for the rest of the week.

First Sergeant George L. Apgar is displeased because he couldn't qualify higher than sharpshooter on the rifle range Monday.

Sergeant George B. Howell, the high score man of the company last year on the range, fell below his standard and is going around camp telling what he intends to do if able to get on the range Thursday.

Corporal Myrton Glover, who is in charge of the first tent, surprised the admirers of his "husky" figure Sunday night when he immerged from the sergeants' tent in company with the quartermaster sergeant, in civilian clothes. The two spent the evening with friends at Bradley Beach.

Leslie R. Fort, of the Plainfield Daily Press, was a visitor on Sunday with the boys in camp.

Corporal August Kmosko and his squad did police duty in the company street yesterday, and Corporal Otto Hansen and his squad performed the service this morning.

Friday night will see the members of the company on guard duty. All the men are glad to learn that they are to go on the last day.

Corporal Elmer Johnson is having his hands full with the men in his tent, but he is showing that he has the making of a good officer in him.

Lieutenant A. R. Phillips and Quarter Master Sergeant James A. Thompson reported for their first practice on the State team on the 600 yard range yesterday.

Co. M, of Somerville, spent Monday morning drilling as skirmishers and the afternoon in practice of fire control inattacks as skirmishers. The men of the company are all well and are enjoying the excellent bathing afforded by the surf in the rear of the camp. Today the company with the rest of the battalion are working on the rifle range.

WILSON OUTLINES POLICY IN MEXICO

Fighting Must Cease and Both Sides Agree.

HUERTA WILL HAVE TO GO

Following Dismissal of Ambassador Wilson, Former Governor Lind of Minnesota Is Designated by President to Act as Mediator For Republic.

Washington, Aug. 5.—Following the acceptance of the resignation of Henry Lane Wilson as ambassador to Mexico John Lind, former governor of Minnesota, was sent to the Mexican capital to act as adviser to the American embassy and in that capacity to attempt to carry out the policy of President Wilson's administration, the first definite intimations regarding which came out last night.

These two announcements came from the state department in rapid succession and put a new complexion on the Mexican situation.

While no authoritative information was forthcoming from the White House or the state department, the plan of the administration for bringing the Mexican troubles to an end and which ex-Governor Lind was instructed to endeavor to execute was understood to be as follows:

First.—An agreement among the contending factions for a suspension of hostilities pending the election of a constitutional president.

Second.—An effort to persuade President Huerta to retire from office and the installation of a provisional president acceptable to Huertistas and constitutionalists.

Third.—Constitutional elections for the choice of a president and congress and the establishment of a constitutional government that will be recognized by the United States.

Lind Will Study Conditions.

It is the intention of President Wilson to announce the full details of his mediation policy in a very short time. In the meantime Mr. Lind, who started for Mexico, will be endeavoring to ascertain the situation and establish relations which will aid him in the negotiations he is to undertake.

The announcement of Mr. Wilson's resignation was made by Secretary Bryan in this statement, after a conference with the ambassador:

Ambassador Wilson's resignation has been accepted, to take effect Oct. 14. The part which he felt it his duty to take in the earlier stages of the recent revolution in Mexico would make it difficult for him to represent the views of the present administration in view of the situation which now exists.

The ambassador in the ordinary practice is entitled to sixty days' leave, exclusive of Sundays, which accounts for the fixing of the date of Oct. 14 in the announcement.

The announcement of ex-Governor Lind's mission was made in this official statement:

Ex-Governor John Lind of Minnesota has been sent to Mexico as the personal representative of the president to act as adviser to the embassy in the present situation. When the president is ready to communicate with the Mexican authorities as to the restoration of peace he will make public his views. Governor and Mrs. Lind departed for Mexico over the Southern railway at 4:35 this afternoon by way of New Orleans or Galveston.

NEWPORT TO BE SIMPLER.

Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish Says That That Tendency Is Growing.

Newport, R. I., Aug. 5.—An effort is being made to change the old and elaborate style of entertainments here, according to reports heard in the summer colony. It has been said that many visitors kept away from Newport because of the elaborateness of the social affairs.

Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish when asked about the demand for less expensive affairs said:

"I favor strongly the simple entertainments and gave the ball last Friday evening for precisely that reason. The ball cost a great deal less than the newspapers said it did. There is a growing tendency here to give entertainments of the less costly type."

TO HUNT FOR INDICTMENTS.

Hennessy Says That Will Be Chief Object In Department Inquiry.

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 5.—"Our chief object will be to get indictments," said John A. Hennessy concerning his plans for conducting investigations into various state departments by direction of Governor Sulzer. Mr. Hennessy said he had not yet engaged counsel because of lack of funds, but he expects to begin public hearings on Aug. 11. He declined to say which department will be probed first.

ARREST NURSE FOR MURDER OF DOCTOR

Young Woman Posed as Wife of Physician.

Utica, N. Y., Aug. 5.—Charged with the murder of Dr. Stanley E. Tron, a brilliant young physician of Utica, formerly connected with the Lying In hospital in New York city, Miss Emma E. Krill, a professional nurse who had posed as the physician's wife, was brought here from Cornwall-on-the-Hudson. The young woman was hysterical, having fainted when placed under arrest.

Detectives have been working on the case since the sudden death of Dr. Tron on June 22. His death was then declared to be suicide, but suspicious circumstances caused an investigation which resulted in the arrest of the young woman at Cornwall.

At the time of the autopsy Dr. Tron and Miss Krill were supposed to be man and wife, having met at the hospital where they were employed in New York. The coroner's investigation revealed the fact that they were not married, but no evidence was adduced to show that Dr. Tron had been murdered. Analyzation of his stomach showed that he had taken morphine, but the young woman was not held, as she insisted that they had been happy together, the physician having promised to marry her. She said that he had threatened several times to go back to Italy, but she induced him to remain.

When Dr. Tron came to Utica he began practice among the Italians of the city, but found some difficulty in making his work lucrative. Miss Krill insisted that he was not discouraged, however, and that he was looking forward to the future with a great deal of anticipation.

WILSON WON'T TAKE STUMP.

Will Do All His Work For Currency Bill In Washington.

Washington, Aug. 5.—The report that President Wilson has closed the doors of the White House against the Democratic members who are opposing his currency reform measure was declared at the executive offices to be utterly unfounded. It was stated that when this report was brought to the attention of the president he suggested to his informant that he was still a gentleman as well as president.

It was said also on authority that the report that the president was arranging to take the stump to arouse sentiment for his currency plan was utterly without foundation. The president has not changed his mind regarding the necessity of getting his bill through at the present session of congress.

FOUR AUTOISTS DROWNED.

Machine Leaps Bank and Plunges to River—Two Swim Ashore.

Grand Forks, N. D., Aug. 5.—Mrs. J. Johnson and her infant son and R. A. Steward and his daughter Alice were drowned in the Red River of the North, near Dayton, N. D., fifty-five miles north of here, according to information received here, when the driver of the automobile in which they were riding lost control of the machine and went over the river bank.

John Anderson, the driver, and J. Johnson, husband of one of the women drowned, swam ashore.

WATSON IGNORES MULHALL CHARGE

Tells Senate Committee Case Is Prejudged.

ASKS FOR TRIAL IN COURT

Former Representative Refuses to Appear Before Probers—Senator Townsend Denies That He Ever Talked With "Self Confessed Corruptionist."

Washington, Aug. 5.—In a letter to the senate lobby committee in which he referred to published statements by Senators Overman, Reed and Walsh, James E. Watson, formerly representative from Indiana, charged that the Democrats of the committee have prejudged the case made out by Martin Mulhall against the National Association of Manufacturers without hearing the other side. He declined to appear before the committee, saying it would be useless.

"I much prefer," he said, "to take my case to another court."

Robert McCarter, attorney for the National Association of Manufacturers, faced the committee with a vigorous objection to the same statements. Mr. Overman and Senator Reed declared there was nothing in the interviews which could be taken as indicating that they had prejudged the case.

Denies Mulhall's Testimony.

Senator Townsend flatly denied Mulhall's testimony that he had talked with him and characterized Mulhall as a "self acknowledged corruptionist."

The senator went through the record and, picking out letters in which his name appeared, denied in detail Mulhall's testimony that he had conferred with him.

"This man was personally offensive to me," said the senator in conclusion. "Therefore I could not fail to remember if he had talked to me confidentially."

Early action by congress to provide punishment for those who impersonate members of congress or public officers "by telephone or telegraph, mail or otherwise," was promised in the senate when Senator Cummins presented a favorable report from the judiciary committee on such a bill he recently introduced.

The impersonations of Representative Palmer and Riordan and others by David Lamar were responsible for the introduction of the Cummins bill, which carries heavy fines and imprisonment as penalties.

O'GORMAN KILLS BOOM.

Makes It Clear Tammany Can't Draft Him For Mayor.

Washington, Aug. 4.—"Impossible," said Senator O'Gorman when advised that many of his friends in the senate predicted that he would eventually be the Tammany nominee for mayor of New York. "I could not accept a nomination of that kind at this time. I owe a duty to the people of New York state, which I assumed by becoming senator. It is my intention to fulfill that obligation."

It was made clear by Senator O'Gorman that under no conditions or circumstances would he accept the nomination for mayor.

CAUSE REIGN OF TERROR.

Looters Fire Bank and Stores and Draw Off Police on "Fake" Call.

Duluth, Minn., Aug. 5.—Special detectives were sent out from Duluth to join a posse of armed men who are searching the range country for a band of robbers and incendiaries who created a reign of terror in Virginia, Minn., near here.

In rapid succession the looters fired a furniture store, the State Bank of Virginia, the Duluth, Mesabe and Northern depot and the big Andrew Grandes warehouse. Just before the fires were started the police were called to the outskirts of the town by a fake telephone call.

M'ANENY WILL ACCEPT.

To Run For President of Aldermen on Fusion Ticket.

New York, Aug. 5.—Borough President McAneny announced his acceptance of the nomination for president of the board of aldermen made by the citizens' municipal committee last Friday morning.

In a statement issued shortly before midnight he declared his intention of supporting the whole ticket and asserted that in his opinion no man who has it within his power to contribute toward anti-Tammany success can fail to give all that he has of strength or ability to that end.

ANOTHER MANSION BURNED.

Police Think Women Fired the Late Sir George Newnes' Home.

London, Aug. 5.—The residence of the late Sir George Newnes at Lynton, North Devonshire, was destroyed by fire early this morning.

The police believe that the fire was set by suffragettes.

Twenty-Three Miners In Burning Pit.

Glasgow, Scotland, Aug. 5.—The Mavis Valley pit of the Cadder colliery, twelve miles from this city, caught fire and twenty-three miners are hopelessly entombed in it.

ANOTHER HAT IN THE RING.

Frank S. Katzenbach, Jr., of Trenton, who was the standard bearer of the Democratic party in the gubernatorial campaign of 1907, has thrown his hat into the ring for this year's nomination by the same party, and he has a platform which appeals. It is a declaration of principles which further emphasizes the fact that the candidate realizes that only progressives principles can expect to receive consideration by the people, and it contains planks which are really the pick of those which have been presented by others seeking the nomination in all parties. The platform means that Governor Fielder has real opposition in his own party, and gives added zest and interest to the campaign.

Briefly summarized, here is what Mr. Katzenbach would hope to see done were he nominated and elected Governor:

Extension of industrial schools.

Passage of measures to promote the health, happiness and prosperity of the home.

More efficient administration of State affairs.

The creation of a State Central Board of Control to administer the educational, charitable, penal and correctional institutions. This, Mr. Katzenbach claims, would decrease the cost of maintenance.

The establishment of a Legislative Reference Department to promote proper legislation and prevent bad and useless laws.

Modification of the laws affecting municipalities to give greater home rule and simplify municipal government.

Reform in the tax laws.

Laws and necessary constitutional amendments to enable the people to elect the principal State and county officers.

In presenting his platform, Mr. Katzenbach says that he is not the candidate of any faction in his party, and does not intend to be. He calls attention to the fact that in the campaing of 1907 he refused to make any bargains or promises "which would have emasculated my usefulness as Governor or left me fettered to any interest." That he does not feel friendly to President Wilson and his followers in the party is hinted by one statement in his discussion of the subject of direct primaries when he says: "The purpose of the direct primary is to permit the voters of a party to make their own selection of candidates without dictation or coercion from any party boss or party leader."

In a pre-primary campaign it is the belief of the Daily Press that a newspaper should do all it can to bring about the nomination by all parties of progressive, honest, straightforward candidates. That assures a good Governor no matter who may win. Up to the present time, practically all of the candidates who have declared themselves in all three major parties are good men, this being especially so in the case of Colby in the Progressive, Pierce in the Republican and Katzenbach and Fielder in the Democratic. With any of these men in office the State is assured an efficient and competent chief executive.

At the present time political forecasters say that there is "nothing to it but Fielder," who has the backing of President Wilson and also the advantage of being Governor. The Progressive party is rapidly gaining strength and the Republican party cannot hope to win anything unless a union can be brought about with the new party formed last summer. If both should get together, they would have a chance to elect a Governor, but until they do it looks like a Democrat and his name is Fielder.

Company K is to be congratulated on the splendid showing its members made when the State team to compete for the National Rifle Trophy was chosen. To have three men selected from this city out of 4,000 members of the National Guard is something to be proud of. There are eighteen members and substitutes on the team, and of these twelve will compete to hold up the good name of New Jersey. Here's hoping that the three Plainfield citizen soldiers will be in the lucky dozen.

Judging from the news reports from Narragansett Pier a whole lot of people there are wishing that they had kept their real jewelry in the vaults in New York, and used the imitation stuff during the summer months.

After all, there is no better summer resort in August than Plainfield. It is all well enough to go away in July, but August is no worse here than anywhere else.

WILL COMPEL SONS TO SUPPORT FATHERS

The Dunellen Council at its meeting last night, instructed Corporation Counsel Jude Rene F. von Minden, to start suit against Michael Cronin, of North Plainfield, to compel them to contribute to the support of their fathers, who have become public charges. Cronin lives on Somerset street and works for Harry Pasch, a butcher. He was married less than a year ago to Miss Laura Kirch, daughter of Freeholder George Kirch, of the borough.

The council transacted considerable routine business and adopted resolutions in conection with the proposed joint sewerage system to be constructed by this city, North Plainfield and Dunellen, with a disposal bed at the Darling farms, Midlesex county. Considerable discussion was carried on regarding the protest and active preparations are being made by the citizens of the Borough of Middlesex, against the establishment of the sewer bed in that municipality.

A petition was presented asking that the borough issue orders compelling property owners to lay sidewalks on both sides of Walnut street, from New Market road to the intersection of Walnut street and Washington avenue. No action was taken.

UNION COUNTY ELECTION BOARD MET TO ORGANIZE

The Union County Board of Elections met this morning in the County Courthouse at Elizabeth to organize for election work as provided for in the Geran law, and the following officers were selected: Chairman, Fred Zior, of Elizabeth; secretary, George J. Stewart, of Elizabeth; clerk, Peter Tillman, of Rahway; sergeant at arms, Oliver Coulin, of Elizabeth.

Following the meeting Judge McAdams was summoned before the Board and was presented with a set of resolutions commenting on his work during his term of office in a commendable way. The Board will meet again on August 18, to draw the names which will compose the district boards, a certified list of those who passed the civil service examinations for the County Election Boards having been turned over to them yesterday.

FRIEND PAYS HIS FINE.

Martin Muldowney, of West Front street, was sentenced to pay a fine of $5 or spend 20 days in the county jail by Mayor Stewart in the city court, yesterday, when arraigned on a charge of intoxication. A friend from among the court spectators, however, stepped forward and paid his fine.

FINED FOR DISTURBANCE.

Daniel Harleston and Mrs. Lotty Parson, both colored, of West Second street, were fined $5 each yesterday afternoon by Mayor Stewart when arraigned in the city court on a disorderly conduct charge preferred by Mrs. Parson's son-in-law.

A PERIODICAL OFFENDER.

William . Sanderson, of 305 Madison avenue, following his evidently annual custom, was arrested last night for being intoxicate. He has been arrested once each year for a similar offense since 1906. The Mayor suspended sentence.

DR. EATON TO PREACH.

Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Bennett, together with Mr. and Mrs. Gausevoort VanAlstyne, have returned home after spending several weeks at Manasquan.

James F. Buckle, Jr., of Westervelt avenue, has resigned his position at the North End Hotel, Ocean Grove, and returned to this city.

Miss Clara Hann, of Somerset place, is spending her vacation of two weeks in Hunterdon county.

Dr. E. Metler Davis, organist of the Crescent Avenue church, is spending his vacation in Europe.

VARIETIES OF CREEKS.

To Get an Idea of Their Range Just Study California Names.

The "Gazetteer of the Surface Waters of California," prepared by the United States geological survey, shows many curious similarities in nomenclature, common and favorite names having been given to different streams and lakes by the early settlers, who christen most of the natural features in new countries.

Such characteristic pioneer names as Deadman creek and Deadman Canyon creek are applied to five different streams; in the area covered by the report there are ten Dry creeks, two Humbug creeks, two Jackass creeks, five Lion and Lion Canyon creeks, five "Lost" streams and two Mad rivers. Bear, Bear Canyon and Bear Trap are applied to thirty-six different water bodies, and there are five Grizzly creeks.

There are fifteen Coyote water bodies, two Wildcat, one Cat and two Gatos (Cat, Spanish) creeks; one Skunk creek, nine Deer creeks, one Rabbit, two Quail, two Dog and one Scorpion creek.

There are also ten Devil and two Diablo creeks, but the saints, male and female (San and Santa), cover a dozen pages of the gazetteer. There is also a Poison creek, with a dozen Snake and Rattlesnake creeks. The fish are represented in a page full of Eel rivers, several Fish creeks and one Sardine creek.

OUR INSECT ENEMIES.

Whole Nations Have Been Weakened by These Perilous Foes.

Our instinct to kill insects is perfectly sound. Out of the 250,000 species now known to science a mere handful are even remotely helpful to man, and most of these only by their power of living upon other and more dangerous insects. On the other hand, thousands of species are actively hostile to man, to his food plants and to his domestic animals.

Whole tribes have been swept out of existence by the attack of insects carrying bacilli—as within the last two decades in central Africa, by the dread "sleeping sickness" carried by the tsetse fly. Whole nations have been weakened and crippled and whole civilizations retarded by another insect borne disease, malaria.

Indeed, recent investigators have advanced the theory that the historic decline of both Greece and Rome was largely due to the ravages of this disease, brought into Europe by armies returning from wars in Asia and Africa. It may yet come, when we see things in their true perspective, that the warriors of civilized nations will turn from slaughtering one another to battling against our insect enemies.—Dr. Woods Hutchinson in "Common Diseases."

Getting Up Speed.

"Well, George," said a Georgia man not long ago to an old negro in his employ, "I understand that you intend to give your son an education."

"Dat's my intention, suh," responded George. "I knows myself what 'tis to struggle along widout learnin', an' I has determined my son ain't goin' to have no sich trouble as I's had."

"Is your son learning rapidly?"

"He shore is, sah. Las' week he done wrote a lettah to his aunt what lives more'n twenty miles from yere, an' aftwhile he's goin' to write to his aunt dat lives 'bout fifty miles from yere."

"Why doesn't he write to that aunt now?" smilingly asked the employer.

"He kaint write so fur yit, sah. He kin write twenty miles fust rate, but I tole him not to try fifty miles till he gits strongah wif his pen."—Chicago Record-Herald.

COUNTY DEMOCRATS ORGANIZE A LEAGUE

Mayor Stewart Recommended for Chairman of Organization to Boom Fielder.

Following the first decisive step taken to launch the Fielder boom in Union County which was opened when the general call was issued to Democrats to meet in the Elks' Club house, Elizabeth, last night, an organization was effected at this conference which will be known as the Fielder League of Union County and will have as its chief object, the booming of James F. Fielder for the nomination for the Governor of New ersey.

The nomination committee returned a set of recommendations at last night's meeting suggesting the following appointees to positions in the league's executive staff: For chairman, Percy H. Stewart, of this city, for vice-president, Mayor Thomas A. Fyffe, of Rahway; Miller H. Morris, of Roselle; and William Tenniston, of Cranford, for treasurer; Frank Pfaff, of Elizabeth; for secretary, Robert DeCamp, of Westfield. It also recommended that an executive committee constituting of the officers and five other members be given authority to take charge of the league's interests in the county.

BOARD OF TRADE IS NOT ON A VACATION

At Least President Jeffery Says That the Civic Body Is Watching All.

Following the agitation started by the Plainfield Board of Trade advocating a "cealing up" of Tier's pond and the streams that enter into and flow out of it, the local Board of Health which was served with an open letter by the civic organization requesting them to "get busy" and notify people responsible for the filthy conditions that exist to remedy the same and thus make it safe for human hibitation, a portion of the mill race has been cleaned out and made sanitary, but the work once more appears to be at a standstill, and the debris which was cleared away is being replaced by more. When interviewed this morning on the subject the health authorities said that they had done all in their power to make conditions better and were having notices printed which would be placed in prominent places near the brook, in an effort to stop residents in that section from disposing of their waste materoals in the waters of the stream, thus causing a thick, disease breeding scum to be formed.

President William Jeffery, of the Board of Trade, announced this afternoon that the matter was still being pushed and the slightest "let up" in the cleaning process would be investigated. "While portions of the brook have been noticeably rid of debris," he said, "there is still a large amount of work that the Board of Health could do if properly enlightened on the subject of sanitation." In speaking of the conditions Mr. Jeffery said: "The Plainfield Board of Health is absolutely powerless and if the present incumbents cannot supervise the health conditions of the city they ought to be ousted and new ones placed in their positions." When told that the Board was at a loss how to further progress with the work Mr. Jeffery ridiculed the statement and said that ther was still a mountain of work for a good live health board to accomplish in the "cleaning-up" campaign.

THIRTY-SEVENTH ANNUAL CONVENTION OF K. OF C.

The thirty-seventh annual convention of the supreme council of the Knights of Columbus opened today at Boston, with delegates present from every State in the Union as well as Canada, Mexico, Cuba, Porto Rica and the Philippines. Those representing New Jersey are supreme warden, Thomas J. McLaughlin, of Newark; State Deputy Edward J. Sweeney, of Bayonne; Past State Deputy Cornelius A. McGlennon, of East Newark; John J. Marnell, of Hoboken; T. M. O'Connell, of Burlington, and William L. Doyle, of Trenton.

A parade of fourth degree members took place last night. A solemn high mass was celebrated at the Cathedral of the Holy Cross this morning.

LIGHTING PLAN PLEASES BOARD OF TRADE HEAD

William Jeffery, president of the Board of Trade, in commenting today on the action of the Common Council in deciding to improve the city street lighting system, said that he was much pleased with the action of the members, adding that he believed that a big step had been taken in the matter.

"While we did not get all that we hoped for," said Mr. Jeffery, "we are gratified that the Council has made a move in the right direction and feel that it will be only a question of time when Plainfield will be one of the best lighted cities in the State. I for one want to congratulate the members of the Council for what they did last night."

PROCTOR'S FINE SHOW.

Proctor's bill this week offers a clever program of vaudeville stars, including the telegraph boys and girls in their musical comedy, "Fun in a Telegraph Office," with special scenery, beautiful changes of costumes, funny comedians, pretty girls and catchy music. Faust and Faust, musical comedians, are especially clever and they please the kiddies. Belle and Jones, a musical comedy team, offer classy songs and eccentric dances. The Hawkins, pantomime silhouettes, have an exceptional act, a distinct novelty. There are four subjects marvelous in detail. A new act will be here today in place of "Furnished Rheumatism," which did not please. Good photo plays are included in the bill.

WOMAN IN TROUBLE.

"I've touched the Bible for the last time," said Elizabeth Smith, of Somerville, to Patrolman Mernagh, when the latter took the oath previous to testifying against her this morning in the city court. The prisoner was arrested yesterday for acting disorderly at the circus grounds. After telling a long "hard-luck" story to Mayor Stewart, who occupied the bench, the city executive discharged the woman and gave her carfare to leave town.

GAS IS THE FUEL FOR SUMMER USE

When the weather is hot the housewife is anxious to escape artificial heat. The real thing is bad enough.

She is also desirous of making her household work as light as possible.

Gas as a fuel will help both ways. It creates no unnecessary heat and causes no dust or dirt. Neither does it make it necessary to be "filling the stove" every little while.

With a gas range and a gas water heater there is Comfort and Economy.

We can equip any home for comparatively little money. Small monthly payments accepted.

MRS. LAIMBEER.

Auto Crash Victim May Live, but Beauty Is Gone.

William Laimbeer died in the Mercy hospital at Hempstead, N. Y., the third victim of the train and automobile collision at Long Beach on Sunday night in which S. Osgood Pell, the real estate man, and his young French chauffeur were instantly killed. Mrs. Laimbeer, who was in the car with her husband, Mr. Pell and the chauffeur, is expected to live. She lies in a darkened balcony room of the Hotel Nassau at Long Beach. The beauty which made her noted in Newport in her girlhood is destroyed. When she recovers one leg will be shorter than the other. Her left kneecap has been torn off. Her right leg is broken in two places and will shorten in healing. Across her forehead is a great gash. He underlip is deeply cut in a V shape. There will be big scars on her face the rest of her life, physicians said yesterday.

WAR GAME FLEET IN ATTACK ON NEW YORK

Theoretical Destruction of Fortifications Is Begun.

Newport, R. I., Aug. 5.—Eleven battleships, the most powerful fighting craft in the United States navy, steamed out of Narragansett bay in a long line bent on the theoretical destruction of the fortifications guarding Long Island sound. The purpose of the black fleet was to open the way to the ultimate capture of New York city.

The fighting craft, led by Rear Admiral Charles J. Badger's flagship, the Wyoming, were soon lost to sight in a haze which hung low over the bay. The low hanging clouds and threatening weather conditions helped to conceal the movements of the fleet from the army which is manning the coast defenses along the sound.

Seven auxiliary vessels left a few days ago and the vanguard of the attacking squadron, twenty destroyers and five submarines, put to sea Sunday. The detailed campaign of the naval commanders is carefully guarded, but each vessel has been assigned a definite part in the attack. About 13,000 officers and men of the navy are engaged. The real test, however, is for the army in its work of defense. The decisions of the umpires will not be made public.

Major General Thomas H. Barry, commanding the department of the east, established headquarters at Fort Wright, the point which will bear the brunt of the attack.

The coast artillery officers who are to act as observers were taken aboard a navy tug at Fort Wright and joined the fleet at its secret rendezvous. This is the only feature of the maneuvers that would never be duplicated in actual warfare. These observers are sent on board the vessels of the fleet to watch the coast artillery forces in action and to determine with their trained eyes the defects that may exist in the coast defenses.

TENANTS STILL LIVE IN CONDEMNED HOUSE

Some Have Not Complied With the Board of Health's Order to Move.

Having found the apartments located from 300 to 314 Arlington avenue "unfit for human habitation," the local Board of Health issued a notice to the tenants occupying the apartments to vacate the condemned house within ten days after July 17 last, but as yet some of the families effected have taken no action as far as moving their belongings to some other portion of the city, is concerned. This was the second order issued by the health offifficer, the first one having been lifted after the owner had promised to better the existing conditions, but when the latter took no action within a specified length of time the notices were once more served.

Randolph Chandler, head of the health department, placed a printed notice on each one of the apartments on July 17 and when the specified ten days were up but few of the families had conformed to the law. The limit ended on July 27 and the fact that some of the families are still existing on the condemned premises where there is no potent water supply and toilet facilities are lacking seems to denote a laxity in authority somewhere. When interviewed this morning, the Health Board representative said that the people were being given a reasonable length of time to get out and if they did not take advantage of the extension of time accorded them would be put out.

The Misses Edith V. Allen and Josephine C. Peterson, of West Fourth street, have returned from Asbury Park, where they have been enjoying their vacation for the past two weeks.

How to Stock the Kitchen.

Many young housekeepers stock their kitchens with whatever strikes their fancy, and find, to their sorrow, that they lack the most necessary utensils. Others base their list of utensils needed on the kitchens of big houses, fitted out in days gone by, and find that they possess many articles which they will never possibly need. Here is a list of requirements of a moderate-sized kitchen in the present day; and even if you are not a young housekeeper just starting out you may like to compare your kitchen's supplies with the list and from time to time add to it—either the list or the kitchen—as you see fit.

Metal Ware.

Your metal ware can be tin, granite, enamel or aluminum. You should have four saucepans, two of the one-quart size, one two quart and one four-quart. The large one is for soup and big pieces of boiled meat, and can be of iron. The smaller ones are for vegetables and stews. There should be two double boilers, one, two or three-quart size, and one five quart. Then there should be two or three little saucepans for warming things over and for making sauces. One frying pan, a coffee pot and a tea kettle complete the supplies for the top of the stove.

For the oven there should be a dripping pan for meat, a shallow, square cake tin, two or three bread tins, three layer-cake tins, three pie plates, a set of tins for muffins and patty cakes and a couple of baking dishes for puddings, meat pies and vegetables served au gratin or scalloped.

There should be a soup ladle, a jelly mould, a colander, a wire sieve, a graduated quart measure and a graduated cup measure, a broiler, if there is not a gas oven fitted with one, and, if possible, a casserole.

The wooden ware should include a chopping bowl, a moulding board, a cutting board for bread and another for meat, a rolling pin, a couple of wooden spoons and either butter paddles of a little mould to form dainty prints of butter.

There should be two or three mixing bowls and a couple of smaller ones in which to whip eggs, a chopping knife, a corkscrew, a nutmeg grater and a lemon squeezer, a can opener, an apple corer, a flour sieve, a meat knife, a bread knife, two knives for peeling vegetables, a couple of mixing spoons a skimmer, a cake turner, a cake or cookie cutter, a vegetable presser, an egg beater, a meat fork, a bread crock or box, an ice pick, a dish pan, a soap shaker and a hanging dish for soap, a wire dish cloth, a sink brush, and a dish mop. There should be suitable boxes for salt and spices and dry groceries, and a garbage pail and a wire receptacle to hold refuse in the sink. A dish pan and a wire draining rack complete a simple but adequate kitchen outfit.

No; for there must be "kitchen" china. But it is pitiable bride, indeed, who cannot beg old dishes with which to fit her kitchen, dishes good enough to use for storing things in refrigerator or pantry.

HELPFUL WAYS.

Kerosene an Excellent Cleanser—Care of Gas Stove.

A housekeeper who prides herself on her excellent management gives the following secret of dusting: She always dips her dusters in paraffin oil after washing them and says it is really astonishing to find how much more effective they are.

This is only one of the numerous uses to which she puts kerosene. A kerosene soaked rag removes all of the grease from the kitchen sink and leaves it bright and shining. In the same way her stove is kept clean.

In speaking of stoves it is worth mentioning here that vaseline is considered an excellent substitute for blackening for the gas range. After work on the range has been finished for the day a rag greased with vaseline should be rubbed over the range inside and out. If this is done while it is still warm, the gas having been turned off, the effect is most satisfactory.

Valuable Laundry Hints.

Never put things out of hot starch through rubber wringers. It injures the rollers.

A new stiff brush makes the best sprinkler for dampening clothes—better even than a tin salt sprinkler.

Before washing lace curtains tack a strip of muslin along their outer edges and let it remain until they are dry, and you will thus avoid the usual trouble of sagging. Rubber rollers may be cleaned by rubbing them with a rag dipped in parrafin.

The water in which rice has been boiled may be saved and used to stiffen small articles. This is worth noting by the bachelor girl who does her own cooking and also washes her own muslin collars, etc. These muslin collars, she should also remember, must be thoroughly dried before being put away or they will turn limp again. To these may be added many scraps of valuable information for use in the kitchen.

To Clean Oilcloth.

Oilcloth may be cleaned and brightened by washing with clear water in which a little borax has been dissolved. Wipe with flannel that has been dipped into milk and wrung as dry as possible, or lukewarm water applied with a scrubbing brush will answer equally well, with a final polish with a woolen cloth wrung out of skim milk. To clean paint provide a plate with some best quality of whiting and have ready some clean warm water and piece of flannel, which dip into the water and squeeze nearly dry; then take as much whiting as will adhere to the painted surface, when a little rubbing will instantly remove any dirt or grease; then wash the part well with clean water, rubbing it dry with a chamois.

Some Cookery Suggestions

IN WATERMELON SEASON.

MELONS, large, ripe and juicy, are with us again. Of these the watermelon is one of the most wholesome.

There are several attractive ways of serving watermelon. One is to take iced melon and slice across it to the depth of about an inch. Remove the rind and cut the solid pulp into cubes, diamonds or fancy shapes. Place the pieces in a salad bowl or individual dishes, sprinkle with powdered sugar and serve at once.

Fancy Ways of Serving.

Another way of serving the melon is to cut crosswise in inch slices, take off the rind and serve the heart of the slices sprinkled with sugar.

To serve the melon in the shape of a basket tie a string round the middle of the fruit; then, beginning at the top of the melon, cut it to the string, allowing a strip an inch wide to remain. Take out the cut section and remove the seeds and strings. Cut the pulp into small sections, place on ice and serve with the pulp in the basket and sprinkled with sugar.

Watermelon Salad.—Perfectly ripe melons are delicious for salads when cut in cubes and served alone or with other fruits such as peaches or bananas. Tomatoes may be used. Serve with mayonnaise plain or flavored or French dressing to which has been added a suspicion of maraschino or serve with whipped cream.

Served in Sherbet Glasses.

Watermelon Sherbet.—From the red pulp of a melon save the juice and sufficient pulp to flavor. Take one gallon of the liquid to a pound of sugar and freeze. When half frozen add the whipped whites of four eggs and finish the freezing. Serve in sherbet glasses.

Watermelon Frappe.—Break the ripe pulp of a watermelon into tiny pieces with a silver fork and place it in an ice cream freezer without the dasher. Let it stand for two hours packed in salt and ice. Serve in sherbet glasses.

Watermelon Honey. — Crush and strain the red pulp of a watermelon. Cook it with the seeds and strain, cooking again till it is quite thick. It should be boiled down until three quarts of red pulp make about one-fifth of a pint of honey. Cool the honey. A little lemon juice and sugar may be added, and then it should be bottled like grape juice.

CANDY KID IS CUTE.

Marshmallows, Raisins and Almonds Held Together by Toothpicks.

Isn't this the cutest little candy kid you ever saw? He's the product of the fertile brain of a Vassar girl, who first made his like for a midnight "spread." The little fellow illustrated and twelve of his kind served recently as favors at a little girl's party.

How do you make him? The easiest thing imaginable. Get a goodly supply of strong toothpicks, some large.

THE CANDY KID.

fat raisins, marshmallows, almonds and figs. Then you are ready for the Frankenstein trick, making a man.

It is best to begin on the legs and arms first, and to make the legs stick two of the raisins on two toothpicks and to the ends of each pick place an almond for feet. The arms are made in the same way, except for the hands the almonds are blanched. Now run two marshmallows through a tooth pick for the man's body and head—he hasn't any neck.

Have ready some melted chocolate, dip an orange stick in the mixture and with it make large blotches for buttons on his coat, and use the same brown mixture for his features, which you see are as grotesque as possible. Now attach arms and legs to the body, and when a fig has been rakishly placed on his head for a hat the little manikin is ready for the party.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

A Little Bunny Brother For the Silvertoe Kittens.

The Cat and the Rabbit.

DADDY had admired Tabby's kittens as much as Jack and Evelyn demanded. They certainly were handsome babies, fat and pink nosed, with soft, silk fur that was very much like Tabby's own gray coat.

"I must tell you a funny story about a cat," daddy said as they put the kittens back into the basket, where Tabby liked to keep them.

"Mistress Silvertoes had a family of fine kittens. They were gray, with white feet like their mother, and she thought they were the handsomest kittens in the world.

"Mistress Silvertoes warmed them and cuddled them and fed them, running in the greatest alarm to the box in the barn, where she kept them, should one of the little things begin to cry.

"One morning Mistress Silvertoes went out into the woods to pick up a nice mole or wood mouse for her breakfast. She was fond of these dainties and knew a clump of the woods where they could be caught.

"As she slipped through the grass, making as little noise as possible, she heard a pattering among the grass. Peeping in the bushes she saw a little brown figure hopping along very slowly.

"It was a dear little baby rabbit, lost or strayed from home, and it never dreamed that the bogieboo of little rabbits, a hungry cat, was right behind it.

"Mistress Silvertoes picked the rabbit up in her mouth, intending to take it home and show it to the kittens. They had not their eyes opened yet, but they could at least sniff the rabbit.

"As she trotted along the little rabbit cried in a soft little voice very much as the kittens sometimes cried. Mistress Silvertoes began to wonder if the rabbit would taste so good after all. She felt sorry for the little thing. Lest she hurt it she carried it very carefully by the back of its neck, just as she was in the habit of carrying the kittens.

"Once she put it down, and it did not run away. She licked it gently with her warm, pink tongue. The rabbit seemed to like this.

"Then she picked it up again and hurried to the box in the barn. The kittens were wailing for some more supper or dinner or luncheon, I don't know exactly which it was. It's hard to keep track of kitten meals anyway.

"Mistress Silvertoes had made up her mind. She dropped the rabbit right into the box. And then she meowed:

"'My dears, here I've brought another little brother home for you!'

"And, sure enough, Mrs. Silvertoes and all the Silvertoe kittens adopted that little rabbit right into their family. And he lived with them as happily as could be until he was old enough to hop off into the woods by himself."

The Separate Coat Blouse, and the Practical One-piece Frock.

There never was such an economical fashion as that of the coat peplum blouse that one can make of a material contracting with the skirt. And it gives a perfectly fine chance to freshen up and wear out separate skirts. If you want to utilize some short lengths of material, combine Nos. 7016 and 7890, making the blouse of old blue moire, or charmeuse, with white crepe de chine, charmeuse or eponge for the skirt. If you want something a little cheaper and more practical, something you can wear to little outings or shopping, or the morning tramp in the country, make the coat blouse of ant ruby, or Copenhagen blue ratine, with a skirt of black and white stripe ratine, or white pique or eponge. If you are going away for a short trip, a skirt of white washable corduroy would be a serviceable addition to your wardrobe, as this can be washed out, hung up when quite wet without wringing, and when almost dry, shaken out, and worn without pressing. It is not very heavy either, and certainly looks smart. Make it like 7890, with an inverted plait in front, or it could be cut on a fold and there are dart tucks in the back to take up the fullness at the waist line, and at the foot. The girdle is noticeably pretty, giving the effect of a waistcoat, in front. The blouse is in the fashionable drop-shoulder style, with a pretty collar, and surplice vest for which some contrasting fabric could be used. Patterns are in five sizes, 34 to 42 for the blouse, and 22 to 30 for the skirt. You will need 2 3-4 yards 36-inch material for the blouse, and 2 7-8 yards for the skirt in medium size.

For the young girl there is nothing more serviceable than a one-piece frock. Make it like 7888 of Alice blue, leather color, or old rose linen, or ratine, with girdle cuffs and collar of Futurist printed cotton, which comes in beautiful colorings. The tuck that marks the closing at the side-front, is repeated in the back, and besides the short sleeves illustrated, there is a full-length one included in the pattern. There are four sizes, 14 16, 17 and 18, and the girl of sixteen, will need of 36-inch material, 4 1-4 yards. Each pattern is fifteen cents.

Simple Designs for Embroidering Your Towels or Pillow Cases.

No housekeeper ever has too many huckaback towels and these long summer afternoons are just the time to replenish your household linens of this kind, for the embroidery is very simple and this kind of work is particularly suited to warm days. For every day use, large towels of 24-inch huckaback of the heaviest, coarsest quality are most practical and serviceable. This huckaback need not be the most expensive grade but it is how while, to waste one's time embroidering towels of cotton huckaback and you can get a serviceable quality of all-linen or linen and cotton mixture at a reasonable price at this time of the year. The huckaback should be cut from 36 to 38 inches long and the design should be stamped about an inch from each end, so that you will have a little surplice material to hold it in the frame while doing this embroidery. Both these designs are very simple and easy to work and they may be developed in No. 16 or No. 20 mercerized cotton in white, blue or brown. The scallops should be well padded with stitches running lengthwise, then covered with close, firm buttonhole-stitch so that the threads of the material will not fray out when the towel is laundered.

A three-inch initial or a monogram of two-inch letters may be placed two inches above the design on one end of each towel. These patterns may also be used for embroidering pillow-cases, bureau covers and smaller towels. The pattern includes transfers for stamping both ends of two towels. Transfer patterns for stamping these designs can be supplied to readers at 10 cents each.

ANOTHER $11,000 BEAUTY.

Another high-priced minor leaguer who is already to join O'Toole, Marquard, Chappell and others in the galaxy of expensive baseball material is Johnny Williams, the kingpin pitcher of the Sacramentoes of the Pacific Coast League. It cannot be denied the Sacramento people are rather modest in their attitude, for they are asking a mere bagatelle of $12,000 for Williams. But that is $1,000 more than the Giants gave for the Rube.

ANOTHER NEW CUB.

Chicago, August 5.—The Chicago Nationals yesterday purchased Outfielder Charles Stewart from the Indianapolis American Association Club. Stewart is to report to the local club at the end of the week. The purchase price was not announced.

Queries, Comment and Answers

Sporting Editor:
Query—Is there any extra value placed on a 25c piece of 1858?
X. Y. Z.
Answer—No, your coin is worth its face value and nothing more.

Sporting Editor:
Query—What is the value of a quarter dated 1854? C. C. M.
Answer—Twenty-five cents.

Sporting Editor:
Query—Kindly state the value of a $5.00 gold piece dated 1809, and also a $3.00 one dated 1878? S. A.
Answer—The $5.00 coin is worth $5.25, but the second one is worth just $3.00. If your $3.00 gold piece was dated 1875 or 1876 it would be worth $5.00. Hard luck, old man.

Sporting Editor:
Query—Are revenue stamps, pasted on cigarette boxes, redeemable?
V. G.
Answer—They are not.

Sporting Editor:
Query—I have an auto license of 1912. Would I have to take another examination to renew same?
T. D.
Answer—No, not if you have taken a previous examination.

Sporting Editor:
Query—I have in my possession some twenty-five coins. Where can I secure the premiums on all?
C. F.
Answer—Bring your bank roll to the office and we'll tell you all about them.

Sporting Editor:
Query—What newspapers are printed in Asbury Park? G. H.
Answer—The Coast Advertiser, Press, Journal and Shore Press.

Sporting Editor:
Query—Why is Pitcher Wiltse kept on the Giant's payroll?
F. A. N.
Answer—Because, F. A. N., that's why, just because.

Sporting Editor:
Query—A claims that Rockaway Beach is located northeast of Coney Island and B claims that it is southeast of the same place, who is right?
V. L. M.
Answer—B is correct.

Sporting Editor:
Query—Is a base runner out in this play at first base? With one man out the batter hits an infield fly to the shortstop. Batter stops running but did not turn around. The coach yelled to him to run it out. The shortstop held the ball and then threw to first base after the runner crossed first base. In the meantime the man on third base ran home. The umpire called the man going to first out. Is that right? A. E. R.
Answer—Your question is not clearly put. You say the shortstop held the ball. Did he catch it on the fly? If so, the runner was out. It was not an "infield fly," however, and the batsman had to be retired by a fielder. He was clearly out if the shortstop caught the ball on the fly. Otherwise he was safe. The runner had a right to score from third after the ball was caught or muffed.

RANDOLPH NOT A LEAGUER.

Rumor had it in these parts yesterday that Cliff Randolph, the star pitcher of the Plainfield Central New Jersey League baseball team, had been signed by the New York American League Club. Frank Chance having attended the game at Olympic Park Sunday and was impressed by the local youngster's work that he offered him a contract. The rumor cannot be confirmed, however, and Randolph will probably be a local favorite for some time to come.

YALE MAN WINS PLACE.

Lawn tennis class was served as well as youth when Alrick H. Man, Jr., the leader of the Yale forces, won his place in the semi-final round of the New York State championship tournament on the courts of the Crescent Athletic Club at Bay Ridge Sunday. In the same manner the open brackets in the fifth round were filled, Frederick C. Inman, the former holder of the title; S. Howard Voshell and Frederick C. Baggs coming through as the victors.

CHANCE STILL BOLSTERING.

Two new players reported to Manager Frank Chance of the Yankees yesterday. They are First Baseman Williams, of Galveston, Texas, and Pitcher Cooney, of Butte, Mon. Cook, who is leading the Texas League in hitting, will report in a few days. Rollie Zeider, who has been in a hospital in St. Louis, reported to the Yankees yesterday, but is still hobbling about on a crutch.

TRINITY BACK IN ACTION.

After a week's vacation, the Trinity baseball players will get into action on Hope Common next Saturday afternoon where they are scheduled to take the field against the Watchung A. C. ball tossers. These two combinations have met twice before this season and on each occasion a good contest has been the issue.

MEYERS ON HOSPITAL LIST.

Big Chief Meyers, the Giant backstop, yesterday was injured in the game with the Pirates, a foul tip by Simon splitting his thumb. He may be kept out of the Giants' lineup for a week or more.

DIXIE'S CRY FOR HELP.

The Dixie Giants, successors to the Royal Colored Giants in the City League race, having lost the two contests played to date, will endeavor to bolster up their outfit next Saturday afternoon in an effort to pull off a victory in the league race and save their fast declining average. Manager Pete Simmons, of the Royals, has loaned a number of his players for the occasion and the Dixie combination is optimistic of a victory.

WILL PLAY THE RUBBER.

Manager Pete Simmons will take his Royal Colored Giants to Scotch Plains next Sunday afternoon to play the third game of the season with the Alberts' crew. Each team has now won one game to date and the coming clash will be a playoff of the existing tie.

English Tennis Crack Snapped In Match With McLoughlin.

J. C. Parke is here shown returning one of McLoughlin's lightning smashes. Parke won for England the only two matches of the Davis cup finals that America lost. He defeated McLoughlin in the first match and Williams in the final one.

SOME WONDERFUL FEATS OF THE NETHERWOOD PLAYERS

"This Sunday the Netherwoods will tackle the 'Rivals,' a fast amateur team composed of players formerly with Netherwood but who did not come up to the standard of that team and were released. A few of the stars who will play with the 'Rivals' are Luthman on first base and Moore in leftfield.

"Moore is well-known on local diamonds, where his great throwing is highly spoken of by all followers of the game. One of the most brilliant plays he ever participated in was made on Netherwood Field several weeks ago, when on a long line drive to deep field center he speared the ball in his bare hand and by a wonderful line throw got his man scrambling back to first base. Luthman is also well known, his great base running and sliding making him a terror to all catchers.

"On the defense he is a stonewall, jumping high in the air and spearing the ball with one hand or else digging them out of the dirt for pretty pickups. His most remarkable baserunning stunt was a steal of second with the bases full in a 5 to 4 game, in the last half of the ninth inning. In addition to these celebrities, a pitcher who hails from Brooklyn and heralded as a second Mathewson, will be on the mound for the Rivals."

EVERS' WORK IS O. K.

Chicago, Aug. 5—A rumor that John Evers would not be retained at the end of the present season as manager of the Chicago Nationals, was denied yesterday afternoon by President Murphy. Murphy declared that Evers' work was entirely satisfactory; that he wanted a manager of the "fighting spirit" shown by Evers, whether it was directed at umpires or players.

ROVERS LEAD BY BIG SCORE BUT LOST OUT

Wierd fielding marked the Athletics and Rovers clash on Parker Field yesterday afternoon, when the former came out on top in a game that resulted in a score of 8 to 7. Establishing a lead of 7 to 1 by scoring in the second, third and fourth stanzas, the Rovers seemed to have the game packed away and it looked like the Athletics' initial defeat in the league race, but uphill work by the league leaders tied the score in the sixth.

McDowell was wild during his stay on the hillock, walking five men and hitting two others. From the sixth through to the tenth the ball playing was somewhat better, but the Rovers infield finally blew up and threw away the game.

ENOUGH RUNS TO WIN.

More than 600 runs were scored in a little more than four hours of play in the international cricket game between the Australians and the New York Veterans, which was played Sunday at Manor Field, Staten Island. The Australians administered a crushing defeat to the New Yorkers, scoring 464 runs, against 144 made by the local team, and winning the match by a margin of 320 runs.

Friday (10:00) Parker A. C. vs. Ironsides.
Friday (1:30) Ironsides vs. Athletics.
Friday (3:30) Athletics vs. Parker A. C.

The Athletics maintained their unblemished record yesterday afternoon in the Parker Field Senior League race by taking a fall out of the Rovers by a close count of 8 to 7. The Rovers came nearer accomplishing the trick of turning the tide on the unbeatable Athletics than has any other team this season.

While they were defeated by a margin of one run at the hands of the league leaders, the Rovers came back in the second contest and defeated tail-end Ironsides.

LAURELS DEFEATED THE STARS IN LAST INNING

After battling for seven innings with neither aggregation being able to tally, the Laurels defeated the Red Stars in a Parker Field League game yesterday afternoon by scoring the winning run in the last session after both nines had made a trio of counters in the preceding innings. The contest was a corker and a pitching duel between Venable, for the winners and V. Mullin, of the Stars. Had the latter's team-mates given him better support, he would have undoubtedly been credited with a "win."

ROVERS WON BY A MARGIN OF TWO RUNS OVER RIVALS

A bating rally in the sixth inning when they scored three runs, followed by a similar display of stickwork in the eighth session when two runs were forced over the rubber, enabled the Rovers, of the Parker Field League to send the Ironsides down to defeat yesterday afternoon by a count of 6 to 4. In fielding the victors out-shined their rivals and also managed to obtain one more hit than the defeated team. The assault on the pill made by Kiely and Dilts, the battery for the Ironsides, however, was a consoling factor for the vanquished nine.

MORE THAN FOUR HUNDRED CHILDREN ENJOY OUTING

Thirty-five automobiles were required to accommodate the poor children of the city on their annual outing to Boynton Beach, this afternoon. The start was made from the Babcock Building, where more than four hundred children gathered for the trip. The affair was in charge of the Charity Organization and under the personal direction of Miss Mabelle Phillips, the agent. The children will be given free use of all the attractions at the beach and will be served with ice cream, candy and fruit.

EXILE GIVEN ANOTHER CHANCE

Mrs. Joseph Brown, colored, of West Third street, who was banished from the city by Judge DeMeza on a disorderly conduct charge, came before Mayor Stewart in the city court, yesterday afternoon, and begged to be allowed to remain here. After listening to her pleadings, the city's executive said he would give her another chance.

87 Great Big Casks

About 5,000 Dozen Pieces of

DECORATED PORCELAIN

Dinner Sets, Covered Dishes, Bowls, Pitchers, Cake Plates, Berry Sets, Etc.

To Be Sold This Week at Less Than Cost of Manufacture

Housekeepers will readily recognize in this event a fine opportunity to replenish china closets and to stock kitchen cupboards with dishes for everyday use. Boarding-house keepers and hotel men will likewise see in the sale one of those chances for saving that come only once in a great while.

The purchase is a big one—about 60,000 pieces—and embraces almost all the pieces in everyday homes and boarding-houses.

To be able to buy such beautifully decorated porcelain at such diminutive prices is truly a privilege.

Profits are obliterated—you will pay less than the cost of manufacture.

Come tomorrow! Be one of the first ones to pick the pretty pieces or sets. Be one of the thrifty thousands who will profit by this stroke of enterprise.

Broken Lots of Clothing

For Men, Big and Little Boys

Naturally enough, we have on our table at the present time many broken lines of clothing, the range of sizes being incomplete, thus making choosing more difficult and selling likewise.

To make it worth your while using time to select from these odd sizes and various lines, we are going to sell a big lot of suits at a price astonishingly low—

SUITS of All Wool Cloths . $5.95

You need not doubt the quality of these cloths nor the patterns; the quality is first-class, the materials absolutely all wool, the styles up-to-date, the colors good; the tailoring is up to the standard of the best ready-to-wear clothing.

There are single-breasted Sack styles, some Norfolks, some in ultra-fashionable cuts; others in more conservative models.

They would sell ordinarily at $10, $12 and $15, and some would fetch $18; but we offer you choice at a price enabling you to buy perhaps two or three for knock-about purposes, at only $5.95

FOR BOYS we have All Wool Suits in this season's pretty make; excellent styles; kinds we regularly retail at $4.95 to $9.95, at only $2.98

Boys' Norfolk Wash Suits that were $3.98 to $5.98, will be marked $2.25

Men's $2.00 to $5.00 Trousers—Various styles, for business or for work; to go at $1.50

SLEUTHS BEATEN BY TWO WOMEN

Refuse to Raise Hands Against Prisoners.

THEY WERE BADLY INJURED

Spectacle of Militant Cloak Workers Beating Two Detectives In Passaic Drew Large Crowd—Struggle Takes Place When Police Tried to Break Up a Riot.

Passaic, N. J., Aug. 5.—The spectacle of two women beating two men on Main avenue here drew hundreds of spectators. The men were Detectives Hewes and Johns. They were so badly hurt that they had to be treated by doctors. But neither lifted his hand against either woman save to maintain his grip on her for the purpose of arrest.

There had been a strike in a cloak factory at 440 Main avenue, and the employees went back to work. The militant women were agitators stationed to meet the workers as they came out. When arrested they said they were Rebecca Wilton and Anna Leake. A man who was with them, Abraham Wilton, was also arrested. The struggle took place when the detectives tried to break up a riot at the factory door.

SEEK MISSING BOY.

Lad Disappears After Quarrel With Aunt—May Have Drowned.

Titusville, N. J., Aug. 5.—The people of this community have been searching the town and country for George Hilderbrant, Jr., thirteen-year-old son of George Hildebrant, Sr., of New York city, who is visiting his aunt and uncle, John Hilderbrant. After a quarrel with his aunt he disappeared and was last seen going down the path between the Delaware river and the canal. It is feared he has fallen into the canal.

His sister ran away from home not long ago and wrote him about it, since which he has been in deep study, it is thought over her act. He told his aunt he was going to run away, too, and left the house at once. Thinking he was joking, nothing more was thought of it until searching parties were formed and telephone messages were sent to nearby places.

BIG LAUNCH RUNS AGROUND.

Captain and Seven In Party Have Narrow Escape From Death.

Red Bank, N. J., Aug. 5.—Captain William Shoreman of New York with a party of four women and three men ran his twenty-five foot cabin launch, Marben II., on the Spermaceticore dyke while on the return to New York from Highlands. All had a narrow escape from death.

After ringing bells and yelling for help for an hour, the Albertina of the Merchants' line lowered a lifeboat and took off three women. One fainted as she was carried up the ladder. The fourth woman refused to leave the launch. Life saving crew No. 2 of Sandy Hook pulled the launch off the dyke. The boat was little damaged. She went on her way.

FIND DEAD MAN ON TREE.

Picnic Party Discovered Body Dangling From a Rope.

Fairview, N. J., Aug. 5.—The body of a man dangling from a rope tied to the branch of a tree was discovered by a picnic party on the Palisades, near here.

When the body was cut down a letter was found in a pocket. It recommended Franz Moeller, who had been a fireman on the steamship Phyliss, of Lamaskrona. The letter stated that he left that vessel on July 13 and is signed "George Moeller, first engineer."

The body was sent to Fort Lee.

FIELDER INJURES HIS FOOT.

Acting Governor Steps on Nail on Beach at Sea Girt.

Trenton, N. J., Aug. 5.—Acting Governor Fielder limped about the executive offices as the result of scraping his foot on a nail at Sea Girt.

The governor was walking from the "Little White House" to the beach for a plunge when he injured his left foot.

The nail was hidden in a piece of driftwood that had been cast on the beach by the tide. After carefully dressing the wound the governor was able to put a shoe on. No serious results are anticipated.

Colonel E. B. Balligan Dead.

Phillipsburg, N. J., Aug. 5.—Colonel E. B. Balligan, one of the best known civil war veterans in northern New Jersey and patriotic instructor in the Phillipsburg schools, is dead, age seventy-two years. He is survived by a widow and a son.

News to Him.

"Why is it that they never place the pictures of living men on banknotes?" asked the fellow who had become rich by writing the words of "popular" songs.

"Don't they?" the poet replied.—Chicago Record-Herald.

—Make a business task of your search for business employment. You can't do that, however, unless you advertise.

Are You Utilizing 100% of Your Advertising Possibilities?

Advertisers may fail in accomplishing the full measure of their possible earnings and handicap their growth by contenting themelves with less than their full selling capacity; others, by means of intelligent advertising, approximate the possible 100 per cent. volume of sales with no increase of "over-head" expense.

But how about the merchant who is advertising, but who is not realizing 100 per cent. of his possibilities?

In advertising, as in merchandising, the point must be reached where expense of operation is overcome and profits begin.

In advertising, as in retailing or manufacturing, it's the last certain per cent. of effort that counts.

Some very clever advertisers in Plainfield are spending large sums of money in advertising without securing 100 per cent. in results, and a few are hitting the "bull's eye." Waste is responsible for most advertising failures.

But what about the under-advertised business—the store that is on the right track, but limits its advertising to the development of 50, 60, or 80 per cent. of the sales of which it is capable.

This type of business most frequently is the specialty store that has sufficient capital and sufficient credit to do a much larger business, but is not willing to venture the needed ten, twenty-five or fifty per cent. added advertising effort to achieve the full results.

The store, for instance, that is doing a business of $40,000 or $50,000 annually, but with facilities for doing an additional $50,000 without added fixed expense, could well afford to spend $5,000 in advertising to get that $50,000 extra business. And the Daily Press would give it to him.

The Daily Press' circulation embraces the class and the best of the mass in Plainfield, and will yield rich returns to any advertiser who appeals to it intelligently.

"The proof of the pudding is in the eating thereof." The proof that the Daily Press readers respond to advertising is the year-in and year-out use of its space by discerning advertisers.

It is quite true that even an under-advertised business may pay a pleasing profit; but why not more profit, at no extra fixed expense, for the moderate outlay of a Daily Press advertising appropriation?

Think of the "pure v-e-l-v-e-t" business, entailing no extra investment except advertising, on which the net profits would possibly equal the net profits of the entire business now done on the under-advertised plan.

RATE CUTTING STOPPED

This state has passed a law making it illegal for insurance companies to discriminate in their rates charged on risks of essentially the same hazard.

The unfair and unbridled cutting in rates has been stopped, and where the assured has heretofore looked at the rate first and the company second, the order of things has been reversed and the company will now come first.

The strength and reputation of the companies in this office are unquestioned.

LIVELY RUNAWAY ENDS SERIOUSLY

Mrs. James C. Field, Sr., Badly Injured When Horse Took Fright In New Market.

REMAINS UNCONSCIOUS

Two Other Occupants Uninjured—Was Returning Home From Plainfield—Now In Muhlenberg Hospital In Criticial Condition.

Mrs. James C. Field, Sr., of New Market, formerly of West Sixth street, is lying in Muhlenberg Hospital in an unconscious condition hovering between life and death today, following a runaway accident that occurred late yesterday afternoon, when she was returning home from a shopping trip in this city, accompanied by her daughter-in-law, Mrs. J. C. Field, Jr., in a carriage driven by Max Mair, the Field coachman. The horse attached to the vehicle became frightened at an approaching train when the carriage neared the Lehigh Valley railroad tracks at the Prospect avenue crossing, New Market, and when Mair lost his control, the animal dashed at breakneck speed for the crossing. Shouts from the terrified women increased the animal's fright and he pulled the carriage across the tracks just in time to escape an express train that flew by at that time.

Mrs. Field, Sr., in a hysterical frame of mind, leaped from the vehicle as it left the tracks and her face struck the hard roadbed with a terrific impact, rendering her unconscious, a condition she has remained in ever since the accident. Mrs. Field, Jr., seized the reins when Mair dropped them and assisted in guiding the horse along the road leading to Nelson's Hotel and when that juncture was reached the frenzied equine was steered into the horse sheds.

When picked up by bystanders the injured woman was bleeding profusely about the face and head and Mrs. Field, Jr., summoned Dr. Norman W. Currie, of this city. The physician, upon examination, ordered her removal to Muhlenberg Hospital, and Mr. Field, who was spending his vacation at the shore, was summoned home. The telegram stated that Mrs. Field had been injured and her husband went immediately to their home in New Market, expecting to find her there. He was surprised to find the house closed up and when told by neighbors that she had been removed to the hospital he went to that institution.

MRS. VAN NESS STRUCK CONSTABLE GEO. YORK

When Constable George York attempted to serve an attachment this morning in connection with the replevin suit which has been instituted by a furniture company against James VanNess, of 325 East Third street, he met with considerable opposition. He received several knocks about the head and face and finally had his assailant, Mrs. Mary VanNess, arraigned before Mayor Stewart in the City Court on a charge of disorderly conduct.

Constable York found doors locked and barricaded when he attempted to enter the VanNess apartments. After forcing an entrance, which the law allows, he was attacked by Mrs. VanNess. York called for Patrolman Welch, who was in the vicinity, and the pugilistically inclined woman was taken to police headquarters. Mayor Stewart cautioned her against striking law officers and said her actions constituted a State's prison offense. After apologizing to both Patrolman Welch and Constable York, Mrs. VanNess was discharged.

NEWARKER ARRESTED.

Anthony Nitro, 18 years old, of Newark, had his slumbers on a seat in the North avenue station interrupted early this morning, when he was arrested on a charge of vagrancy. Arraigned before Mayor Stewart in the city court he was allowed to go on a suspended sentence after explaining that he was on the way to Bound Brook, but had taken the wrong train from Elizabeth.

TRANSPORTS BUILDING ON FREIGHT CARS

Charles P. Sebring Bought Fine Brick Structure In New York.

Charles Parker Sebring is adding to his extensive real estate holdings in Plainfield, bringing his latest investment here in freight cars. Mr. Sebring, through a friend, learned that a fine brick building, several stories in height, was to be sold as old building material, to make way for a larger structure on the upper east side in New York. Last week he went over to the sale and bought the structure in. The building was faced with marble in several places and having a picture taken, so he could restore it, probably on Front street in Plainfield, he hired a big gang of men and teams and started on Monday to demolish it.

Mr. Sebring goes to New York each day to personally supervise the job, and as the building is torn down it is being carted to flat cars on a float in the East river nearby, and from there lightered to Jersey City, where it is started on its way to Plainfield. If the building is erected on some of Mr. Sebring's Front street holdings it will make an attractive addition to the business section of Plainfield. In talking about the matter to a representative of the Daily Press Mr. Sebring said that he had not definitely decided what he will do about putting the building up, but hinted that it will soon be in the business section of the city.

Mr. Sebring is already the owner of one of the best and most attractive business properties in Plainfield, the Sebring Building, and he also owns a number of other business properties on West Front street, besides several dwellings. He is at present taking an active interest in politics, being a candidate for the Republican nomination for sheriff in Somerset county, in which candidacy he is receiving much encouragement from friends in all parts of the county.

FIELDER TO TOUR THROUGH SOMERSET COUNTY AUG. 13

William L. Saunders, of North Plainfield, who is in charge of the arrangements, has planned for a "Fielder Day" in Somerset county. Wednesday, August 13, at which time Acting Governor James F. Fielder will tour the county in the interest of his candidacy for the gubernatorial nomination. At all places named in the itinerary the governor will meet people in an informal way and will also make short addresses at each appointed place.

The governor will be accompanied by Mr. Saunders and other prominent Democrats. The party will be at the following places at the hour indicated:

Bethel, 10:15 a. m; Liberty Corner, 10:45 a. m.; Basking Ridge, 11:15 a. m.; Bernardsville, 11:30 a. m.; Peapack, 12:10 p. m.; Bedminster, 12:40 p. m.; Pluckemin, 1:00 p. m.; North Branch, 2:20 p. m.; Raritan, 2:40 p. m.; Neshanic Station, 3:30 p. m; East Millstone, 4:15 p. m.; Bound Brook, Berkeley Hotel, 5:15 p. m.

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS PLAN FOR BIG OUTING

The sixth annual excursion of Watchung Council, No. 552, Knights of Columbus, to Asbury Park and Ocean Grove, will be held tomorrow and everything points to one of the most successful outings held by this popular organization. The committee has engaged forty coaches which will afford ample accommodations for all who plan to go to the shore. The committee has distributed free tickets to 1,800 children in the various local Catholic parishes, it being chiefly a children's outing.

The excursion is an especially popular one as it comes just at the time when the season is at its height at the seashore. All of the attractions are in full swing which makes it a real pleasure for the excursionists. The train will leave Grant Avenue at 7:45, Plainfield at 8 o'clock and returning will leave the shore at 6:30 o'clock. A large committee will look after the comfort and convenience of the excursionists.

DAY OFF FOR EMPLOYES.

Marshall's laundry will be closed all day tomorrow to permit the employes to go on the Knights of Columbus excursion to Asbury Park.

—Neuman Bros. will have for tomorrow's trade 75 baskets of fancy Jersey peaches at $1.00, $1.25 and $1.35 a basket. This will be all choice fruit.—Adv. ***

MAY WASH STREETS AFTER RUSH HOURS

Board of Trade Suggests Flushing Brick Pavements At Midnight.

In response to a number of verbal and written communications that have come to the attention of the local Board of Trade, that organization has started a movement, which, if it becomes a reality, will provide for flushing of the brick paved streets in this city every twenty-four hours. Mr. Jeffery, president of the board, presents the matter to Street Commissioner Andrew Gavett in an open letter as follows:

"A large number of people have spoken to officers of the Board of Trade to intercede with your department to have the brick streets of the city washed daily at midnight. This especially from a sanitary viewpoint is absolutely necessary. We are familiar with your thorough ways of doing things and you can rest assured that the people are with you and the street committee in this most important undertaking."

An agitation similar to this one was started here several years ago, but after the process was put into practise for awhile it gradually died away, there being no system by which this means of promoting sanitation could be made a permanent fixture in the city's work. In other towns the fire department is active in the work, the hose of this department being used in washing the pavements.

NOEL EVANS THROWN FROM PLATFORM OF MOVING TRAIN

Commuters at the North Avenue station of the Jersey Central Railroad witness many narrow escapes from death or serious injury on the part of persons who attempt to board moving trains. Noel Evans, of 826 Third place, is the latest traveler to try the stunt.

The 7:55 train for New York pulled out of the North Avenue station this morning on time. As the last coach was passing the depot, Evans came running from the waiting room and started in pursuit of the fast moving train. He managed to grab the rail of the rear car. He gave a spring for the steps but failed to reach them and was thrown to the ground. Many passengers who were waiting for the next train rushed to his assistance. Dr. Albert Pittis was among these and he rendered medical aid to the victim, who was suffering with a sprained left wrist and cuts about the body.

REFUSED TO GIVE MONEY OR CLOTHES TO EMPLOYE

A man who gave his name as Frank Kowalski and claimed that he lived in New York, called on Justice Patrick F. Kaine at the latter's home in South Plainfield last night and asked the official to aid him in recovering some clothing that Fred Becker, of South Plainfield, was holding and would not return to the owner. It developed that Kowalski had come here from New York to work for Mr. Becker, who has a farm and scavinger business in South Plainfield, and the former went to that village with the intention of driving Becker's wagons around the collection routes.

When the New Yorker arrived in South Plainfield he was put to work on the farm but resented this, claiming that he was engaged to drive and not hoe potatoes. Becker finally agreed to let him do this work but during the early part of the week Kowalski was put back on farm work, Becker claiming that he was sick and could not send the wagons out on their regular routes.

This state of affairs angered the New York man and he made preparations to leave, being informed that he could collect no money for his services. This satisfied Kowalski, but when he went to get his clothes Becker refused to let him in the house. The employe then went for Justice Kaine, who went to Becker's farm and got the clothes, at the same time administering a severe reprimand to the trouble maker. This is the second time in two days that Becker has tried this trick and Justice Kaine says that another attempt will mean a vacation for the South Plainfielder in the New Brunswick jail.

WILL OPEN WITH MINSTRELS.

Announcement has been made by Proctor & Sanderson, lessees of the Plainfield theatre, of its opening August 14, when Primrose & Dockstader's Minstrels will appear at the playhouse for two performances, playing both afternoon and evening.

MARTHA WASHINGTON COUNCIL CELEBRATES

Seventeenth Anniversary Marked By An Interesting Program.

Martha Washington Council, No. 23, Daughters of America, at its regular meeting, last night, observed the seventeenth anniversary of the council. There was a large attendance of members and several visitors. An address on fraternal topics by State Councilor Mrs. Sarah Johnson, of Newark, was the feature of the evening, after which several of the members and visitors made short speeches.

At the conclusion of the informal program, refreshments were served by the good and welfare committee comprising Mrs. C. S. Bye, Mrs. Anna Schmidt, Mrs. C. E. Diehl, Harry W. Nolte and George Mobus.

Martha Washington Council was organized in August, 1896, with a charter membership of thirty-seven. It has continued to grow and prosper until it now has a membership of ninety-nine. During the seventeen years of its existence the council has paid out large sums for sick and funeral benefits and has in other ways assisted the members.

LEGISLATURE MUST MEET AGAIN TUESDAY

Adjourned Last Night Without Passing Law to Amend Com. Government Act.

Trenton, Aug. 6—After six hours of wrangling, recess, caucuses and conferences, the second special session of the legislature adjourned last night to meet again on next Tuesday, when another attempt will be made to enact a law settling the question of the validity of the Commission Government in Jersey City.

Except for the sudden disappearance of Senator Fitzherbert, the Morris Democrat, who has been the cause of much trouble in past sessions, the upper house doubtless would have passed the validating bill. After its passage by the assembly the measure was rushed to the senate. There were seven of the Democratic members on hand to vote for it, and White, Nichols and Colgate of the Republican side, but one more vote was needed and Fitzherbert was missing.

An effort was made to find Governor Fielder, who had started for his summer home at Sea Girt. He can still vote as the senator from Hunson county, but while he was being sought it was decided to adjourn for the week.

The fight is now in the senate, and it is believed the measure will be passed next week. It is not likely that legislation along other lines will be attempted.

REPUBLICANS GO ON BIG OUTING NEXT SATURDAY

Elaborate preparations are being made for the annual outing of the Republicans of Union county to be held at Witzel's Point Grove, Long Island, on Saturday. The fact that practically all of the prospective candidates have signified their intention of going on the outing has served to arouse considerable interest and it is expected that Plainfield will be largely represented, as usual.

The committee has engaged the Steamer Isabel, which will leave Chancellor's Dock, Elizabethport, at 10 o'clock in the morning. Dinner will be served immediately upon the arrival of the party at the grove, and the afternoon will be devoted to sports of all kinds. There will be an orchestra on the boat both going and coming.

Among those who have informed the committee that they will take in the outing are Charles N. Fowler, Edward C. Stokes, Carlton B. Pierce, Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, John Kean, Hamilton F. Kean, Edmund Wakelee, Lloyd Thompson, Charles Codding, Randolph Perkins.

The committee from whom tickets can be secured comprise Edward Bauer, Herbert Buxton, John Cose, James White and Henry Pflug.

TO GO TO LUNCHEON.

Samuel S. Swackhammer, of the law firm of Swackhamer & Bird, will be among those who will attend the lunsheon at Sea Girt, to be given Friday by Acting Governor James F. Fielder.

COMPANY K BUSY AT STATE CAMP

Plainfield Soldier Boys Marching Past the Governor's Cottage When Entering Camp.

Company K at Roll Call.

Camp Fielder, Sea Girt, N. J., Aug. 6.—The Second Regiment, National Guard of New Jersey, of which Company K, of Plainfield, is a part, is getting accustomed to its new duties. The course of instruction, which has been planned by officers from the United States army, is proving novel to the enlisted men. The militia officers are putting to practical use the tactics which they learned here last spring at the national guard school of instruction. The school, which was held under the direction of the regular army officers, proved of great value to the officers in command of the various regiments encamping here.

Particularly valuable was the practical knowledge of military movements and discipline. A few years ago the officers of the New Jersey soldiery could not read a military map or write correctly an order for attack or defence, but under the new order of things they are fitting themselves every day for broader spheres of usefulness in the field.

To the men the new work is far more interesting than the old order of monotonous, grilling, never-ending drilling. They take a marked interest in the tactical work and the developments in the manoeuvres as they occur. It is doubly valuable from the fact that it gives the men a clearer insight into the real qualifications of a soldier in the actual field of battle. In their mimic engagements, which are held about the country districts west of Sea Girt, where conditions are ideal for such manoeuvres, the men enter into the spirit of the instruction with a vim that is gratifying to the instructors in every respect.

The Second Regiment will get its first country manoeuvre tomorrow morning when the entire regiment will desert the State encampment reservation here and march into the district near the Manasquan river. It will go in two divisions, representing rival armies, and will reach a point of contact by surprise. A pitched battle will ensue and will be judged by the umpires, who are usually the regular army officers here and the colonel and his staff.

Co. K Notes.

Arrangements are being made by Sergeant-Major Clarence Bilyeu, formerly of Co. K, to get the First Battalion baseball team, of which several members of Co. K are members, to play the Third Battalion team, on the parade ground.

The meals being cooked for the local men are of the same high quality as those the first part of the week and the work of the cooks and their detail is being praised by all the men. Although the meals are not served as in "home style," full justice is being done them by the men. The menu for Monday and Tuesday was as follows: Monday morning, army stew, bread, butter and coffee; noon, cornbeef and cabbage, boiled potatoes, stewed prunes, bread, butter and coffee; night, creamed potatoes, stewed mutton, bread, butter, coffee and jam. Tuesday: morning, fried potatoes, corn bread, syrup and coffee; noon, steak, boiled potatoes, bread and gravy, bread pudding and coffee; night, goulash, potatoes, bread, butter, peaches (stewed), and coffee.

The medical officers attached to the hospital corp are continually visiting the cook tents of the various companies to see that the conditions existing around that important department of the soldier's life were kept in such a condition that diseases would not arise in them. The mark received by Company K was one of the best in the regiment.

Private Adam Miller was the first to report for sick call from this company. His ailment was such that he was detained in his quarters only a half day.

Private Rudolph Heinold, better known as "Dutch," is being envied by all his friends because of his having friends of the feminine sex in camp every day.

Privates Theodore Mendell and Philip Millwater, who have been serving on the cook detail, claim that the meals would not be ready if they were sent away from the cook house.

The non-commissioned officers of the company are all getting swell heads because they had their pictures taken in a body.

Corporal Hughes S. Perrine, one of the "rookie" corporals, is taking mysterious trips to the beach near Spring Lake, every night.

Sergeant LeRoy DeCamp, the company story-teller, is living up to his record. Every night after taps he starts in with a story and finally winds up with a poem about two o'clock in the morning.

Everyone is wondering why Sergeant Oliver R. Pearson made so great a commotion in the sergeant's tent Tuesday night. If the facts of the case were known an electric coil owned and operated by a sergeant would be blamed for the rumpus.

ADELBERG, WITH BROTHER, VISITED WASHINGTON

Accompanied by his brother Kota Adelberg, of St. Petersburg, Russia, Hyman Adelberg, went to Washington, D. C., yesterday, to visit the various buildings and places of interest in that city. He saw Senator Martine, and the latter accompanied the visitors on the larger part of their trip through the Capitol. Mr. Adelberg called at the White House and presented a letter of introduction to Secretary Joseph Tumulty, which was signed by Martine and contained a request to have the visitors presented to the President. The executive was out and the Plainfielder was disappointed.

Kota Adelberg will return to Europe the early part of September. He is enthusiastic regarding the many attractions in this county. He was especially interested in the public buildings at Washington and immensely enjoyed an ascension up the interior of Washington Monument.

BRODHEAD MAKES SPICY ANSWER

Education Board Member Says Gunnison Greatly Distorted Facts In Editorial.

SAYS BOARD IS RIGHT

Replies to Criticism of Body Made In Contributed Editorial to Daily Press, and Says Gunnison Has Not Sympathy of "Influential Citizens."

Calvin E. Brodhead, a member of the local Board of Education, takes vigorous exception to a number of statements made by Stanley E. Gunnison, in a contributed editorial published in the Daily Press on Saturday. In a letter sent to the Daily Press today, Mr. Brodhead has the following to say:

Editors Plainfield Daily Press:

Mr. Gunnison's article in Saturday's issue entitled, "Why Netherwood should have a public "school" requires some comment from me, much as I dislike to enter into any controversy with the author. It is so full of glaring misstatements and exaggerations that a little analysis of it may serve to set right fair-minded persons who might be mislead by it. At the outset, let me say that nobody would like to see a primary school located properly in some section of Netherwood any more than I would, but I am only one of the Board of Education and in any event my personal wishes must give way to what is determined after a careful consideration of all the facts, to be to the best interests of the city.

At the start, Mr. Gunnison says that Netherwood has no boundaries so far as he knows, and for the purpose of his article, he takes almost the entire second ward, carefully excluding, however, the Bryant School, which lies well in the Second ward. In fact, you would get the impression from his statements that the Second ward had no school facilities. You are further startled by the extent of territory that he sees fit to call Netherwood, extending way over, for instance, beyond Kensington avenue and taking in even some of Martine road. While he declares there are 400 children living in a district without a school, he includes in this enumeration a very large number who live within a half mile or less of the Bryant School. He includes all children who go to private and parochial schools, and the children who go to the grammar school. The situation of the latter, of course, would in no wise be changed by the erection of a primary school in Netherwood.

Now the children who go to private schools, with the exception of a very few attending nearby kindergartens, go a further distance to their respective schools than would be necessary if they went to the Bryant School, and yet it is asserted that the reason these children go to private schools is because the public school is so far away.

Taking up the article from the beginning let me outline some of the things that are either misstated or grossly exaggerated.

First: He seeks to convey the impression that most of the Second ward has no school facilities, which is ridiculous on the face of it.

Second: The statement that the small children of the district have been obliged to travel long distances, and that this has frequently resulted in illness. This is a gross exaggeration. There are not a dozen children in the district who are compelled to walk a mile and half to school. Some, of course, are put to the expense of taking the trolley car at three cents a ride. Manifestly in a territory as large as Plainfield there will always be some children who have to go pretty long distances to school as we cannot have school buildings in every half square mile.

Third: No member of the Board of Education, to my best knowledge and belief, ever claimed that a mile and a half walk to school was not too large a walk. The statement is preposterous.

Fourth: The school management in Plainfield has not been much or justly criticized. On the contrary, it has been remarkably free from criticism and has held the confidence of a large majority of the people. What criticism there has been from Mr. Gunnison has not been well founded and has not amounted to much.

Fifth: No member of the Board of Education ever declared that petitions carry no weight with the president of the Board of Education. Mr. Gunnison is simply twisting and distorting a statement of Mr. Tyler's, which was to the effect that the mere signing of a petition did not always indicate that the signer subscribed to and understood everything that was in the body of the petition. As a matter of fact most people sign petitions without reading the preamble and knowing only the general purpose of it.

SOMERSET FREEHOLDERS LOOK FOR TUBERCULOSIS FARM SITE

Eight of the Board of Freeholders of Somerset county made an automobile tour of investigation through the county yesterday, looking after prospective sites for the proposed tuberculosis sanitorium.

George Kirch, one of the borough's representatives on the board, stated this morning that they had about a dozen different farms in different parts of the county under consideration. Of these, four will be selected, to be referred to the State Board of Health, who will make the final selection of a site.

It is the desire of the Freeholders to secure a well equipped farm which will have sufficient buildings to serve the purposes of a sanitorium. This, they claim, would save a considerable outlay of money for the present at least. Several of the farms which were looked over yesterday were ideal as far as location was concerned, but because of the condition of the buildings, it is believed that these will receive little consideration by the board.

EVERY STREET IN PLAINFIELD.

Has Its Share of the Proof That Kidney Sufferers Seek.

Backache? Kidneys weak?

Distressed with urinary ills?

Want a reliable kidney remedy?

Don't have to look far. Use what Plainfield people recommend. Every street in Plainfield has its cases.

Here's one Plainfield man's experience.

Let C. L. Treat, painter and paperhanger, of 411 East Third street, tell it.

Says Mr. Treat: "I suffered for a long time from kidney trouble and for years could not get relief. My back ached constantly and there was pain across my kidneys. My kidneys were in bad shape and I became all run down, in fact, was almost a physical wreck. Hearing of Doan's Kidney Pills, I got a supply and they made me feel like a different man. I got this remedy at Randolph's drug store and my experience was so satisfactory that I cannot make my endorsement of it too strong. I simply would not be without a supply of Doan's Kidney Pills on hand."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

This Beautiful Assemblage of FURNITURE Has a Double Lure for Home Makers

1—DESIRABILITY

Artistic Simplicity shares approbation with Ornate Elegance. The collection runs the entire gamut of the furniture-maker's craft. Here is exactly the furniture to make the small apartment "homey" and comfortable. Here are the larger furnishings for those who have an entire house to equip. Here is elaborate Imported Furniture for more stately mansions.

All selected with skill and taste. All from makers of thorough integrity and unquestioned ability.

2—ECONOMY

This August Sale brings the most decisive savings that we have ever been able to offer.

In addition to the vast Variety, the Excellence of quality and design, the fact that every piece bears our Guarantee, the reductions in price are most decisive and gratifying.

The furniture floor is specially arranged to make the viewing of furniture a real pleasure. Then it is most satisfying to be able to examine the pieces carefully, and get fully acquainted with them before making decisions. Many visitors have told us that it is so easy to SEE the furniture in the Gimbel exhibition.

Of course the collection is much larger and fuller now than it will be later on. This is the most favorable week to make selections, in a stock that is really quite wonderful in its opportunities.

We tell some special news about a most attractive collection of

DUE FOR ANOTHER LICKING.

There are some things which amount to a political crime. The action of the leaders of the Republican party in their declared intention to nominate a candidate who is anti-Progressive, and to refuse to support a conservative Progressive, comes very near a crime. The result will probably insure the election of a Democratic Governor. The blame for this situation cannot be put upon the Progressive party. Many of its leaders felt that the Republicans, being defeated overwhelmingly in 1912, would show wisdom and either make no nomination at all or pick a Progressive and nominate him at the coming primary. Instead, they propose to run one of the men who supported the fraud at Chicago and make that again the issue in 1913.

One would think that the sanguinary defeat of last year would have been lesson enough, but it seems not. It really does not seem possible that leadership could be so stupid. Do these gentlemen realize that the rank and file of the party do the voting? Do they think that rank and file forget where the old leaders have led them? The result at Chicago last year was due to bad leadership; to that, and that alone. To men who were selfish and self-seeking. To a rule or ruin policy.

It was the determination of these old leaders to keep the control of the Republican party and to prevent the new and younger element getting it, that caused the fraud at Chicago which disgusted every honest man in the nation. These men now see defeat in State and Nation staring them in the face and pretend to invite the Progressives to come back But this is impossible under present leadership. They are evidently anxious for another defeat in 1913. They can safely rely upon getting it. If they cannot see that the people wish to be rid of them without another sound thrashing they can go on as they are headed, and they will obtain the necessary licking next November. But is it not a shame that this must be solely because of stupid leadership?

THE STATE AND SPORTSMEN.

Until a few years ago residents of New Jersey were permitted to hunt during the gunning season without any regulation further than that provided by the game laws. Then a bill was passed which for a time was immensely unpopular. and which provided for the payment by all gunners of a one dollar license fee. So unpopular was the act that the defeat for re-election of some members of the House of Assembly may be accredited to its influence, especially in some of the counties in the southern end of the State, where the natives felt that everything that traveled through the air, or swam in the water was put there for their especial use.

Today the money derived from these license fees, amounting to about $40,000 annually, is being put to such good use by the Fish and Game Commission, that those who were the severest critics of the law are now high in praise of it. One of the most benecial things being done with the money is the support of a State game farm, which has been purchased at Forked River, in Ocean county, and where thousands of different kinds of game birds are being raised to be later turned out in the woods and fields in other parts of the State. So remarkable have been the results attained that the example set in New Jersey is being watched with more than passing interest by the game authorities in other States.

At the present time quail, a very difficult type of bird to raise in captivity, wild turkeys, mallard ducks, English pheasants and deer are being propogated on the farm, and rabbits are increasing with such rapidity that the commission is already finding it necessary to make plans to ship them this year to other parts of the State where they have been nearly exterminated.

Experts who have visited the farm do not hesitate to say that it is the best equipped preserve in the country, and they lavish their praises on the work of the commission and its superintendent. Visitors are always welcomed and shown about the place. There are 500 acres of upland, timber land and meadows and the climate is ideal, as very little severe cold and practically no snow reaches there. The stock have all become acclimated and the methods of feeding them while in a wild state has caused them to grow heavy without losing any of the wildness given them by nature. While it is possible to catch glimpses of the deer, turkeys and rabbits in their enclosures, still they will all scurry out of sight as soon as they see the form of a man approaching. Even the pheasants are wild and no one would think of calling them barnyard fowl were they to see this stock of birds.

The preserve is truly a farm, as practically everything in the way of food and fodder is raised on it and very little is purchased on the outside. The superintendent and his family occupy an old homestead as their residence and the place is guarded against poachers at all hours.

They are holding a "conference for the common good" in Columbia, South Carolina. One of the best things that the conference can do to accomplish its purpose in that section of the country is to find some way to eliminate Governor Cole L. Blease, the notorious executive of that State.

LAST GROUP OF LOCAL BOYS TO LEAVE FOR WAWAYANDA

The last of the boys from the local Y. M. C. A. to visit Camp Wawayanda will leave tomorrow morning on the 6:27 train, the group being accompanied by J. B. Schofield, J. H. Manning and F. A. Martin. Those comprising the group are Walter Debele, Fred Ross, James Cox, Everett Case, Harold Zeek, Herbert Penn and Harold Loizeaux. They will remain guests of the camp for two weeks.

A. E. FORCE & CO. EMPLOYES ENJOY ANNUAL OUTING

The employes of A. E. Force & Co., the West Front street dry goods merchants, enjoyed their annual outing yesterday through the courtesy of the firm. The point of destination was on the mountains back of Scotch Plains, where a clambake and corn roast was prepared for the enjoyment of the party.

The start was made from the firm's store at 8:30 o'clock in the morning, going by trolley to Scotch Plains, from which point the party walked to the camp on the mountains. The delivery wagons had been sent ahead loaded with the necessary provisions and soon an arch was made and the clams and corn was cooking.

After diner games were played. Hammocks and swings were put up and the afternoon was spent in having a general good time. At 6 o'clock supper was served and about dusk an invitation was accepted to visit Camp Endeavor nearby where a big camp-fire was in progress. The journey home was made later and everyone voted the outing one of the best yet given by the firm.

MONTHLY RECEPTIONS.

Following the trial season of entertainments that has just been concluded and because of the popularity of the organization, the Plainfield Dancing Club has reorganized for another season and propose to conduct receptions the second Tuesday in each month. Russell I. Huston and David Clarin, who had charge of the affair last season, have amalgamated their interests with Walter C. Cubberley for the present season and expect to hold their inaugural reception September 16. A new feature of the work will be the use of identification cards which will be provided to each member of the club.

CHILDREN HAD GREAT TIME ON OUTING

Annual Trip to Boynton Beach Enjoyed By Four Hundred Local Youngsters.

Four hundred children were taken to Boynton Beach yesterday afternoon on the annual outing of the Charity Organization Society of this city. The trip was made by automobile trucks and touring cars. When the resort was reached, everything was done by those in charge to give the youngsters a good time. Lunch was served after the children enjoyed an afternoon of fun, bathing, riding on the merry-go-round and scenic railways and playing in the sand.

The outing was under the direct charge of Morris C. Van Arsdale, William L. Smalley, David J. Carney and Miss Mabelle Phillips, local agent of the society. A chaperone looked after the welfare of the children in each car and distributed toy balloons.

Among those who donated the use of their automobiles for the occasion were Mrs. Walter Scott, Mrs. Allan Cowperthwait, L. B. Morgan, Boice-Runyon Company, A. M. Merrill, W. L. Smalley, A. S. Giles, City Produce Co., Harry Drier, Joseph Harrigan, Richard H. McCullough, Thompson's garage (two cars); Councilman Alexander Milne, Standard Auto Tire Co., former Mayor Charles J. Fisk, Dr. Frank Wilcox, Mrs. W. M. Sanford, Peter B. Hodge and Moe Fertig.

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS ASKED TO AID REFORM

Boston Bishop Preaches to Supreme Convention On Social Problems.

Boston, Aug. 6.—Three thousand Knights of Columbus, assembled at solemn high mass in the Cathedral of the Holy Cross yesterday, were called upon by the Rt. Rev. Joseph G. Anderson, auxiliary bishop of Boston, to seek with all right-minded persons a solution of social problems through evolution, not revolution.

Recognizing the gravity of the disputes between labor and capital, the bishop nevertheless was optimistic.

"In the public addresses of leading thinkers in this country," he said, "in recent inaugurals of many of the Governors, but especially in the inaugural of President Wilson, there is found a sincere effort to stir the public conscience for the readjustment of law and government to human needs."

Bishop Anderson read a cable message from Cardinal Merry del Val, the Papal Secretary of State, conveying the felicitations of Pope Pius X.

The supreme conventions of the Knights of Columbus was opened formally on board a harbor steamer as the delegates sailed along the north shore.

Mayor Fitzgerald and Louis Watson, State deputy, welcomed them and James A. Flaherty, supreme knight, of Philadelphia, responded.

The growth of the order since the 1912 convention was related by the supreme secretary, William McGinley, of New Haven, Conn., who reported that on June 30 last the total membership was 302,074.

During the year forty-seven new councils were instituted and the net increase in membership was 19,326. Outstanding insurance aggregated $103,659,900 and death benefits during the year totaled $721,000.

STREET DEPARTMENT MAKING NEEDED REPAIRS

The city street department is trying to improve conditions at West Front street and Grant avenue by building a stone culvert on the southeast corner in the hope that it will help to carry off surface water in heavy rains. The storm of last week all but ruined the surface of the street at this corner and as Councilman P. J. Reville expressed it, "another rain like that and there will be no corner."

Although this is one of the most important corners in the city, where there is almost constant travel, the street committee has failed to put the roadbed, crosswalks and culverts in proper repair. On the southeast corner the sidewalk is much lower than the street and every time it rains it is flooded and impassable. Just now it is impossible to find the crosswalks. The Public Service Corporation was given permission to install a "Y" at that corner, but as yet has not shown any intention of making the improvement.

MIDDLESEX VOLUNTEER FIRE COMPANY GETS RECOGNITION

Although the South Plainfield Volunteer Fire Department has been in existence since 1907 and has answered many calls during the past six years, never before did it occur to officers of the department that their body was entitled to incorporation rights under the laws of New Jersey until last month when one of the firemen was injured in putting out a blaze at the home of Wilfred Gennerich. It was brought to the department's attention at that time, however, that the injured man was eligible to receive accident benefits from the Firemen's Relief Associations and they put in a claim for the same.

The initial claim was accorded recognition and at a meeting of the Middlesex organization last night it was announced that application had been made to the State authorities for the rights and the recognition papers and resolutions were formally accepted and filed last night. Charles S. Day, Township Clerk, and Patrick F. Kaize, president of the association, received the resolutions from the State authorities and from now on the Middlesex Volunteer Fire Company will be recognized as a fire company under the supervision and control of the Township of Piscataway.

INCENSED AT ACTION OF MIDDLESEX ASSESSORS

Incensed at the alleged orders given to assessors by the Middlesex County Board of Taxation to increase the valuations in New Market and Piscataway, the citizens of those municipalities last night banded together to combat any effort that is made to make their burden of taxation heavier. Seventy-five property owners flocked into Friendship Hall, New Market, in answer to anonymous circulars which were distributed through the mail and by messengers. The organization will be known as the Piscataway Taxpayers' and Citizens' Association. E. Percy Vail was elected chairman and Charles Kelly, Jr., secretary.

Spirited speeches were made by several citizens, some of whom came from other parts of the county. William Hamilton, of South Plainfield, said that the taxable property throughout the county was already over-valued and that any further increase would be an unfair burden. William Ver Mule a Piscataway lawyer, said in the course of his remarks that the public officials of today are bonding the people so heavy that the future generations would find it difficult to take care of the burden. "A halt must be called," he continued, "on this kind of government. We must rise up in concerted action against this extortion." John Evans and Mr. Kelly, also spoke.

A committee composed of William Hamilton, Harry Marshall and Herbert Pierce, will draft a set of by-laws for the association. Permanent organization will be established at a meeting to be held in Friendship Hall, Tuesday night, August 12.

BOARD'S ACTION MAY RESULT IN ESTABLISHING MARKET

President Jeffery, of the local Board of Trade, prompted by advice coming from a number of local merchants and citizens, has suggested to Chief Kiely of the police department, that a decided reform in the traffic regulations on West Front street be brought about, and the chief, who has authority in the traffic matters, has promised to co-operate with the board in the matter. During the early morning hours, especially between 5:30 and 6 o'clock, numerous hucksters line both sides of Front street from Madison avenue to Park avenue and block the other vehicles trying to pass that part of the thoroughfare to a certain extent.

Mr. Jeffery has suggested that the hucksters be compelled to lineup on West Second street instead of the main street and a rule will probably be established during the next few days which will make this condition obligatory to the peddlers. This is considered the first move in the establishment of a city market for Plainfield.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph L. Morrow, of Woodland avenue, are spending a three weeks' vacation at Kennebunkport, Maine.

Headquarters for

GIBSON'S RYE

E. C. WESCOTT,
115 East Front Street.

PERSONAL.

Irving Walsh, of The Plainfield Trust Company, has returned from his vacation spent in Massachusetts.

Miss Mabel Vail, of East Fifth street, is entertaining her cousin, Miss Helen Howard, of Hingham, Mass., during the month of August.

Mr. and Mrs. John Walsh, of Brooklyn, have returned after a visit with their daughter, Mrs. Howard Rhoades, of West Sixth street.

Miss Marion Mortimer, of East Fifth street, is spending her vacation at Asbury Park.

Mrs. William Cochran, of Watchung avenue, left today for Wildwood Crest, near Cape May, where she will spend a couple of weeks with her sister-in-law, Mrs. Samuel Cochran.

Hugh J. Harris, of West Front street, is spending the day crabbing at Boynton Beach. He is accompanied by his family.

Mr. and Mrs. M. F. Elderton, of Park avenue, have returned from a two weeks' vacation, spent in Virginia.

Councilman and Mrs. F. E. Mygatt are spending their vacation in Massachusetts.

Overseer-of-the-Poor Henry L. DeForest, who has been spending some time at Buzzards' Bay, returned to Plainfield yesterday for a few hours, leaving last night for the Adirondacks to join his family for a few weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Van Cleef and children, of Grant avenue, have returned from a month's visit at their former home, East Millstone.

Freeholder and Mrs. J. Hervey Doane and family, of East Seventh street, left today for Nova Scotia, where they will remain until September.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The improvements at the First Baptist church are improving slowly. It is hoped to have the edifice ready for service early in September.

Owing to the fact that Rev. Charles A. Eaton has gone West on a three weeks' trip, he will not be able to preach at the Crescent Aenue Presbyterian church.

[illegible]N YOUR COMPLAINTS.

Health Officer Randolph Chandler has been greatly bothered during the past few weeks with numerous anonymous complaints that have been submitted to him by residents of this city who have grievances of various kinds to offer. r. Chandler has requested that complainants sign their names to the letters, the signatures being needed for records and will not be devulged by him. Unless this is done the letters cannot be given attention by him in his capacity as health officer.

A TRIPLE CELEBRATION.

Four years ago tomorrow—Aug. 7, 1909—Mr. and Mrs. Robert Newton Crane, of Leland avenue, were being congratulated by their friends on the birth of twins,—Robert Newton Crane, Jr., and Clara Penn Crane. A year later, on the same date Thomas Fortune R. Crane was born. At there home tomorrow many friends of the Crane children will assist them to celebrate their fourth and third anniversaries, respectively.

HOUSE READY FOR ACTION

Plan That Measure Shall Have Right of Way Over All Business—Senator Hitchcock Says Money Revision Is Not Urgent.

Washington, Aug. 6.—Senator Owen, chairman of the banking committee and sponsor for the administration currency bill in the upper chamber, was forced off the floor by Senator Hoke Smith, also a Democrat, while he was attempting to reply to an attack on immediate legislation delivered by Senator Hitchcock of Nebraska, another Democrat. Senator Smith's point of order that the tariff and not currency was before the senate forced Mr. Owen to yield, but he announced he would reply to Mr. Hitchcock's speech later.

Senator Hitchcock openly opposed currency legislation at this session of congress and especially the administration bill introduced by Senator Owen. He had submitted a resolution by the Democratic central committee of Sarpy county, Neb., urging immediate passage of a currency bill.

"In pressing this resolution," Senator Hitchcock said, "I desire to say that I do not agree with the authors and am strongly opposed to the attempt to pass any comprehensive currency legislation in the expiring days of the extra session. I am certainly opposed to taking up the revolutionary bill the senator from Oklahoma has introduced."

Not Urgent, Says Hitchcock.

Referring to the argument that currency legislation was necessary to forestall a possible business disturbance, Senator Hitchcock said:

"This argument is most fallacious. It is utterly out of the question to use this bill as an emergency measure because it will take at least a year of organization to put it into effect after its passage. Those who think we can pass it in one week and that on the following week the country will have $500,000,000 of additional currency, with easy credit, are woefully mistaken."

In the house, however, Democratic leaders smoothed the way for opening the currency fight there Friday. Provision was made by Mr. Underwood that the currency bill shall have the right of way over all business if it is ready.

Senator Saulsburg of Delaware discussed the tariff bill briefly in the senate for the Democrats and warned against waste of time in long debate.

Asserting that "protection and socialism are twin evils and ill omened birds," Senator Saulsbury declared that protection had reached its end.

He said that the pending tariff bill had been constructed with a common effort for the good of the commonwealth.

GERARD WAS ONLY JOKING.

Cables Tumulty Berlin Took Resignation Remark Too Seriously.

Washington, Aug. 5.—James W. Gerard of New York does not intend to refuse President Wilson's commission as ambassador to Germany. He made that fact plain in a cable message from Berlin to Joseph P. Tumulty, the secretary to the president.

Judge Gerard told Mr. Tumulty in his message that all that be said in Berlin to the effect that he found it impossible to obtain a suitable embassy residence there at a reasonable price and that he was drawing a bill for congressional enactment to tax Americans abroad so as to obtain a fund for supporting ambassadors whs intended as a joke. He had talked in a facetious vein on the subject, he said, and was sorry that his remarks had been taken seriously and cabled to American newspapers.

HOLD GOODS FOR TARIFF ACT

Bonded Warehouses Are Overstocked Pending Congress Legislation.

Washington, Aug. 6.—Bonded warehouses at various ports in the United States are fairly bursting with the great stacks of foodstuffs and merchandise awaiting withdrawal by their owners. The fact is set forth in a statement by the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce, which declares that goods to the value of $105,928,884 were in the warehouses June 30 last, as against stocks to the value of $72,246,878 on June 30, 1912. Two-thirds of the treasure is in the government's possession in the port of New York.

The approaching enactment of tariff legislation by congress is held responsible for the great stocks on hand.

Russian Army Fliers Killed.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 6.—Lieutenant Polikarpoff, an army aviator, and his mechanic were killed at the Krasnoye Selo camp when one of the wings of their aeroplane broke and the machine fell to the earth from a great height.

Weather Forecast.

Fair today; tomorrow fair in south, probably showers in north portion; light to moderate southeast winds.

GAS IS THE FUEL FOR SUMMER USE

When the weather is hot the housewife is anxious to escape artificial heat. The real thing is bad enough.

She is also desirous of making her household work as light as possible.

Gas as a fuel will help both ways. It creates no unnecessary heat and causes no dust or dirt. Neither does it make it necessary to be "filling the stove" every little while.

With a gas range and a gas water heater there is Comfort and Economy.

BRODHEAD MAKES ANSWER

Sixth: No member of the Board said that a school census, as that term is meant in the school law, did not include all children of a school age. Here again Mr. Gunnison is distorting and twisting a statement to suit his own ends. At the discussion in July referred to ,Mr. Tyler (while I have no authority to speak for him) stated that only those seeking admission to the schools should be considered in finally determining when a school should be erected. His position was correct. He and every member of the Board knew that in taking a school census we take all children of a school age. The point under discussion was the building of a new school, and it is a correct statement that schools are provided for those who seek admission to them, as near as we are able to estimate it.

Seventh: The intimation that the Board did not courteously receive the committee of the Netherwood Residents' Association, and the assertion that the Board evidenced a disposition not to give serious consideration to the matter have not the slightest foundation in fact.

Eighth: The statement that I was personally "advised and consulted with" is another one of his characteristic loose statements. Meeting after meeting of the committee of the Residents' Association was held to none of which was I even invited, and Mr. Gunnison himself never consulted or talked with me more than five consecutive minutes about it, prior to the hearing before the Board. On two or three occasions Mr. Gunnison mentioned that they were getting up certain data which he would later on submit and go over with me. This he never did. I therefore knew no more about what they were doing than the average member of the association.

Ninth: It is not a correct statement to say that the Netherwood Residents' Association is at all unanimous in its demand for a school. Many of the most influential citizens and taxpayers in the section are opposed to it and make no secret of it. They have not been active in their opposition simply because they thought Mr. Gunnison's activities would not amount to anything, either because of his manner of handling the matter or because of their conviction that he could not produce facts to warrant the erection of a school in Netherwood.

Tenth: There are not 400 children in the district without school facilities. There are school facilities for ever child in Netherwood, not perhaps convenient, but nevertheless the children are going to school. We may be able to relieve the present inconvenience by providing a few classes of the primary grades and this matter is now under consideration, or it may be determined to locate a primary school so as to take in both sides of the track, the western side of which Mr. Gunnison apparently ignores in the discussion.

As to the sneering references to me personally I do not think it necessary to say very much. I have no apologies to make for the fact that two of my little children have attended a parochial school, nor do I care to offer any explanation about it as it is my private business. I am sure however, the public will see animus that lies back of his reference to the subject and the contemptible inuendo he means to convey.

As to the "magic" spell of the majority of the Board let me say that I have found the gentlemen I have been only so recently associated with to be honorable men who are unselfishly and efficiently performing a great public service. It gives me great pleasure to state this and I intend to try and co-operate with them to the best of my ability.

CALVIN E. BRODHEAD.

JACOB VOEHL, SR., IS CRITICALLY ILL

Jacob Voehl, Sr., one of the best known residents in this section, is critically ill at his home on Grove street, and little hope is entertained for his recovery. Although he had suffered for the past five years from an organic trouble, he otherwise enjoyed fairly good health, until Sunday when he was suddenly taken ill with complications. His condition is such that the relatives have been summoned home.

Mr. Voehl is a native of Germany, where he was born seventy-five years ago. He has been a resident of Plainfield for the past forty-three years and for twenty years was the leading baker in this section. He owns considerable property here, having erected the buildings at 84 Somerset street, 220-222 East Front street and 127 West Front street.

For many years he has been a director of the Plainfield Savings Institution and the Plainfield Building and Loan Association. He is a charter members of Unity Lodge, No. 74, Knights of Pythias, and is a member and trustee of Grace M. E. church, the borough.

LOSES HIS $200; COMMITS SUICIDE

Swindlers' Victim Takes Carbolic; Leaps Under Liner.

WORKED HARD FOR MONEY

Throws Self Under Ship That Was to Take Him Home—Gave Money to Poles to Change and Received a Roll of Advertising Bills.

Hoboken, N. J., Aug. 6.—Joseph Corbusky, swindled out of the $200 that he had saved through two years of hard work, drank carbolic acid and then threw himself under the stern of the Kronprinzessin Cecilie, on which he had hoped to sail home.

Corbusky arrived in this city with the $200 and enough to pay for his steerage passage. He had worked for two years in the steel mills at Joliet, Ill.

The young Pole found a room and then wandered into one of the dance halls along River street. He fell in with other Poles, to whom he showed his money. They told him he would have hard work to get it changed on the other side and offered to have it changed here for him.

Corbusky handed over his money and in return received a roll that counted nearly $1,000. It looked all right, but when he went to pay for his room he found that it was "money" of the advertising kind, with the merits of a liver pill described on the back.

Corbusky took his last dime, bought a bottle of carbolic acid and went to the pier. He crawled down a stringpiece, swallowed the acid and leaped into the water.

CAR SEAT SPLINTERS SPINE.

Woman Hurt When Trolley Smashes Into Brick Store.

New Brunswick, N. J., Aug. 6.—Mrs. Herbert Smith of New Brunswick, who was hurt in a trolley accident near South Amboy, is at the home of her mother in Jamesburg with a splintered spine. She is suffering intense pain.

Mrs. Smith and her husband, who is connected with the Pennsylvania railroad, were on their way to Atlantic Highlands when the trolley car in turning a corner left the tracks, rolled across the road and smashed into the brick store of Wolff & Co. The back of the seat Mr. and Mrs. Smith were occupying struck Mrs. Smith with such force as to knock her unconscious.

SHOOTS HIS SON-IN-LAW.

In Fit of Madness Aged Man Then Turns Revolver on Himself.

Camden, N. J., Aug. 6.—Francis Xavier, seventy-six years old, who according to the police shot his son-in-law, Joseph Nussbaumer, at their home, Oaklyn, below this city, and then turned the revolver upon himself, is in a serious condition at the Cooper hospital.

The aged man is said to have been acting strangely and is believed to have been mentally unbalanced. He shot himself in the neck three times, one of the bullets breaking his jaw. Nussbaumer, who was shot in the side, is not seriously hurt. He also is at the Cooper hospital.

FORT ADVISES DIVORCE.

Former Governor of This State Acts as Master In Chancery.

Newark, N. J., Aug. 6.—Former Governor John Franklin Fort, sitting as a special advisory master in chancery here, after hearing the testimony in the action for divorce brought by Mrs. Elizabeth C. Schroeder against Arthur A. Schroeder, a well to do real estate agent and insurance adjuster, declared he would advise the decree.

The couple were married Dec. 28 last. Mrs. Schroeder was a Miss Schaeffer of Belleville. The suit was brought on statutory grounds.

ASKS FOR THREE BATTLESHIPS

Representative Britten Says United States Should Be Ready For War.

Washington, Aug. 6.—An emergency appropriation "sufficiently large to begin immediate construction of three additional battleships of the Dreadnought type" was asked for in a resolution introduced by Representative Britten, Democrat, of Illinois.

The resolution declares in a preamble that the administration apparently has been unable to cope with the unsettled condition of affairs in American relations with Japan and Mexico and declares it is imperative to begin immediate construction of additional battleships to prepare the United States for the contingency of war.

PRE-ELECTION DATES ARE ANNOUNCED

Important Facts With Which All Voters Should Acquaint Themselves.

With interest in politics warming up, announcement of the important pre-election dates for which the German Act makes provision, are timely.

Three registration days are provided for; September 9 and 23, and October 21. The second registration day will also be primary day.

On or before August 20 the Civil Service Commission shall certify to the Court of Common Pleas of the various counties the results of examinations for positions as members of boards of registry and elections in the different districts of those counties.

On or before August 25 the county boards of elections shall select from the certified lists, the members of the district boards of registry and election.

On or before August 29 petitions for nomination for county officers shall be filed with the county clerk; and the petitions for nomination for membership in State committees shall be filed with the county clerk.

On or before September 2 the district boards of registry and election in all municipalities shall meet for organization. On or before September 3 petitions endorsing municipal candidates to be voted for at the primaries shall be filed with the municipal clerks.

On or before September 12 county boards shall sit for the purpose of revising the primary lists. On or before noon of September 17 the district boards shall mail to each voter on the registry list a stamped envelope containing a copy of the primary ballot.

The State conventions of the different parties will be held at Trenton on September 30. The calls for these conventions shall be issued not later than September 25.

On the same date as the State conventions the annual meetings of the county committees will be held, the new members taking their office at that time.

In the corrupt practice act it provides that all designations of campaign committees for both the primary and the general elections must be filed within five days after the filing of petitions for nominations.

PAUL E. MERTZ RESIGNS FROM SCHOOL FACULTY

Paul E. Mertz, having resigned as instructor in English in the North Plainfield High School to accept a position at the State Normal School, Trenton, Supervising Principal A. B. Vossler has been authorized to secure another teacher at a salary not to exceed $900. Miss Laura M. Bushnell, of Auburn Four Corners, Pa., a graduate of the Mansfield (Pa.) Normal School, has been engaged to teach in the primary grade of the Somerset street school.

The Borough Board of Education has decided as a matter of economy not to re-engage a school nurse for the coming year. George F. Brown, custodian of school funds, has made the following report to the Board: Receipts, balance on hand June 30, $3,840.53; loan, $469; tuition, $40; total, $8,575.53; disbursements, warrants, $4,695; balance, $3,880.53. The Board is now considering plans for improving the schools so as to comply with the State law. The board will meet again Monday night, when janitors will be appointed.

The Housewife's Daily Economy Calendar

FRANCES MARSHALL

Simplicity and Economy.

When you are planning any additions to your wardrobe, do you ever stop to think that the cost of a wash garment does not enter into the question of its economy so greatly as does the fashion in which it is made?

A few years ago at Teachers' College, in New York City, some experiments which showed that simple clothes of good quality were more economical than elaborate ones of poor quality were carried on.

The results of this work showed, for one thing, that at the end of a year a simply made, hand embroidered French chemise, which originally cost four dollars and a half, would, if it had been laundered at a steam laundry twice a month, have cost altogether seven dollars. An elaborate chemise, made of lawn and lace, which originally cost a little over three dollars would, in the same length of time and under the same conditions of laundering, have cost nine dollars and a half.

When you think that the French chemise would be in fairly good condition, whereas the other would be badly worn and doubtless much torn, you have a real idea of the economy of the more expensive but simpler garment.

When you are planning a new supply of wash clothes it is well to remember this experiment and no matter how cheap or how expensive the material you buy, have the garment simply made so that it will wash easily.

The same relative cost of laundering would prevail in the home laundry as in the steam laundry, so even if you are only paying for the laundering of the garments in work, not in actual money, and in fuel for heat for the irons, you can save money on the garments simply made.

THE RIGHT FARE FOR WARM DAYS

The Family Will Be Healthier and Happier if Light Foods, Including Many Vegetables and Much Fruit, Are Served.

WHEN the weather is hot the housewife will find her work curtailed and the family well pleased by the serving of fruits in as many forms as possible.

July is a month in which fruits are abundant and cheap, and this is one of nature's beneficent rulings. The acids of the fruit counteract the effects of the heat, and those who eat them most liberally will be better able to withstand the debilitating effects of the weather.

Dishes in which fish is an ingredient are better to serve on hot days than meat. Cold fish may be made up into foods like escaloped fish. These may be cooked early in the day and merely warmed up at mealtime.

To escalop fish take cooked fish, white sauce, breadcrumbs, butter, lemon juice, pepper and salt. Break some of the fish into flakes, remove the skin and bone, mix it with enough white sauce to moisten it and season well with lemon juice, pepper and salt. Butter some deep scallop shells, sprinkle them with breadcrumbs and fill with the mixture. Cover with more breadcrumbs, put little bits of butter on top and bake in a quick oven. Serve on a folded napkin, garnished with parsley and cut lemon.

Jellied chicken is a useful and attractive supper or luncheon dish.

For jellied chicken put an ounce of gelatin in a pint of warm water on the back of the stove and occasionally stir until it is dissolved. Then add a pint of chicken broth or bouillon to it and a seasoning of salt and pepper. While the gelatin is being dissolved cut all the chicken off the bones. Place the meat in an earthern mold. Pour over the chicken the broth and gelatin, straining first. Press the meat down and let the broth cover it completely. Place a weight over it, and when the chicken is thoroughly jellied turn out of the mold and serve in thin slices.

A delicious cold dish is what is called veal marble. Boil a beef tongue and the same quantity of lean veal. Grind separately in sausage cutter. Season tongue with pepper, a little mustard and pinch each of nutmeg and cloves. Season veal the same, adding salt. Pack in alternate spoonfuls as irregularly as possible in a buttered crock, press very hard as you go on, put in cold place, turn out whole and cut in slices.

Lemon in any form gives a flavor of coolness to the summer food. Plain blancmange is delicious with a dash of lemon juice.

For this dessert take a pint of water, two tablespoonfuls of cornstarch, one lemon, two eggs, sugar to taste. Put the water in an enamel saucepan and let it boil with the rind of the lemon in it. When boiling add the cornstarch, which mix first with a little cold water. Allow it all to boil for a few minutes. Then add sugar and the juice of a lemon. Have the whites of the eggs beaten to a stiff froth and beat well with the mixture. Then pour into a mold. Make a little custard to pour over the blancmange—half a pint of milk, a little sugar and essence of lemon. Whisk in the yolks of the eggs.

Apple desserts made with fresh apples are especially good. Apples may be combined with other fruits to give a touch of novelty to these foods. Apple and date meringue is a nice hot weather dainty.

To make this delicious dessert take six apples, peel, core and bake until tender in a sirup made of two tablespoonfuls of sugar and two cupfuls of water. Then butter a baking dish, put in the apples, fill the centers with stewed dates and cover with a stiff froth made of the whites of two eggs and one tablespoonful of powdered sugar. Bake for about ten minutes.

Fruit floats, so called because of their lightness, may be made with any seasonable berries.

To make a berry float take two tablespoonfuls of granulated gelatin, add half a cupful of cold water and let stand until soft; then add a cupful of boiling water and one and a half cupfuls of sugar. Stir until both gelatin and sugar are dissolved; then take from the fire and add a cupful of orange juice and the juice of a lemon. Strain through a double thickness of cheesecloth. Cover the bottom of a baking dish or bowl to the depth of one inch and chill. When it is firm put on a layer of berries. The berries may be arranged in a design if desired. Add more jelly, taking care not to add too rapidly or the fruit will float. When this is firm add more berries until all the gelatin mixture is used. To serve turn from the mold and surround with whipped cream which has been sweetened to taste and flavored with vanilla. Garnish with choice berries.

Baked puddings may be made with cherries, fresh currants or huckleberries, according to this recipe.

For this huckleberry pudding take a pint of flour and a quart of huckleberries, about half a cupful of water and a little salt. Rub these together and tie in a pudding cloth, allowing no room for swelling. Boil for about two hours. This may be served with a sweet sauce or cream.

TOMATO SALADS.

WHEN summer brings that popular vegetable, the tomato, the housewife is able to get up many succulent salads. Tomatoes combine nicely with other vegetables and served on a bed of lettuce leaves make that appeal to the eye which is desirable where a salad is concerned.

Preparing the Tomatoes.

Always remove the skin from tomatoes which are to be eaten raw. Take time and pains to pare them as you would a peach. Scalding impairs the flavor. To serve without paring is unwholesome, for the skin is indigestible.

Plain Tomato Salad.—Cover your tomatoes with boiling water and let them stand five minutes; then peel, slice and chill. Arrange on lettuce leaves, sprinkle with salt and garnish with mayonnaise dressing.

Salads With Nuts.

Nut and Tomato Salad.—Pare the tomatoes and take out three-quarters of the pulp, leaving enough to make the walls of the "cup." Have ready a pint or so of blanched and minced nut meats mixed with mayonnaise or with French dressing. Fill the tomato cups with the mixture. Serve upon lettuce leaves.

Flower Salad.—Scoop out the inside of a red ripe tomato. Mix with chopped celery, nuts and mayonnaise, put back in the tomato and serve on a crisp lettuce leaf. A pretty effect is achieved by cutting the outside of the tomato in petal-like shapes and turning them down to resemble a flower.

Tomato and Pepper Salad.—Take firm tomatoes, peel and slice. Remove the seeds from a fresh green pepper and slice the shell in very thin strips with a sharp knife. Rub a salad bowl with a piece of onion and line with crisp lettuce leaves. Arrange a layer of sliced tomatoes upon the lettuce and sprinkle with sliced green peppers, then another layer of the tomatoes and the remainder of the green peppers. Pour French dressing over all.

A Handsome Arrangement.

Tomato Jelly Salad.—Put two slices of onion, two cloves, four peppercorns, a bit of bay leaf and a level teaspoonful of salt, with a quart of tomatoes, and simmer fifteen minutes. Strain to take out the seasonings and the tomato seeds. Heat again and add a rounding tablespoonful of gelatin soaked in quarter of a cup of cool water. In five minutes take from the fire and pour into small molds, chill and when firm turn on to small plates and garnish with watercress. Just at the moment of serving put a spoonful of mayonnaise on each mold.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

The Best Kind Of a Birthday Celebration.

Deciding on Her Birthday Treat

DADDY and Jack and Evelyn had been talking about the best way to spend a birthday.

It was to be Jack's birthday, and he thought a day at the seashore would be nicer than anything else.

If daddy would invite his chum, Frankie Green, to go with them to the seashore Jack felt that there was little more to be asked.

"I'm glad you thought of asking Frankie," daddy said. "I think it's a fine birthday idea to try to make others happy instead of planning for oneself."

"One of the nicest birthdays I ever heard of was the one that a little girl named Blanch planned.

"Blanch has had parties and all sorts of nice birthday celebrations. This year she thought she would like something different.

"Now, Blanch noticed that many of the little girls who go to the same school do not have as nice frocks as she does. In fact, some of the little girls are very poorly dressed.

"Often she has thought how nice it would be if every little girl in the world could have kind and indulgent parents like hers—a nice home to live in, pretty dresses to wear and lots of nice books to read. Blanch is very fond of reading.

"When her mother asked her what kind of a birthday treat she wanted this year Blanch looked very thoughtful.

"'I had a birthday party last year,' she said. 'This year I would like to have another kind of treat.'

"'And what would you like, dear?' her mother asked.

"'I would like to treat some of the little girls who go to my school.'

"Blanch's mother smiled. Most little girls think of getting presents on their birthdays, but Blanch has always been a little girl who thought more of others than herself.

"After a little while Blanch told her mother how much she would like to make a present of a pretty frock to the little girls who could perhaps not afford such nice ones. She said if she could do this she would not care for any birthday party or gifts for herself.

"Blanch's parents talked over her plan. Then they told her she could have her wish. How the little girl's eyes sparkled when she heard it! Before school closed she got the names of a number of little girls from her teacher. They were all little girls to whom the gift of a pretty new frock would be welcome.

"Blanch helped her mother select the gowns, and on her birthday each little girl was invited to come to see her, and then each was surprised with the gift of a lovely new gown. Oh, it was fine! Blanch said she never had such a delightful birthday. It was far better than the party she had had last year."

RATE CUTTING STOPPED

This state has passed a law making it illegal for insurance companies to discriminate in their rates charged on risks of essentially the same hazard.

The unfair and unbridled cutting in rates has been stopped, and where the assured has heretofore looked at the rate first and the company second, the order of things has been reversed and the company will now come first.

The strength and reputation of the companies in this office are unquestioned.

Ladies' Home Journal Patterns

The finest pattern articles in the world printed exclusively in Plainfield in The Plainfield Daily Press. Ladies' Home Journal Patterns are on sale at A. E. Force & Co., "The White Store."

In the New Summer Frocks, Fabric and Color Are of As Much Importance as Lines.

They are wonderfully pretty these sheer fabrics, lovely in texture and weave and color, and no matter how simple the frock, if the general style linens are followed it will look well. Especially attractive are the flowered and sprigged voiles and crepes and muslins, the design in subdued shades of pink or blue or violet on a white ground. If you make one like 7897, in sprigged voile, with panel of white net or chiffon, and girdle of moire or satin matching the figure in the material, you will have a frock that is pretty enough to wear anywhere in the daytime. It is good for garden-parties, for luncheons, and the thousand and one little summer festivities. Trim the panel with tiny buttons covered with the silk of the girdle, and finish neck and sleeves with frills of plaited net. But don't in addition to the neck frill use a frill on the collar. Used with discretion, these frills are dainty and becoming; but they make one think of a benevolent pussy cat, when they are too much in evidence. So put one on your neck, if you like, or on your collar as you prefer, but don't frill both. This frock shows quite a new style, note the drapery below a short panel front and back. It is being worked out in all sorts of expensive materials, and the effect is so decorative in itself, that little trimming is required. Patterns are cut in six sizes, 34 to 44, the 36-in. size requiring 4 1-8 yards 42 inches wide.

Little daughter's frocks are just as interesting as mother's, and they too, show a certain smart simplicity that is typical of this season's styles. In the model chosen for illustration, the peasant sleeve is in one with the yoke, and the closing is effected diagonally in front. The low-belted dress is favored almost exclusively for the small maids and the belt may be of self-material or patent leather. Like mother's frock, daughter's must blouse well over the girdle to keep the really new note. Choose for this, white or Gobelin blue linen, or crepe. Or for play wear, dark blue galatea would give satisfactory service. There are four sizes for this design, 4 to 10 years, and the little girl of eight will need 2 5-8 yards 36-inch material. Each pattern is fifteen cents.

A Tudor Rose Design for a Table Cover or Pillow.

A tudor rose design is always decorative, and has many possibilities of adaptation. You will find this design most effective for decorating covers or hangings for the living-room, dining-room or for the summer porch. The design may be developed in stencil, as a block-print or may be embroidered with heavy mercerized cotton according to the article you wish to decorate. The illustration shows the border, 14181, embroidered in heavy mercerized cotton on a table-cover of brown linen. The roses were worked in three shades of yellow in unpadded solid work, the leaves in dark brown in Balkan-stitch, while the dots and bands were a still darker shade of brown. This border is 3 1-2 inches wide and the transfer pattern includes two yards, so that you can adapt it to a table-cover, a runner of Russian crash or Craft canvas, or pillow-covers of linen embroidered in yellows and browns, yellow and green or old rose and green in darning stitch or solid work would be pretty.

As a stencil design it might be used for decorating the bed-spread, curtains, table-cover, couch-cover, chair and couch pillows and bureau scarf for the summer bed-room, either in shades of yellow or old rose and green. If you like, the stencil may be accented with embroidery stitches. Transfer patterns for stamping this design can be supplied to readers for 10 cents each.

A NEW WORLD'S RECORD.

Kalamazoo, Mich, Aug. 6—When Peter Volo, driven by Murphy, won the two-year-old trotting division of the Horseman Futurity and the purse of $3,000 at yesterday afternoon's Grand Circuit, he established a new world's record for two-year-old trotters, going the first mile in 2:09. The distance was made with ease, Murphy holding the colt back as he came down the stretch. The former record of 2.09½ was made by Justice Brooks two years ago. In the second heat Peter Volo equaled the former record.

Queries, Comment and Answers

Sporting Editor:

Query—Is it too late to enroll my name to spend two weeks at the New Jersey Boys' Camp conducted by the Y. M. C. A. at Lake Waywayanda? If not, to whom should I apply?

F. O.

Answer—It certainly is too late for this season, but apply to C. W. Bingeman, boys' secretary of the local Y. M. C. A., for next year's registration. It's never too early.

Sporting Editor:

Query—Is swimming allowed in Holly's pond in South Plainfield.

A. E.

Answer—Surest thing you know.

Sporting Editor:

Query—Are there any fish in Tier's pond? C. T.

Answer—This stream was stocked by the State Game Warden some years ago but there are not enough of the finny tribe to make fishing profitable just now.

Sporting Editor:

Query—I am aware of the fact that the query I submitted you some time ago had nothing to do with sports but you claim to be able to answer anything, so I repeat the question and hope that you will assist me in some way? I desire to become better acquainted with a certain young lady I have chanced to meet several times at social affairs. Would it be right for me to write to her?

H. E. C.

Answer—All right, Henry, here goes. The reason why we did not help you out of troubles sooner was because your query was at the bottom of the pile and love notes have to await their turn as well as any other queries. Love letters are ever a mixture of bitter and sweet, and frequently fail to satisfy either party. But a profusion of conceits and quotations are not suited to their character, as true sentiment is usually direct and to the point, and does not stray into the by-ways of literature to gather flowers of rhetoric.

Sporting Editor:

Query—Please decide the following: With a man on first-base the batter hits to shortstop, who throws the batter out at first base. First baseman then throws the ball to second base ahead of the base-runner. Does second baseman have to tag base-runner or is it only necessary for him to touch second base?

G. H.

Answer—The runner was not forced at second base and would have to be tagged with the ball before he could be retired, to make it a double play.

Sporting Editor:

Query—What does a chauffeur's license cost and what is the salary received? A. D.

Answer—If you run a machine under thirty horse-power, four dollars. The salary depends upon the position one has.

Sporting Editor:

Query—is Parker Field open Saturday afternoons? By this I mean the apparatus. A. E. T.

Answer—It certainly is, and there is an assistant in charge.

Sporting Editor:

Query—Can a man 21 years old marry a girl of 19 "on the quiet" if he has two witnesses? T. Y. U.

Answer—Sure, if she's willing. How would it be "on the quiet," though, if you had two witnesses?

WINS IN STRAIGHT HEATS.

Flemington, Aug. 6—Edna Hamlin, the bay mare owned by Abram S. Case, took the 2:24 trot at the Flemington Fair races yesterday afternoon in three straight heats. Ashlook, the chestnut gelding owned by the Bergen Horse Company, Jersey City, was a close second in all three heats. Briarus, owned by A. W. Kline, of Reading, captured the half-mile running race in 50½ seconds. Algomah, owned by Wyatt Jones, of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., was second, and L. M. Stackhouse, of Philadelphia, was third with Gelden Vale. The summaries:

TENNIS FOR BRIDGMAN CUP.

Norfolk, Conn., Aug. 6—The twenty-first annual tennis tournament for the Bridgman Cup started here yesterday with thirty-five contestants, among them being A. H. Mann, Jr., the Yale star, who won the cup last year; Robert Leroy, of New York, twice winner of the cup, and Frank Watrous, the former Yale expert. All three came through the first round yesterday, winning in handy fashion. Everett Bacon, the Wesleyan crack, won his match in the preliminary round.

CALLAHAN DENIES RUMOR.

Washington, August 6.—Manager Jimmy Callahan, of the Chihago White Sox, denied the rumor that he was to be relieved as manager of the Windy City team at the end of the season by President Comiskey, because of the latter's alleged dissatisfaction over the way the club had been travelling lately. It was rumored that Jake Stahl, the former manager of the Boston Red Sox, would succeed Callahan.

1:30 o'clock—Athletics vs. Ironsides.

The game scheduled to be contest- between the Parker A. C. and Rovers ed between the Parker A. C. and Rovers in Parker Field Senior League yesterday afternoon, was called off and the Rovers indulged in an eleven inning tilt with a team of stars having among its numbers, players from nearly every other combination in the league.

This contest will not effect the league standing and the Rovers are yet a couple of games behind their rivals the Athletics, who are setting a terrific pace. No games will be played tomorrow on account of the excursion, but Friday will decide a trio.

FREE TRIPS TO FIRST WERE COSTLY TO JACKSON TEAM

Eight runs in the fifth inning made the Jackson Bible Class yell for help in their scheduled Parker Field Junior League clash with the Red Stars on the playground diamond yesterday afternoon, and when the clouds had lifted after the sixth round of play, the score stood 13 to 5 in favor of the Stars and the farce was curtailed at this point.

Bases on balls were directly responsible for the Jackson's defeat, for Houston issued an even dozen of the free trips. Each aggregation got six hits and made one error apiece.

"MAC" SAYS

EXERCISE.

"Oh, baseball is a healthy game,"
a fan remarked to me,
"It stirs the sluggish blood and makes the heart beat merrily,
It clears the eye, it clears the brain,
it makes the body strong;
It lays aside a store of health to live and prosper long."
"How often do you play the game?"
I calmly made reply,
And as he spoke there was a look of pity in his eye.
"What? Me? Get out there in the sun and sweat to death?" he said.
"Perchance you have a notion, I am crazy in the head."

THAT FAMILIAR RAG.

Warble not in mournful numbers;
"Parks are getting bumped again"
I can hear it in my slumbers,
So familiar is the strain.

During months of persistent effort the Park Avenue combination has held last place against all invaders, demonstrating that perseverance always brings its reward.

Why not change around and give Trinity a chance at the flag in the place of Park Avenue. Trading franchises and percentages is popular just at this time, and appropriate too, in some cases.

Every time we hear a man offer to bet that Dunellen will beat Plainfield in this era of baseball wisdom we are let to wonder whether Confederate money is involved. When the season opened it looked as though Dunellen would cop the pennant, but alas and alack—

Ernest Dorflinger admits that he discovered Cliff Randolph and three other Central New Jersey League teams are willing to admit that Ernie is some discoverer. If Cliff should go to the big show before the season ends, local fandom would receive a sad jolt—as would also the Pets percentage.

On the theory that misery loves company, the Spicer and Park Avenue baseball teams may organize a Mutual Sympathy Company. Both are the undisputed champions of the cellar position in their respective leagues.

Aside from taking money from a blind man it is hard to conceive of a more cruel and unusual act than make Warry McLaughlin run the bases. And yet Howard Craig still insists on the veteran galloping around the cushions when he lines them out.

None of the Central League managers have been heard to opine regarding the merits of the umpires in the organization. The amazing part of it all is that the managers have really seen the decision servers at work too.

After revising the tariff bill, deciding on the currency bill, settling the muddle in Mexico, placating Japan, probing the Mulhall revelations, shaking up the postoffice department, debating on the question of more battleships, solving the high-cost-of-living problem, appointing 100,000 men to office and then sending a lot of Wall street men to jail, Congress will now look into baseball and we have a short respite granted us to look into Cliff Randolph's claims.

From present indications, if Cliff Randolph succeeds in getting what he demands he will undoubtedly be one of the most notorious holdouts of the 1914 season.

All he wants is a salary guaranteed to last forever in the big league. Similar to a pension, douncherknow.

RED STARS KEEPING LAURELS WORRIED

Second Place Aggregation Following Along at Leader's Heels Ready to Take Lead.

PARKER FIELD JR. LEAGUE.

Yesterday's Results:

Laurel A. C., 15; Princeton, 2.
Jackson B. C., 5; Red Stars, 13.

Standing of the Clubs:

	W.	L.	P.C.
Laurel A. C.	7	0	1,000
Red Stars	6	2	.750
Jackson B. C.	2	5	.285
Princeton	1	3	.250
Arrow A. C.	1	5	.166
West Ends	0	2	.000

Six teams are now contesting the Parker Field Junior League pennant race and each aggregation is putting up a stiff article of baseball in an effort to fag out the fleeting Laurels. Both of the contests played yesterday were decided by large scores and the Laurels' victory gave them an advantage that will be difficult to overcome.

By defeating the Jackson Bible Class nine, the Red Stars mounted one game nearer the top and had the Laurels lost yesterday would have taken the league leader's place at the helm.

O'LEARY'S HOMER WON GAME IN ELEVENTH INNING

O'Leary's home run clout in the eleventh inning won a close and interesting eleventh inning baseball game on Parker Field, yesterday afternoon, the Rovers, of the Parker Field Senior League, defeating a team known as the Pick-ups and composed of players from nearly every other combination in the league by a count of 6 to 5.

The score by innings:

Pick-ups	0	0	4	0	1	0	0	0	0	0	0—5

Batteries—Pick-ups, Brennan and Gleason; Rovers, O'Leary, Schemeyer and Blanchard.

JOHNSTON WINS AGAIN.

William M. Johnston, the California schoolboy, won his way into the semi-final round of the New York State lawn tennis championship in singles, yesterday, on the Crescent Athletic courts at Bay Ridge. The brilliant young Californian will have as an opponent in his next round A. H. Mann, Jr., of Yale. In the upper half of the tournament S. Howard Voshell continued his excellent playing, and will probably be called upon to play H. W. Slocum in the semi-final round. Johnston scored an easy victory over Frederick C. Inman in two straight sets by the score of 6-3, 6-3, while Voshell overwhelmed Baggs 6-4, 6-0.

SPEARS SETS NEW MARK.

Newark, Aug. 5—"Bob" Spears, the Australian cyclist, at the Motordrome, last night, created another track record when he crossed the line a winner in his heat of the half-mile professional in 0:53. Spears, as the scratch man, was called upon to concede very liberal handicaps, so that he had to ride in his best form in getting around the field.

GOLF EXPERTS COMING.

London, Aug. 6.—Harry Vardon and Edward Ray, the noted golf experts, sailed today on the Celtic to compete in the American open championship tournament to be held next month at Brookline, Mass. Ray and Vardon are accompanied on the trip by Wilfrid Reid, the professional at the Banstad Downs Club, and Louis Tellier, a well known French professional.

LAURELS WON WHEN THEIR OPPONENTS MADE TEN ERRORS

Playing errorless ball while their opponents were contributing ten spillups, the Laurel A. C. baseball team, of the Parker Field Junior League, trimmed the Princeton aggregation by a count of 15 to 2 on the playground field yesterday afternoon.

Butler, who twirled for the winners, allowed but three hits and fanned seven. Flatley, Sneider and Rimmer did some good batting for their respective teams.

STARS LOST, ROOKIES WON.

Chicago, Aug. 6.—Five star left-hand pitchers in the major leagues lost their games yesterday. Rube Marquard, Nap Rucker and Slim Sallee went down to defeat in the National, while Eddie Plank and Ray Collins were beaten in the American. Kid Leonard of the Boston Red Sox, George Pierce of the Chicago Cubs and Carl Weilman of the St. Louis Browns—all rookie left-handers—succeeded in winning their games. Reb Russell pitched a fraction more than one inning for the Chicago White Sox and gets credit for a victory, he being the fourth lucky member of the juvenile southpaw tribe. Boehling, the Washington left-hander, was neither winner nor loser, being relieved in the tenth inning with the score tied. Rube Marquard's winning streak was broken by the Pittsburgh Nationals after the New York star had achieved nine straight victories. Slim Sallee was returned a loser against the rushing Philadelphia Nationals, although he pitched a better game than any of the luckless five, allowing only one run.

EUROPEAN CHAMP. HERE.

Andre Grapperon, the best of European motorcyclists, who has been engaged to race the stars of this country, arrived on the Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse yesterday. Grapperon will make his first appearance at the Brighton track on next Sunday night, when he will race Charley Davis for the world's title.

EBBETS OUT SCOUTING.

Chicago, Aug. 6—After yesterday's game President Charles H. Ebbets of the Brooklyn Baseball Club and Larry Sutton, scout for the Dodgers, left for a trip through the minor leagues of the Middle West and East. The need of pitching talent has been impressed upon the Brooklyn Club president and he will look over several promising youngsters enroute.

FORAKER ADMITS HE MET MULHALL

Denies Talking With Lobbyist Regarding Legislation.

EXPLAINS STORY OF LAMAR

Former Senator Declares False Statement That He Ever Favored Legislation Sought by N. A. M.—Also Denies Story of Meeting to Beat Taft.

Washington, Aug. 6.—The special house committee began grinding on the thousands of letters already introduced before the senate committee and prepared to cross examine Colonel Mulhall on his claim of influence with various representatives.

The senate committee, having finished with Mulhall, began hearing some of the men referred to in his correspondence. Former Senator Foraker was the first and chief witness of the session, and he generally denied Mulhall's claims of influence with him.

Former Senator Foraker, on taking the stand, explained his connection with the sale of the Union Pacific to a reorganization committee in 1897, which was brought into the lobby investigation by David Lamar. Lamar testified that Foraker, through influence at Washington, took a leading part in the deal at Lamar's solicitation.

Admits Knowing Mulhall.

Foraker testified that at the time of reorganization the Union Pacific owed the United States $30,000,000, and one proposal was that the government receive only part of that sum. Foraker swore he did not figure in the case except in an effort to see that the government got the whole sum. He had known Mulhall since 1883, when he (Foraker) was a candidate for governor of Ohio. He did not know how active Mulhall was in his behalf in that campaign.

"I don't remember that I ever asked him to work for me, and I don't know that I asked him not to," he said.

The senator denied that he ever favored legislation wanted by the N. A. M. or that he talked with Mulhall about legislation in Washington. He frequently talked to men in the capitol, however, in those days about legislation.

"Before we got so good as we are now," he said, "I thought it was all right to answer questions. Of course I never had any idea that these conversations were to be made the basis of reports by some lobbyist."

Foraker flatly denied Mulhall's testimony of a conference at which many leading Republicans opposed to the nomination of Taft gathered at Foraker's house to discuss plans for concerted opposition.

"No such conference was held at my house or elsewhere," said he.

SULZER AFTER GRAFT PROBE.

Confers With State District Attorney of Hennessy Charges.

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 6.—Governor Sulzer conferred with District Attorney Rollin P. Sanford of Albany and Commissioner John A. Hennessy, whom he appointed several days ago to investigate the management and affairs of state departments, presumably regarding the advisability of empaneling a special grand jury in Albany county to consider the graft and padded payroll charges made by Mr. Hennessy after his investigation of the wiring and other interior contracts at the capitol early in the year.

Governor Sulzer declared some time ago that he intended to turn over the Hennessy allegations concerning the capitol contracts to a grand jury. This evidence apparently implicates several former state officials and the employees of several contractors who did the interior work on the capitol.

SULZER GETS "PATSY" BACK.

Governor's Lost Terrier Found Locked In Mr. O'Dwyer's Barn.

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 6.—"Patsy" was found last night and there is rejoicing in "the People's House." The terrier was located in O'Dwyer's barn at Morton avenue and Swan street, half a mile from the executive mansion and a short distance from the residence of Patrick E. McCabe.

Two youths appeared at "the People's House" and informed Mrs. Sulzer that "Patsy" was in O'Dwyer's barn. The governor dispatched two of his detectives to the barn and half an hour later "Patsy" was back home.

The detectives started to break into the barn despite the fact that a bulldog was on guard. Then Mr. O'Dwyer came along and unlocked the door. He declared the dog was his, but as it still wore the collar which the governor had placed on it waived his claim.

LIGHTNING IN MINE.

Shoots Down 300 Feet and Tears Off Leg of Miner.

Globe, Ariz., Aug. 6.—A bolt of lightning shot through nearly a mile of tunnel in the Copper Reef mine, jumped 300 feet down a winze and nearly tore a leg off of one miner and shocked more than a score of others.

The bolt was conducted through the tunnel by the steel rails of a skip hoist.

SLASHED IN BRAWL WITH CONGRESSMAN

Representative and Doorkeeper In Saloon Row.

Washington, Aug. 6.—During a rough and tumble fight in the barroom of the New Varnum hotel Representative Robert Y. Thomas of Kentucky cut David Goodlett, an assistant doorkeeper of the house, who hails from Alabama.

The two southerners appeared to be on fairly good terms, according to bystanders in the barroom, until Goodlett is said to have called Thomas a liar. Thomas took exception to the allegation, according to the bystanders, and promptly told Goodlett that he was not only a liar, but much more unmentionable things.

Then they clinched, and the air thickened. In the scuffle Thomas is reported to have reached to his hip pocket. A knife was seen to flash.

The bystanders rushed in and separated the combatants. Goodlett staggered from the bar.

Just outside of the hotel Goodlet met Policeman McNamara and exhibited to him a slight cut on the neck. He requested the policeman to arrest Thomas. In the meantime word had been sent across the street to the house office building, and before the policeman arrived Senator Ollie James, Thomas' brother-in-law, and Representative Heflin of Alabama led the Kentuckian to a place of safety.

When last heard of Goodlett exhibited an inch cut on his neck surrounded by a bedraggled and blood covered shirt, insisting that Mr. Thomas had not treated him right.

WHAT'S THE MATTER WITH LOCAL BABIES?

Asbury Park Complains That There Are No Plainfield Entries In Annual Parade.

Asbury Park, Aug. 6—The Asbury Park Carnival Commission, which conducts the annual baby parade here is wondering what is the matter with Plainfield mothers. Up to the present time there has not been a single entry from Plainfield in this great parade of the infants, which has been a feature of the resort for so many years. In the past Plainfield has been well represented each year, and not a few prizes have gone to the Queen City. In viw of the fact that every entrant will get a silver cup, and the mother of each one a box of candy, it is hoped that there will be some entries from Plainfield.

This is to be a month of aeroplanes for boardwalk visitors. George M. Dygott, who flew from Long Island to Bradley Beach last week, expects to make two flights along the beach on Friday. His machine is now on exhibition in a tent on the beach at the end of the Ocean Grove boardwalk. Grover Cleveland Bergdall, the Philadelphia aviator, is planning a passenger carrying trip to Atlantic City, thence to Asbury Park, across State to Trenton and on home. He will start Wednesday and be in Asbury Park over Thursday. The week of August 21 will witness six days of aviation sport at the athletic grounds and along the beachfront. Bleriot monoplanes and a Curtis biplane will be used. Johnny Mack, of Newark, will make balloon ascensions and Frank Goodale, of Palisade Park, will operate a dirigible. There will be motor cycle races and other track sports. The aviators will be O. E. Williams, of Scranton, Fred Hill and Fred Bauringer, of Hemstead. The aviation program will take place daily from 2 to 5 o'clock.

The Asbury Park Gun Club has arranged for a big tournament at its boardwalk traps August 25 and 26, and another shoot on Labor Day. On Saturday the second stage of the 200 bird shoot for the Dupont cup will take place.

One day visitors yesterday included those who came on the excursions of the Union Sunday-schools of Bound Brook, and of the Sayreville and the Methodist Sunday-school of Lakewood.

Helen Keller spoke to several thousand people at the Ocean Grove Auditorium, last night, on "The Heart and the Hand" or "The Right Use of Our Senses." She was accompanied by her teacher, Mrs. Macy, who by way of introduction, told how she came to teach Miss Keller and assist her to overcome all barriers with the outside world.

Nearly ten thousand people will listen to the rendition of Handel's immortal "Messiah" at the Ocean Grove Auditorium, Saturday night. It will be a most notable production, possibly one of the greatest that has ever been given in this country. The chorus will number over six hundred voices, and will be supported by a fine symphony orchestra from New York and the Ocean Grove organ. The soloists are among the very best in America. Marie Kaiser, the soprano, is a Western girl who has made a name for herself in New York the past winter. She has a fine personality and a magnificent voice. Mary Jordan, the contralto, has only recently been engaged for leading roles in the Century Opera Company. She will give a noble rendition of the Messiah solos. Dan Beddo's brilliant tenor voice will be heard at its best, and Frederic Martin, the bass, has sung the Messiah more times than other bass because he can do it better than anyone else. This will be the only oratorio given at Ocean Grove this summer.

Sousa and his band will play two very fine program at the auditorium next Monday. Tomorrow night a special organ recital by Dr. Percy J. Stearns, city organist of Atlanta, Ga., will be well attended. Over 2,000 tickets were sold yesterday for the coronation of Queen Titania at the Auditorium, August 15.

The last fireworks display of this month will be given on the beach at the foot of Deal Lake, Friday night. There will be no Deal Lake carnival this year.

Plainfield people registered at Asbury Park hotels are: Newburgh—Miss Edna Sherwin, Margaret William; Wyandank—T. J. Shirley.

CONDEMNED HOUSES HAVE NOW BEEN MADE SANITARY

Conditions having been satisfactorily remedied by the tenants living in the condemned houses on Arlington avenue, Health Officer Randolph Chandler, of the local department, announced this morning that they would be allowed to remain in the dwellings providing the present standard of sanitation is maintained.

Sometime ago, Mr. Chandler notified the residents to vacate the houses within ten days, there being no water supply or toilet conveniences in the apartments in question, but immediately after receiving the notices a number of the tenants got busy and rectified matters until they now come up to the health board's demands. Rather than make conditions better a number of the families vacated the houses, but others did their share of the "cleaning out" and installing improvements, with the result they will be allowed to remain in the houses.

Sale of Lands for Unpaid Taxes

Collector's Office, City of Plainfield, New Jersey.

Notice is hereby given that the subscriber, the Collector of the City of Plainfield, New Jersey, pursuant to the authority of the statute in such case made and provided, will on at two o'clock in the afternoon of that day, at the said Collector's office, No. 151 North Avenue, in said city, expose for sale and sell the several tracts or parcels of land hereinafter specified, or any part or parts thereof severally sufficient for the purpose, on which taxes for the year nineteen hundred and twelve remain in arrears, to such person or persons as will purchase the same for the shortest term and pay the tax lien thereon, including interest and costs of sale, or in fee where no one will bid for a shorter term.

This sale is made under the provisions of the act of the Legislature of this State, entitled: "An Act for the assessment and collection of taxes," approved April 8, 1903, and acts amendatory thereof and supplemental thereto.

Further particulars of the land to be sold, as shown on the City records, may be obtained at the office of the subscriber any week day prior to the day of sale, between the hours of 9 a. m. and 4 p. m., except holidays and Saturdays, and on Saturdays between 9 a. m. and 12 noon.

The following is a list of the several tracts and parcels of lands to be sold, which shows the names of the delinquents, the supposed owners thereof as the names of the delinquent owners appear on the books of the taxing district, together with a statement of the wards of the city wherein said lands are respectively situated, and the street in which each lot is situated, the block and lot number of each lot as they appear on the Official Assessment Maps of the City of Plainfield, on file in the office of the City Collector, and the amount due from each of the said lots respectively. To the amount due on each lot and parcel as hereinafter designated, there will be added interest at the rate of ten per centum per per annum from the twentieth day of December, 1912, to the day of sale, and the fees provided by said act of the Legislature, viz.: for preparing and publishing notices of sale twenty-five cents for each parcel of land advertised; and for selling twenty-five cents for each parcel sold; and for each certificate of sale, fifty cents, besides necessary disbursements for printing, postage, affidavits and acknowledgements, which are hereby estimated at three dollars for each item of arrearage, and the City Clerk's fee for recording report, ten cents for each parcel of land sold, and all said fees and expenses shall form part of the tax lien and be paid by the purchaser at the tax sale.

CURIOUS LEGAL TANGLE TO SOLVE

Question As to Status of Adopted Granddaughter in Somerset Will Case.

TASK FOR CHANCERY

William Rowland Adopted Grandchild As Daughter, Making Girl Her Own Aunt—Court Now Trying to Solve Will Puzzle.

When William Rowland, described in proceedings in the SamersetCounty Orphans' Court in 1884 as "by occupation a ship joiner or ship carpenter," and his wife, Jane Rowland, in the year named formally adopted a granddaughter as their daughter, they laid the foundation for a Chancery suit involving the distribution of a residuary estate valued at between $1,500,000 and $2,000,000.

Application will be made Tuesday before Vice-Chancellor Backes, who will sit in the chancellor's stead, for the appointment of a guardian ad litem for William, Charles and Jonh De Gau Rowland, children of William R. Rowland, the three having a material interest in the outcome of the suit.

William Rowland, who was also described in the Orphans' Court proceedings as "one of the directors of the National Bank of New Jersey," was a resident of Franklin township, Somerset county. He died July 30, 1911, leaving a will in which he disposed of a large estate.

The residuary clause in the will names as residuary legatees "my children living at the death of my said wife and the lawful issue of any deceased child of mine who may have died in her lifetime, leaving lawful issue her surviving, per stirpes and not per capita."

The clause provides that the residuary legatees are to share in the residue "upon my said youngest grandchild living at the time of my death attaining the age of twenty-one years, or in the event of the death of my said youngest grandchild before he or she attains the age of twenty-one years."

What the Court of Chancery is asked to decide is whether or not the granddaughter adopted by the testator and his wife as a daughter is entitled to share in the residue as one of "my children living at the death of my said wife."

A collateral problem is whether a two-year-old child of the granddaughter, legally translated into daughtership, has likewise had its legal status changed from that of great grandchild of the testator to that of grandchild. If this child, by virtue of its mother's adoption, is a grandchild of the testator, the residuary legatees will not, except in the event of the child's earlier death, come into the residue until after the expiration of nineteen years.

The suit to have the Rowland will construed was brought by the executors, one of whom is Mrs. Jennie R. Adrian, a daughter of the testator, and widow of Robert Adrian, one time Middlesex's representative in the State senate. Mrs. Adrian's coexecutors are William H. Leupp and Frank St. John. St. John was a clerk in the testator's employ.

The granddaughter, who was adopted by the testator, is Mrs. Jean Livingston Koch, a daughter of Mrs. Adrian by her first husband, Brockholst H. Livingston, from whom Mrs. Adrian was divorced. At the time of her adoption Mrs. Koch was three years old.

By his will Rowland established trusts of $160,000 each for the benefit of his two daughters, Mrs. Adrian and Mrs. Grace Riva, each to have the income during life, while the principal was in each case to go to the respective beneficiaries children.

Trusts of $50,000 each were also established for the grandsons, sons of the testator's deceased son, William R. Rowland, each to take the principal upon attaining his thirtieth year.

Another clause established a trust of $50,000 for the benefit "of my granddaughter, Jean Livingston Koch, the principal to do, upon her death, unto William Dorman, son of my said granddaughter, Jean Livingston Koch."

The bill sets out that" the said Jean Livingston Koch, by reason of the proceedings for her adoption by the said William Rowland and Jane Rowland, his wife * * * claims to be a child of the said William Rowland and to be entitled to share in the distribution of the inbome and principal of the residuary fund of the estate as a child.

"That the children by blood of the said William Rowland dispute the right of the said Jean Livingston Koch to be recognized under the provisions of said will as a child of the said testator or in any other way than a grandchild.

"That your orators are in doubt as to the proper construction of the said will and are advised by counsel that they cannot safely make distribution

MAYOR STEWART ELECTED PRESIDENT

Will Direct Activities of Fielder League of Union County.

Mayor Percy H. Stewart, of this city, was chosen president of the Fielder League of Union county, at a meeting in Elizabeth, last night, held to perfect details of the new organization. There was a large attendance of Democrats from all parts of the county, including Plainfield, and there was considerable enthusiasm. The league has been formed to boom the candidacy of Governor James F. Fielder in Union county. There was a notable absence of friction between the Democrats of Elizabeth and other parts of the county, especially Plainfield, harmony appearing to be the watchword.

This was further shown by the Plainfield delegation upon whose recommendation two additional vice-presidents were chosen from Elizabeth in return for the courtesy in selecting Mayor Stewart as president of the league.

The other officers chosen were as follows: Vice-presidents, Mayor Thomas A. Fyffe, of Rahway; Miller H. Morris, of Roselle, and William Tenniston, of Cranford; treasurer, Frank Pfaff, of Elizabeth; secretary, Robert DeCamp, of Westfield. President Stewart was empowered to appoint an executive committee of five and a committee on bylaws. He will announce these committees within a short time.

In connection with the plan to boom the candidacy of Governor Fielder, the league will carry its activities into every city, town and hamlet of the county in an effort to secure the cooperation of every Democrat in support of the governor. It is expected that the Plainfield Democratic Club will lend its united support to the movement.

Following the organization of the league, last night, Mayor McCauley, of Weehawken, and Assemblyman Egan, of Hudson county, addressed the Democrats, it which they told of the progress of the State-wide movement in behalf of Governor Fielder.

MISS WINDHAM'S FUNERAL IS HELD

The funeral service of Miss Louise D. Windham was held at 2.30 o'clock yesterday afternoon and was largely attended by relatives and friends including a delegation from Old Glory Council, Daughters of Liberty. Rev. Frederic L. Greene, pastor of Hope Chapel, officiated at the house, reading the Scripture lesson, offering prayer and making a short address. There was a large number of beautifulful floral tributes, including those from the Daughters of Liberty and the Christian Endeavor Society of Warren Chapel, of which Miss Windham was a member. During the service Miss Justina Smith sang a solo.

The burial was in Hillside cemetery and at the grave the Daughters of Liberty conducted the ritualistic service of the order. The pall-bearers were Wesley Bush, William Stewart and Everett Genung, of the Daughters of Liberty, and Theodore J. Martin, Alfred J. Everett and Alexander Dresselt, of the Christian Endeavor Society of Warren Chapel.

BURGLARS? NO! ONLY AXEL LOOKING FOR BED

The occupants of the apartments in the Jackson building, at 121 Madison avenue, received a scare early this morning, when a man who proved to be Axel Madison, of Brooklyn, half climbed and half stumbled to the third floor of the structure where he proceeded to go to sleep. Axel was intoxicated, so the police say, and he swore loudly at the heighth of the steps while mounting the stairway. Several times he slipped and skidded to the landing below. He finally reached his lofty perch.

Persons living in the apartment house trying to enjoy a night's sleep were kept awake by Axel's snoring and one man telephoned for the police. Patrolman Nolan responded to the summons and carried the disturber to the patrol wagon. This morning Mayor Stewart gave his a suspended sentence.

MAYOR'S COMMITTEE IS STILL AT WORK

Revision of Tax Assessments Will Require Several Months.

Finding that the work is of greater magnitude than anticipated, the special assessment committee appointed by Mayor Percy H. Stewart for the purpose of revising the tax assessments of the city, will not be able to complete its task as soon as expected. The committee is anxious to make a thorough and careful revision and for that reason several months will be required to go over the many properties throughout the city. The committee has recently been devoting two or three nights a week to the work, the vacation season preventing more frequent meetings.

The committee is working independent of the tax assessors and are not being guided by any of the present figures. Upon the completion of the work there will doubtless be a comparison of the two assessments. A large property owner of the city in speaking of the work of the special committee said that he thought the city owed it a great debt of gratitude, that a better committee could not have been selected and that when the work was completed it would prove of lasting benefit to the city.

The whole purpose of the committee is to equalize the tax assessments, raising them where they are found to be too low and reducing them where they are found to be too high. Especial attention is being given to the business section of the city. Of course, the committee has no authority to levy assessments, but it is expected that their figures will have much weight regarding future assessments.

THREE SECTIONS TO LARGEST EXCURSION

Knights of Columbus Took 2,000 People to Asbury Park This Morning.

Three sections, consisting of a total of thirty-nine cars and carrying 2,800 passengers, left Plainfield this morning under the auspices of Watchung Council, Knights of Columbus, the event being this organization's annual excursion to Asbury Park. The Knights have previously established a record for carrying the largest number of excursionists to the shore, but this number surpasses all previous figures and the crowd was probably the largest that ever left this city for a single day's outing by the sea. Threatening weather conditions yesterday afternoon and last night led many to abandon their plans for the outing, the dubious weather conditions making it seem probably that the affair would be postponed until a later date.

Sunday-school tickets were distributed among 1,500 children ranging in age from seven to fifteen years in the Roman Catholic churches of Plainfield, North Plainfield, Dunellen and South Plainfield, and special arrangements have been made to look after the safety of these youngsters in the trip to and from the shore and to provide amusement for them while at the popular resort. The first and third sections stopped to take on passengers at the North Avenue station, but the second division was so crowded when it reached here that the committee signaled it to pass through without stopping.

Besides the executive committee there was a sub-committee of over 100 Knights to look after the comfort of the excursionists and special attention was given to the children and elderly people. Returning the first section will leave Asbury Park at 6:30 o'clock. The committee in charge was comprised of the following: Arthur A. Cannon, chairman; Charles L. Kling, John J. Carty, Robert McCormick, Garret A. Keating, Michael Cagrey, Timothy J. Meany, Thomas F. Carty, John J. Kenney, Harry J. Pasch, John Kyle, James C. Hurling, Andrew E. Kenney, Patrick Mohan, Harry J. Forristel, Joseph McCarthy, Joseph F. O'Keefe, John A. McNally, Joseph T. Brady, John Geary, Michael T. Moynihan, John T. Dineen, John G. Stillger, George H. Riely and John H. Traynor.

RUNYON URGED TO SEEK JUDGESHIP

Petitions In Circulation Although He Is Still Undecided.

Although petitions were being circulated today for his nomination on the Republican primary for city judge, William N. Runyon declared that he had not made up his mind whether he would enter the race or not. When seen today and informed that the petitions were being circulated, Mr. Runyon said that if such was a fact it was without his own personal knowledge and those who had charge of the petitions were securing the signatures on their own initiative.

It was stated today, however, that many friends of the former city judge were urging him to become a candidate for the judgeship, and although he had not given his final decision in the matter, they had taken it upon themselves to circulate the petitions and secure the reuired number of signatures.

Prior to William G. DeMeza's election to the city judgeship, Mr. Runyon held that office for many terms, succeeding himself for a number of years. Two years ago he did not seek a renomination for the reason that he decided to enter the Congressional race, at which time he was defeated by Congressman William E. Tuttle, Jr. of Westfield. Since that time Mr. Runyon has not been active in politics.

FILES PETITION TO RUN FOR SHERIFF

Three-cornered Fight For This Office In Somerset County This Fall.

Joseph E. Buck, of Bernardsville, is the first person to file his petition in Somerset county for the Fall primaries, his petition for the office of sheriff being filed with the county clerk last week. The advent of Mr. Buck's hat into the ring means a three-cornered fight for the sheriff nomination on the Democratic ticket, Charles Hamilton and Joseph E. Gibson having already signified their intention of running.

Mr. Buck was postmaster for over four years at Basking Ridge, was twice elected poormaster and served in the latter office for seven years. He has been elected as assessor twice and is serving his sixth year as such. On the Republican ticket, Mr. Buck will be opposed by Charles Sebring of North Plainfield, and Joseph Fitzga.

'CHARLIE' LINE BACK FROM THE WEST FOR A SHORT TIME

Charles H. Line, formerly assistant physical director of the local Y. M. C. A., who has just completed a physical director's course in the Springfield Training College, returned from St. Paul, Minn., last night where he has been employed during the summer. "Charlie," as he is familiarly known in these parts, was accompanied by his younger brother Schuyler, and they will spend a few days with their parents on East Front street, before returning to the West.

Both have glowing tales to relate concerning their experiences in the "wild and woolley" part of the country but took a day off after their thirty-three hours trip on the railroad to take a swim at Midland Beach today. "Charlie" is several pounds heavier than he was before he left the Queen City, and this increase in avoirdupois, together with the moustache he has raised during his absence, were subjects for considerable chiding among his former associates at the Y. M. C. A. last night.

BEES CAUSE BORO MARSHAL'S HORSE TO TAKE FRENCH LEAVE

Chef Marshall George Weiss, together with a party of friends, have been enjoying a little camping trip at Washington Rock. Among the camp equipment taken along was a bobbed tail, brick skin horse belonging to the chief. Yesterday afternoon the horse was tied to a stake and left to enjoy the great abundance of grass. A nest of bees was disturbed in the course of a few minutes and Weiss's favorite took French leave and has not been heard of since.

COMPANY K IN MIMIC BATTLE AT SEA GIRT

Plainfield Citizen Soldiers at Mess—Nothing Stylish, But Good Healthy and Substantial Food Is Furnished.

(From a staff correspondent).

Camp Fielder, Sea Girt, August 7.—A terrific battle is being fought today around hill 109, officially designated so on the war maps, for the Red and Blue armies of the Second regiment, National Guard of New Jersey are engaged in their first encounter in the mimic warfare.

Under sealed orders the regiment marched out of the encampment this morning. Later they split into two rival armies, the Reds, including Company K of Plainfield, under command of Major William B. Martin, proceeding to Allenwood. There they ate mess, the men preparing their own food. The Blue army, encamped along the Manasquan river on the Ocean county side did likewise.

The Blue army crossed the Manasquan before the Reds could theoretically destroy the approaches and were moving toward Allenwood. Scouts so reported to Major Martin who decided to take up a defensive position in the line of march from the river to Allenwood. Consequently he chose hill 109, which is located just east of the road leading from Allenwood to the upper bridge over the river, where he directed that entrenchments be thrown up and preparations for an encounter made.

In their westward march toward Allenwood the Blue army was surprised by an ambush from the Red army from their strategical position on the hill and were temporarily driven back in the direction of the approach. Majors John H. McCullough and Conrad Price, in charge of the Blues, held a conference and planned an attack upon the hill.

The attack created a terrific fusillade of bullets in the vicinity of the point of contact. By means of the execution of a flank movement the commanders of the Blue forces hope to rout their Red enemies before the day is over and so be enabled to proceed against the base of the Red army supposed to be at Farmingdale.

Colonel Horace M. Reading, commanding the regiment, who formulated the tactical problem which is being worked out by the men today, is on the firing line witnessing the work of the battalion commanders in their direction of the attack and defense of the position. With him are Major Edward Chrisman and Lieutenant Thorne Strayer, the regular army officers detailed to New Jersey as inspector-instructors of the National Guard.

What Plainfield Boy's Are Doing.

The Company K boys participated n extended order drills yesterday. The afternoon's work consisted of the solving of a problem which included a ten-mile hike. The problem was for the first battalion to destroy or capture a lot of valuable stores supposed to be in Farmingdale, a town about eight miles from camp. On the trip out Company K acted as the support to the advance party and on the return was the advance party. The wagon train which accompanied the battalion was left outside Sea Girt with a heavy guard to prevent an attacking party from capturing the wagons and thus forcing the companies to go without subsistence. Companies F and I, of Elizabeth, acted as the support on the return trip.

A new feature of advance guard work was put into effect on the trip. Instead of three or four men on the point an entire squad of eight men were used. This step was taken as it was necessary to make a fast trip to capture the store and a large firing unit was placed in advance so as to overwhelm all small parties attempting to hinder the progress of the attacking party. On the return trip the point of the advance guard under command of Sergeant Le Roy DeCamp encountered Major McCullough's battalion, which was entrenched on a military crest of a hill commanding the road, and when fired on he deployed his point under cover of the bank along the road which afforded him excellent cover for his men, Sergeant DeCamp at once sent a full report by messenger to the captain, who knowing that no attack was contemplated ordered the point to resume the march.

Major McCullough's battalion had taken up a defensive position with a theoretical enemy on the offensive, and when the first battalion arrived in sight he took advantage of a "representative enemy" which was entirely ignored by Company K.

The first battalion, of which Company K is a part, had their first dress parade last night which undoubtedly was the best evening parade seen here this year.

Immediately after dress parade today, the members of Company K will mount guard for a twelve-hour duty. Both these ceremonies will be witnessed by excursionists from Plainfield before they return home.

Sergeant LeRoy DeCamp, who is always at the head of the line when mess call sounds, was for the first time in history at the rear end. When this was observed by Captain Peterson he was greatly alarmed and hastily made inquiries for the reason. He was informed by most every man in the company that the sergeant's lack of appetite was due to the fright he received Wednesday afternoon when fired on by what he supposed to be an enemy. It is noticed that he is slowly regaining his normal composure.

The sergeants who have been suffering from the effects of Sergeant DeCamp's talkfests were greatly surprised when the sergeant in question returned to camp yesterday afternoon and at once proceeded to go to bed. The sergeants all wondered why their co-worker was so pale.

Corporal Hughie S. Perrine, better known as "Bugs, the man with the big voice," has become afraid of his voice and has been rechristened, "the big boy with the small voice."

Quartermaster-Sergeant J. Thompson, Sergeants LeRoy DeCamp and George B. Howell and Corporal Hugh Perrine were detained in camp last night because they did not report for check roll-call Tuesday night.

The initiating team of the company got busy with the "rookies" last night and placed them on guard all through the company streets, appointed details to do various odd jobs for the sergeants and cooks of the company.

Lieutenant A. R. Phillips and Quartermaster-Sergeant James A. Thompson have been shooting on the 600-yard slow fire and 200-yard surprise fire ranges the last few days, practicing for the State Rifle Team, of which they are members. Both members of the local company have been rolling up fairly good scores.

Lieutenant James B. Conkling, the new lieutenant of the company, will have to act as officer of the guard tonight. This is a good job for a "rookie" lieutenant.

Ex-Quartermaster-Sergeant J. Arthur Dow, who is spending his vacation at Asbury Park, spent a couple of days and nights as the guest of the sergeants.

Cooks Stephen Millwater and Herbert Klein, and their assistants, Privates Philip Millwater and Theodore Mendell, deserve great credit for the excellent meals they are serving.

Corporal Otto Hansen had to be called down yesterday because the appearance of his tent did not come up to the Company K standard.

Private F. Bedell Wills was the second to report to the hospital tent for relief from illness. The only trouble with Wills is that he eats too much at every meal and then wants to sleep.

Private Frank Reynolds a "rookie," has been nick-named "The Sleeping Beauty."

Sergeant George Howell has been promoted to the position of Governor of the initiation squad. Corporal Kmosko has been appointed to the rank of major, Private Philip Millwater to captain and G. W. Hansen the company artificer to lieutenant.

Sergeant A. H. Van Arsdale woke up last evening after a two-hour nap and wondered where he had been all day. He must be losing his mind or something worse.

RESIDENT OF FANWOOD.

Thomas Young, who is an aspirant for the championship honors in the contest inaugurated by a New York newspaper to determine the oldest commuter, is a resident of Fanwood and not Scotch Plains, as stated. He purchased his first commutation ticket to New York in 1867 and during the forty-six years has not missed a month. Mr. Young is one of Fanwood's best known residents.

INQUIRY REVEALS TORTURE METHODS

Fairview Training School Found to Be a Haven of Barbarism By Prosecutor.

PROPRIETOR ARRESTED

Beds With Shackles Found In Reformatory at Flemington—Boys Cruelly Beaten and Chained to Wall For Days at a Time.

Flemington, Aug. 7—Following charges of barbarous cruelty preferred against the officials of the Fairview Training School, at Flemington, Assistant Prosecutor George W. Dunham, of Hunterdon county, has instituted a rigid investigation with the prospect of the entire matter being placed before the Grand Jury. The action was prompted by a complaint made by Edwin Sparks, Jr., of 1133 Marion street, Camden, to the authorities of Hunterdon county charging that the private reform school officials commit daily outrages upon young boys and that some of them are so badly abused that their health is impaired.

A warrant has been issued for the arrest of Harry O. Knight, who conducts the institution and photographs that the attorney took of existing conditions will be used in prosecuting him. Knight was formerly connected with the Camden Y. M. C. A. and for the past five years he and his wife have conducted the private school and many children from all parts of the country have come under his supervision. Assistant Prosecutor Dunham says he found, among other atrocious implements of torture there, a bed with four shackles upon it which Knight used to lock the helpless victims in when they were in need of that sort of punishment. Dunham dropped in yesterday in the absense of the owner of the school and the sight he saw there, he says, was enough to bring tears to the eyes of the stoic.

One boy told the prosecutor he had been struck on the head with a monkey wrench by Knight, and showed a scalp wound to substantiate the charge. Knight made a denial, explaining that it was only a "slight tap." Others complained that they had been repeatedly flogged with a cart whip.

The school was founded five years ago and was advertised as a pleasant and uplifting haven for boys who were not considered bad enough by the courts to be sent to the reformatory, and others whose parents for one reason or another could not take care of them. The school gets three dollars weekly for each inmate, either from the parents or from the county from which he is sent.

The father of young Sparks claims that boys are often chained to the wall for days at a time with bread and water as their diet and in some cases were so badly maltreated that physicians had to be called in to attend them. One half of the group seen by the prosecutor on his tour of inspection had scars and marks of some kind while not a few had running sores, due to the scourge of sand flees. None were properly bandaged he said.

WARREN CHAPEL EXCURSION.

The last excursion from Plainfield to Asbury Park will be that of Warren chapel on Thursday, August 14, and as in years past it promises to be an enjoyable outing. The committee in charge has completed all arrangements and will personally see that every comfort and convenience is afforded the excursionists. The train will leave Plainfield at 8:15 o'clock in the morning, stopping at Netherwood both ways.

EMPLOYES GET VACATION.

In accordance with its custom in previous years, Tepper Brothers, the enterprising dry goods merchants, will close their store every Thursday, all day, during August, thereby giving their employes an opportunity for rest and recreation. This plan has proved very popular with the clerks, who appreciate the firm's interest in their behalf.

MRS. FIELD IMPROVED.

Mrs. James C. Field, Sr., of New Market, who was seriously injured in a runaway accident Tuesday night while returning to her home, is reported at Muhlenberg Hospital, today, as being slightly improved, although she had a very restless night. The possibility of concussion is causing the family the greatest anxiety.

WANTS ITINERARY CHANGED.

William H. Rogers, of Highland Farm, Warren Township, has written to Governor James F. Fielder asking him to change his itinerary on "Fielder Day," August 13,by visiting Washington Rock instead of going to Mt. Bethel. That is the day of the union Sunday-school picnic at the rock, ten schools being included. In consequence there will be but few people at Mt. Bethel and vicinity.

Dr. M.P.E. Groszmann Says So In Lecture Before University of California Students.

EUGENICS SHOOT WIDE

Head of Hobart Hall Thinks That the Conditions Surrounding Youth Are Most Essential For Subsequent Effect On the Race.

Dr. Maximilian P. E. Groszmann, head of Hobart Hall at Watchung, is on a visit in the west, and delivered two lectures at the University of California summer school last week. Dr. Groszmann's talks were given much prominence in the San Francisco papers, and in the stories reference was made to his great work at Plainfield. In his talks he warned against the tendency toward headline methods of latter day eugenists, who overrate the hereditary and underrate the environmental nature of crime, vice and degeneracy. "Of all the many causes of exceptional children, the economic cause is the most potent," the doctor declared.

"In a recent investigation into truancy in Milwaukee it was found that in fifty cases the children did not come to school because their parents were too poor to buy them decent clothing," said Dr. Groszmann, in placing the economic causes at the beginning of the list. "Miss Jane Addams has shown the disastrous effect of the economic pressure, and Secretary C. Loving Brace stated at the annual meeting of the Children's Aid Society in New York, that poor and insufficient food, noise, confusion and excitement day and night have favored among the young the development of St. Vitus' dance. Last year 8,125 homeless boys sought shelter in his society's workhouses, 655 orphans or deserted children gained permanent homes and 2,346 children were placed in foster homes.

"The conditions among the children of the Chicago stock yards employes is appalling, and is complicated by the immigration problem. The eugenists tell you that insanity is on the increase. If you study the conditions you will be surprised at the large number of shop workers and factory hands who, because they are unable to cope with modern industrial conditions, go insane.

"I hold no specific for the economic ills of today, but I do declare that our present industrial system is chaotic and primitive."

Dr. Groszmann is inclined to take a common sense view toward the questions being raised by the alarmists who are demanding more and more stringent marriage laws to check hereditary evils. He holds that in most cases where bad traits are inherited they appear in the child because he is usually raised in the same surroundings as the parent.

"I am in favor of san eugenics, but I am afraid we have been too hasty," said he. "Love defies mere cold reasoning, and it is a question whether the instinct of love does not more often lead along the right path than the little bit or fragmentary reason men can boast of. As to regulating marriage, it is well known that the more restrictions cast about the contracting of marriage the stronger the tendency toward illegitimate children. Love defies law.

"The problem of transmission is a complex one. Where there is outspoken idiocy and criminology, these characteristics will be transmitted, just like two blacks mated will have black children. But as to mental and moral traits, it is extremely hard to tell what the results will be. The tendency of evolution is to crowd out the lower traits and preserve the higher. Thus we have progressed from wild beasts.

"You are told that drunkenness is hereditary. Were this so, we would all be dipsomaniacs or degenerates, because our forefathers were all heavier drinkers than we are.

"It is a risky thing to say that criminal traits are always inherited, for many criminals are such by accident. It takes as much intelligence to pick a lock as it does to make one. I have known men to rob others in order to give to charity.

"If we were to substitute for prisons and reformatories a larger number of special educational institutions, sanatoria and hospitals where juvenile offenders and backward children could be treated psycho-pathologically, there would be fewer adult criminals. The alienists need thorough reorganization, so that the individual offender may be approached with scientific methods. Merely to punish is an uncivilized way to treat the so-called criminal. With every court there should be connected an observation clinic, and the prisons should be converted into custodial institutions and hospitals rather than places of penal disgrace and degradation.

"I want to let this be my appeal. Eugenics is not merely a matter of hereditary, but also of environment. Hereditary and congenial conditions are often determined by the environment in which the parents live. If we can clean up our cities and remove the physical and moral filth from them; if we may have cleaner hearts and politics; if we may have honesty and mercy in business and in our personal dealings with our fellows; if we may remove that soul-killing economic pressure which results in class hatred and social strife; if we may have that subtle and purifying influence of a healthy environment and the inspiration of great ideals permeating that environment, then will come the time when our children will be well born in the best sense of the word; well-born and well-living; heirs to a past which is great and noble and makers of a better mankind which rises to ever higher levels of civilization and righteousness."

BUILDING ASS'NS PROSPER.

Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 7—The twenty-first annual convention of the United States League of Local Building and Loan Associations opened here today with an attendance of 400 delegates from nearly every State, and representing about 6,000 associations with total assets of nearly $900,000,000. Governor McGovern, of Wisconsin, and Mayor Bading, of Milwaukee, welcomed the delegates and Charles O. Hennessey, president of the league, responded. A number of addresss were delivered on subjects relating to the business of the members. H. F. Cellarius, of Cincinnati, secretary of the league, reported that the local building and loan associations have, during the last year, in a marked degree shared the general prosperity of the country.

SCIENTISTS MEET IN TORONTO.

Toronto, Ont., Aug. 7—Scientific men from many parts of the world were present today at the opening of the twelfth International Congress Geologists. Sir Charles Fitzpatrick welcomed the delegates. Dr. G. A. Young, of the Canadian Geological Survey, also delivered an address. The congress will continue its sessions for one week. Subjects to be discussed include everything from the formation of pebbles to the creation of minerals and volcanos. The subject to which most attention is to be given, however, is the "Coal Resources of the World." Every speaker will be one who can deal authoritatively with the subject assigned him.

EXCURSIONISTS FILL ASBURY PARK BEACH

Plainfield Crowd Only Part of That Which Is at Shore Town Today.

Asbury Park, Aug. 7—All of the beach front amusement resorts are rushed today entertaining the second largest excursion crowd of the summer. The visitors included the Knights of Columbus, of Plainfield, who brought in three heavily loaded trans; the Second Reformed Sunday-school, of Somerville; three sections run by the North Jersey Street Railway Employes Benevolent Association, the Presbyterian Sunday-school from Chrome and a Pennsylvania Railroad excursion from East Millstone. Yesterday's excursions included the Elizabeth Orphan Asylum in four sections, the Washington Temple of Honor, of Newark, and the Methodist Sunday-school, of Morristown.

A sensation was caused at the convention of organists in the auditorium yesterday, when Dr. W. A. Wolf, of Lancaster, Pa., denounced present day hymns used in the churches as being spectacular. He read one, the gist of the verse being that life was like an express train and you the engineer. Each verse wound up with "Keep your hand on the throttle and your eye upon the rail." The convention went on record as favoring a revision of the standard hymns of today.

The Fielder Democratic Club was organized yesterday with Dr. H. S. Kinmonth as president, Charles E. Cook and A. D. McCabe vice-presidents. Over 200 members enrolled. It is believed the club will endorse Dr. Kinmonth for mayor of Asbury Park to oppose Dr. Bennett at the primaries.

William Vogt, world's champion fly caster, will give an exhibition Saturday afternoon, August 16, at 4 o'clock, at the foot of Sunset lake. Mr. Vogt is not only an accurate caster, twirling the line around a lead pencil 100 feet away, but has a record of sending a four ounce lead 231 feet.

The carnival association will give an elaborate display of fireworks on the beach at the foot of Deal lake Friday night.

Prof. Tali Esen Morgan rejoices that the Ocean Grove Association will hereafter refuse to rent to families with small children the tents around the auditorium. They disturb the concerts he says.

A masquerade ball at the Casino and Arcade is being arranged as a part of the program of entertainment for Labor Day night.

Among the Plainfield people registered at Asbury Park hotels are: Fourth Avenue Inn—L.W. Randolph, Mrs. William E. Day, C. Jelltzinger; Knickerbocker—Samuel Reynolds.

GOV. ELIAS M. AMMONS.

He Will Act as Host at Conference of Governors.

The sixth annual governors' conference is to be held at Colorado Springs, Col., for five days, commencing Aug. 26. The organization consists of governors and former governors from all states of the Union. Governor Elias M. Ammons of Colorado will be the host of the visiting governors during the conference.

Beauty of Inequality.

The beauty as well as the happiness of the universe requires inequality. Equal lines, smooth surfaces and eternal plains have no beauty. We must have hill and dale, mountain and valley, sea and land, suns of all magnitudes, worlds of all sizes, minds of all dimensions and persons and faces of divers casts and colors to constitute a beautiful and happy world. We must have sexes, conditions and circumstances—empires, nations and families—diversities in person, mind, manners, in order to the communication and reception of happiness; hence our numerous and various wants are not only incentives to action, but sources of pleasure, both simple and complex—physical, intellectual and moral.—Alexander Campbell.

Made It Complete.

When Lablache, the famous operatic singer, was presented to Queen Victoria, her majesty, who had heard of the artist's hobby, asked if it was true that he had a large collection of snuffboxes. He replied that it was correct. He had one for every day in the year—365.

"Nevertheless your collection is not quite complete," was the queen's response. "Here is another for leap year."—Pearson's Weekly.

Spoiling a Compliment.

Jagson—I tried to pay the new woman a compliment last night in my speech, but it didn't seem to be appreciated. Bagson—What did you say? Jagson—I said that the new woman would leave large footprints on the sands of time.—London Answers.

ONE WAY TO HELP MAKE PLAINFIELD 'SPOTLESS TOWN'

Editors, Plainfield Daily Press:

The Board of Trade has asked Mr. Gavett to have the brick pavements of Plainfield washed daily at about midnight and it will help his department if the store keepers will sweep their stores and sidewalks at night so that when the city cleaners come along the last vestige of refuse will be removed and the brick paved streets and sidewalks abutting will look clean and nice in the morning. Special attention is directed to this feature for Saturday night because generally Front street on Sunday looks like Hogan's Alley.

Mr. Gavett can undoubtedly figure out a plan to govern the situation, a violation of which by the store keepers, should be made punishable by a heavy fine.

WILLIAM JEFFERY,
President Board of Trade.

POWELL CLAYTON 80 YEARS OLD

Washington, D. C., Aug. 7.—Gen. Powell Clayton, former ambassador to Mexico and for nearly half a century a prominent figure in American politics, celebrated his eightieth birthday anniversary today. Gen. Clayton's career has been one of unusual activity. After serving as an officer of the Union army through the Civil War he settled on a plantation in Arkansas, where he became a leader of the Republican party and was elected governor and United States Senator. For more than forty years he represented Arkansas on the Republican National Committee and during that period he was a delegate to every national convention of his party. Last winter, having taken up his permanent residence in this city, Gen. Clayton resigned his place on the national committee. At present he is busily engaged in writing his memoirs, which he promises will contain many things to clear up the facts in the great political contests of by-gone days.

—The Daily Press is always glad to receive an advertisement for the classified columns over the 'phone.

—Every day is "Election Day" with the shoppers of this city. Every day some store receives a vote of confidence, presaging continued support, from the housewives. The store whose ads present the widest variety of opportunity news is "elected," always. For such a store brings ACTUAL RELIEF to the people from the oppression of high prices—not, as is often true in politics, mere promises of relief!

The Modern Bakery Is One of the Wonders of This Amazing Age

WHILE the Wright Brothers have been conquering the air—while Edison and Marconi have been doing almost impossible things with electricity—while 20th century wonders are being created on every hand—a most amazing transformation has taken place in the baking industry.

Our Modern Bakery Is a Veritable House of Wonders

All the actual work is done by automatic machinery. These machines clean and aereate the flour—they weigh, mix and knead the ingredients—they provide fresh, pure air for the "rising" of the dough—they cut the dough into portions of eaxctly the right weight, then shape these portions into loaves. They then carry them on through automatic proofers, properly conditioning the dough, and then deliver them at the very mouth of the giant ovens. The heat of these ovens is automatically regulated. They are always heated to the same degree. Sanitary regulations are carried to the limit and cleanliness is practiced as a religion.

During all this process men only supervise. The machines do the work. The bread is scarcely touched. It's simply wonderful! Think of this little business story next time you buy a loaf of

Is is a bread without a fault. It is wrapped in clean wrappers at the bakery.

MRS. JULIAN HEATH.

Denies Lack of Housework Is Making Women Anaemic.

The declaration of Dr. Olive Lynn, a prominent woman physician of Colorado Springs, that the women of the present day are not the physical equals of their mothers and grandmothers and that they are becoming flat chested and anaemic because of giving up housework, was emphatically denied by Mrs Julian Heath, national president of the Housewives' league. "Our modern women are daily becoming more fit physically and factally more beautiful," declared Mrs. Heath "They are always taking up some new form of exercise that is guaranteed to benefit their health, and their figures are daily approaching more closely the ideal, as we know it from the figure of Venus de Milo."

DOCTOR TAKES POISON COUSIN HAD REFUSED

Swallows Bichloride of Mercury For Headache Pills.

The accident that may become a tragedy was the result of a strange and terrible mistake. Edward McNamara, cousin of the doctor, lives in the latter's home at 613 Hudson avenue, Hoboken. He had been afflicted with insomnia for several nights.

"Can't you give me something to quiet my nerves, Tom?" he asked.

"I think so," said the doctor.

He went up to his laboratory on the top floor of his home, where his carefully labeled medicines were stored. He took from his case a bottle which he thought contained asperin tablets and went down again.

"I can't swallow it," complained the cousin, after putting a tablet in his mouth. "It's too big."

"This way—look," said Dr. McNamara, and, gulping another tablet, he took a drink of water and downed it easily.

The cousin tried again, but could not swallow the drug. Death was at his lips, but neither man knew it.

The doctor gave him another remedy and went to bed. Early yesterday he was awakened by fearful pains in his stomach and back. It was his turn to call for aid.

Edward McNamara had an automobile at the door in a few minutes and rushed the doctor to St. Mary's, but not before they had stood arm in arm, the doctor tottering with weakness, before the cupboard in the laboratory and had learned that the bottle of asperin tablets lay there intact and that the bichloride of mercury was on the table downstairs.

CASTRO'S ARMY 12,000.

Venezuelan Former Dictator Maintains His Popularity.

Caracas, Aug. 7.—Marching against a rebel army said to be already as large as 12,000 men, President Juan Vicente Gomez has left with 7,000 men, divided into seven regiments of infantry and one of artillery, to oppose General Cipriano Castro. He leaves the government in charge of Dr. Jose Gill Fortoul, president of the federal council, who will act as president.

The federal forces will go to Maracay on the railroad, fifty miles southwest of Caracas. General Castro is said to have been received with open arms by the people of Coro, in the state of Falcon, where he landed. His army has grown amazingly, although, according to some accounts, he forced peasants to join by torture and threats of punishment.

MISS PERRY'S GOOD LUCK.

Hammer Falls Seventeen Stories; Hits Her on Head—Not Much Hurt.

New York, Aug. 7.—While passing in front of 50 Church street, Miss Lillian Perry of 515 Mountain avenue, Westfield, N. J., was struck upon the head by a hammer which had fallen seventeen stories from the hand of Oliver Adolph, who was working on the window casings on that floor.

The only injury Miss Perry received was a scalp wound. It was dressed by a surgeon, after which she continued to her work.

SULZER'S CHECKS ARE IN EVIDENCE

Brokers Won't Tell of Stock Transactions.

BANK BALANCES SHOWN.

Deposited $24,000 to Personal Account Between Sept. 1, 1912, and Jan. 1, 1913—Frawley Committee Seeks to Have Recalcitrant Witnesses Jailed.

New York, Aug. 7.—The Frawley investigating committee, in session at the city hall, heard witnesses who produced three checks aggregating $2,000 which are alleged to have been omitted from Governor Sulzer's sworn statement of his campaign fund.

Following this the committee struck a snag and adjourned when certain Stock Exchange men refused to testify in the committee's efforts to show that campaign funds had been diverted to Wall street transactions.

Adjournment was taken with instructions to Eugene Lamb Richards, counsel for the committee, to prepare papers for presentation in court to determine the committee's authority and, if possible, to force the Wall street men to testify. Questions directed at these witnesses sought to bring out the fact that Mr. Sulzer had purchased railroad stocks from the firm of Fuller & Gray on Oct. 21, 1912, but had concealed his name in the transaction.

Other witnesses, including the representatives of various banks, produced records and gave testimony to show that $12,495 was deposited in the Mutual Alliance Trust company to the account of Louis A. Sarecky, Mr. Sulzer's secretary, between Sept. 1, 1912, and Jan. 1, 1913, and that between the same dates Mr. Sulzer's balance in the Farmers' Loan and Trust company increased from $1,100 to $22,527.

Try to Trace Funds.

Arthur Fuller of the firm of Fuller & Gray was the first witness called in the effort to disclose certain stock transactions. Mr. Fuller was represented by counsel and immediately explained that he would not answer questions on the ground that the committee was going beyond the scope of the resolution by which it was created and did not have power to demand answers to questions touching on private business.

Mr. Richards explained that he wanted to show a connection between campaign contributions and stock transactions, but Mr. Fuller, chairman of the committee, insisted that he wanted to know if contributions had been diverted to stock transactions, but Mr. Fuller was obdurate.

"Have you an account known as account No. 500 on your books?" asked Mr. Richards.

"Yes," answered Mr. Fuller.

"Did you sell two blocks of 100 shares each of C., C. C. stock on Oct 22 on that account?"

"Possibly. The records will show."

"Who bought the stock?"

"I don't know."

"Who receipted for it?"

"I don't know."

"Do you know Frederick L. Caldwell of Yonkers?"

"Yes."

"Did the stock go to him?"

"I don't know."

$11,000 In Account.

Similar questions indicated that such an account had been opened on Oct 21, and that approximately $11,000 had been deposited to the credit of the account before Nov. 1. The records show that Frederick A. Coe, a clerk in the Yonkers branch of the firm, receipted for the stock, but there is no record to prove the name of the purchaser, as the transactions were for cash. Mr. Fuller refused to give any definite information.

Melville Fuller of the firm of Harris & Fuller, 45 Broadway, was then called. He also refused to testify on advice of counsel, and Mr. Frawley, becoming indignant, instructed the attorney for the committee to take the matter to court to find out whether the witnesses could be forced to testify.

Asked if he knew Frederick L. Caldwell, Mr. Fuller said that he did, and that Mr. Caldwell was once a member of his firm. Other questions, however, he refused to answer.

Mr. Caldwell was in the room and was then called to the stand. He also refused to answer questions despite the reference to the authority of the legislature made by Senator Frawley.

GERARD HAS FOUND A HOUSE

Ambassador to Germany Has Choice of Two Residences In Berlin.

Berlin, Aug. 7.—James W. Gerard, United States ambassador to Germany, left here on his return trip via Hamburg, where he embarks on the America, sailing from that port today. Mr. Gerard is accompanied by his wife and her sister, the Countess Anton Sigray.

The ambassador has found a suitable house in the fashionable quarter of Berlin, but is undecided as to whether a more central neighborhood would not be more comfortable. The rental asked for a house fit to accommodate the embassy and staff is about $19,000.

NEW KIND OF MEDICINE.

If the lates advice which comes from Johns-Hopkins University Hospital is followed by the American public in general, a lot of the fat fees which now go to physicians for taking the appendix out of their patients, are going to be saved. The cure suggested is the simplest and most economical that has ever been proposed, for in all seriousness it is told us that to escape appendicitis and kindred disorders all we need to do is to stop worrying and keep smiling. In other words, become an aggressive enemy of gloom, wear the "smile that won't come off," and be whole forever after. That seems like an easy task. All of this is given to the public in a bulletin just issued from the justly famous medical school, which attained its greatest prominence under Dr. Osler.

According to the Hopkins surgeons, mental worry is one of the most frequent causes of appendicitis—just as much of a cause as the lifting of heavy weights with its resultant strain. Imperfect mastication is admitted to be one of the primary causes, and the bolting of food is generally a habit of the man who lacks the rosy view of life. It is the man who does not take the proper time for consuming his food who invites stomach trouble, and, incidentally, appendicitis. The man who smiles at his table companions and joins in the general table talk is least susceptible.

It has been supposed that appendicitis is hereditary. While observations made have shown that this is frequently the case, it has been proved that the main causes are improper diet, hasty eating and mental depression.

To this latter cause the majority cases are attributed. This is also shown by the statistics of the Phipps clinic at the Hopkins, in which many of the patients have had to be operated upon for that disease, in conjunction with the treatment for mental troubles.

Upon the admission of each case where a patient is suffering from appendicitis, the physicians in charge make it a rule to inquire into the habits of the subject to find mainly whether or not he is mentally depressed or, in more popular language, nursing a grouch.

If this is the case, measures are taken to cheer up the patient. This is done on the same principles as dieting and other preparatory measures are taken. Cheerfulness often minimizes the danger of death and makes successful the outcome of the operation.

It's another case where "the man (or woman), with the smile wins."

"CANADA'S GRAND OLD MAN."

That "Grand Old Man of the Dominion," Lord Strathcona, was 93 years old yesterday, and he is still active and interested in the welfare of the people of the Great Canadian country. Any man who reaches such an age, and keeps his mental and physical strength is remarkably unusual, and this great man is not only healthy and hearty, but retains active control in his many and varied interests. Born in Scotland, of humble parents, on August 6, 1820, and christened Donald Alexander Smith, he came to Canada at the age of twenty to fill a clerical position in the service of the Hudson Bay Company. He rose in the service to the topmost round and was the last resident governor and chief commissioner of the company at Montreal. In 1870 he was stationed at Fort Garry (now Winnipeg) and was appointed a commissioner by the Government to treat with the Riel rebels. Five years later Mr. Smith, as he then was, embarked in the promotion of railroads in the West. He achieved notable success and in time became the richest man in Canada, being the controlling factor in the Canadian Pacific Railway, the Bank of Montreal and the Hudson's Bay Company, of which he is still president. In 1896 he was made High Commissioner for Canada in London, which position he still holds, and in 1897 he was created Lord Strathcona and Mount Royal. There are few men in public life today in any country who can point to such a record for service as this popular resident of the Dominion.

Councilman Clay brought up a subject which has been agitated for many years in Plainfield, when he spoke about the soft coal smoke nuisance at the Council meeting on Monday night. While it is not so bad as it is in many other places there is plenty of room for improvement, and the City Council will do well to push through the ordinance which has been prepared on the subject by the corporation counsel. It's a safe risk that if Mr. Reed has drawn an ordinance it will accomplish the purpose, except possibly so far as the railroad trains are concerned. Have not the Central Railroad officials said several times that there was no excuse for an excessive amount of black smoke coming from their engines, even when soft coal is burned, and offered to reprimand engine crews who may offend in that way, provided the attention of the proper authorities was called to the matter?

The example set by a local department store in giving all of their employes a day off each week during August and of another holding a picnic at which the store played host is one that might be generally followed, not only here but in other places. We hope to see the time come when the Saturday half holiday will prevail in all lines of trade in the city. The paint, hradware, furniture and some other stores and the Daily Press office are setting a good example which others might well follow.

The Bull Moose was one year old yesterday. We were told last year that it would be a dead animal before twelve months rolled around, but judging from political developments in New Jersey and other States, there seems to be a pretty lively corpse.

WIRELESS WAVES

The Electric Voice That Speaks Through the Ether.

SETTING UP THE VIBRATIONS.

This Is the Work of the Oscillator, Which Is the Electric Mouth, and Its Message Is Caught by the Resonator, Which Is the Ear of the Apparatus.

More truly than any other telegraphic device, the wonderful wireless is a speaking voice. It makes itself heard just as the human voice does by a series of waves moving freely through space.

When I speak my voice is sent out in undulations of varying length and frequency through the air. When the wireless "speaks" its voice is conveyed by undulations in the ether, which is a more refined medium than air, carrying the waves of light and electricity as the air carries those of sound.

The oscillator of the wireless is a "mouth," sending out undulations in the ether as our mouths send out undulations in the air, and the resonator of the wireless is an "ear," catching the etherial waves as they impinge upon it, as our ears catch the atmospheric waves that strike them.

We see nothing wonderful in vocal sounds, because nature gave us in our needs one instrument to produce them and another to receive them. But she left us to find out for ourselves how to produce and receive "vocal" waves in the ether. Since we had to make the instruments that deal with them the etheric waves seem to us marvelous, although they are in principle no more marvelous than the waves of air.

Man began to use electricity for conveying intelligence by sending a current of it along a wire. He pressed a button at one end of the line, and the electric current passing along the wire induced a corresponding motion in a tapper at the other end. It was a roundabout way of employing an agency which we now know can be employed more simply and directly by throwing away the wires and making the electric waves "speak" straight through the ether.

It is true that the language employed does not consist of the words of any spoken tongue, but it is one that can be directly translated into any other known to man, and so it is the most universal of all languages.

Now, let us see how it is employed. First as to the electric "mouth." When a charge of electricity is accumulated on a "condenser" a similar but opposite charge is induced upon another condenser placed near. The air between them acts as an insulator because it is a poor conductor of electricity. But when the charge attains a certain degree of intensity the strain upon the air becomes too great, and a spark passes between the two condensers, by which equilibrium is restored between them.

The passage of this spark produces, so to speak, a shock in the ether, which, like the explosion of a gun or the utterance of a sound, sets up a series of waves in the surrounding medium, which radiate away on all sides. These waves in the ether produce the electric "voice." If the sparks are regulated in number and frequency the consequent waves are similarly regulated. An instrument for the production of such waves is called an oscillator or exciter. It is a kind of vocal apparatus for speaking through the ether instead of through the air.

But just as we should have no knowledge of the passage of sound waves if we were not provided with ears to hear them, so the electric waves would go unregarded if we had no apparatus for receiving them.

The receiving apparatus is called a resonator, or detector. It may be situated hundreds of miles from the oscillator, but it will catch the waves as they undulate to it through the ether, and it can be made to reproduce them in an audible or legible form by causing them to operate a Morse dot and dash instrument, as in ordinary telegraphy by wire.

But the electric voice and the electric ear are in some ways more manageable than the human voice and ear. We can only produce and hear air waves of a limited range of frequency, and we cannot do much to alter that limit.

Sound waves vibrating less than forty times a second or more than 40,000 times are inaudible to us. But electric waves varying in frequency from a few hundred up to hundreds of millions a second can be rendered perceptible, and it is also possible so to construct the instruments that they will send forth and receive particular ranges of waves and be mute and deaf to others.

Then the distance over which the electric waves can be detected is almost infinitely greater than that of ordinary sound waves. It takes a strong voiced man to make his voice audible across a little river, but, as everybody knows, the electric cry of a ship in distress can be electrically heard from the middle of the Atlantic ocean. And there are enthusiasts who predict that before very long we shall be able to speak by wireless to some other planet, if only there is somebody there to hear and understand us!—Garrett P. Serviss in Spokane Spokesman-Review.

There is no act, however trivial, but has its train of consequences, as there is no hair so small but casts its shadow.

MANY ATTENDED HOME WEDDING IN BOROUGH

Miss Roberta Mildred Fountain Now Mrs. Chauncey Ripley Lambert.

Miss Roberta Mildred Fountain, daughter of Mrs. Robert Fountain, of 73 Jackson avenue, was married to Chauncey Ripley Lambert, of Westfield, by Rev. Harris Rush, of Westfield, at her homee, last night, before a house filled with relatives and friends of the couple who are well known in this city and Westfield. Roses, palms and ferns were profusely scattered about the rooms where the ceremony was performed and Miss Dorothy Neal, a close friend of the bride, played the wedding march as the couple entered the parlor where the nuptial knot was tied.

Miss Ida A. Fountain, a sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, and J. Raymond Lambert, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. Miss Fountain was gowned in yellow charmeusse and carried an arm bouquet of tea roses. The many guests waited for the couple to depart on their honeymoon following the ceremony but were surprised later in the evening when they were informed that Mr. and Mrs. Lambert had departed out the back door for parts unknown. Mr. Lambert is connected with the Union Pacific Railroad in its New York office

PRELIMINARY TREATY IN BALKAN WAR IS SIGNED

London, August 7.—A special despatch from Bucharest says that a preliminary treaty of peace was signed today by the delegates representing Servia, Montenegro, Greece, Roumania and Bulgaria. The new frontier is disappointing to the Bulgarians who still entertain hope for its eventual revision by the powers. A resolution was introduced at the conference demanding that the powers take action to force Turkey to abandon Adrianople. It was reported at Paris today that Bulgaria would make and immediate attempt to retake Adrianople.

GUTHRIE REACHES JAPAN.

Tokio, Aug. 7.—The Mikado today received George W. Guthrie, the new U. S. Ambassador. Ambassador Guthrie, in presenting his credentials, conveyed the greetings of President Wilson to the Emperor and dwelt on the sincerity of American regard for Japan.

ANNA LANG.

Anna, the two months' old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Laing, of Mt. Bethel, died last night, after a short illness. The funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock at the home of the parents. Interment will be at Mt. Bethel cemetery.

TO ABOLISH GOLD LACE OFFICERS

New Ruling By War Dept. Will Affect All New Jersey Guard Officers.

(From a staff correspondent).

Sea Girt, Aug. 7.—The receipt of a circular from the War Department at Washington containing information on the proposed discontinuance of governmental appropriations to the organized militias of the United States which have not complied with the requirements of the Dick Act which calls for confirmation with the organization of the regular army, is being awaited with interest at the headquarters of Adjutant General Wilbur F. Sadler, Jr., of the New Jersey National Guard. The Dick Act, which was passed by Congress about ten years ago, carries with it an annual appropriation of $2,000,000 but provides that before receiving any of the funds appropriated under the act, the organizations must conform to the organization of the regular army.

When the act was passed it was found impossible to immediately comply with its provisions in this respect. Consequently nearly ten years of extensions have been granted. Secretary of War Lindley M. Garrison has decided that he will grant no further extensions after the first of the year and if any State desires to procure funds from the Government for arms, ammunition, equipment or camp purposes their organization must strictly comply with that of the regular army.

If the provisions of the circular are insisted upon by the Secretary of War it will cause a decided stir in militia circles, for the direct effect upon New Jersey would be to eliminate the division organization, because it can never be hoped to add four regiments of infantry and the other troops, field hospitals and trains in time of peace. The expense would be enormous. It would not effect the first brigade organization because it has three full regiments, the first, of Newark; fourth, of Jersey City, and the fifth, of Paterson. The second brigade would be eliminated because at present it is composed of but two regiments. The number of staff officers of the regimental commanders would be reduced. Should some of the companies in the regiments be disbanded and others not be organized to take their places within six months, it would further effect the regimental organization.

The circular further indicates that the War Department will not in the future pay to officers of high rank any money for attendance at encampments, etc., unless they have real cient strength to equal that of the cient strength to eual that of the command of an officer of the regular army with equal rank.

The ruling set forth in the circular states that no division commander or his staff will be recognized unless it is composed of three brigades of three regiments of infantry each, one regiment of cavalry, two regiments of field artillery, four signal corps companies, four field hospitals, four ambulance companies, a pack train, an ammunition train and a supply train.

Under the terms of the circular a division to be recognized by the War Department after January 1, 1914, must have all of these organizations with the exception of the two field hospitals, two ambulance companies, a pack train, an ammunition train and a supply train. If the State desires to maintain a division organization these adjuncts must be furnished by July 1, 1915.

The Second Brigade in this State, composed at present of the Second and Third Regiments of Trenton and Camden respectively, will feel the effect of the order because the circular states that a brigade must have three full regiments of twelve companies each, and that in case a State has four or five regiments the War Department will recognize one brigade with its commander and staff and that the other regiment or regiments will be regarded as separate organizations, but for administrative purposes will report to the brigade commander and receive orders from him. The same is true relatively to a regiment, which must have twelve companies to be entitled to a colonel and staff, should there be but nine or ten companies in a regiment it will only be entitled to a lieutenant colonel as commander. Each battalion of a regiment must have four companies. In the event of ther being but nine or ten companies commanded by a lieutenant colonel the majors will command the full battalions and the odd companies will be regarded as separate companies. This system will prevail in all branches of the organized militia.

The one office that is not interfered with under the circular is that of the Adjutant General's Department, which department is regarded as the direct representative of the Government and with which the Government deals exclusively.

It is generally believed that the circular has been issued as the result of the large number of officers that have been commissioned by some of the Southern States, where it is said there are colonels in many instances for each company.

of the income or principal of the residuary estate in their hands without the intervention of this honorable court and the construction of said will."

In answers filed by Lindabury, Depue & Faulks in behalf of Mrs. Riva and for Mrs. Riva as guardian of her minor children it is contended "that at no time since the execution of the said will, or for many years prior to its execution did the said William Rowland ever recognize, address, refer to or consider the said Jean Livingstone Koch as one of his children, or in any other way than as one of his grandchildren," and that it is not the true intent and meaning of the will, that Jean Livingston Koch shall share in the testator's residuary estate as a child of the testator."

It is further stated in the answer "that it is the true intent and meaning of the will that the trusts declared in and by the twenty-fifth clause of the will should cease and determine when John De Gau Rowland attains the age of twenty-one years, or upon his death, in the event that he should die before he attains the age of twenty-one years."

This young man, one of the sons of a deceased son of the testator, is now approaching his majority.

Like answers have been filed in behalf of Juanita De Gau and Elvira Riva by Frank P. McDermott, of Jersey City, as their guardian ad litem, and by Mrs. Jennie Rowland as guardian of her sons, William, Charles and John De Gau Rowland.

In the Somerset Orphans' Court order, by which Jean Livingston Koch became the adopted child of the testator, it is provided that "the rights, duties, privileges and relations between the said Jean De Gau Livingston and William Rowland and Jane Rowland, his wife, her parents by adoption, are and henceforth shall be the same, including the right of inheritance, as if the said Jean De Gau Livingston had been born to her said adopted parents in lawful wedlock, except only as is otherwise provided in the said act of the legislature above mentioned."

PROCTOR'S ANNIVERSARY BILL.

Proctor's theatre will celebrate its anniversary next week when special headline vaudeville acts will be presented, with an entire change of program on Thursday. The big act scheduled for the first half of the week is "Fun on the Ocean," a musical comedy of merit, with a wonderful array of scenic and electrical effects. Together with this great act will be Miss Hope Booth and company in a powerful dramatic production of note; Lewis & Lewis, in a singing novelty; Clifford & Douglas, singing and dancing comedians, and Clara May, the well-known vocalist. Feature photo plays will still retain their place on the program. The latter part of the week a program surpassing any vaudeville performance ever produced in this city will be presented, when Sewell Collins' comedy, "Supposing," will be presented with a cast of twenty-two people. This will be the first appearance of this production in America, coming direct from the London hippodrome. The other acts for the second show are William Edmund's and company in "Help Wanted," a comedy skit; Rice brothers, the German comedians; Dunbar's goat circus presenting the only act of its kind on the stage, and the Throwing Tabtors, expert club jugglers.

A HEROIC DEFENSE

Story of "The Last Cartridges" and the French Marines.

THE BATTLE AT BAZEILLES.

Commandant Lambert's Simple Report of the Desperate Conflict With the Bavarians That Was Immortalized In De Neuville's Famous Painting.

A famous French battle painting called "The Last Cartridges," the work of Alphonse de Neuville, represents the desperate defense of an old house at Bazeilles by a handful of French marines against great odds. Doubt having been cast upon the authenticity of this episode, the French government has published the official report made by Commandant Lambert, who commanded the detachment at Bazeilles.

The report is simply a plain, unvarnished recital of the events of a thrilling and heroic series of engagements in which undaunted bravery and reckless courage were truly displayed and which would furnish abundant material for a dramatist in need of a text for a stirring play. This is the brief story as it was recounted by the brave commandant:

Lambert had been wounded by a ball in the leg and was unable to walk more than a few steps. With a few officers and a detachment of his soldiers, cut off from the main body of the French army, he took refuge in an isolated house at the highest point in Bazeilles and defended it against the Germans.

Firing from the windows and any other openings that they could find, the soldiers inflicted heavy loss upon the enemy, who swarmed through the streets of the town. They believed that they would soon be rescued by their own troops.

They still heard the sound of their mitrailleuses and the detonations of the French chassepots, which they could distinguish perfectly well from the sounds of the guns of the Bavarians about them.

They did not know that these sounds came from a French force as hopelessly walled in as they themselves were and that the main body of their countrymen had deserted them.

At one time, seeing a chance for their escape, Lambert tried to send his comrades away while he and a few soldiers were to remain and fall into the hands of the enemy, but they refused to go. Meantime projectiles of all sorts were raining into the old house. Bullets perforated the doors and windows until but little remained of them. The building was entirely surrounded by the Fifteenth Bavarian regiment.

A bombshell crashed through the roof, bearing down with it several men. Others were cut down by Bavarian bullets. But the fight went on for a long time, and the Frenchmen were able to keep their assailants at bay.

At last, however, the ammunition gave out. As the last cartridges were fired the men, having heard the Bavarians' demand that no quarter be given those Frenchmen because of the heavy losses they had inflicted, proposed to issue from the building with charged bayonets and sell their lives dearly in a hand to hand conflict.

But their commander, the wounded Lambert, waited until the last cartridge was fired; then he limped through the door and confronted the swarming Bavarians alone. He declared that if they killed him it would be time for his soldiers to die, and it was possible that he, their commander, could make some terms for them.

As soon as he limped out and stood with folded arms a dozen bayonets were at his breast. He would have been killed in another instant if the Bavarian captain had not, at the risk of his own life, precipitated himself upon the French officer and beaten back his own men. Infuriated by the frightful loss which the defenders had inflicted upon their own regiment, they would have put the whole detachment to death.

The Bavarian captain prevailed, and the Frenchmen were made prisoners of war. The Bavarian officer congratulated the French commander warmly upon the desperate and heroic stand they had made.

As regards the moral significance of the right and left hands, a highland friend who is something of a Gaelic scholar gives me the interesting information that in Gaelic the right and left hands become respectively the "south" hand and the "north" hand. The moral aspect of it comes out in the Gaelic idea of the south as rich, well favored and fortunate and the north as the reverse. In the "south" hand are carried riches and honor. The north handed man is unlucky. And now we know why it is so many Scotsmen go southward!—London Chronicle.

Fled the Wrath.

Friendly Constable—Come, come, sir, you must pull yourself together; there's your wife calling you. Festive Gent—Wha she call—hic—calling me, Billy or William? Constable—William, sir. Festive Gent—Then you bet I'm not goin'—hic—'ome.—London Opinion.

Monopolist.

New Janitor — Don't you see that sign, "Beggars Not Allowed In This Building?" Beggar—Yes; I put it up. I'm the owner.—New York Globe.

A man can know nothing of mankind without knowing something of himself.—Beaconsfield.

SCHWARTZ SAYS PLAINFIELD MERCHANTS ARE HONEST

After a two weeks' stay in this city during which time he has made over 3,000 inspections and over 60 confiscations valuing approximately $700, Union County Inspector of Weights and Measures Augustus W. Schwartz, will leave Plainfield tonight to continue his operations in either Westfield or Summit.

"I have found that Plainfield merchants and storekeepers are pretty fair in regard to giving their customers good weight and measure," said Mr. Schwartz. "They have at least greatly improved over last year. I remember in 1912 when I inspected the weights and measures of storekeepers along West Third street, between Liberty street and Plainfield avenue, I condemned 20 implements. This year I found but two violations and these were due to lack of knowledge of the law on the part of the merchants, rather than any intent to cheat."

While in the city Mr. Schwartz has made the police station his headquarters. In Chief Kiely's private room, hucksters and all dealers in vegetables, etc., have brought their dry and liquid measures to be inspected and sealed. Violations of the law have been few.

Mr. Schwartz explained that his department is open every week day for merchants or storekeepers who wish to bring their weighing or measuring apparatus to be inspected and sealed. "We also solicit complaints," he said. "If any person thinks he or she is getting cheated by a dishonest storekeeper, let them write to me, care of the Court House, Elizabeth. The matter will be treated strictly confidential and an investigation started immediately. No attention will be given to anonymous complaints, however."

DEATH OF MISS POULSON.

Miss Lena Poulson, aged sixty years, died yesterday at her home on Manning avenue, the borough. Miss Poulson was a native of Sweden, but has been a resident of this city and the borough for the last thirty years, and was a member of the Swedish Lutheran church. She is survived by one relative in this country, Mrs. Christine Gustafson, of Manning avenue. The funeral will be held at 2:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon from 200 West Second street.

DISMISS ASSAULT CASE.

William Mowery, of Jefferson avenue, was arraigned this morning on complaint of J. P. Wolfe in the borough court, before Recorder Gano, on the charge of having struck the plaintiff last Saturday night at Meeker's butcher shop in the borough. After several witnesses had been examined by the court, the case was dismissed.

OFF FOR WAYWAYANDA.

A group of seven boys left the city this morning for Camp Waywayanda. J. B. Schofield, J. H. Manning and F. A. Martin accompanied the boys, who will remain at the camp for two weeks. Albert Muir was the only local boy to return from camp today.

EAGLES VISITED SOMERVILLE.

The degree team of Plainfield Aerie No. 866, F. O. E., visited the newly organized aerie at Somerville and accomplished the ritualistic work for a class initiation, when twenty-eight candidates were initiated into the mysteries of the order.

RETURNS FROM PHILIPPINES.

John E. Douglass, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Douglass, of 732 Dixie Lane, who has been in the Philippines for three years, where he was employed by Macleod Company, exporters, has returned home on a six months' vacation.

AUTOS COLLIDE.

Automobiles owned by Mrs. Samuel Sabocker, of 1081 Rahway road, and A. S. Herr, of East Front street, received slight damage yesterday, when they collided on Park avenue near East Second street. The occupants were uninjured.

LAYING CONCRETE WALKS.

Concrete walks are bing laid in front of the Hotel Kensington, by the owner, J. Harry Campbell, and in front of Peter J. McDonough's property adjoining, which has been leased by Thomas Timbo, replacing poor stone walks.

THE TEMPERATURE.

The temperature report from the State Trust Company today is as follows: 9 a. m., 74 degrees; 11 a. m., 82 degrees; 1 p. m., 85 degrees.

Former Assemblyman W. de LaR. Anderson returned to his home in Watchung last night from Long Beach, where he is spending the summer. He returned to the shore again today.

The Housewife's Daily Economy Calendar

FRANCES MARSHALL

Banana Dainties for Summer.

Bananas are as useful a fruit as man is blessed with. They are ever ripe and ever cheap. They vary little in flavor and texture, for they are always good. They can be prepared in rich and highly seasoned dishes that satisfy the appetite on a crisp day of winter or they can be made into light and appetizing dishes that suit the taste of summer.

Banana blanc mange is a good summer-day dessert that is easy to make. To prepare it, heat a quart of milk in a double boiler with a quarter of a cupful of sugar. Add four tablespoonsful of cornstarch rubbed smooth in a little milk. Remove from the fire when it is thick and when it is partly cool add two sliced bananas and a tablespoonful of vanilla. Mould and chill and serve with cream or boiled custard.

Banana custard is made in this way: Beat three eggs with a half a cupful of sugar and add two cups of milk, the grated rind of a lemon and enough banana pulp, mashed, to make a thin batter. Bake until it is set in a moderate oven, then cover with a merangue. Brown the merangue and cool the custard.

Frozen Desserts.

Banana ice cream is made in this way. Make a syrup by boiling three cupfuls of granulated sugar and two cups of wine, or water for five minutes. Take from the fire and add the well-beaten yolks of four eggs. Cool the mixture and then add the pulp of half a dozen ripe bananas, carefully mashed, and four cupfuls of cream. Freeze.

Frozen bananas are made in this way: Peal a dozen bananas and press them through a wire strainer. Boil two cupfuls of water and a cupful of sugar for five minutes and when this syrup is cool add the juice of two oranges and the banana pulp. Pack the mixture in a freezer and stir the dasher slowly until the mixture is frozen. Remove the dasher and add two cupfuls of cream beaten stiff.

MOTHERS' WORK

Conducted by the Plainfield Mothers' Association. Every Thursday

Contributing Staff.

Mrs. G. Stuart Simons, Mrs. Jos. Smith, Mrs. Wm. M. Sandford, Jr.

It rests with parents to make home all that it should be. How few married people there are who think it worth while to treat each other with the same coourtesy that they did before marriage. It is this very laxity that is responsible for many unhappy homes and for many wayward, discourteous children. The courtesy that is lacking between the parents is naturally withheld from the children, and they are imitative creatures. If any little act of attention from a child to its parents receives no recognition, this act is not likely to be repeated. By example more than precept children can be taught to be gentle and considerate. Nothing is more important in the rearing of children than to express approbation of good conduct. It is infinitely more important than disapproval of bad behavior, for the two great motives of life, hope and fear, influence children even more powerfully than older people, and what parent would not perefer to have a child influenced to good conduct by the hope of pleasing rather than by fear of punishment. There are many parents who are incessantly finding fault with their children, which is a grievous mistake, for nothing more quickly discourages a child than being perpetually reproved. Make home pleasant and the children will be loth to leave it.

A musical home is seldom, if ever an unhappy one. There is no greater safeguard against much that is evil than music in the home, whether it be a palace or a cottage.

It is estimated that this year over two thousand pupils graduated from the high schools of our State. Of this number two-thirds were girls What of their future, mothers?

Probably for most of them, eventually. In the meantime what are they likely to do? At the present time eighty per cent. of the teachers in New Jersey are women. For these the State provides no education other than that of the normal schools. Yet in order to teach most subjects in the majority of the high schools one is required to have had a full college course.

The cost of a colloge education, in endowed institutions, is estimated to be at least four hundred and fifty dollars, which makes such training prohibitive for many of the best and brightest girl students.

In every State of the Union, except Delaware, Maryland, Virginia and New Jersey, there are separate State colleges for women students which offer the same courses to women as to men. A committee from the federation has been appointed to see what can be done in our State. President Demarest, of Rutgers has favored giving full academic scientific and agricultural courses to women which shall not be co-educational but affiliated with Rutgers similar to the relations between Barnard and Columbia. It is estimated that a building in the vicinity of Rutgers campus would cost about $100,000. If this sum is raised, there is reason to believe that the legislature would equip and maintain full collegiate courses for women as a part of our free public school question.

This movement has been endorsed by the State Congress of Mothers, the College Club and others, a popular one dollar subscription fund has been started to give every one an opportunity to help establish free college courses in our own State college for girls.

All interest and aid given by anyone will be of material assistance. All communications should be addressed to Mrs. William S. Douglas, 62 Summit avenue, Jersey City, New Jersey.

The purpose of the Congress of Mothers in organizing Parents' Associations is to make each one a school for mothers and fathers. Upwards of two thousand such associations have been founded by the Congress.

The Congress supplies educational material on child-nurture and home-making. It will have much valuable material to offer when the Parent-Teacher Associations meet again. Any mother desiring advice can have it by writing to National Congress of Mothers, 806 Loan and Trust Building, Washington, D. C.

Publications that contain jokes about domestic life and the marital state are corrupting the youth. Public preaching would be more interesting if it were more about the present life, incidentally teaching the young to become home-makers and the mature to impose their views and ways of living.

Parents should have some definite religious ideas and teach them to their children, because parents indifferent to religion rear children that are irreligious and irreverent.

Parents should also answer a child's questions in regard to life and death with the utmost seriousness in order that a child may have respect for the parents' intelligence and the knowledge imparted may protect the child from ignorant mistakes.

Great stress must be placed in the first three years of childhood as basal for health, morals and future efficiency. Every abnormal result in after life almost always springs from something amiss in the first triennial of life. The child's feelings, instincts, impulses, temperament, are all formed in the first three years. Not only is emotional life almost formed for life but the basal traits of nature are hardened by the end of the third year. The nursery is more important than the kindergarten or the school.

WELFARE WORK CONFERENCE.

Silver Bay, N. Y., Aug. 7.—A notable conference on "welfare work" was begun here to day under the auspices of the industrial and religious leadership departments of the Y. M. C. A. The Industrial Workers of the World, the Rights of Property, Socialism and the Protection of Workers are among the subjects scheduled for discussion by Secretary of Labor Wilson, Seth Low, of New York, and other men of national prominence.

Some Cookery Suggestions

GREEN CORN.

LUNCHEON MENU.
Scalloped Corn.
Baking Powder Biscuit.
Orange and Nut Salad.
Muffins.
Coffee.

GREEN corn cut from the cob may be used in making many nice things to serve in season. As green corn can now be obtained these recipes may be of interest to housewives:

Baked Corn.

Baked Corn Pudding.—Take a pint of corn cut from the cob, one quart of stewed tomatoes, one scant cupful of cornmeal, two eggs, one small onion chopped fine, two tablespoonfuls of melted butter, a dash of red pepper, salt and black pepper to taste. Mix, pour into a well buttered pudding dish and bake slowly until set.

Scalloped Corn.—Cover the bottom of a baking dish with a layer of cracker crumbs, then cover the crumbs with a layer of sweet corn cut from the cob, dot with lumps of butter and season with salt and pepper. Alternate the layers until the dish is filled, having a layer of cracker crumbs with small lumps of butter last. Cover well with sweet milk, pouring it slowly into the pan, and bake in a medium hot oven until browned.

For Luncheon or Dinner.

Green Corn Fritters.—Take one pint of corn, two eggs, four tablespoonfuls of sifted bread flour, three tablespoonfuls of milk, one teaspoonful of salt and beat eggs very light; then combine the ingredients and stir until well mixed. Have a large griddle well heated and grease with half lard, half butter. Drop with a tablespoon in small mounds, bake slowly and see that the inside is done. When light brown take up on a hot platter and set over hot water. These may be served for lunch or as a vegetable at dinner.

Succotash.—Cut off the corn from the cobs and one and a half hours before dinner put the cobs, with a few shelled beans, into cold water to boil. After an hour take out the cob, put in the corn and boil it one-half hour. There should be no more water than will be necessary to make the succotash of the right thickness. When you take it up add a small piece of butter. This is much better than to boil the corn on the cob and then cut it off.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—Why the Frogs Like The Water.

OUTSIDE a frog was croaking to one of its fellows. "What does the frog say, daddy?" Jack inquired.

"Oh, Dinah says the frog is telling everybody that there is going to be rain. Do you believe that, daddy?" Evelyn asked.

"I should not wish to contradict Dinah," daddy laughed.

"We wouldn't tell her, you know," the children promised.

"Well, that would be thoughtful of you," daddy said. "And, while I hardly know what Mr. Froggie is saying out there, I will tell you a story I have read which shows us why there are frogs.

"Once upon a time, in the days when the old world was young and when the Greeks believed that gods and goddesses often left their beautiful homes in the sky and walked about the earth, some countrymen were at work by the side of a beautiful lake.

"As they worked a woman came through the woods carrying two little children in her arms. She was covered with dust as though she had come a long way. The countrymen stared at her rudely, for they took her to be a tramp.

"She did not seem to notice the men, but laid her babies on the grass and then leaned over the lake to drink.

"One of the countrymen spoke to his fellows. 'Let's chase her away. We don't want any tramps about here,' he very likely said.

"Before she could bathe her lips in the water the countrymen bawled to her to go away and let the water alone.

"She answered very gently, saying that she was very tired and thirsty, for she had traveled far that day.

"They had no pity for her, however, and told her she must move on at once.

"'Water,' she replied, 'is for all and free as the air and sunshine.'

"She again kneeled down to drink, but instantly the countrymen jumped into the water and began muddying it with their feet.

"Then the stranger rose. She grew suddenly tall and beautiful, and the countrymen were frightened by the anger that flashed in her eyes.

"Raising her hands to heaven, she cried, 'Avenge us, oh, great ones who live on high!'

"And then, turning to the now silent and frightened countrymen, she said sternly:

"'Since you love the water so well, may you live there forever'

"Instantly her tormenters were changed into frogs and jumped, croaking, into the muddy lake, while the great goddess Latona, whom they had insulted, picked up her little ones and vanished as strangely as she had come."

RATE CUTTING STOPPED

This state has passed a law making it illegal for insurance companies to discriminate in their rates charged on risks of essentially the same hazard.

The unfair and unbridled cutting in rates has been stopped, and where the assured has heretofore looked at the rate first and the company second, the order of things has been reversed and the company will now come first.

The strength and reputation of the companies in this office are unquestioned.

The Vogue For Combining Fabrics and Colors Gives the Clever Woman Unlimited Opportunities for Individuality.

This is the keynote of the new fashions—individuality. If you feel you do not possess it, strive for it unceasingly. If you have it, cherish it as you would some fragile plant. The woman who possesses this quality,can take the simpliest frock, and with a few touches, give it a distinction that lifts it far above the commonplace. It may be some little trimming touch, an odd combination of colors, perhaps just a clever arrangement of the girdle. So before you make your next dress, plan it out carefully, and give a little thought to the materials you are going to put together. In 1006, for example, plain blue eponge may be combined with white ratine that is barred off into squares by lines of blue. Cover button molds with old blue moire, and with a deep folded girdle of the moire, tied in a perky bow, you will have a frock you could not duplicate in the ready-to-wear department of the shops for twice what it cost you to make it. Finish the neck with a plaited net frill with picot edge and if you choose, the sleeves may be finished to correspond. Of course, if you prefer, this dress can be made all of one material, but this lacks the distinction you gain by contrast. Five pattern sizes, 34 to 42, and the 36-inch size calls for 5 1-2 yards of material 42 inches wide.

The craze for the blouse with plaited peplum shows no sign of abating. In fact they seem to grow in popularity all the time. If you prefer to use one material for this frock, 7892, tomato red, or biscuit color crepe de chine would work out very attractively, but you have a much wider range of choice when you combine two fabrics. Plain and flowered voile and crepe suggest themselves immediately, for they are so lovely and so inexpensive that somehow they seem first choice. These are combined with plain voile or crepe, generally white. If you want a rather elaborate frock, the printed crepes in silk, showing Futurist apples and peaches and other fruits for which nature was never responsible, make stunning frocks, combined with plain Canton crepe with plaited tunic of self-color chiffon. Just above the girdle, have a double fold the width of the vest, of satin or chiffon in some rather vivid contrasting tone, and make the vest of white tulle. Patterns for this pretty frock are cut in four sizes, 14, 16 17 and 18, and for the 18-year size which can be worn by small women, 2 3-4 yards 36 inch figured material, with 2 1-2 yards plain, and 1 yard for girdle Each pattern is fifteen cents.

Simple Sprays for Embroidering Children's Clothes.

Children's clothes should be very simple and should depend on their good cut and on their freshness for making them attractive, rather than an ornate trimming. Plain little frocks of linen, galetea, ratine, poplin, batiste and crepe voile can be made so inexpensive at home that there seems no reason why every mother should not have her little girl always dainty and fresh. Yet, every mother wants each little frock to have some mark of individuality to distinguish it from the commonplace ready-made frocks, and there is no more inexpensive way of trimming these little dresses, than a little hand embroidery. The simple little sprays in pattern 14196 can be adapted in innumerable ways, for trimming children's dresses, for they can be embroidered in white or colors. On school frocks of wool materials they can be worked with filo silk, while on the summer dresses of cotton and linen materials they should be embroidered in mercerized cotton No. 25. These sprays may also be adapted to many other uses for they are quite appropriate for giving a touch of hand work to a blouse of lingerie material, a nightgown, a chemise or combination garment and the long sprays may be embroidered on the neckwear, stockings, aprons and many novelties. Transfer patterns for stamping these designs can be supplied to readers for ten cents.

FLYNN TO TRY OUT "GUNBOAT."

New York, Aug. 7.—Whether "Gunboat" Smith is the fighter that he has been cracked up to be by his followers on the western coast will probably be determined here tomorrow night, when the Californian will be tried out by that best known of all trial horses, Jim Flynn, the Pueblo fireman. While Flynn falls far short of championship calibre himself he has been able to sidetrack more than one of the "heavies" who has been hailed as a coming champion. If "Gunboat" wins the fight it will add considerably to his reputation. The bout is scheduled for ten rounds and will be pulled off in Madison Square Garden.

Queries, Comment and Answers

Sporting Editor:

Query—Which has the largest navy, the United States or Japan? J. M.

Answer—We have it on the Japs at present but the way they are ordering battleships, and the way Congress is refusing to build some for us, it won't be long before they are ahead.

Sporting Editor:

Query—What is the origin of the barber's pole? A. V.

Answer—Ancient barbers performed minor operations in surgery, and when "bleeding" was customary, it was to the barber that the patient applied to be bled. To assist the operation, it being necessary for the patient to grasp a staff, a stick or pole was always kept by the barber-surgeon together with the fillet or bandage he used for tying the patient's arm. When the pole was not in use, the tape was tied to it so that they might be together when needed, and in this state, pole and tape were hung at the door as a sign. Eventually painted signs were used as advertisements for barbers. The bleeding custom is still in use, but it's the bankroll that's tapped nowadays.

Sporting Editor:

Query—Where can I get some one to take a reel of motion pictures for me? I desire to have a reel made of my family. E. C. U.

Answer—Write to the Feature Film Company, 108 East Twelfth street, New York.

Sporting Editor:

Query—Where can I go crab fishing in New Jersey? N. M.

Answer—There are certain crabs (of the human variety) that ought to be caught right here in Plainfield. If you insist on having the shelled species, crabbing is particularly fine at Elizabethport just now. You will also find good sport at Sewaren, Newark Bay and Morgan Station.

Sporting Editor:

Query—Kindly give me your decision on the following play which occurred in a Central New Jersey League game some weeks ago: Dunellen was at the bat with men on second and third. Man on second pulls a "bone" and steals third, but finding the base occupied, runs back to second and reaches the latter station safely. The High Bridge third baseman touched third with the ball, claiming the man on third was forced out and the umpire agreed with him, retiring the side. J. P.

Answer—The runner had to be tagged out. The umpire's decision was wrong.

Sporting Editor:

Query—We have a baseball pool and through some mistake one of the National League teams got in with the other seven American League teams and this National team got twelve runs and Washington and St. Louis were tied with eight runs, should the man with the National League team take the remaining American League team, or who gets it? F. T.

Answer—A National League team surely should not win an American League pool, why not split among the three. Be more careful next time.

Sporting Editor:

Query—Playing "hearts," if there is a widow in the game and the winner of the first trick has to take it, must he show up what hearts he gets in it, if any? V. T.

Answer—I presume you mean playing "hearts" with cards. Be more explicit. It is against the rules for him to show or name any hearts found in the widow, as part of the game is to leave the other players in doubt as to the number of hearts to come and their denomination.

"MAC" SAYS

There is a rumor abroad that Warry McLaughlin's pitching never resulted in a sore arm. But there is also a well grounded statement going the rounds that certain athletes in the Central New Jersey organization are suffering from sore batting averages.

The Dunellenites are the players who are quite guilty of inconsistency. Occasionally they play regular baseball and then again they do something that resembles shinny under the guise of the national pastime.

Kicker will be given great leeway under the new football rules if we see the dope correctly. Well, here's a chance for Eddie Stallings to shine.

Frank Wilcox, foolish youth, is still willing to arbitrate a Dunellen-Plainfield Central League crash. We admire your perseverance Frankie, but those who monkey with the bass drum once too often always get a clout with the drum stick sooner or later.

Past the half mile post "Hub" Stine is pulling away from his teammates in the First Baptist whaling derby. Herbert is out after that trophy for the best individual batting mark and it looks as though he had a leg on it already.

When the mid-day special leaves for New Brunswick next Sunday, it will carry a load of Pets to Amusement Park to oppose Doc Scanlon while he is endeavoring to maintain his leading role as a no-hit artist.

It is said that the dead do not return. And yet the Royals will take part in a City League clash next Saturday.

Mayor W. N. Williams, of High Bridge, who perpetrates the High Bridge nine on an innocent public, must certainly be given credit for producing a twirler at any rate. The more Gerard heaves the better he gets and when he gets through heaving he will undoubtedly be some pitcher.

ing one to believe that he aspires to one to believe that he aspires to be be the Bob LaFollette of baseball.

If Tyrus were an up-to-date youngster he would augment his meagre salary by busting into the Chautauqua outfit.

It is reported that Mayor Williams bought this Gerard person for a big price. Whaddayamean a big price?

Those High Bridge magnates, as well as the rest of the Central New Jersey League's "big four," have had a life-long habit of handing out big sums of money—to the bank.

If Cliff Randolph doesn't stop dickering with these big league magnates pretty soon we will be tempted to believe that he is really looking for a job on the big circuit. Oh no, he wouldn't do anything like that, he doesn't even bite. Whaddayamean yer lost yer—bite?

NATIONAL ROWING REGATTA.

Boston, Mass., Aug. 7—Needle-like shells, propelled by eights, doubles, fours, or individual oarsmen, darted hither and thither on the broad stretch of the Charles River Basin today in final practice for the forty-first championship regatta of the National Association of Amateur Oarsmen. The preliminaries in the regatta will take place tomorrow and the final events will be rowed on Saturday. Indications point to one of the most successful regattas the association has held in years. Leading boat clubs of New York and New England, with several in the middle States, will be represented in one or more of the twelve events that make up the program. Moreover, an international flavor will be given the regatta by the participation of the North West Arm Rowing Club, of Halifax. The club is sending, in addition to its four-oared crew, F. R. Hart, champion sculler of the Maritime Provinces, and R. T. Fitzpatrick, intermediate champion for the senior singles. The Halifax City eight also will contest in the regatta.

LARRY M'LEAN.

St. Louis Catcher Traded to Giants For Crandall.

Pitcher Otis Crandall was traded to the St. Louis Cardinals for Catcher Larry McLean. Manager McGraw ordered McLean to report to him at once, as he will be able to use him now that Chief Meyers is out of the game with injuries. McLean is a thoroughly experienced maskman, and although the Giants were well fortified with backstops despite the injury to Meyers, McGraw thought it best to have another catcher on hand in case of injury to Wilson.

PETS' SECOND GAME AGAINST BRUNSWICK

Driscoll Anxious to Get a Crack at the Team That Shut Him Out.

A return visit has been arranged by Manager Dorflinger to New Brunswick for next Sunday afternoon, and the Pets will endeavor to repeat their previous win over Driscoll's aggregation, this being one of the sweetest victories of the season for the Queen City combination. It is a foregone conclusion, however, that the "wiley one" is fully as anxious to retrieve the walloping handed to him by his former associates on the first occasion and he will have his stars out in full regalia to stem the tide.

Doc Scanlon, who has waded through two contests this season without allowing a single hit or run, will oppose Cliff Randolph on the mound. Cliff will have his work cut out for him at Amusement Park but he turned the trick the first time and is equally confident of producing a repetition. The first set-to was won by a count of 3 to 0, that being the first time that the Brunswicks were ever shut out by an independent baseball team.

The Brunswick team started operation in 1909 and has been a stellar performer against every semi-pro team in the State during the last three years, never once allowing a team to run away without first scoring a run on it. Last week Randolph yielded but seven bingles to the formidable Royal Giants combination in New York and he will probably repeat his record if in form on Sunday.

WON IN STRAIGHT HEATS.

Flemington, Aug. 7.—At the Flemington Fair races yesterday Iwana, the bay mare owned by Dr. C. S. Harris, won the 2:14 pace in three straight heats. Starting in seventh position, she took the lead in the second half, and was an easy winner. With a field of ten, Bob Chimes made it three straight in the 2:24 trot. Briarus, the chestnut gelding owned by A. W. Kline, of Reading, won the three-eights-mile running race for a puse of $100 in 27 seconds. Race King, the Poughkeepsie horse, won second, and Golden Vale, a bay gelding belonging to L. M. Stackhouse, Philadelphia, took third.

ED WALSH UNDER KNIFE.

Chicago, Aug. 7.—Ed Walsh, star pitcher of the Chicago American League club, whose arm has been sore since spring and who has taken part in only a few games this season, left yesterday to visit a specialist at Youngstown, Ohio, where he will undergo an examination to ascertain if his career as a twirler is at an end.

GOV. TENER MAKES OLD MATE MARSHAL

Philadelphia, Aug 7.—Governor John K. Tener, a pitcher on Spalding's All Stars, that made a tour of the world more than twenty years ago, gave up his ticket to Shibe Park some time ago to a bronzed veteran attache.

"Hello, George!" exclaimed the Governor, and then George A. Wood, outfielder on the globe trotting team, and the Governor fell to fanning.

Yesterday Wood received an appointment from Governor Tener as State Marshal for the New Public Service Commission. The position pays $2 000 a year.

"Governor Tener knows I can cover ground," commented the buoyant little veteran, as he smilingly tucked the legal envelope in his pocket and proceeded to collect pasteboards.

NEW YANKEE LINEUP.

Husk Chance has decided that he can gain little by sticking to his present line-up and yesterday he started with a brand new battle array. Both of the newcomers from the Texas League—Williams and Cook—will be in the line-up. Chance's new infield will be composed of Williams, first base; Knight, second base; Peckinpaugh, shortstop, and Hartzell, third base. The outfield will take the field with Cook in right, Wolter in centre and Cree in left.

P. L. IN THE MOVIES.

Frank Chance, manager of the Highlanders, now is an actor. He has been engaged by a moving picture company to take the leading part in a scene entitled the "Peerless Leader," some of the scenes of which will be laid at the Polo Grounds. Chance has been rehearsing his role in a studio in Jersey City. Catcher Sweeney, Outfielder Daniels and Utility Player Hartzell also will appear in the film.

PHILADELPHIANS LEAD.

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 7.—The Germantown Cricket Club's eleven made a brilliant showing against the Australian Cricketers in the two-day match which began here yesterday. After dismissing the visitors for a total of 144 runs in their first innings, the home batsmen compiled a total of 190 in their opening inning. The Australians will begin this second innings today.

RITCHIE TO BE HONORED.

Chico, Cal., Aug. 7—Fulfilling his promise that if his brother, Garry Steffen, who is known to the fight fans as Willie Ritchie, defeated Joe Rivers on July 4 he would erect a fountain in Chico Vecino, B. H. Steffen, president of a local water company, announced yesterday that work will be begun next week on a concrete fountain on the Esplanade, the principle street of the district.

LAJOIE WILL REMAIN.

Cleveland, Aug. 7.—Vice President E. S. Barnard, of the Cleveland American League Club, said here yesterday afternoon there is absolutely no truth in the report that the Chicago, Boston and Cleveland teams are arranging a three-cornered deal which will take Second Baseman Lajoie away from Cleveland.

REDS BUY PLAYER.

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 7.—Second Baseman John Rawlings, of the Victoria Northwestern League team, was sold yesterday to the Cincinnati team of the National League for $2,000. Rawlings will report to Cincinnati next spring.

CHAMPION LAZY PEOPLE.

Kongo Gluttons Who Do Little Else Than Sleep and Eat.

According to M. Friedmann, a German traveler and historian recently returned from the Kongo, there is a tribe of natives down in one of the interior parts of that region actually so stuffed all of the time with food, three or four times as much as they have any need of, that they are continually in a dull and almost unintelligent stupor.

They do little besides sleep and eat. They are too lazy to do any individual hunting, and it is the disliked and unpopular member of the family that is forced to do the food providing for the relatives. The women are quite as lazy as the men and work only when it is absolutely necessary to eat.

The only time when the natives rouse themselves is at marriage or at death. Both of these occasions are celebrated by eating more than on ordinary occasions even, and the after effects of both events are often disastrous, as one or two of the party are sure to eat so much as to be seriously and often fatally sick, which only means another celebration of a different kind.

The few missionaries who have penetrated the interior sufficiently far to meet with these tribes own to their being practically hopeless as far as any regenerating is concerned. They seem to have been stupefied through the centuries and to have become utterly degenerate and useless members of society.—Chicago Tribune.

A Single Line Poet.

Every man has the streak of poetry in him, and probably every man could write one line of poetry out of his life, as any man has one novel in himself. But we were talking at large the other day, and a man quoted the line, "A rose red city half as old as time." And then came the question, Who wrote that line that everybody knows? One man said it referred to Damascus. But no one knew who wrote it.

There are single line poets as there are "Single Speech" Hamiltons, and here is perhaps the only instance in which the Newdigate prize poem at Oxford has produced a living line, for the author was the Rev. J. W. Burgon, who won the prize in 1845 and doubtless recited portions of his poem in the Sheldonian theater. But that allusion to Petra, the Arabian rock city, has lived.—London Chronicle.

Necessary Noise.

A poet and a musician wrote a comic opera. When it was first performed it was noticed that the music was very loud.

"Why did you write such strenuous music?" asked a friend of the composer.

"You wouldn't ask that," the composer replied, "if you had read any of those lyrics. I didn't want the audience to hear them!"—Saturday Evening Post.

His Splendid Wish.

"What are you thinking about, Henry?"

"Oh, I was just wishing."

"What were you wishing, dear?"

"I was just wishing that my salary was as big as we were trying to make our friends think it must be."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Foiled.

Tramp—Good morning, lady. I thought perhaps I might be able to get a bite here. Mrs. Snapp—Certainly not. Tramp—Oh, then I am laboring under a mistake. Mrs. Snapp—It strikes me you never labor under any circumstances.—London Opinion.

His Ground.

He—Why are you going to marry that old fossil? She—I love the very ground he walks on. He—I know, but isn't there any other way of getting it?—London Opinion.

Shorn and Dyed.

"Then you weren't always a black sheep?"

"No, mum; I started my career as a Wall street lamb."—Washington Herald.

FROTHING DOG CREATES A PANIC

Collie Scares 200 Working Women at Jersey City.

POLICEMAN KILLS ANIMAL.

Canine, Supposed to Be Mad, Is Shot by Officer, Who Gets Dog on Fire Escape and Then Uses Revolver. Afraid to Fire Where Excited Women Were.

Jersey City, N. J., Aug. 7.—A large Scotch collie, foaming at the mouth, ran into the office of the packing plant of the Colgate Soap company in Green street, between York and Grant streets, this city, and tore up the stairs leading to the floor where 200 girls and women are employed.

Panic ensued among the employees. Hobble skirts didn't interfere with their locomotion on this occasion. The girls jumped up on chairs, benches and tables, gathering up their skirts as they leaped. Some of the employees were unfortunate enough to find no perch on which to jump. Several of them fell on the floor in dead faints. The news of the "mad dog" spread to the floors above, and pandemonium was let loose in the five story brick building.

Policeman John Lane of the city hall police station heard the screams and ran to the office. With his club in one hand and revolver in the other, the policeman sprinted up the stairs. He did not dare shoot for fear of hitting some of the excited women, so he engaged the dog with his club. He drove and backed the frothing, snapping dog to a window and out to a fire escape, using his club vigorously, the collie meanwhile trying to reach him.

Once on the fire escape, Lane fired five bullets into the dog's body. The third bullet finished the "mad dog," but the policeman fired twice again for good measure. It was some time after the dead animal was removed that the employees were calmed, and it was a very nervous lot of women and girls who worked there the rest of the day.

The police learned that the dog belonged to Peter Kote of Green and Sussex streets and that he had bitten another dog following a bakery wagon. Lane telephoned this information into headquarters, and special details of police were sent out to find and kill the bitten animal.

COMMISSIONER REFUSES PAY.

Lee, Beverly Progressive, Says He'll Donate It to Town.

Beverly, N. J., Aug. 7.—Beverly's new commission government was organized with Joseph W. Hahle, Republican, as chairman and mayor.

With protests against action contrary to parliamentary ruling and his refusal to take the $200 salary voted to the commissioners, Thomas Lee, a Progressive, kept the interest from lagging. Lee said that as long as the duties of his office would not interfere with business he desired to donate his services free of charge to the city.

Dr. James V. Roberts, mayor until the old government ended, will have charge of the department of revenues and finances. Lee will look after streets and public properties, and Mayor Hahle will be in charge of the department of public safety and law enforcement.

WEDDED BESIDE CASKET.

Bride's Mother-in-law Asks That Ceremony Be Performed.

Trenton, N. J., Aug. 7.—Miss Ruth A. Drake was married to William H. Ward beside the coffin of the bridegroom's father, Joseph Ward. The bride changed her white wedding gown for a dress of deep mourning, and ten minutes later the funeral was held in the same room.

When the friends of Joseph Ward, who was killed in the Cook linoleum plant a few days ago, came to attend his funeral they were surprised to see his son and Miss Drake, whom he was to have wed next October, step forward to the casket and say they would be married at once.

The unusual wedding was due to a request of Mrs. Ward, the bridegroom's mother.

HELD ON GIRLS' COMPLAINT

Youth Arrested In Gloucester Charged With Attacking Them.

Gloucester, N. J., Aug. 7.—Complaints against a young man who hid along dark roads near this city and attacked girls led to the arrest of Harry Stainrock, seventeen years old. He was committed without bail to await trial by Justice of the Peace Huyette. The police say he made a confession.

Three girls, who said the prisoner was the man who attacked them, were Mary Payne, seventeen years old, Coverdale; Margaret Reed and Rebecca Paul, fifteen years old, both of Northmont. These girls either fought their assailant off or frightened him away by their screams.

A Whiner.

"The bluff, cheery optimism of the late Senator Frye," said a Lewiston divine, "could not brook a whiner. Once at a dinner in Lewiston a whiner seated opposite Senator Frye said dolefully:

"'I have only one friend on earth—my dog.'

"'Why don't you get another dog?' said Senator Frye."—Exchange.

PANAMA CANAL LIGHT.

First Beacon Erected to Guide Ships In the Great Waterway.

This is the first range light at the Pacific entrance to the Panama canal at the newly named town of Balbes. Ships will be guided through the great waterway by a series of range lights along the course, rising one above the other, and by reason of topographical conditions some of them are situated in the jungle miles from the canal. They are built of concrete and will be lighted by acetelyne lamps. All the rest of the canal will be lighted by electricity.

THINK WHITMAN WILL RUN ON FUSION TICKET

Believed That He Has Placated Republican Leaders.

New York, Aug. 7.—District Attorney Charles S. Whitman will issue a statement announcing his decision in regard to the fusion nomination for district attorney. Almost beyond question he will accept that nomination. Only courtesy and a desire to hear some prominent members of his party prevented him issuing a statement last night.

"I think I have waited long enough," said Mr. Whitman at his home, 37 Madison avenue. "I will issue a statement of my position today. I cannot say at what time it will be issued. I trust and have reason to believe that the very complex situation that has confronted us will be cleared up by then."

Further than this Mr. Whitman would not go. He had spent another tiring day listening to arguments against his taking the nomination. He had been threatened, cajoled, pleaded with. Save for an hour or two at his office attending to the duties of the district attorney, he spent all day and last evening conferring with politicians.

As a result of Mr. Whitman's expected declaration and of the deliberations and conferences at least one change will almost certainly be made in the ticket as nominated by the fusionists. Cyrus C. Miller, nominated for borough president of the Bronx, is likely to retire in favor of Thomas W. Whittle. Mr. Miller is a Democrat, Mr. Whittle a Republican.

WILSON INSISTS ON CURRENCY BILL

Wants Measure Passed at Extra Session.

SENATORS ARE OPTIMISTIC

Said That Those Who Now Are Opposed Will Abide by Wishes of President and Majority—Circulate Copies of Revised Measure.

Washington, Aug. 7.—In a talk with several callers President Wilson made it plain that he intends to stick to his determination to have a currency bill passed at the extra session.

Senator James told the president that the Democrats would put the bill through. Senator Hughes took a similar view. Senator Owen, chairman of the banking committee, said that in his poll of the senate only Senators Hitchcock and O'Gorman were flatly opposed to legislation at this time. All the other Democrats but five were earnestly in favor of the legislation, he said, and they, though preferring to defer the task to the next session, would abide by the wishes of the president and the majority.

President Is Pleased.

The president expressed his satisfaction over the action of the house banking committee in voting to report the administration bill when he talked with Representatives Wilson of Florida, Patten of New York and Seldomridge, of Colorado.

Copies of the revised draft of the Glass currency bill containing amendments adopted by Democrats of the house currency committee were in circulation about the capitol and were the subject of careful scrutiny by friends and opponents of the president's currency reform scheme.

An amendment adopted by the house committee Democrats making the federal reserve board to a partial extent bi-partisan by having the appointive members divided between political parties is expected to allay somewhat opposition based on fear of "political control" of the proposed new currency system.

Antagonists of the Glass bill expect to direct their chief attack in next Monday's Democratic caucus toward getting amendments to establish an agricultural currency, secured by actual supplies of corn, wheat and cotton.

BRAND WHITLOCK DIPLOMAT.

Author Voted For Wilson at Baltimore to Get a Mission.

Washington, Aug. 7.—President Wilson is seriously considering the nomination of another distinguished author to an important diplomatic post, according to information at the capital. Mayor Brand Whitlock of Toledo, O., is the latest prospective candidate for diplomatic honors and if McCombs declines the French ambassadorship he may get that.

Mayor Newton D. Baker of Cleveland, who was in Washington a few days ago, got assurances that Mr. Whitlock would probably be the one man recognized from Ohio with a diplomatic appointment. Mr. Baker was an original Wilson man in the preconvention campaign in Ohio and his delegation was seated at the Baltimore convention after a desperate fight. It is understood that Mr. Whitlock will go either to France or Belgium. He had expressed a desire for the Switzerland mission, but that was promised before he got into the fight.

TWO GIRLS TAKE POISON.

Halt Shopping Tour to Take Bichloride of Mercury Tablets.

Baltimore, Aug. 7.—Gladys McClure, sixteen years old, and Lillian Love, seventeen years, attempted to commit suicide by taking bichloride tablets in the ladies' rest room of a department store on Lexington street. They were rushed to a hospital, where it was said one may die. The reason for their act could not be learned.

The girls were on a shopping trip when they took the poison.

DOG GAVE LIFE FOR CHILDREN

Attacked Leopard Escaped From Circus While Little Ones Fled.

Red Lake Falls, Minn., Aug. 7.—More than 100 persons are searching for a leopard that escaped from a circus near Crookston. The animal attacked the children of William Wageman at his farm house near here, but a collie dog saved their lives by attacking the leopard. While the fight was going on the children escaped into the house. The leopard killed the dog.

Beds and Bed Furnishings In the Mid-Summer Sale

MACY'S GREAT MID-SUMMER FURNITURE SALE is planned on so large a scale, and exhibits such scope and variety in every section, that we can give here no more than a suggestion of the economies in but one of the many divisions. The savings shown on Beds are duplicated on other pieces of every kind and for every room in the Home.

SOME IDEA OF THE BREADTH OF CHOICE in Brass Beds alone is shown by the fact that at and about $10.00 there are Beds in 14 different designs, and there are from 3 to 15 designs at every price from $8.74 to $63.75. The same holds good in White Enamel and Brass Trimmed Enamel Beds, ranging from $3.24 to $16.49.

Every Bed here illustrated is finished in the well-known Damarda lacquer, in choice of satin and bright finish. Damarda lacquer is crack-proof, extraordinarily hard and resists damp to a remarkable degree. It is easily cleaned of spots, finger marks, and other such disfigurements, and being proof against discoloration, may be rubbed with alcohol or ammonia without fear of harming it. Every Bed is obtainable at the same price in the 3-ft., 4-ft., and 4-ft.-6-in. sizes.

Brass Beds at $14.24
Macy's price would be $20.24.
Illustrated above. Made with posts 1 inch thick, 1 inch top rod and 1 inch fillers.

Brass Beds at $16.49
Macy's price would be $22.49.
Illustrated above. The straight posts are 2 inches thick, the square top rod 1½ inches, and the fillers each 1 inch thick.

Brass Beds at $15.74
Macy's price would be $21.49.
The broad one continuous posts are 2 inches thick and the two rows and five filler rods are 1 inch thick.

Brass Beds at $12.74
Macy's price would be $18.74.
Continuous posts 2 inches thick, and 1 inch fillers. Handsomely mounted with "1" balls.

Brass Beds at $6.74
Macy's price would be $10.24.
Straight posts each 2 inches thick, top rod and five stout fillers. Mounted with heavy "1" balls.

Brass Beds at $14.24
Macy's price would be $18.49.
Straight posts 2 inches thick, fillers ¾ inch, and the bottom rod 1¼ inch thick.

Brass Beds at $11.74
Macy's price would be $17.49.
The continuous posts 2 inches thick, and 2 filler fillers 1 inch. The satin finish has bright shoulders.

Brass Beds at $25.50
Macy's price would be $34.50.
Square posts of special design 2 inches thick. Extra heavy fillers and rails, and mounts of cast brass.

BOARD ADOPTS ANNUAL BUDGET

Union Freeholders Appropriate $598,000 For Coming Year.

INCREASE IS OPPOSED

More Money Needed On Account of Widows' Pensions and Road Work—To Repair Sycamore Avenue Bridge.

Elizabeth, Aug. 8.—The Union County Board of Freeholders at the August meeting, yesterday afternoon, passed the annual budget by a vote of fifteen, Freeholder J. Hervey Doane, of Plainfield, being absent. The budget totals $598,000.00, and includes among other things $25,000 on account of widow's pensions and an increase of $46,000 in the road appropriation.

The increase in road appropriation was opposed by D. F. Hennessey, Democrat, because it would mean a higher tax rate. The Republican members defended it on the ground of necessity. Freeholders Fay and Hennessey did not vote. Freeholder Smith explained the budget to be really $550,000 because of transfer of $48,000 representing last year's unexpended balance. The increase, he said, was due to widows' pensions and tuberculosis sanitorium.

Freeholder S. P. T. Wilbur introduced a resolution signed only by himself to empower committee to spend $2,206 for repairs to the Sycamore avenue bridge over Green brook at county line, Plainfield. This was withdrawn and another resolution adopted empowered a committee of five to look after this work. Somerset county will pay half the total cost, $4,400, or $2,200.

Resolutions were adopted on the death of the late Judge E. S Atwater. The board authorized the purchase of 250 additional ballot boxes at a cost of $5.25 each. The budget, as adopted, is as follows:

ATTRACTIVE PROGRAM AT FRESH AIR HOME

Prominent Speakers Secured As Season Draws to a Close.

The weekly service will be held at the Netherwood Fresh Air Home on Sunday afternoon at 3:45. The speaker will be Rev. Dr. C. M. Russell, assistant pastor of the Presbyterian church, Cranford. The children's choir will furnish the special music. Tuesday evening the service will be in charge of the Christian Endeavor Society of Warren chapel, and on Friday evening George E. Horne will be the speaker. The entertainment on Wednesday evening will be in charge of Tax Collector William R. Townsend, who will entertain the children with selections on his Victrola.

There are but three remaining Sundays on which services will be held at the Home, and a special effort has been made to secure prominent speakers. On August 17 L. D. Albin, of this city, will be the speaker. On the twenty-fourth Rev. Dr. W. S. Richardson, of New York, who is actively identified in the charitable work of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and on August thirty-first Rev. Ernest R. Brown, pastor of the Dunellen Presbyterian church.

The work at the Home bids fair to eclipse all records of previous seasons, and the only incident which has in any way marred its complete success, is the fact that Miss Curry, the matron, met with a serious accident at the nursery in New York, and has been temporarily laid aside. It is gratifying to her friends to know that she is rapidly recovering, and hopes to be able to greet them at the service on Sunday.

Many out of town friends have shown special interest in the work of the Home this season, and at a little gathering of friends at the Homestead in Fanwood, a collection of forty-five dollars was taken to further the interest of the work. To all the services at the Home the public is most cordially invited.

NETHERWOOD FRESH AIR HOME VISITED BY BURGLARS

The police of this city are making a rigid investigation into the looting last night of the Netherwood Fresh Air Camp, when several articles of clothing and bedding were stolen. Patrolman Sweeney apprehended Charles Curtis, of 823 St. Mary's avenue, whom he saw walking about the grounds, but although closely questioned by Police Chief Kiely and Mayor Percy H. Stewart, he firmly denied that he knew anything regarding the thefts. He was released under the conditions that he appear in the city court any time wanted.

DID NOT LIKE DIET, SO GOT INTOXICATED

Mrs. Anna Dilts was arrested last night by Patrolman Sullivan on the premises at 1348 West Front street, on the complaint of Martin Bofkowitz, who charged her with being intoxicated and disorderly. The prisoner was released this morning and told to appear in the city court on Monday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, when she will be arraigned before Mayor Stewart. While in a cell at the local station Mrs. Dilts said many "nice" things about her husband, who she said fed her for the last week on nothing but cracked ice and cherries.

FUNERAL SERVICE OF DAVID N. GROENDYKE IS HELD

The funeral of David Nevius Groendyke was held at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon at the late home on Mercer avenue, and was largely attended by relatives, friends and neighbors, who had known the departed for many years. Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson, pastor of the First M. E. church, officiated, reading the Scripture, offering prayer and making a short address.

During the service Miss Grace Carroll, contralto soloist of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, sang two selections in an impressive manner. There was a large number of beautiful floral tributes from relatives and friends. The burial was in Hillside cemetery.

WILLIAM OCHS CELEBRATES.

William Ochs, of East Front street, was given a birthday party Wednesday evening at the home of his brother-in-law, R. F. R. Huntsman on East Front street. There were about fifteen guests, relatives and friends. The evening was spent enjoying an informal program of music, after which supper was served. Mr. Ochs received the congratulations of the party and also several gifts.

HANCE FAILS TO GET FOREIGN POST

But Is Named As Recorder of North Plainfield Township.

President Woodrow Wilson sent to the Senate yesterday the nomination of former Senator Madison R. Smith, of Missouri, as minister to Haitai, South America, which was a surprise, as it was thought, that H. O. Hance, formerly of this city, but now a resident of North Plainfield township, would be named for the foreign post. Mr. Hance, who is a lawyer having offices in New York, was mentioned for the position by Senator J. E. Martine and had many supporters, among them being Judge Dungan, of Somerville. It was thought that his appointment was practicall a certainty.

Several hours after learning that he had not been selected as Minister to Haiti, Mr. Hance was notified yesterday that Governor James F. Fielder had made him recorder of North Plainfield township. Mr. Hance now holds the office of township clerk, but will not resign from this post because of his new appointment.

He has lived in this city for twenty years moving in 1904 to Watchung. He is a staunch Democrat and takes active interest in politics.

HENRY ZAHN DIES AFTER SHORT ILLNESS

Prominent For Many Years In Financial and Hotel Business.

Henry Zahn, for many years connected with the wholesale and retail meat and hotel supply business in New York, died at his home, 920 Woodland avenue, yesterday, after a short illness.

Mr. Zahn was forty years of age and was prominent in the financial and business circles of New York for twenty years. He was president and director of the Sayles and Zahn Company of New York, and half owner o the Hotel Walton, of Philadelphia and conected with the Smith-McNeils Hotel Company, of New York. Besides his wife, Mr. Zahn is survived by a brother, Bernard Zahn, and a sister, Mrs. Charlotte E. Kramer, of New York.

The funeral will be held at the late home on Woodland avenue tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock and will be in charge of Rev. Bernard M. Bogan, of St. Mary's R. C. church. Burial will be at Woodlawn cemetery, Brooklyn.

W. B. NASH PRAISES PROMPT ACTION OF POLICE

The police department today received a communication from W. B Nash, of 904 Grant avenue, commending the patrolmen for their prompt action in answering summons early this morning to his home. Edward C. Suffern, of 815 Stelle avenue, whose residence is close to that of Mr. Nash, saw a man crawling through a rear window of the latter's home. He immediately telephoned to police headquarters stating that a burglar had entered the Nash place. Captain Frederickson, who was in charge, sent Patrolmen O'Keefe, Saffron and Carty to the scene of the supposed burglary.

Investigation revealed that one of Mr. Nash's servants had been to a party and had forgot to bring his key. Consequently he effected an entrance through a window he found unlatched.

AGENTS DO NOT BENEFIT THE ANTI-TUBERCULOSIS LEAGUE

Local workers of the Anti-Tuberculosis League have asked the Daily Press to insert a notice to the effect that agents of the National White Cross League (an anti-tuberculosis society), who seek aid for the work carried on by their organization, are in no way connected with the local body. The White Cross agents claim to give financial aid in sending consumptives to the Bonnie Burn Sanitorium, which is said to be wrong, as that institution is supported by Union county. Miss Phillips said that the operations of that organization in this city are carried on for mercantile gain, although there are no figures or facts to support the claims.

As far as can be ascertained, agents of the National White Cross League have been selling soap to Plainfield people to aid in the vast work of curing victims of tuberculosis.

Local Boys Took Part In Sham Battle at Sea Girt—Will Break Camp Tomorrow Night—Visitors From Plainfield Attended Camp.

(By a staff correspondent.)

Camp Fielder, Sea Girt, Aug. 8—The field work of the Second Regiment of the New Jersey National Guard was brought to a close for their present encampment season, this morning, when they successfully attacked an entrenched army of 10,000 men who had taken up a position in the rifle pits. With real ammunition, real orders, real maneuvreing and everything else real with the exception of the enemy, the boys of the Trenton regiment showed remarkable ability in the execution of the work given them on the field.

The enemy, represented by long lines of silhouette figures that were movable at the will of the operators in the pits, were lined along the rifle pits for a distance of almost a quarter mile. The three battalions of the regiment, under command of the respective majors, approached by short advances from a point near the Little White House. The advances were of fifty yards each. The disappearance of a line of silhouettes showed the effectiveness of the fire from the rifles of the guardsmen and for each disappearance they were entitled to an advance. When the fire did not take effect upon the ranks of the enemy they were held in their positions and after a designated time had elapsed the soldiers were compelled to fall back an equivalent distance in acceptance of the theory that the entrenched men had successfully withstood the fire of the New Jersey men and had repulsed their advance.

This work was kept up for almost an hour, each man shooting forty rounds of ammunition during the "battle." The dispatch with which the men carried out their orders and the accuracy in their movements won for them the commendation of their superior officers as well as the regular army officers who are here as inspector-instructors. In the tactical work of this morning the benefit of the firing problems and instruction in fire control and fire discipline through which the men have gone this week, was clearly demonstrated.

This afternoon the troops will be reviewed by Acting Governor Fielder and his staff, following Governor's Day celebration at the Little White House. The boys are busy shining their shoes and brushing up their uniforms in order to present a good appearance before the chief executive when he inspects the ranks today.

In the battle yesterday afternoon between the Red army, composed of the first battalion with Major William B. Martin in command, and the Blues under command of Major John H. McCullough as the senior officer, the Reds were given a decision after less than five minutes of fighting. Major Martin, by a clever movement executed a flank upon the Blue forces as they marched westward on the Allenwood-Manasquan road, and before the commander of the Blue army could help himself he had cut in behind them, shot up their column, captured their pack train and opened a merciless shower of lead in their ranks. The regular army officers and Colonel Horace M. Reading, commanding the regiment, who umpired the engagement, decided that McCullough would have been compelled to surrender in order to keep his men from being swept out of existence by the effective fire of the Red army directed from the rear of their enemy.

The customary parade was abandoned yesterday afternoon and Colonel Reading summoned the officers of the regiment to a conference at his headquarters where the day's maneuvres and its results were discussed with the regular army officers who had been asked to attend. The problem had been formulated by Colonel Reading and showed his abilities as a field marshall.

What Co. K Is Doing.

Privates William H. Young and Frank Hall were detailed to act with the mounted scouts in the maneuvres yesterday afternoon. Private Young made good on his mount but when Private Hall saw a man from Co. K take a cropper over his horses head, he dismounted and led his horse back to his commanding officer. When he returned and joined the company he was asked why he said he could ride. The answer he gave was, "I can ride, but the darned plug stops too short and I didn't want to take a cropper like the other fellow did." He then received the ha! ha! from the entire company.

Privates Herbert Renninger and Carl S. Rollerson were given a drum head court martial by a squad of noncomm. and men Wednesday night

COUNTY G. O. P. PLAN BIG OUTING

Political Bee Will Buzz On Party's Annual Excursion.

More than five hundred Republicans of Union county are expected to take in the annual outing to be held at Witzel's Point Grove, tomorrow, where a shore dinner will be served upon the arrival of the party. The steamer Isabel will leave Chancellor's Dock at Elizabethport at 10 o'clock. The Plainfielders will leave here about 8:30 o'clock.

Among the leading political lights of State-wide fame who are expected to join in the outing are John Kean, Charles N. Fowler, John W. Griggs, Foster M. Voorhees, Edward C. Stokes, Franklin Murphy, Edmund Wakelee, Thomas J. Hillery. The usual party of "faithful ones" from this city led by County Chairman Frank H. Smith, will be among the excursionists.

Of course, it is expected that several booms will be started on the trip among those who have political ambitions and the leaders will confer over the local, county and State situation in an effort to get the campaign well underway at an early date. Herbert Buxton, John H. Cose and Andrew McCardell, of this city, are members of the committee of arrangements.

LOCAL PRISONER IS CAUGHT IN YONKERS

Former Convict Awaiting Trial For Atrocious Assault On Samuel Smelson.

Eugene Brittain, colored, of this city, who was indicted by the Grand Jury in 1912 on a charge of atrocious assault with intent to kill preferred by Samuel Smelson, proprietor of a restaurant in West Front street, and escaped from the county jail in Elizabeth while awaiting trial, has been captured in Yonkers, N. Y. Since his escape the latter part of May, 1912, the police of every city in the East have been searching for him. To the authorities of the large municipalities he is a well known character and has served several terms in various prisons and reformatories.

Sergeant Maurice Higgins went to Yonkers yesterday afternoon and identified him as Smelson's assailant. Steps have been taken to secure extradition papers and Brittain will be brought to the county jail again.

A quarrel over the price of a meal resulted in a fight which ended when Smelson, the restaurant keeper, was lying, as if dead, on the floor of his establishment, blood running from several cuts in his head inflicted by Brittain with a black-jack. Smelson was saved from probable death by quick medical treatment. Brittain was arrested by Detective-Sergeant Flynn after heh had made his escape from the vicinity of the restaurant.

In 1905, Brittain was sent to the Rahway Reformatory on a disorderly conduct charge, and in December, 1910, began a term in State Prison after being found guilty of a larceny charge.

LOCAL CLERGYMAN SPOKE AT MT. TABOR CAMP MEETING

Mt. Tabor, Aug. 8.—The assembly and camp meeting opened here yesterday for its forty-fifth session. At 9.30 o'clock the sunshine hour for children was held under the direction of Mrs. Perry C. Bascom, of Bound Brook. Following this was the Bible hour, the subject of which was "God's Estimate of Little Things."

Yesterday afternoon Rev. F. J. Hubach of Plainfield, gave an address on "Baptism of the Holy Spirit—What It Means." At the service last night Dr. Hubach's subject was "Baptism in Fire—What It Means."

The assembly is under the direction of Rev. Perry C. Bascom, of Bound Brook, with Mrs. Bascom and Rev. Charles E. Scudder, of Long Island, as leaders of the sunshine hour, and Mrs. Lillian Andrews, of Elizabeth, as chorister.

SLIGHTLY IMPROVED.

Mrs. James C. Field, Sr., of New Market, who was seriously injured in a runaway Tuesday night, was reported at Muhlenberg hospital today as having a more comfortable night and being slightly improved.

J. F. BUCKLE RETIRES FROM BUSINESS

Withdraws From Firm After Long and Successful Career.

Announcement is made today of the withdrawal of James F. Buckle from the firm of Woolston-Buckle Company, painters and decorators which is one of the oldest concerns doing business in the city. Mr. Buckle has not decided on his future plans, but for the present will take a needed rest. The concern will continue just the same with L. B. Woolston the active head. His son, Howard Woolston, will also continue, being secretary of the company.

Both Mr. Buckle and Mr. Woolston came from Beverly, N. J., to Plainfield in 1871. They were playmates together and when they came here they found employment with W. F. Adams, who was then the leading painter in Plainfield. They remained with him until 1877 when they started in business for themselves. Their first contract was the Netherwood Hotel. That winter they associated themselves with Mr. Adams, remaining with him until 1880, when the firm of Woolston & Buckle was formed. This firm has conducted a successful business. Two years ago the concern was incorporated under the name of Woolston-Buckle Company. Recently, Mr. Buckle has not taken a real active part in the business. When the firm was first formed its first contract was that of painting the Vanderbeek building at North and Park avenues, which is occupied by The Daily Press. Since then it has had some of the biggest contracts in this part of the State.

Both Mr. Buckle and Mr. Woolston have been prominent and active in the affairs of the city and borough. The former has served as a councilman for several years and he also served the city as mayor. At present he is a member of the Board of Education, serving his second term. A few years ago he took a trip around the world. He is a Mason and a member of Plainfield Lodge, No. 885, B. P. O. E.

Mr. Woolston likewise has been active in borough affairs and at present is a member of the Borough Council. His term expires this year, and he has declared that he will not be a candidate for re-election.

EXCURSIONISTS WILL HAVE TEN HOURS AT THE SHORE

Continuing the policy of a full ten-hour-day at the shore, the twenty-sixth annual excursion of Hope Chapel will take place tomorrow with Asbury Park as the destination.

Fishermen are especially interested in the fact that casting exhibitions will take place at the foot of Sunset Lake during the afternoon by prominent fishers of the east. Lovers of music may take in Pryor's Band at the Arcade.

The first section will leave the Grant avenue station at 7.56 and the North avenue station at 8.00 with the second section following immediately. On the return trip, trains will leave the Park at 8 o'clock. The committee of arrangements are: Thomas Hendry, Donald McInnis, William Baker, Henry Maritz, George J. Robins, Jr., William Doig and David Gordon.

ENGLISH—CARMODY.

Miss Louise Carmody, of Central Valley, N. Y., was married to Harry C. English, of Martinsville, Wednesday, in the Grace Episcopal church of this city, by the Rev. Harris C. Rush. The ceremony was attended only by the immediate relatives of the bride and bridegroom and the couple left immediately after the wedding on a short honeymoon trip through northern New York State. Upon their return they will live in Martinsville. The bride was attended by Mrs. G. W. English, of this city, and G. W. English, a brother of the bridegroom, acted as best man.

SMOULDERING FIRE.

The shrubbery and weeds of a small patch of woods near the Graceland bridge, bordering on the New Jersey Central, have been smouldering for several days and seems to grow slightly in area each day. Although no fire is visible, dense smoke arises above the tree tops. Several trees caught fire yesterday, but were soon extinguished. A similar fire occurred on Stout avenue, Scotch Plains in 1911 and smouldered for six months.

J. O. STEVENS IN THE LEAD.

J. O. Stevens, of Clinton avenue, it is claimed, still holds the title of "champion commuter" up-to-date, in the contest being conducted by a New York newspaper and is likely to receive one of the prizes, a six-months' commutation ticket. Mr. Stevens has been a commuter to New York city for a period covering fifty-three years.

REWARD YETMAN FOR HIS EFFORTS

Strove to Retain Home In This City Against Relatives of Second Wife.

IGNORANT OF THE LAW

Local Man's Ignorance of the Law Led Him to Sign Title Over to First Wife—Long Legal Procedure Involved.

Trenton, Aug. 8.—The efforts of Richard Yetman, of Plainfield, to retain his home in that city after striving for years to earn the money to pay for it were rewarded today by a decision of Vice-Chancellor Backes in the Court of Chancery in his favor. Relatives of the second wife of Yetman claimed the property by inheritance, but Vice-Chancellor Backes rules that these relatives only holds the property in trust for Yetman and they must convey it back to him. The real estate involved is the house and lot at 616 East Third street, Plainfield, and the lot adjoining.

Yetman filed a bill in Chancery alleging that he purchased the property and that the title was taken in the name of his wife, Sarah H. Yetman, now dead. The wife died without children by the complainant, but leaving a brother and sister and children of a dead sister. These relatives were the defendants in the suit, they claiming the property by inheritance from Mrs. Yetman as a second wife. Yetman had children by his first wife.

Vice-Chancellor Backes points out that it was shown that Yetman and his wife were ignorant of the law, and the title was taken in her name because they thought if she died first the husband would inherit the property from her. The money for the property, $1 600, was paid by Yetman, being his savings for many years. The Vice-Chancellor decided that Sarah Yetman, the wife, held the real estate in trust for her husband subject to her life estate therein; that the property descended to Jackson Hedgman, and others, these defendants, who now hold the property in trust for Yetman. The decision is that the defendants be decreed to convey the property back to Yetman. Vice-Chancellor Backes, in his opinion, says, in part:

"The natural bent of people circumstanced as this couple was, is not to be overlooked. They were poor, and they labored hard and stinted and strived to get a home, a haven in which to spend their declining years. All that the complainant earned and could save was devoted to this single purpose, and it is only reasonable to assume that neither party entertained the idea that by taking the title to the land in his wife's name, the complainant intended to strip himself of all he had in the world. No such improvidence can be ascribed to either."

INJURED WHEN CAUGHT BETWEEN CARRIAGE AND AUTO

Becomng "pocketed" between a carriage and an automobile owned and driven by Harry Coddington, of East Front street, Morris Bender, 16 years old, of Somerset street, sustained a broken collar bone and injuries about the head and body, yesterday. He became confused, lost his balance and fell from a bicycle he was riding. The accident took place on East Front street, several hundred yards from Watchung avenue. In falling the youth struck his neck on the dash board of the auto. It is thought that this blow caused the injury to his collar bone.

According to witnesses of the affair, among them being J. J. O'Donough, of Plainfield avenue, Bender was riding slowly behind Codington's automobile, but in attempting to pass the machine, became cornered between the wagon and the automobile, which were proceeding along the street close together.

After falling the victim was picked up by passersby and carried across the street to the office of Dr. Albert Pittis, who says Bender's injuries will not prove serious. The lad was removed to the hospital this morning.

CREDENTIALS NEEDED TO MAKE PRESENCE DESIRABLE

Washington, Aug. 8.—Secretary of State Bryan, after a conference with President Wilson at the White House, has announced that a message from the acting minister of foreign affairs for Mexico states on behalf of President Huerta, that the presence of John Lind will be undesirable in Mexico unless he brings credentials which recognize the Huerta Government.

SENATE TALKS OF CRISIS IN MEXICO

"Situation of Utmost Gravity," Says Bacon.

DEFENDS THE PRESIDENT

Makes Appeal to Republicans to Help Administration Bring About Settlement — Senator Clark Asks For All Facts in Controversy.

Washington, Aug. 8.—During a debate in the senate, Chairman Bacon of the foreign relations committee made a plea for the elimination of partisan politics in the "situation of utmost gravity" which the United States faces with regard to Mexico. He asked the senate to handle the subject carefully and to give the president every opportunity to bring about a peaceful settlement of the crisis.

The debate was precipitated by the refusal of Senator Clark of Wyoming to consent to have his demand for a senate inquiry into Mexican affairs referred to the foreign relations committee. The Wyoming senator taunted the Democratic majority with having no policy with regard to Mexico. He insisted that had facts withheld by the state department been made public American lives and property in Mexico would have been saved.

"It has come to the point in Mexico when no man is so poor as the man who owes allegiance to the American flag," Senator Clark declared. "We should have the facts, which have been too long withheld."

"This is a matter of the utmost gravity," solemnly answered Senator Bacon. "There is nothing beyond that word 'utmost.' I speak advisedly when I say, then, that the public weal demands that this matter of the utmost public importance be handled carefully.

"I believe that within less than a week the senators will be in a position to discuss this whole problem openly. It is enough to say that the present purpose is to bring about the best results by peaceful methods.

"The president, speaking through the secretary of state, has formulated a plan, and he is about to execute it. It is a situation of extreme difficulty, but every chance, however small, should have every opportunity to succeed. Who will deny that the other method—that of the strong arm of compulsion—should not be the last one tried?"

Asks Senators to Wait.

Senator Fall asked whether Senator Bacon was not aware of the refusal of the Huerta government to meet the president's emissary, John Lind.

"This message, evidently sent by an official in a moment of heat and temper," replied Senator Bacon, "should not be considered as indicating a final failure of the plan of the president. When the personal representative shall have delivered his message and received his reply there will be abundant time to deal with such a contingency.

"I appeal to the senators on the other side to answer," he demanded, "whether they want to flaunt in the face of the president by means of their resolution their lack of faith in what he is undertaking. Can you deny that your action would be so construed? Can you afford to oppose his effort so long as there is one chance in a hundred of its success?

"If I were certain it would fail I would still applaud the president's attempt to secure peace as he has done, for what is to come of this must be most momentous in its consequences to the country."

Senator Norris, declaring that he wished to help the president in the matter, said he could see no disrespect to the president in the resolution.

"The Cuban affair was a mere tempest in a teapot," answered Senator Bacon, "as compared with the gravity of the undertaking to restore and maintain peace in Mexico."

CORRECTS STATEMENT AND INCIDENTALLY TELLS OF WORK

Patrick F. Kaine, president of the Middlesex Volunteer Fire Company, has issued the following statement concerning an item which appeared in these columns on Wednesday: "I noticed the article in Wednesday night's issue of your paper regarding the Middlesex Volunteer Fire Company which was very much confused and would ask that a correction be made. Your article stated that the fire company had been in existence since 1907, but was not incorporated until recently. This is not so, as the company was incorporated in 1907 when organized but has not been affiliated with the State Firemen's Association until recently and it was not until the past month, when one of our men was injured that we took the matter up with the State Association. It was for that reason that the following resolution to have the company recognized by that body according to law was drawn up thereby giving them the right to representation in the State Firemen's Relief Association."

"Be it resolved, that the said Middlesex Volunteer Fire Company, located at South Plainfield, Middlesex county, New Jersey, be and hereby is recognized as a fire company under the supervision and control of the Township Committee of the Township of Piscataway."

"The resolution was adopted by the Township Committee and filed in the usual form. This should have been done when the company was organized but owing to neglect on the part of counsel it was overlooked. The Middlesex Volunteer Fire Company has a membership of forty members all of whom are active. When this company was organized there was not a fire hydrant in the township. The first equipment they purchased was a supply of buckets. Through their efforts there was hydrants installed in different parts of the township and insurance rates have been reduced one-third. They are now erecting a modern fire-house of fire-proof construction and expect in the near future to install a new automobile apparatus to take the place of the old hand apparatus."

TRIENNIAL CONCLAVE OF KNIGHTS TEMPLAR

Members From All Parts of the Country Will Arrive Before the Opening Session.

Denver, Colo., Aug. 8.—From east and west and from north and south, armies of Knights Templars are converging on Denver today. The advance guard is already within the gates and the entire city will capitulate to the invaders before Sunday, when the thirty-second triennial conclave of the order will be formally opened.

It is more than twenty years since Denver was similarly honored, the last meeting of the grand commandery here having taken place in 1892. In the interval Chicago, Cleveland, Boston, Saratoga, Louisville and Pittsburgh, among other cities, have entertained the triennial conclave. In the matter of attendance Washington, D. C., holds the record, over twenty-five thousand templars, by actual count, having passed in review before President Harrison, but Denver hopes to eclipse this record, and to show at least forty thousand plumed knights in line next week.

For nearly two years the local committees in charge of reception and entertainment have been preparing for the advent of the mighty hosts that will sojourn in this city during the next seven days, and even thus early the hundreds of strangers are willing to admit the work of the committees has been well done.

In the matter of decoration, it might be said that Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed as is Denver today. On every hand are to be seen the emblems of the order intertwined with the national colors. The electrical decorations are particularly rich and elaborate. When Grand Master Melish is escorted from the railroad station tomorrow by the Denver commanderies, numbering 1,500 swords, he will pass along an avenue lined with more than 100 light poles, each bearing the national colors, represented in two flags. Between these will be the templar insignia of cross and crown and a maltese cross in black, besides which there will be festoons of colored lights.

The scheme of decoration includes an exact reproduction of the Mickelgate bar of the Benedictine Abbey, of York, England, erected in the year A. D. 40 or 50, and which was a popular meeting place for the knights centuries ago. On another street is a representation of the watch tower of the Chatean de Langliers, France, and near it a facsimile of the Church of the Holy Sepulchre in Jerusalem.

The conclave program will be ushered in Sunday morning, when Bishop Walden, grand prelate of the grand encampment, will conduct religious services for the knights in the Auditorium. In the evening a sacred concert will be given at the grand stand, on which 25,000 people will be accommodated.

The proceedings of the grand encampment will begin Tuesday at noon, after the big parade. Deputy Grand Master Arthur MacArthur, of Troy, N. Y., will be elevated to the position of grand master, in succession to William B. Melish, of Cincinnati.

The latter part of the week will be devoted largely to the exhibition drills. The great amphitheatre erected especially for the purpose has a seating capacity of more than 40,000. Nevertheless the ordinary civilian who is not a Knight Templar will have a difficult time to gain admission. The exhibition drill is a feature dear to the hearts of the ladies who accompany the valiant sir knights of the conclave, and the committee feel that it must care for the comfort of the vast number of visiting knights and their ladies who will want to witness the evolutions of the crack commanderies of the country.

The exchange of hospitalities among the visiting commanderies will be one of the pleasing features of the social side of the conclave. The banquet rooms and hall rooms of all the large hotels have been engaged for every night of the week. Receptions, dinners and balls will be given by the commanderies from various States in honor of the brother knights and their ladies from other States. In addition, there will be several great receptions an other social functions given in honor of the visitors by the city of Denver and the local commanderies.

When the conclave is over the vast majority of the visitors will start on sight-seeing trips through Colorado. Large parties have been organized to visit Colorado Springs, Manitou, the Garden of Gods and other places of scenic interest. Many of the visitors from the east will extend their journey to California and to Oregon, Washington and British Columbia before turning their faces homeward.

NOTES FROM LABOR FIELD

France has more than 4,150,000 women workers.

The miners of southern Colorado are being rapidly organized.

Wisconsin forbids newspaper selling and other street trades for girls under 18.

Massachusetts is the first State to require employment certificates for all workers under 21.

The annual convention of the Colorado Federation of Labor will assemble in Trinidad on August 18.

The shoemakers' union of London, England, paid out $16,500 last year in support of unemployed members.

Fifteen States and the District of Columbia now have an eight-hour day law for workers under 16.

William Green, of Coshocton, O., has succeeded Edwin Perry, of Oskaloosa, Ia., as international secretary-treasurer of the United Mine Workers.

The twelfth international convention of the Metal Polishers, Buffers, Platers, Brass and Silver Workers' Union of North America will open in Cincinnati, August 18.

The South Carolina Cotton Manufacturers' Association has gone on record in favor of compulsory education in the public schools and advanced child labor laws.

Thirty-nine States and the District of Columbia now have a general fourteen-year limit below which children may not be employed in any industry. In 32 States night work is forbidden for persons under 16.

The Federation of Ship Carpenters, Joiners and Caulkers, with a membership of about 2,500, has voted to affiliate with the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners' International Union.

An increase in wages of two cents an hour and better working conditions have been granted boilermakers, helpers and apprentices throughout the Missouri, Kansas and Texas Railroad system of Texas.

Pennsylvania has enacted a law reducing the working hours of women from 60 to 54 hours a week, with not more than 10 hours a day. No female under 21 years of age is permitted to work in a manufacturing establishment all night.

In 1915 the Washington (D. C.) typographical union will round out one hundred years of existence. In celebration of the centennial it hopes to entertain in that year the annual convention of the International Typographical Union. This year's convention of the international is soon to meet in Nashville and next year, it is expected, the organization will meet in Calgary.

A referendum vote is now being taken for general officers of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers. President J. J. Reid and Secretary J. W. Murphy are candidates for re-election. Treasurer Frank J. Sullivan has declined to stand for a second term. W. C. Medhurst, of Butte, Mont., and L. E. W. Kimball, of Hartford, Conn., are candidates to succeed him. The result of the election will be announced at the convention in Denver next month.

PROCTOR'S GREAT SHOW.

The Proctor show for the last half of the week is undoubtedly one of the best of the many fine bills offered in a long time, embracing all sorts of novelty acts, the first of which is the Seven Castillucci's in a big instrumental band act giving popular and classical numbers and concluding with a burlesque on the great Italian bandmaster Creatore. Al. Rayno & Co. present a screaming farce, "Imagination," which is full of startling situations. Lillian Carter, the colored baritone singer, has a wonderful voice and makes a hit. Stewart & Donahue, "The Nuts," offer an unusually clever eccentric dancing act and Del-a-Phone, the imitative marvel, is a good cure for the blues. The feature reel for today is "The Rival Engineers," a big Cines production.

AVIATOR LOSES HIS WAY.

(By Telegraph to The Daily Press.)

Washington, Aug. 8.—Aviator Woodlanded at Gaithersburg, Md., just outside this city at 9:02 this morning, having lost his way. He resumed his flight to Fort Myer, at Baltimore. He was thirty-five minutes ahead of the special train with which he was racing.

ORDERS PRIVATES SHOT

and were sentenced to be shot. A detail of six men were selected to execute the men who were blindfolded and marched through the company street to the place of execution where they were placked with their backs to the walls of a tent and the detail arranged themselves in front prepared to shoot. At the given command of Private Philip Millwater, who acted as lieut., the men of the detail raised their rifles to their shoulders and awaited the command to fire. Finally the command came and Artificer Hansen and Private Theodore Mendell, who were stationed inside the tent with two buckets of cold water, which they dashed on the men. The men were unable to suppress the exclamation which came to their lips as the cold water came in contact with their warm bodies.

The first rain storm since the company landed struck camp last night and proved to be a "rip roarer" of the thunder and lightning variety. Before the men turned in for the night they loosened up all their tents as it threatened to rain. The result of this work was that not a tent occupied by any of the men fell down as several did in other company streets throughout the regiment.

Among the Plainfielders who visited camp Thursday afternoon were: Mrs. Charles A. Peterson and father, wife and father of the captain; Nelson Peterson, brother of the captain; who while roaming around camp was mistaken for the captain by several officers; Mr. and Mrs. John Kenney, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Kenney, Mr. and Mrs. David Kenney, Miss Margaret Kenney, ex-Sergeant J. Arthur Dow, Mrs. Philip Millwater, Mrs. John Millwater, the Misses M. Millwater, E. Edmunds and Mrs. M. Mangam. The principal entertainer of the camp was Cook Stephen Millwater.

Private Rudolph Heinold, the chronic kicker and fun raiser, is still entertaining friends of the feminine sex around camp.

Some Notes on "Origins."

"Humpty Dumpty Sat on a Wall," etc., has come down to us from the days of King John. "The Babes in the Wood" dates from the fifteenth century, being founded upon facts, an old house near Wayland Wood, Norfolk, having the whole story in carvings on a mantlepiece. "Little Jack Horner," "Little Miss Muffet," "Old Mother Hubbard," "Mother Goosey" and "Goosey, Goosey Gander" are each traceable to the sixteenth century.

"Pussy Cat, Pussy Cat, Where Have You Been?" belongs to the reign of Queen Elizabeth. "Three Blind Mice" first appeared in a music book dated 1609. "A Froggie Would a-Wooing Go" was licensed to be sung as far back as 1609. "Boys and Girls Come Out to Play" and "Lucy Locket Lost Her Pocket" both hail from the period of Charles II. And, last of all, "Cinderella," "Jack the Giant Killer," "Bluebeard" and "Tom Thumb" were published by their author, Charles Perrault, in the year 1697.—London Notes and Queries.

This curious shipwreck occurred at Balboa, the Pacific mouth of the Panama canal. The old wooden dock, to which the steamer Newport of the Pacific Mail line was moored, gave way on account of pressure from a fill that had been made behind it.

BATTLE RAGES AT CANTON.

Indian Regiment Drafted From Hongkong to Protect Foreigners.

Canton, China, Aug. 8.—The battle which began here when two divisions of the northern army attacked the east gate of the city is still going on. More than 500 have been killed or wounded in the fight.

A British Indian regiment from Hongkong has been drafted here to protect the lives of foreigners in the suburbs reserved for them.

Lake's Death Toll Twelve.

Ithaca, N. Y., Aug. 8.—The twelfth drowning of the summer season on Cayuga lake occurred when Frank Conger, aged twelve, lost his life in Cayuga inlet, near the Cornell boathouse.

Palestine Children at Play.

In Palestine, as always, according to a contributor to Chambers' Journal, children's play is mostly "making believe" that they are grown up. You may see a mite of five or six paying a visit of ceremony to a pasha of equally tender years, exchanging such compliments with him as "Rest, I pray you!" "Nay, he who sees you is rested!" and finally backing out of his presence, while he gathers up handfuls of dust and sprinkles it on his head. Holding a law court, with melon seeds to represent the bribes, is a popular game, and so is a raid of fierce men from the desert. The selling of Joseph and his subsequent interviews with his brethren are rendered with much dramatic action. Also the afflictions of the man of Uz, with new details, such as Job's wife cutting off her hair and selling it for bread. "Doing bride" is naturally the chief amusement of the Moslem girl, as it is the one great event of her later life.

INSANITY ON THE INCREASE.

Most Alarming Ill Health Symptoms, Says British Alienist.

London, Aug. 8.—The most alarming ill health symptom in the world is the increase of insanity, according to Sir James C. Browne, one of England's best known alienists.

Presiding in the psychiatry section of the seventeenth international congress of medicine, Sir James declared that the world wide increase of lunacy is most alarming and most unaccountable.

Dr. Harold Stiles of Edinburgh, presiding over the section devoted to children's diseases, asserted that at least 10 per cent of the milk sold in the big cities is tubucular and therefore the cause of much infant mortality. He said it was surprising how the doctors could encourage the use of raw milk in the rearing of children. The eminent Koch and his disciples, Stiles said, were mistaken in not taking account of milk as a source of infection.

Killed When Train Hits Auto.

Chicago, Aug. 8.—John W. Campbell, head of the Windsor Park Academy For Boys at 7750 Bond's avenue, was instantly killed and another man was seriously hurt when an Illinois Central train struck Campbell's automobile at Melrose park, a suburb. The injured man is Harry Goldman, twenty-eight years old. He was taken to a hospital and may die.

Bread You Are Sure Is Clean and Pure

To make bread cleaner than KLEEN-MAID is made would be simply impossible. If KLEEN-MAID were made right in your kitchen, under your own eyes, the surroundings couldn't be cleaner, the ingredients couldn't be better, the care taken in the baking couldn't be greater.

Absolute cleanliness is habit at our bakery. There are clean walls, clean floors, clean machines, clean bakers and a corps of clean attired men whose only duty it is to keep the bakery spotlessly clean.

KLEEN-MAID BREAD

Comes to You in Dainty Waxed Wrappers

Fresh from the oven, KLEEN-MAID Bread is popped into dainty waxed wrappers, which keep the loaf with all its new-baked cleanliness and purity unchanged—for the enjoyment and protection of your household.

You must agree that, for cleanliness and purity, KLEEN-MAID leaves nothing to be desired. It is as good as it is clean.

KLEEN-MAID Leaves No Excuse for Home Baking

Everything you have desired in bread is embodied in KLEEN-MAID. It looks appetizing. It serves daintily. It is fine, even-grained and very satisfying. You'll like its rich butter flavor. It is, in a word, everything that home baked bread can be, minus the heat, the worry and the drudgery which home baking always imposes upon the housewife.

Try KLEEN-MAID a week and see how you like it—and how it seems to be relieved from the drudgery of bake-day.

PLAYS AND PLAYERS

Grace LaRue has gone abroad to fill an engagement in London.

Four companies are to tour this season in Eugene Walter's "Fine Feathers."

Sir Gilbert Parker has completed arrangements for the dramatization of his new novel, "The Judgment House."

Fiske O'Hara will appear in a new play by Augustus Pitou, called "In Old Dublin."

Marie Doro will play the leading female part in Charles Frohman's London production of "The Conspiracy," to open at the Comedy theatre Sept. 1.

William A. Brady has accepted for production a romantic melodrama of the time of Louis XVI., called "The Lady of Long Ago."

Nellie Bergen and Azalae Fountaine are soon to appear in vaudeville in a sketch called "The Everglades of Florida."

Frank Lawlor is to have the leading role in "Iole," an operetta made from Robert Chambers' novel, with music by W. E. Peters.

Henry W. Savage is to make the production the coming season of an extravangaza called "Deftland," by P. Hans Flath and Dr. Margaret Crosse.

Henry Kolker, in conjunction with William Vaughn Pettitt, has written a play called "The Survivor," in which he will appear under the direction of Oliver Morosco.

"Taken for Granted," a new play by Catherine Chisholm Cutting, author of "The Real Thing," was tried out recently by a stock company in Hartford, Conn.

Gene Buck and Dave Stamper have been engaged to write several songs for the use of Blanche Ring in her next season comedy, "When Claudia Smiles."

Having concluded her tour in "Bella Donna," Mme. Nazimova has gone to Europe for her first visit there since she came to America nearly ten years ago.

Among the players to appear in the American production of "The Whip," the great English racing melodrama, are Herbert Sleath and Mrs. Cecil Raleigh, the wife of the author.

William Morris has established a permanent stock company in Detroit, with the visiting star system as its novel feature. James K. Hackett, Amelia Bingham and other noted stars will appear.

Mme. Polaire will present as her offering in her forthcoming American tour, in which she will be associated with Earl Constance Stewart Richardson and Gertrude Hoffman, a pantomime sketch called "The Dance of the Assassin."

George Tyler, the American producer, has made a contract with Louis Parker to dramatize "The Vicar of Wakefield." Cyril Maude will play the vicar, and the part of the daughter will be taken by Marjorie Olivia. It is expected that the play will be delivered in time for Mr. Maude to present it during his American tour the coming season.

FIRST M. E. SUPPLIES.

During the remainder of August the preachers at the First M. E. church will be as follows: August 10, Rev. R. K. Rees, D. D., of Jersey City; August 17, Rev. William C. O'Donnell, D. D., of this city; August 24, Rev. Dr. Wilson, of Boston. Rev. Dr. C. W. Anderson, of Boston, will be in charge the first Sunday in September. The other services will be conducted as usual.

PLAYWRIGHT, STAGE DIRECTOR AND ACTOR

John Emerson, Charles Frohman's general stage director, wrote "The Conspiracy," one of the most successful "detective plays" produced in New York last season, and played the leading part in it himself. The role was that of an eccentric old fellow who wrote mystery stories for the newspapers, and Mr. Emerson made a unique character study of him. He is to appear again in the part with the company that will present "The Conspiracy" in Boston early in September.

A GREAT EXPERIMENT.

No experiment tried by the State of New Jersey for the betterment of prison conditions has been watched more eagerly than the one now in operation in Sussex county. Every welfare worker, charity organization officer or person interested in better treatment for criminals, and incidentally for their families, awaits the result of the experiment with more than passing interest.

In a little camp between Newton and Andover, composed of three frame buildings, one a dormitory containing thirty cots, a shower bath, and other things for the comfort of the men; another the mess hall, and the third a building for the officers, are to be found thirty-five healthy and happy looking men, who have been sent there from the State prison at Trenton to work on the roads. Although it is officially known as "Camp No. 1 of the New Jersey State Road Division," the thirty-five tanned workmen, who cannot leave their jobs, have rechristened it "Camp Don't Worry."

The camp has been established to solve two problems that were becoming very serious, and if it is successful, the plan will be broadened until similar camps are established all over the State. The first problem was that of relieving an overcrowded prison, and the other that of making the prisoners a little happier and more congenial in their confinement, at the same time keeping them under close supervision and discipline. So unusual is the method adopted that the success of the plan will not only be watched thoughout New Jersey, but in every other State in the Union which does not now provide some kind of outdoor labor for the prisoners. It is also planned to put the men to work on a farm which has been purchased in South Jersey, and later to buy a stone quarry where some of them can be given healthy outdoor work. If any of the men do not like the tasks given them to do they are given the option of returning to the Trenton institution upon asking to be sent there.

That the plan will be successful goes without saying. No man prefers idleness in a place where he can only see four walls, to being out in the open, enjoying the sunshine, and seeing living things all about. In Colorado a similar plan of working the convicts on the State roads has been in practical operation, and groups of from twenty-five to sixty men are sent out to work on the roads with only two guards, who are unarmed. It is found that there are fewer escapes than when the men are confined in the penitentiary. The latter result is assured because every convict gains a commutation of ten days off his sentence for every thirty days he works on the public roads.

New Jersey has become a progressive State in its government within the last few years. It is now becoming progressive in its method of handling criminals, and the greatest success will be hoped for in this experiment. Eventually, within a few years, it is hoped some method will be found by which the men can be paid for what they do, and the money turned over to the families which many of these men leave behind when they go to jail, often without any means of support whatsoever. Then the greatest good possible will be accomplished by putting the men to work.

Former Governor Edward Casper Stokes may not be a declared candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor, but he certainly has the busiest little campaign and press bureau that has yet been started by anyone seeking the honor. Under the heading, "Mercer County Republican Press Bureau," remarkable stories about the Stokes sentiment throughout the State are being sent to the newspapers, and in addition a number of paid workers are canvassing the various counties in an effort to help the Stokes boom get under way.

Our genial fellow townsman and president of the local Board of Trade, Willam Jeffery, will be the contributing editor tomorrow, and he promises some "Live Wire Shocks" for the readers of the Daily Press. Mr. Jeffery is just about the busiest man in Plainfield this summer, as the news columns of the Daily Press have shown in recording the many activities of the body of which he is the head.

Probably the worst political shock that John Kean has had in many a day will come to him when he learns that the Stokes press bureau is putting out a statement that Stokes' only opposition is "from Congressman Fowler, who, it is said, is being advocated and backed by former United States Senator John Kean."

NEW PARCEL POST RATES AND ZONES THEY AFFECT

Now that the parcels post has passed the experimental stage of its career, new rates have been announced to take effect on Friday, August 15, on and after which date parcels weighing up to twenty pounds may be mailed into the first and second zones. In all zones, rates will remain the same as now.

The new rates affect parcels intended for delivery at the office of mailing or on a rural delivery, connected with that office. They also affect parcels from the local postoffice to places in zone No. 1, which includes a radius of fifty miles from Plainfield and zone No. 2 which includes a radius of 150 miles from Plainfield. The accompanying table shows the reductions made. The rates for the first and second zones are the same.

ESTABLISHED PRECEDENT FOR LOCAL EXCURSIONS

Three sections of tired but happy excursionists arrived in this city between 9 and 9:30 o'clock last night after an enjoyable outing at Asbury Park and Ocean Grove, under the auspices of the Watchung Council of the Knights of Columbus. The affair was one of the most orderly of its kind that ever went out from this city, being due to a large extent to the work of the enterprising committee of 105 knights who looked after the interests of the excursionists going to and coming from the shore.

Not a single accident was recorded to mar the day's outing and ideal weather conditions greeted the recreation seekers at the seaside resort. Many took advantage of the excellent bathing that makes Asbury Park famous especially during the month of August while others took side trips in motor boats down Deal Lake and automobile tours going through the various coast resorts near Asbury.

NOTHING MAY BE VERY FUNNY.

Weedon Grossmith Proved It to Henry Irving's Satisfaction.

In "From Studio to Stage" Weedon Grossmith tells us of his invitation to play Jacques Strop to Henry Irving's Robert Macaire. He says it took his breath away. Irving told him that he had received good reports of the young actor from Booth and Jefferson in America and arranged to pay him £10 a week if that would be enough.

"I didn't tell him that I would have played the part for nothing and have willingly given a premium to have done so (if I had had the premium). I positively received £10 a week to be instructed in the art of acting by the greatest actor of our time! It was worth hundreds to me both from an artistic and a business point of view. The pains and trouble Irving took with every one over the slightest detail were remarkable. I admit he was very trying at times, especially when I was doing something quietly humorous—or, rather, nothing—and he would gaze on me very solemnly and say, 'That's not funny, my boy. You must do something funny there.'

"I proved to him, however, on the first night that sitting perfectly still on the staircase looking the picture of misery was decidedly funny; at least the audience thought so—so much so that the great chief said to me afterward, 'What were you doing on the staircase that made the audience laugh so much?'

"'Nothing,' I replied.

"'All right, my boy; do it again,' he answered."

DEAD AIR IN THE LUNGS.

When You Yawn You Expel It, So Don't Be Afraid to Yawn.

With ordinary breathing the lungs are not completely filled with air, nor are they entirely emptied every time you exhale during natural respiration. This leaves a quantity of dead air in the lungs, generally away down in the lower lobes. This is called "residual" air, and after it stays there awhile and becomes foul nature casts about for some means to make you get rid of it. The yawn is the thing, so nature makes you yawn. You open your mouth to its fullest extent, throw back your head, strain with the back muscles of the jaw, and you can then feel your lungs move as they force out all the foul air and take in fresh. In this manner are the lungs actually ventilated.

Yawning also ventilates the air passages in the mouth, throat and upper portion of the chest leading to the lungs. And again yawning is really an aid to hearing.

The cracking sound which you so often hear when giving an extra big yawn is due to the stretching and opening of the eustachian tubes. These tubes communicate between the ears and the back of the throat. If they are congested, which happens when you have a bad cold in the head, people complain of deafness.

If you feel inclined to yawn then do so. It is nature's way of cleaning out your lungs and air passages.—New York American.

Curing Wood.

Wood has contagious diseases! A stick of wood in a lumber yard may be sick and infect other timbers, which later may develop the disease when they are supporting great weights in a new building. Some of the diseases are so contagious that in a building they will jump several feet across masonry or brick to some stick of healthy wood. Cures have been discussed by the American Society of Mechanical Engineers. Most of the diseases are varieties of dry rot caused by fungus, and most of the varieties of the dry rot fungi cannot stand heat much over 100 degrees, so the most likely cure is to close a building up tight, if any beams are infected, and heat it up to 120 or 140 degrees. Even this is not always successful, for ends of beams are buried in the outer brick walls, and the heat may not reach them.—Exchange.

Called.

"Tillie," he said, "I had a strange dream the other night. I dreamed that I started to say something to a certain pretty girl and she stopped me. 'No, George,' she said, 'you mustn't tell me you love me—not yet, anyway. Wait till I weigh 133 pounds!'"

"One hundred and thirty-three pounds!" exclaimed the lovely maiden to whom he was telling his dream. "Why, George, that's exactly what I weigh!"

What could George do, even with his story unfinished, but 'fess up!—Chicago Tribune.

BLIND MAN WRITES HIS OWN LETTERS

Specimen of His Typewriting Which Is Done By the "Tuch" System.

One of the individuals who has helped to establish the name of Plainfield firmly in the minds of home seekers in different parts of the country and one who has probably done more than his share in advertising the "city beautiful," is Percy W. Cannon, the blind chair caner, of 837 East Second street. Living in a world of utter darkness and never knowing what it meant to enjoy the things that the normal person requires to make life worth living, Cannon is known the city over for his humor and wide knowledge of earthly happenings and is a favorite with persons of every age, sex and nationality with whom he comes in contact while engaged in his daily labors of conducting a miscellaneous store in his home on East Second street.

He is frequently seen shopping in Plainfield's business section and is almost infallible in picking out the store or shop he wishes to enter. Cannon has made himself a conspicuous figure by his whistling, and as he winds in and out through the throng of shoppers picking his way with a lead tipped cane he always has a hymn on his lips.

For some time the blind man was a student in the New York School for the Blind and during his course in that institution he learned to read books printed for the blind. Those who pass his home on Sunday or holiday afternoons see the blind man sitting on the front porch fingering a pamphlet but at the same time looking blankly into space. He is reading with his fingers the raised figures on a book published for the blind and is deeply interested in some masterpiece or exciting romance.

Cannon can also operate the typewriter by the "touch" method and, although he has never seen the instrument he handles, all of his own correspondence with the aid of the machine. That he has mastered the self-writing machine despite his affliction is indicated in the letter, which he writes to the Asbury Park "Evening Press" and which is given herewith just as it was written:

ANNIVERSARY WEEK TALENT HAS SOME LOCAL INTEREST

Harry Lamont, a cousin of Leon Texier, treasurer of the Plainfield theatre, will appear at Proctor's Front street house the fore part of next week in the head-liner act "Fun on the Ocean," a musical comedy of unusual merit, with a wonderful display of scenic and electrical effects. Lamont is one of the few vaudeville leaders who carry their own scenery and his act will probably be a strong drawing card.

Lamont appeared in this city some time ago as a imitationalist and was given a big hand by enthusiastic audiences. Texier and Lamont launched their theatrical careers together twelve years ago and after appearing before the footlights on an eleven months' circuit Texier tired of the show business and left the stage at New Amsterdam, but his cousin has followed this profession up to this time and has been eminently successful all over the country.

WHITMAN TO RUN ON FUSION TICKET

Agrees to Accept District Attorney Nomination.

UNITED FIGHT ON TAMMANY

Says "Union of All Forces Is of Far Greater Importance Than Division Among Parties of Offices or Distribution of Patronage."

New York, Aug. 8.—Before leaving the city for Bretton Woods, N. H., Charles S. Whitman in a letter to Norman Hapgood, chairman of the citizens' municipal committee, accepted the fusion nomination for district attorney of New York county without condition or equivocation.

In his letter Mr. Whitman made no reference to John Purroy Mitchel, fusion nominee for mayor, although he pledged himself to fight for the election of the entire ticket. His decision was announced after a day of conferences with Republican machine leaders. In his letter Mr. Whitman said:

I accept the fusion nomination for district attorney and will exert every effort to elect the entire anti-Tammany ticket. From the first my determination has been to do nothing to weaken the fusion movement. The real question has been how to lend it my most effective support. For the reason that you and others urge upon me that my acceptance will give strength to the ticket, and because a third ticket in the field would insure Tammany success, I have determined to accept the place that has been allotted to me, irrespective of any other question.

Why He Delayed Acceptance.

I have delayed making the announcement of my position because I have felt it my duty to hear in full the views of those who so loyally supported me and to take the opportunity of expressing my own views to them upon the situation.

It has been urged upon me that the decision of the fusion committee was dictated by partisan motives and accomplished by partisan methods. The fact remains that a fusion ticket has been arranged and that this is no time for the division of the anti-Tammany forces.

The Republican party in the constitutional convention which provided that municipal elections should be separated from state elections recognized the principle that municipal government should be divorced from party government. The willingness of the Republican party to participate in the union of citizens for the common good was based upon a recognition of this principle, and the Republican party deserves great credit, with it 180,000 enrolled voters, in placing the general welfare above party advantage.

The Republican party best serves itself in supporting the fusion movement, for by so doing it commands the respect of the community. It is stronger as a party in the state and the Union for joining forces with all good citizens, regardless of party, against corruption in the city of New York, than by selfishly insisting upon the selection of any particular Republican for any particular office.

Ambition Subordinated.

The purpose of the fusion committee was to bring about concerted action to secure the most efficient and honest government possible for the city of New York. The union of all citizens in this common cause is of far greater importance than the division among parties of offices or the distribution of patronage.

Personal ambition or partisan feeling must be subordinated to the public good. The movement inaugurated by your committee should receive the support of all voters of all parties who wish to put an end to commercial and political graft, and who wish to establish business administration in the great city departments, the carrying forward of the great administrative work of the development of transit, protection of health, preservation of order, the assurance of safety, the abolishment of special privilege in any form, and the general welfare of this, the greatest of our cities.

The selection made by the committee assure co-operation along these lines by all the candidates, and all should now unite in making their election sure. I will do my part.

SPREAD CROP MOVING FUNDS

Central Banks Will Loan Treasury Deposits at Low Interest.

Washington, Aug. 8.—That the banks which receive crop removing funds from the treasury will have to make loans to the smaller banks in their section at reasonable rates of interest was the keynote of the treasury department plan for the distribution of funds announced by Secretary McAdoo at the money conference. The secretary declared that the burden of relieving stringency and furnishing the money to move the crops will in the last analysis fall upon the small banks.

More than a hundred bankers from all over the south attended the conference by special invitation of the secretary. Their meeting was an executive one. The administration currency bill was explained by Chairmen Owen and Glass of the two congressional banking committees.

BRYAN BIGGER THAN A CIRCUS

Stroudsburg, Pa., Wants State Police to Watch Pickpockets.

Stroudsburg, Pa., Aug. 8.—Expecting an unusual representation of pickpockets when William J. Bryan makes his Chautauqua address here on Aug. 28, the borough fathers at their regular monthly council meeting have taken decided action. Secretary Williams was directed to ask Superintendent Groome to have the state constabulary force here on Bryan day. The occasion is expected to draw a larger crowd than any circus day in the last twenty-five years.

Weather Forecast.

Increasing cloudiness and warmer today; tomorrow showers; light to moderate southeast winds.

SENATOR LIPPITT.

Desk Covered With Cotton Fabrics In Tariff Debate.

Senator Lippitt of Rhode Island converted the senate into a textile school. His own and neighboring desks were covered with cotton fabrics, designs of which were displayed on a wall map, while another large chart contained figures of the cotton textile industry. He charged discrimination against the higher grade of goods of New England in favor of the coarser goods made in southern mills. This was hotly denied by Senator Simmons and other Democrats.

POLICE PROBE PLOT TO POISON FAMILY

White Substance In Coffee Found to Be Arsenic.

Yonkers, N. Y., Aug. 8.—City Judge Beall and the police are investigating what appears to be an attempt to poison the family of Edwin Williams, twenty-nine years old, an employee of the Otis Elevator company, who lives at 86 Nepperhan place. Mr. and Mrs Williams have five small children, and Williams' father, Elkin Williams, resides with them. Mrs. Williams said that she fears a plot to poison her.

On July 4, she said, a punch was made in their home, and just as it was about to be served she noticed a white sediment in the bottom of the pitcher. She called her husband's attention to it, and as both suspected something was wrong with it, it was thrown away. Two weeks later, she said, she noticed a whitish powder on hash which she was about to cook. She threw this away. Last Friday her suspicions again were aroused by the whitish appearance of the coffee as she was about to pour it for breakfast. She says her husband and his father said little when she called their attention to it, and she set it aside. After the men went to their work in the elevator factory she took some of the beverage to Dr. H. T. Wolff of 151 Linden street to have it examined. He reported that it contained enough arsenic and sugar of lead to kill a person.

SMITH ANSWERS CONNOLLY.

Declares Charges Against Him Are Actuated by Politics.

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 8.—Matthew J. Smith, district attorney of Queens county, through his attorney, Arthur J. Warner, filed with Governor Sulzer an answer to charges preferred by Borough President Connolly, alleging neglect of duty. Warner told the governor the charges were inspired by political motives and that the answer was a complete refutation of every allegation.

Similar charges were preferred against the district attorney by Samuel Piser during Governor Dix's administration. They were dismissed.

The governor informed Mr. Smith that he had not yet read the charges, but that if there were any reason after studying them and Mr. Smith's answer to believe that Mr. Smith had been guilty of wrongdoing, he would appoint a commissioner to take evidence.

BODY WASHED ASHORE.

Mrs. Smiley Had Been Suffering From Nervous Breakdown.

Revere, Mass., Aug. 8.—The woman found dead and with part of her clothing missing on the beach at Point of Pines was identified as Mrs. Allen T. Smiley of Malden. The name "Ruth M. Woodworth" written in in ink on her underclothhing was her maiden name. She had been suffering from a nervous breakdown for some time and left home when her sister, Mrs. C. A. Morgan, was asleep. It is not known how Mrs. Smiley met her death.

PRESTER JOHN.

Legends of an Elusive Warrior of the Twelfth Century.

The famous if somewhat phantom personage Prester John, who for two or three centuries occupied so prominent a place in the historic annals of Europe and in the minds of Europeans, was, from the most reliable accounts, a Christian conqueror of enormous power and great splendor, who combined the character of priest and king and ruled over vast dominions in the orient in the middle ages. He had, it was related, established a powerful empire either in Asia or Africa, and wonderful stories were told of his victories, his riches and his power.

His mode of warfare, which was unique and entirely effective, indicates an intimate acquaintance with explosives and combustibles. He possessed an army of life sized copper soldiers mounted on brazen horses, which were charged with explosive materials, projectiles and poisonous gas. This formidable array was marshaled to the front and spat forth its deadly fumes and dangerous projectiles with horrid effectiveness, making havoc in the ranks of the enemy.

The first mention of this extraordinary man, who appears and disappears from historic annals at long intervals, occurs in the Chronicles of Otto, Bishop of Friesengen, who narrates Prester John's conquest of the Persians at Egbatana, in the extreme orient, in the year 1145.—Boston Herald.

CREATING NEW STATES.

Work That Congress May Do, but, Once Done, Cannot Undo.

Several times it has been proposed to make two states out of the state of New York. In fact, resolutions have been introduced in the state legislature once or twice, but have died in committee. The purpose has been to include all of the present state south of Westchester county in a new state to be called (in one instance) the state of Manhattan. North of the Bronx district the name of New York was still to be retained. The surrounding islands of the south—all those of Long Island sound, Long Island complete and all of the counties comprising New York city—were to be embraced within the new state of Manhattan.

The creation of a new state confers a right that cannot later be abrogated and in this respect is unique in the establishment of political areas. After the people of the district in question have decided by vote that the carrying out of a new state is desired, congress passes upon the application. Up to this point congress is supreme. Once, however, congress agrees to the new state creation and the new state becomes an established fact, then no power of the republic can undo what has been done by legislative act. No repeal can revoke the privileges of a law abiding sovereign state. — New York Sun.

Ball a Girls' Game.

Of all the games ball seems to be peculiarly a girl's game throughout the ages. The Roman girls used to strike balls with the palm of the hand to keep them bouncing or would fling them against the wall to drive them back on the return or would pass the ball from hand to hand in the ring or in a row. The ball of the olden times was much like the one now in use. It was soft or hard, as occasion demanded; it was plain with painted or embroidered cloth; it was a hollow large balloon or a small light sphere. The German poets make frequent allusion to ball as a girl's game. It was described as a first sport of summer. One writer observes, "When I saw the girls on the street playing ball then came to our ears the song of birds." The game was a favorite one with youths and maids, who would contend for the ball, that the one who gained it might throw it to the one loved best. —Kansas City Times.

An Artist at Six.

Among painters the prodigy of prodigies was Sir Thomas Lawrence. One of his earliest pictures, it is said, was produced in 1775, quite early enough, for the lovely cherub who painted it was then six years old. He was getting on in life, tottering on the verge of twelve, when the quality crowded his studio at Bath. The fates were kind to the infant prodigy when they made his father landlord of the Black Bull, Devizes, the inn where fashionable men and women called for rest and refreshment on their way to the waters. At the Black Bull the prodigy made his first acquaintance with the great world which flattered him in after life and which he flattered on canvas.—St. James' Gazette.

A Pertinent Query.

The drummer had been bragging about his achievements for a goodly time, and finally the meek little man in the corner piped up.

"Excuse me," he said, "but perhaps you can tell me why you gentlemen are called drummers?"

"Well, why shouldn't we be so called? We drum up trade, don't we?" was the retort.

"I know," said the meek little man, "but the drum is not a wind instrument."—Harper's.

Unchanged.

"That's just like Jim," said the widow, wearily, after a flapping curtain had knocked over the urn in which all that was mortal of her cremated husband had been placed and spread its contents on the floor. "Always dropping his ashes everywhere!"—Harper's Weekly.

When Woodwork Needs Repairing.

No matter how badly in need of repair woodwork and furniture may be, you can put them in presentable shape if you have care, perseverance and a few inexpensive helps at hand.

To begin with, get the wood ready for some sort of finish. If it is badly battered up and the color of the stain is faded and spotted and worn, get sand paper and cut it in two-inch squares. With this rub off the old paint or varnish. Coarse paper may be needed to begin with but finish scraping with fine-grade paper and rub the wood smooth. This work is tedious, so do it for only a short time at a stretch.

After all the old paint or varnish is removed dust the wood and then wipe it with an oily cloth. Then make little pads of cotton—tie a six-inch square of cheesecloth around a wad of cotton batting— and dip them in paraffin oil, and then in shellac and then pat the surface of the wood with them. Pat the wood until it has absorbed all the finish it will take. The finish will be attractive and durable, but it must be carefully put on.

To Restore Color.

To restore color to wood dip the pad in mixed color after it is wet with paraffin and shellac. For cherry or mahogany use a little Bismarck brown and yellow ochre, mixed, and, if the mahogany is very dark, a little analine black. For oak use raw or burnt umber, according to the tone desired. For black walnut use burnt umber and Bismarck brown. For light woods use raw umber. Mix the color thoroughly before applying it, and try a little of it on an under side of the wood, if possible, before beginning to use it.

If wood is not badly disfigured it will not need this sort of recoating. If it is spotted clean it. One method of cleaning calls for a paste made of paraffin or linseed oil and rottonstone mixed to a smooth cream and then rubbed on the wood. First rub the paste in a circular direction and then rub it with the grain of the wood with oil. After an hour sprinkle the wood with tripoli powder, and in another hour rub it again.

To rub the paste and oil into the wood use a brick rubber. You can buy this, or you can make it. To make it cover a brick with felt. That from an old hat will do. When it becomes soiled, rip off the felt and wash it. This heavy brick polisher is good for any sort of wood polishing.

CABBAGE NOVELTIES.

BECAUSE in many homes cabbage comes to the table in the same old way every time it is served this really deserving vegetable is somewhat unpopular.

Served In Baking Dish.

Baked Cabbage.—Take a small new cabbage. Wash, cut up and boil in salted water till tender. Drain, cool and chop; then season with butter and pepper. Add a beaten egg and stock to moisten. Put into a buttered baking dish, cover with breadcrumbs, dot with butter and bake until brown, adding more stock if needed.

Dutch Cabbage.—To a head of cabbage cut fine allow one large spoonful of pork drippings, one cupful cream, one-half cupful vinegar, a scant teaspoonful of sugar and salt and pepper to season. Pour the pork drippings into a granite saucepan and when hot add the cream. When boiling stir in the vinegar. Then add the cabbage, with salt, pepper and sugar, and cook.

Enriched With Cream.

Creamed Cabbage.—Take a medium sized cabbage, quarter and soak in cold water for an hour. When ready put in a saucepan, cover with cold water and let it come to the boiling point. Then add one teaspoonful of salt, a little pepper, a pinch of sugar and as much baking soda as will fill a salt spoon. Let cook for thirty minutes. Drain through a colander and return to the pan. Add one level tablespoonful of butter, the same of cream or milk. Stir briskly over the fire, turn in a heated dish and serve.

Stuffed Cabbage.—Take a firm, well shaped three pound head of cabbage, a pound chopped beef, two slices chopped salt pork, a cupful breadcrumbs, a cupful of milk or stock, an egg, one-eighth teaspoonful mace, a teaspoonful salt, one-eighth teaspoonful pepper.

Cut a slice off the top of the head of cabbage and hollow out as much as possible. Make a stuffing of the other ingredients, moistening the crumbs with the milk or stock, and season thoroughly. Freshen cabbage in salted water for thirty minutes, drain, dry and fill three-fourths with the stuffing. Dust with salt, tie in a cloth and steam two hours or until tender.

The Fox Was Caught In a Trap.

Daddy's Bedtime Story — The Fox Had to Stay In the Trap.

AFTER a fine romp the children settled down beside daddy.

"We're ready for our story," Jack and Evelyn suggested.

So daddy began: "Once upon a time as Mr. Fox was trotting home through the woods he heard a loud cock-a-doodle-doo from a nearby field.

"'Ha,' exclaimed Mr. Fox; 'I didn't know I was so near a farm yard! I'll take a peep at that fowl.'

"So Mr. Fox crept over to the hedge that grew about the field and, peeping in, saw a fine fat rooster perched on a post and crowing with all his might.

"'Chicken for tea will be very nice,' Mr. Fox grinned as he sneaked around to where there seemed a hole in the hedge.

"When he reached the opening Mr. Fox crawled through, but when he was past the bushes something snapped about his foot, and there he was caught fast in a trap.

"The rooster hopped down from the post and when he saw the fox started to hurry away.

"'My dear young friend,' Mr. Fox pleaded, 'do not leave me here in this distressing plight. Do you not see I am caught tight in this cruel trap.'

"'Why did you come in here?' answered the rooster. 'You know you have no business here. Your errand could not have been a very good one or you would not have sneaked in as you did through a hole in the hedge.'

"Mr. Fox pretended to weep. 'You,' he answered, 'should be the last one to reproach me. It was because of you that I am here.'

"'I do not doubt it,' the rooster answered dryly. 'I have heard that foxes are very fond of chickens, especially when they are hungry.'

"'Ah, how greatly you wrong me!' Mr. Fox exclaimed. 'I would not harm a feather on your back. Just as I was on my way home to supper, which I make every evening of the fine juicy corn in a field farther on, I heard your beautiful voice. Who can it be that sings so charmingly? I said to myself. And, stealing over here very quietly lest I interrupt the song, I saw you sitting on the post pouring forth the loveliest melodies. Since it is due to you I got into this trouble I think you ought to help me out. Can you not get a knife to pry open or cut the trap?'

"'The cornfield you speak of,' the rooster replied, 'belongs to my good master, and if you have been stealing his corn you will get no help of mine.'

"And with a cry of warning to let the other chickens know there was a fox around the rooster hurried off to bring his master to the yard. And that, of course, was the end of bad Mr. Fox."

RATE CUTTING STOPPED

This state has passed a law making it illegal for insurance companies to discriminate in their rates charged on risks of essentially the same hazard.

The unfair and unbridled cutting in rates has been stopped, and where the assured has heretofore looked at the rate first and the company second, the order of things has been reversed and the company will now come first.

The strength and reputation of the companies in this office are unquestioned.

VOTES FOR WOMEN

Conducted by the Equal Suffrage League of Plainfield and North Plainfield.

Editors, Plainfield Press:

The enclosed clever allegory from the Newark News has been copied widely. Several of your interested readers have expressed a desire to see it in their home paper, so I enclose it for the "Votes for Wamen" column this week.

LOUISE B. DORR,
Chairman Press Com., E. S. L.

HOW THEY SETTLED IT.

The Primeval Dispute and the Up-to-Date Arguments.

(Newark News).

At last Adam and Eve came to a cave, and Adam said: "Let us dwell here and call it home. It is the best we can do, the way rents are."

"I am willing to live in a cave," said Eve, "but first you must clean it up. The animals have been sleeping here. The place is full of owls, bats, wasps, hornets mice, tarantulas and water bugs, and the cobwebs are a disgrace to any decent family. I shall never dare ask people to come to see us with the cave looking as it does now."

"Tomorrow I'll take a day off and dig out the dirt," Adam told her.

Years went by, Cain and Abel were in rompers, and still Adam had not cleaned the cave. Eve reminded, entreated and jawed, but Adam put her off with promises. At last she said:

"This thing shall not go on any longer. It was bad enough when you and I were the only ones to consider, but now the children are growing up and beginning to wander around, and I'll not stand it to see their health and happiness endangered any longer. There's a wolf under their bed this very minute, the pantry is full of snakes and centipedes, and the rats are keeping us poor. If you don't make this home of ours safe and decent for the children, I'll clean it myself."

Adam turned a patronizing smile upon her, and answered: "Cleaning up the cave is my work, Evey, dear. I couldn't let you soil your fair hand with the sordid problems of such a task. You would lower yourself to the level of mere man and that would be terrible."

"It certainly would."

"What do you mean by that?"

"Never mind. Go on with your sophistry."

"Sophistry is a new word, and I don't know what it signifies. I want you to understand that I'm the exclusive wordmaker on this planet."

"That's one word you did'nt make anyway," said Eve, and Adam was thoughtful for a minute. Then he went on:

"Your proposition to clean the cave won't do at all, and there are five reasons why. First, women have never cleaned caves, therefor they never should. That is what I shall hereafter call logic. Second, women are too delicate to clean caves as dirty as this one."

"But not too delicate to live in them," said Eve.

"Third, I do not like to think of you as fighting wolves and serpents and rats. I would rather picture you in your proper poetic sphere, sewing aprons or swinging in a grapevine hammock—"

"While the wolves and snakes and vermin devour the children, eh? Not on your life, my poet."

"Fourth, a woman's mind is incapable of understanding that compromises are constantly necessary in cleaning a cave. Woman is a creature of blind impulse; the female of the species is more deadly than the male. I must jot that last down," said Adam. "It will make a fine refrain some day when I run out of inspiration."

"You have given only four reasons," said Eve. "What is the fifth?"

"The fifth reason why you must not forget that you are a lady is this," and Adam flourished his hickory hunting club in her face.

There was no answering his last argument, so Eve gave up her blind impulse to clean the cave.

"But you will attend to it, dear, won't you?" she pleaded.

"Tomorrow," said Adam.

Keeping it Up.

"A great many people are becoming very tired of the woman suffrage agitation," says a writer in Harper's, "and are coming to the point where they would like to see it tried."

Come out west, you hide-bound, hard-shell moss-back, and look on for a while. Evidently you think all west of the Mississippi is a yowling wilderness. Should think California had made racket enough. Incidentally, the agitators are very tired too, but you can bet, if you dare, they are going to keep at it.—San Francisco Star.

But for the vast bulk of humanity, probably for generations to come, the instinctive antagonism of the human child-bearer to reckless destruction of that which she has at so much cost produced will probably be necessary to educate the race to any clear conception of the bestiality and insanity of war.—Olive Schreiner.

The Blouse of One Color Material, with Contrasting Skirt is a Style Feature That Is Growing in Popularity.

It is because of the opportunity it gives women to gratify that little streak of economy that lies dormant in every woman, that they do not seem to weary of the contrasting blouse and skirt. Who can tell. The fact remains though, practically every other woman you meet in the shops, on the smart thoroughfares, at the fashionable resorts, wear some modification or new development of this idea.

And it is such a joy to be able to wear out semi-worn skirts, by making a blouse or coatee of a couple of yards of pretty contrasting material. If you have a skirt of white linen, or ratine or washable corduroy, make a blouse like 7851, of ruby or sulphur color eponge or ratine. Or if you prefer the sprigged effects, there are some charming crepons and crepe voiles in white with the "Post-impressionist" designs in soft colors. Line the blouse with white net, and this lining you may face with tucked maline, with a plaited frill each side of the center. It is a pretty fancy to trim the front closing with tiny buttons covered with the girdle material. The collar is quite pretty, cut almost straight across the back, and for this net or maline or chiffon with picot edge would be pretty. The blouse closes over to one side with a large decorative button, giving the new waistcoat effect. Five pattern sizes, 34 to 42, the 36-inch size requiring 2¼ yards 36-inch material, 1 yard net, and 1½ yards 27-inch lining.

Distinctly new is the skirt illustrated, 7844, with its smart uplifted in front drapery effect, which gives the new silhouette. This is very easy to make. It is in just two pieces with a seam at the side-front and lap at the side-back, and the slight ease at the waist may be taken up in darts or gathers. Some women are stitching these darts on the outside, and not cutting the material away as we used to do. Try it, and see what a pretty trimming effect it gives. This model is an especially good one, as it is suitable for almost any sort of material, light or heavy. Five pattern sizes are obtainable, 22 to 30, and for size 24, 3 yards material 42-inches wide will be required.

Where the craze for diaphenous effects is going to end, goodness only knows. The early fall models, which one can only see at the class manufacturer's under promise of profound secrecy, are featuring transparent ideas even more strongly. Afternoon gowns of the type illustrated, 7895, are made with skirt of black or old blue or Bergundy charmeuse, or heavy silk bedford cord, while the blouse is of white or cream chiffon and shadow lace combined, with no lining but white net or flesh color chiffon. As in this one, the lowered shoulder is favored to the exclusion of almost any other style, and the vest is of softly folded white tulle.

There is just a suspicion of drapery in the skirt, which is in three pieces, and is quite simple and practical. Even an inexperienced sewer will have no trouble in making it. Five sizes, 34 to 42, and for size 36, 4¾ yards material, 42 inches wide will be required. Each pattern is fifteen cents.

A Grape Spray for Embroidering the Tea Tray.

Have you wished that you could have one of these charming frame trays for the veranda tea-table or your summer dining-room? They really are quite easy to make and quite inexpensive, if you make them yourself, although they are beyond the purses of most of us when priced in shops. You could not choose a more appropriate or effective design than the large grape spray, 12907, shown on the tray in illustration. This spray should be embroidered in colored silks on white, gray or natural colored linen. The grapes may be in shades of green and pale yellow; shades of dull red, or dull blue and purples embroidered in Kensington-stitch with filo silks. The grapes should be padded separately with a filling cotton, and worked so that each one will stand out separately. The leaves may be worked in dull soft greens in Kensington-stitch or in long and short buttonhole-stitch and seeding, and the stems should be in dull brown with the tendrils in green. This spray is 8 1-2 by 8 1-2 inches and may be placed in the center of a piece of linen from 12 to 18 inches long by from 12 to 16 inches wide, according to the size of the tray you wish to have. The frame may be either oval, as illustrated, or square, and you can buy a frame tray with no pattern beneath the glass and put in your piece of embroidered linen, or have it framed to match the wood of your table. Transfer patterns for stamping this design can be supplied for 10 cents each.

LARGEST SHIPMENT OF CATTLE.

New Orleans, La., Aug. 8.—Arrangements are being made to handle the largest shipment of cattle ever brought to this, and probably to any American port. The first ship load of a movement of 93,000 head will dock here tomorrow from Tampico, Mexico. Forced by the continuance of the insurrections in the southern republic, the owners are going to this vast expense as the only means of saving any portion of their property. While the shipment is being made in the name of the Corralitos Ranch Company, an English concern, it is understood that Gen. Luis Terrazas, Enrique C. Creel and other Mexican cattle owners are sending out some of their cattle with this movement. Thirty-one hundred stock cars will be required to carry the cattle from New Orleans to the various ranches to which they have been assigned.

DOG SHOW AT NEWPORT.

Newport, R. I., Aug. 8.—Newport society went to the dogs today. The occasion was the opening of the annual bench show of the Rhode Island Kennel Club, which is one of the prominent fixtures on the Newport social calendar each summer. The show this year is fully up to the high standard established by the previous exhibitions of the club. The display of toy dogs is especially notable.

Queries, Comment and Answers

Query—Is it true that in Australia a minimum wage law has been enacted, not only for women but every form of industry, and that the hours of labor are designated by law?—A. E. T.

Answer—We are not advised as to the latest laws of the Commonwealth upon these matters, but the non-tropical States, New South Wales, Victoria, South Australia and West Australia, have laws covering these points. The Dominion of New Zealand goes a step farther, it has adopted the doctrine that even if the world does not, the State at least owes every man a living. In New Zealand every man out of work has the right to demand employment upon works of public improvement at the prevailing rate of wages. rate of wages.

FISHING NOTES

The best fishing around in Raritan Bay today is the black can buoy off East Point. This is a channel mark that is reached from any of the Amboys, Morgan, Keyport, Keansburg or Port Monmouth. There is a chance to catch weakfish there now, and if we are not mistaken, a few small bluefish will be in that vicinity in a few days.

Weakfish are just as plentiful at Sewaren as they are any place along the shore north of Barnegat Bay. The Acker boats manage to bring in two or three fish, but then the angler pay up for that shortage by catching eels, tom cods and a few fluke as well as baskets of crabs.

Crabs are getting fatter, but they are not quite as plentiful as they were in July. Millions of crabs have been taken in the immediate waters since early spring, but the supply is beginning to shorten, which fact worries the boathouse keepers, as crabbing has been their main support this summer. Elizabethport, Sewaren, Perth Amboy, Morgan's, Keyport and the Shrewsbury River still have enough left for all who care to fish for them.

We had an experience some time ago that came near ending our love for fresh water fishing, but since then the practise is in vogue at many of the fresh water lakes in the North. It is called "gathering chum," but we called it "making chum." Several codfish heads would be obtained by the guide, and he would place them in the sun, and in a few hours the heads would be covered with maggots. The crop would be gathered and the trap set again until enough had been obtained for the following day's fishing. Better bait cannot be found than is thus propagated, as they are a delicacy that the bass fight for.

Wouldn't it be wonderful if someone could induce the State Board of Health to sail up Staten Island Sound in the new boat, the Inspector, and let the members see for themselves the pollution that is being poured into that stream by the million gallons. The boat has had a safe and snug mooring at the Highlands for some time, but that is not the place to find the coal tar and acids. One plant alone dumped four tank cars of tar in a creek which empties into the sound last Saturday, and several steamboat captains who got the benefit of it threatened to whip the plant boss if they could locate him, as it turned the paint on the boat to a beautiful black in a few hours.

Last week we mentioned the fact that the lafayettes were in Barnegat Bay and that they would be in the vicinity of Sandy Hook in a few days. They have now reached that far and the fishermen of the Highlands are catching them in the Shrewsbury River. Thomas King caught fifty there Wednesday and every one of them was large enough for pan fish. A few years ago (if we recollect right, it was six years ago) the fishermen from Sewaren to Cape May cussed the lafayettes, or spot, or Cape May goodie, as they are often called, because they stole the bait that was intended for weakfish, but today if they come as fat north as Sewaren they will be the most welcome sight that has been down that way in years. Men who formerly insisted that they would not fish for such small fish as the lafayette are now talking about going after them.

HARVARD CAPTAIN WINS.

East Providence, R. I., Aug. 8—E. H. Whitney, the Harvard tennis captain, captured the Rhode Island singles championship by defeating H. A. MacKinney, of Providence, on the courts of the Agawam Hunt, yesterday. Whitney showed the best tennis that he has exhibited during the tournament and won in straight sets 6-3, 7-5, 6-1. The championship bowl, which Beals C. Wright, of Boston, won a year ago, now goes to Whitney, Wright not having entered the tournament this year.

MC NALLY FOR RED SOX.

Utica, N. Y., Aug. 8—Michael J. McNally, shortstop for the Utica team of the New York State League, was sold yesterday afternoon to the Boston Red Sox for the highest price paid for a player from that league since the sale by Utica of George Burns to the New York Giants.

CRAVATH LEADS IN DRIVING IN RUNS

Phillie Star Is Also Some Home Run Clouter—Pounded In 29 Runs.

Fence Breaker Cravath, of the Phillies, is likely to lead the National League in driving in tallies this year as well as in manufacturing four-base wallops. During July the slugging Quaker pounded in twenty-nine runs, which was ten more than any other player in the senior organization was able to drive home. Cravath's nearest rivals for the honor of being the National League's timeliest hitter last month were his teammate, Fred Luderus, Vic Saier and Frank Schulte, of the Cubs, and Larry Doyle, of the Giants, who won the Chalmers trophy last season. Each of these men put the finishing touches to nineteen markers.

Cravath excelled for the Phillies in timely hitting last month, Schulte and Saier for the Cubs, Doyle for the Giants, Dodge for the Reds, Miller for the Pirates, Fisher and Cutshaw for the Superbas, Whitted and Konetchy for the Cardinals, and Rariden for the Braves. It seems strange to find, as was the case in the Boston Club last month, a catcher proving to be his team's most valuable willow wielder in the pinches. Rariden hit well all month, performing like a demon in the first game of the double-header with the Phillies on July 7. Then he batted in five runs, making a homer with the bases filled off Earl Moore.

Rariden was not the only National Leaguer who, during July, coming to bat with all bases occupied, cleared them. Others who turned the trick were Bob Bescher, Joe Connelly and Herb Moran.

Below will be found a table showing the number of runs batted in by twenty-four National League players last month, the three leading pinch hitters on each team being included in the list:

	Safe. Hits	Sac. Flies	Infield Outs	Total
Cravath, Phila.	27	2	0	29
Luderus, Phila.	15	1	3	19

DIXIE GIANTS' LINEUP.

When the Dixie Giants take the field against the Spicer combination in their Central New Jersey League clash tomorrow afternoon, they will present the following battle array: Maiden lf., McClain 3b., Simmons 2b., Coleman cf., Brown p. and 1b., Kline p. and 1b., Garner c., Barnes ss., Tyre rf., Powell sub., Rogers c.

TRINITY BACK IN ACTION.

After an absence of two weeks from the diamond, the Trinity baseball team will return to its old battling ground, Hope Common, tomorrow afternoon, to lineup against the Watchung A. C. combination. These teams are close rivals in baseball and a good contest is assured.

Games Tomorrow.
Spicers vs. Dixie Giants.
Saurers vs. West Ends.

Another round of play and one that will have some direct bearing on the team standing in the City Baseball League will be pulled off in that organization tomorrow afternoon, the Saurers taking on their old rivals, the West Ends, and the Spicers lining up against the padded Dixie Giants.

The Saurer and West End clash is due to bring about a change in the league standing, if the West End dopesters' predictions come true. If the athletics beat the present league leaders it will mean a new flag at the helm, while in the event of the Saurers winning it will probably mean a firm claim to the trophy for that combination.

SANTA MONICA AUTO RACES.

Santa Monica, Cal. Aug. 8.—Predictions are being made that the 400-mile automobile speed record will be broken in the big race to take place over the Santa Monica course tomorrow. The predictions are based on the fact that the course is in perfect condition and the additional fact that the participants in the race will include some of the speediest drivers in the country. The distance of the race will be 445.258 miles, or 53 laps of the 84,011 miles course. The contest is open to cars up to 600 cubic inches piston displacement. A sum that will probably exceed $10,000 will be distributed among the winners of the event. For the first time in the far West it will be possible for the general public to witness a race of this character from start to finish. In addition to commodious grand stands the management has provided unlimited parking space. Thousands of automobile enthusiasts from cities and towns throughout southern California are expected here to witness the contest.

HEAVIES AWAIT BELL.

America's leading white heavyweights, Gunboat Smith, of California, and Fireman Jim Flynn, of Colorado, are ready for the big battle in Madison Square Garden tonight for the Gibson solid silver belt. Billy Joh, the referee, will call them together at about 10 o'clock for a ten-round contest. The only men who have made Flynn take the count are negroes, Jack Johnson and Sam Langford, Tommy Burns, a former heavyweight champion, and Al Kaufman, who was in turn put to sleep by Flynn in 1911. Flynn is a tough, rugged, aggressive fighter who can assimilate punishment.

BREACH IN A. A. W.

San Francisco, Aug. 8.—The appointment of James E. Sullivan, secretary-treasurer of the Amateur Athletic Union and director general of amateur athletics at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition in 1915, of Tom Mulvey to be assistant director general has been followed by much resentment here. The Pacific Association of the A. A. U., in an open letter signed by President John Elliott, will refuse to allow Ralph Rose, George Horine or any others of its members to compete in 1915 if the appointment stands. At a meeting in the association's office yesterday, secession of the Pacific Coast from the parent body was urged.

LOCAL MAN DROVE WINNER FOR $500 PURSE AT FAIR

Flemington, N. J., Aug. 8.—The Flemington fair grounds were packed with people from all over the State yesterday. Among the thousands was Acting Governor Fielder and many prominent politicians. The Governor took lunch on the grounds and, after witnessing some of the races and shaking hands with many Hunterdon county admirers, left for Trenton.

The horse races were marked by exciting finishes. Wood Olcott won the 2.20 trot. Buster Brown landed the free-for-all after five heats had been run. The 2.18 pace was captured by Sugar Bowl, driven by Thomas Brantingham, of this city. This victory was one of the most exciting of the afternoon, the local man's steed coming home in front after six heats. This was for a purse of $500.

BOY DEFEATS HERRESHOFF.

Manchester, Vt., August 8—A. G. McIlwaine, a 17 years old golfer, playing from the national course, defeated successively yesterday G. C. Stanley, the recent Yale Captain, and Fred Herreshoff, of Garden City, in the first and second round of match play for the first President's cup at the Ekwanok Country Club.

THREE PLAYERS FOR RED SOX.

Boston, Mass., Aug. 8—The Boston Red Sox yesterday exercised their right of option on three players in the American Association. Infielder Krug, of the Indianapolis team, and Infielder Scott and Pitcher Brant, of St. Paul, recently sold with the right of repurchase, were yesterday recalled.

Somerville goes to High Bridge, this being the first game in some time at that place.

RUBBER GAME WITH THE ROYALS AT THE 'PLAINS

Scotch Plains will oppose the Royal Colored Giants in the rubber game of their series at the 'Plains Sunday afternoon, this being the third meeting of these clubs on the diamond this season. The initial encounter was trapped by the 'Plainers and the Royals brought out a padded lineup and captured the second. Manager Pete Simmons of the dusky ballists, says he will have the same material on hand Sunday that beat the home nine on the second occasion and expects to cop the series.

George Ortlieb will twirl for Scotch Plains and the rest of the team will be composed of DeNitzio 2b., Gray 3b., J. Alberts lf., Walton ss., Frentz 1b., H. Alberts c., Baldwin rf., Miller cf.

CHURCH WORKER PASTOR'S BRIDE

Paterson Preacher Weds One of His Flock.

NEWS SURPRISES FRIENDS

Rev. Dr. David Hamilton, Who Has Preached In Paterson Church For Eighteen Years, Weds Miss Gledhill In Maine—Couple Will Remain There Until Sept. 1.

Paterson, N. J., Aug. 8.—That the Rev. Dr. Stuart Hamilton, pastor of St. Paul's Episcopal church here, has married Miss Frederica Weller Gledhill, daughter of Mrs. Mary W. Gledhill, one of the most prominent of the younger members of his flock, became known in this city when news of the event was flashed from Poland Spring, Me.

Miss Gledhill and her mother are among the most active workers in St. Paul's church. Few members thought, however, that there was more than friendship in their church work between Miss Gledhill and her pastor. Dr. Hamilton has preached at St. Paul's church for eighteen years.

Miss Gledhill was one of the most popular and one of the prettiest young women of the congregation. She is the daughter of the late William Gledhill, who was a leading Paterson lawyer. Her grandfather was Dr. W. L. Weller. She is the niece of Mr. Frank Gledhill, vice president of the Hamilton Trust company here, and Mr. Henry W. Gledhill, a lawyer in this city.

According to the dispatch from Poland Spring, the wedding was small and informal, being attended only by members of the two families and Mrs. Jennie T. Hobart, widow of Vice President Garret A. Hobart, who is staying there. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. H. J. Kroman of Portland, Me. Dr. and Mrs. Hamilton will remain in Poland Spring until Sept. 1.

500 GIVEN SCARE ON RIVER.

Steamboat Races to Landing After Springing Leak.

Burlington, N. J., Aug. 8.—Five hundred frightened passengers packed the upper deck of the steamer Bristol while the boat was sinking with a big hole in her side.

The pilot was forced to a choice of beaching her in the shallows, with the risks of many lives as all went overboard, or making a landing at Island park, a mile distant. He hugged the edge of the channel and tried for the landing, which he reached with the lower decks awash.

As he tied up and discharged the passengers the boat listed heavily and would have turned turtle but for the pier fastenings.

It had been noticed at Burlington, where the passengers got on board, that the Bristol sat lower in the water than usual, but no one suspected a serious leak.

FOUND AFTER FOUR YEARS.

Deserted Wife Arrests Man She Accuses of Bigamy.

Paterson, N. J., Aug. 8.—After a search of more than four years for her husband, who left her six months after their marriage, Mrs. Mary Rosenthal of Philadelphia, with the aid of a cousin and a constable, found the man in this city, where he was a silk manufacturer. It is alleged that he was living with another woman whom he married in New York.

Rosenthal and the second wife were arrested on a warrant sworn out before Justice of the Peace John Keys here and were held under $500 bail each for court on a serious charge. The charge of bigamy, it is said, will be preferred against Rosenthal in New York state.

BEATEN FOR SNAPPING GIRLS

Boy Friend Goes to Defense of Girl Bathers.

Coytesville, N. J., Aug. 8.—Warrants have been issued for the arrest of John, Edward and Perry Kearney on the complaint of Thomas Clendenning, a lawyer, who charges them with assault. Clendenning tried to photograph Ida and Noelie Richmond, the pretty daughters of a roadhouse keeper, in their one piece bathing suits, and Perry Kearney, a boy friend of the girls, went to their defense.

Hard language followed, and Clendenning says that young Kearney got his two brothers to help him "beat up" the lawyer.

Plays In Boat, Falls, Drowned.

Hackensack, N. J., Aug. 8.—Ralph Stratton, thirty years old, of Ridgefield Park, son of William D. Stratton, a real estate dealer, was drowned in the Overpeck creek at Ridgefield Park while he was returning from a crabbing expedition in a motor boat. He fell overboard while playfully wrestling.

MAYOR WHITLOCK.

Said President Wilson Is Considering Him For Diplomatic Post.

Mayor Brand Whitlock of Toledo, O., is the latest prospective candidate for diplomatic honors and if McCombs declines the French ambassadorship he may get that. Mayor Newton D. Baker of Cleveland, who was in Washington a few days ago, got assurances that Mr. Whitlock would probably be the one man recognized from Ohio with a diplomatic appointment. Mr. Baker was an original Wilson man in the preconvention campaign in Ohio and his delegation was seated at the Baltimore convention after a desperate fight.

JAPANESE ENVOYS TALK OF FINDINGS

Nothing to Fear if People Keep Their Heads.

San Francisco, Aug 8.—Dr. Juichi Soyeda and Tadao Kamiya, honorary secretary of the Tokyo chamber of commerce, the two commissioners sent to this country by the affiliated chambers of commerce of Japan to investigate the conditions surrounding the California alien land act, will leave for home on Aug. 13. In summarizing the result of their investigations Dr. Soyeda said:

"The general feeling toward our country we found very cordial and the general sentiment among Japanese living on the Pacific coast was also satisfactory. There seems to be a fine degree of patience and forbearance manifested.

"Our people at home also are waiting for the ultimate solution with forbearance. So long as the people of two countries keep their heads and try to understand each other there is nothing to fear.

The recent unpleasant situation has not been without its good results. The people of Japan will now know more about your people and the constitution and the laws that regulate your national and international conduct, and you will know more about Japan.

"We hope that the law passed recently at Sacramento never will go into effect, but if it does you may rest assured that the Japanese will regulate their conduct to comply, at the same time striving to enlarge the permanence of their residence here."

"It was the spirit of discrimination against the Japanese in the California law that moved us to protest," added Kamiya.

"Our alien law has been cited, but we reply it applies to all foreigners alike—Americans, Chinese, Russians, British and Germans."

MAYOR SPEAKS TO FIRST BATTALION

Plainfield Executive Compliments Soldier Boys on the Work at Sea Girt.

MANY LOCAL VISITORS

Company K Returns to This City This Afternoon After a Week in the National Guard Camp—Many Plainfielders Attended Luncheon.

Sea Girt, Aug. 9—Mayor Percy H. Stewart, of Plainfield; Congressman William E. Tuttle and General Dennis F. Collins, were among the visitors in camp yesterday, and in the afternoon each one addressed the first battalion of the Second Regiment, which includes Co. K, of Plainfield. The soldier boys, especially those from Plainfield, were much pleased with this part of the program as Mayor Stewart's visit was a surprise.

Mr. Stewart, in his brief address, referred particularly to Co. K, adding that he was proud of the company's record in camp as well as at home. General Collins spoke of the efficiency of the National Guard and Congressman Tuttle complimented the officers of the guard; also the men who make up the State guard. All three speakers were given hearty cheers.

Several wives of officers and other friends from Plainfield were in camp, yesterday. They included Mrs. Charles Peterson, wife of the captain of Co. K, and daughter, Louise, Mrs. Albert I. Littell,, wife of Battalion Adjutant Littell, Mrs. George Apgar, wife of Lieut. Apgar; Miss Edith Sears, Mrs. Kalmen Rothberg, Miss Sadie Rothberg and Samuel Rothberg. The last named was formerly connected with Co. K.

They all enjoyed the review and the dress parade. It has been a successful encampment for the Plainfielders.

Yesterday being "Governor's Day" for Middlesex, Monmouth, Mercer, Union and Somerset counties, there was an unexpectedly large crowd, including many prominent Democrats who accepted the governor's invitation to luncheon. While there was a distinguished list of guests, the governor was disappointed over the absence of his political opponent, Frank S. Katzenbach. He sent word that he would not be able to reach Sea Girt owing to a business engagement.

Former Governor Stokes and Congressman Allan B. Walsh had seats of honor at the luncheon. There was a large delegation present from Union and Somerset counties, including former Judge W. A. Codington, Calvin E. Broadhead and S. S. Swackhamer, of Plainfield.

Camp Fielder, Sea Girt, Aug. 9—Early this afternoon the Second Regiment, National Guard of New Jersey, after their week's work at drilling and maneuvres, broke camp and departed aboard special trains for their home towns. About 4 o'clock the Third Regiment, from Camden, will march into the State Encampment Reservation under the command of Colonel Thomas D. Landon.

The breaking of camp by the Second Regiment was without incident. Shortly after noon the officers of the regiment, headed by Colonel Horace M. Reading, marched over to the Little White House where they bade farewell to Acting Governor Fielder and his staff officers. To Colonel Reading he sent a letter of commendation for the able commandership which he displayed and for the appearance and general conformation of the regiment while in camp.

Members of the First Battalion are looking forward to the announcement of the winners of the trophies and medals in rifle practice. This organization made an excellent showing, and although nothing definite has been announced, it is expected that many of the prizes will go to the First. The first team of Company F, which competed for the Williams trophy, consisted of Sergeant John Leeds, Sergeant Shaw, Corporal Christopher, Private Donnington and Private King.

Company K was represented by the following team: First—Sergeant Apgar, Quartermaster-Sergeant Thompson, Sergeant DeCamp, Corporal Hansen and Private Kennedy. Second—Corporal Glover, Corporal Kmosko, Corporal Perrine, Private Burd and Private Randlaw.

FUNERAL OF MISS POULSON.

Attended by a large number of relatives and friends, the funeral of Miss Lena Poulson, who died at her Manning avenue home Wednesday afternoon, was held yesterday afternoon at the undertaking parlors at 200 West Second street. Rev. Dr. Oslen, of the Swedish Lutheran church, Elizabeth, officiated. Interment was at Hillside.

BROWN AFTER RE-ELECTION.

Borough Tax Collector George F. Brown filed his petition this morning for renomination at the fall primaries to the office he now holds.

PLAINFIELD ENTRIES IN THE BABY PARADE

Children of John P. Reynolds In Asbury Park Event.

Asbury Park, Aug. 9.—Forty thousand people surrounded the lower end of Deal Lake last night to view the fireworks display given by the carnival association. In the afternoon there were a series of canoe and launch races. While there was great regret that the carnival association abandoned the parade of illuminated boats and floats this year, Col. Aymar, the president, said it was made necessary because of the great cost of preparation and the amount of labor involved, and the small return in a money way. Few people understand that the carnival events, including the baby parade, lake carnivals, fireworks displays and masque fete, are conducted by a committee of citizens who are dependent upon good weather and liberal support to pay the necessary expense.

Plainfield will be represented in the baby parade on August 27 by Robert Ewing Reynolds and Walter Serrell Reynolds, sons of Mr. and Mrs. John P. Reynolds, who are summering at Avon. They have been entered in the express wagon division.

Governor Fielder came over to the Elks fair last night and added substantially to the receipts of the week. The Elks will break ground this fall for a $60,000 home on Cookman avenue at the corner of Heck street. The building will be five stories high and constructed of stucco and white tile. The top floor will be given over to sleeping apartments for visiting members.

Five big excursions are in Asbury Park today. Hope chapel, of Plainfield, ran two sections. The Crocker-Wheeler Club, of Ampere, ran two sections; the Mutual Benefit Association, of the Arlington Co., of Newark, one section; the Franklin St. Epworth League, of Newark, one, and the Junior Mechanics, of Newark, one. Additional trains brought down about 3,000 people to take part in or hear the Messiah oratorio at Ocean Grove tonight.

The program or entertainment next week includes Sousa and his band at the Auditorium, Monday afternoon and evening, and the coronation of Queen Titania XIII at the Auditorium, Friday night. The identity of the queen will be revealed tomorrow. She is a Brooklyn girl summering at Hotel Lafayette and is said to be the prettiest in face and form the carnival ever had.

D. S. Dunavan, of Plainfield, is at the Marlborough Hotel. William R. Cook is registered at the Marlborough.

The temperature on the boardwalk at noon was 75; at 8 a. m. 73.

PROCTOR'S ANNIVERSARY BILL.

Proctor's anniversary program announced for next week promises to be one of the most attractive vaudeville bills ever offered in this city, every act being a headliner. Miss Hope Booth and Co., the Broadway favorite, will present the dramatic satire written expressly for her by George M. Cohan, entitled "The Little Blonde Lady," which has been played by Miss Booth over two thousand times in this country. The scene is in the editorial office of The Blade the characters are Henry, an office boy; Horatio Hummer, the dramatic critic, and Miss Booth, as Dolly. Harry Lamont, cousin of Leonce Texier, of this city, will appear in his big nautical comedy, "Fun on the Ocean," with special scenery, classy chorus, etc. Clara May, a singing comedienne of rare ability, is sure to please. Lewis and Lewis, a comedy team, will present a novel musical act. Mimmito and Brother will offer a clever pantomime comedy acrobatic act and with the black and white photo plays will comprise a big bill.

PLANNING FOR ANNIVERSARY.

The Dutch Arms, of the Netherwood Reformed church, at a meeting at the home of Horace J. Martin, Sr., on Leland avenue, last night, decided to dispense with the August meeting and to hold a rally meeting in September at which time plans will be adopted for the third anniversary in October.

ANTI-SUFFRAGE MEETING.

The Plainfield Branch of the New Jersey Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage will hold its regular meeting Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the Plainfield Public Library. A full attendance of members is desired to discuss plans for the fall.

MISS PHILLIPS GOES ABROAD.

Miss Mabelle Phillips, agent for the Charity Organization Society, left today for a two months' trip abroad. A large delegation of friends accompanied her to New York to see her depart on her long journey.

FAMOUS EXPLORER TO SPEAK HERE

Dr. Fritz V. Holm to Lecture for Benefit of Local Boy Scouts.

Dr. Fritz V. Holm, the widely known explorer, who has just returned from a 2,500 mile journey in the heart of China for the American Museum of Natural History, and who had many narrow escapes and exciting experiences in his travels, has promised to give an illustrated lecture in the chapel of the First Presbyterian church, under the auspices of Troop 5, of the Boy Scouts of America, some time during the latter part of September or first part of October.

Dr. Holm has consented to give this lecture gratituously to the Boy Scouts of Plainfield, provided they supply the lantern and operator and Deputy Commissioner A. V. Searing, Jr., has volunteered the use of his equipment for the occasion. All boy scouts will be admitted to the lecture free, but adults will be requested to contribute to a silver offering to help the work of the boy scouts.

Dr. Holm is one of the great explorers of the present time and it is expected that a large gathering of uniformed scouts will be present to receive him. He is very much interested in the boy scouts and their work, having had an opportunity to study the movement in almost opposite ends of the earth. In an effort to stimulate interest in the work among parents as well as the boys, Dr. Holm has consented to come to Plainfield to encourage the local boys. Through the efforts of Commissioner Allen E. Beals there will be an escort of at least one hundred uniformed scouts for their distinguished guest when he arrives here.

JOHN H. MARTIN IMPROVING; WILL RECOVER FROM INJURIES

John H. Martin, of 305 East Third street, who was severely hurt several weeks ago when a section of a bridge being constructed from New York to Long Island, collapsed, is steadily improving and is beyond the danger zone. Mr. Martin is a foreman of the New York Dry Dock Construction Company, and was directing some work when the accident happened. He received a severe fracture of the skull and bruises about the body. It was thought at first that he had little chance for recovery. A silver plate has been inserted under his skull and this delicate operation undoubtedly saved him from death. Dr. George Smith, a staff physician at the City Hospital, New York, where Mr. Martin is confined, said he expects that his patient will be able to leave the institution in several weeks.

TYPOS GATHER IN NASHVILLE.

Nashville, Tenn., Aug. 9.—Two thousand delegates and visitors from all parts of the United States and Canada are in Nashville for the fifty-ninth annual convention of the International Typographical Union. The convention will open Monday in the assembly chamber of the State Capitol, when addresses of welcome will be delivered by Governor Hooper, Mayor Howse and representatives of the local union. Features of the opening day will be the annual reports of President Lynch, Secretary Treasurer Hays and other officers and permanent committees. These reports will show a gratifying increase in membership the past year and a financial condition better than ever before in the history of the organization.

OFFERS ARMORY FOR DANCING.

Pending the repairs to the Washington public school, Co. K, of the Second Regiment, has kindly offered the Public Recreation Committee the use of its armory on West Front street for the folk dancing which will probably be held on Wednesday or Thursday.

Y. M. H. A. PICNIC.

The annual picnic of the Young Men's Hebrew Association will be held at Chimney Rock, on Sunday, August 17. The committee in charge of the affair comprise Hyman Adelberg, chairman; Harry Dreier, Morris Abrams, Jacob A. Fass and Samuel Rothberg.

—Neuman Bros. will have a special sale of fancy Jersey peaches for this afternoon and evening.—Adv.

EXPERT'S REPORT ON FIRE ENGINES

Board of Trade Mechanic Submits Lengthy Statement Concerning Apparatus.

EXAMINED ONE OFFER

Expert Finds That One Engine Has Been Used Considerably and Is Not In Condition to Warrant Purchase By the City.

With a view to preventing the acceptance of the automobile fire apparatus offered for sale to the city by the Saurer Motor Company, having a plant in this city, the local Board of Trade engaged an expert to inquire into the qualities and condition of the engine in question and the representative of the civic organization for the work has submitted a lengthy report. This document is now in the hands of President William Jeffery of the Trade Board and he was on hand to present it to the councilmanic fire and buildings committee at the meeting which was called for last evening but which was postponed because of the lack of a quorum.

John R. Cline, a local machinist, who acted for the Trade Board, made an examination of the two engines which are in town and which are offered to the local department in the bids opened last Monday. Three other bids were received but the companies have no cars here for examination.

The Cline report was made public today. It shows that the Nott engine, made by a fire engine manufacturer, is priced at $7,850, is a brand new car, and could be equipped with Rushmore electric-starting system, Rushmore searchlights, and capable of doing all that is required. Necessary parts of all kinds are immediately available, and it is possible to make practically all repairs without removin gthe body of the car.

The Saurer engine, according to Mr. Cline, was made in Switzerland, by manufacturers of commercial motor trucks, and is to have an American body substituted for the present one. He claims that the car is not new, having been used as a demonstrating car in Europe and in this country thereby having been subjected to great strain. To repair it, according to the statement, the body and cylinders will have to be removed. The parts for the transmission and motor can be secured at the Saurer Works, but the pump and its parts are made in Switzerland, and Mr. Cline says that he does not think there are any more like them in this country. There is a compressed air starter, which he says is less desirable than the electric one. The price is $7,000.

Cline ends his report by advising the purchase of a new outfit from a company which makes fire apparatus, and keeps all parts on hand for immediate delivery.

PLAYED WITH FIRE, CHILD IS SERIOUSLY BURNED

Lillian Meiers, the eight-year-old granddaughter of Mrs. Anna Meiers, of East Second street, was seriously burned about her right side yesterday afternoon, when playing about a fire in a vacant lot next to her home. Her clothes had become enveloped in flames as she came in contact with the fire, when men, who were near by, came to her rescue after hearing her screams. After rolling her over on the ground and extinguishing the flaming dress, they called Dr. Albert Pittis, who dressed the burns.

LOCAL POLITICIANS ON REPUBLICAN OUTING TODAY

A large number of local political lights connected with the Republican party in this city left at 8:30 this morning, to take in the annual outing of the county committee at Witzel's Point View Island, where a shore dinner is to be served at 1 o'clock. The party left Chancellor Dock, Elizabethport, at 9:30 on the steamer Isabella in company with representatives of all parts of the county and State.

Among those in attendance from this city were Herbert Buxton, John Cose, Alexander Ayers, William Newcorn, Alfred Prudhon, Wm. N. Runyon, Francis Blatz, V. W. Nash, Jr., Martin Stutsman, James Stewart, Edward Bauer and Henry Pflug.

No doubt booms and petitions galore will be in evidence, as usual, for both local and county offices.

THE TEMPERATURE.

The temperature report from The State Trust Company today is as follows: 9 a. m., 76 degrees; 11 a. m., 87 degrees; 12.30 p. m., 84 degrees.

FALL FROM SCAFFOLD RESULTS IN BROKEN HIP AND BRUISES

Harry Wilson, a carpenter, 20 years old, of Bound Brook, broke his left hip and sustained internal injuries this morning, when he fell from a scaffold swung on the second story of a new theatre building which is being erected on North avenue, Dunellen. Wilson was sawing a beam, when he accidentally stepped backward, losing his footing and plunged to the flag sidewalk twenty feet below. His fellow workers hurriedly ran to Pennock's drug store and telephoned for Dr. G. Thornton Longbothum. The latter rendered first aid and had the injured man sent to Muhlenberg hospital. He will recover.

COUNCILMEN GLOAK & WILSON WILL NOT SEEK RE-ELECTION

William L. Gloak, councilman from the First ward, last night announced his intention to remain out of the race for re-nomination this fall. Mr. Gloak has been a member of the Common Council since 1900, and has served on all of the important committees.

William W. Wilson, councilman-at-large, has also announced his intention not to seek re-nomination at the coming primaries. No available candidates for the nominations for these offices have been mentioned as yet.

SAILORS SCALDED.

(By Telegraph to The Daily Press.)

Orient, France, Aug. 9—Twenty sailors on board the French battleship Courbet were scalded and otherwise injured today when a tank exploded on the ship. Thinking that the magazine had let go the crew rushed on the decks in a panic of fear and many leaped overboard. The tank had contained steam and the explosion was caused by over pressure. The injured were removed to a navy hospital on shore.

COUNCIL HOLDING OUTING.

Members of Old Glory Council, No. 62, D. of L., will hold a picnic this afternoon at Hoffman's Grove, Bround Brook. Those attending will leave on the 1:45 trolley car from the Watchung avenue transfer station. The outing will be in charge of the good and welfare committee.

EXCURSION TRAIN WRECKED.

(By Telegraph to The Daily Press.)

London, August 9.—Two women were killed outright and eight other persons were fatally hurt in a train wreck at Yosvil, Somersetshire, today, when the excursion train ran into a stationary train.

THEY HORSEWHIP OFFICER.

London, Aug. 9.—Four militant suffrageites today seized medical Officer Pearson of the Home Office staff as he was leaving Holloway Jail and horsewhipped him.

Samuel Ridout will preach at the hall, 209 East Front street, tomorrow evening at 7:30 o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. John Efinger, of Midway avenue, are parents of a boy born to them at Muhlenberg hospital on Thursday night.

Mrs. James C. Field, Sr., of New Market, still continues to show slight improvement at Muhlenberg hospital, although her condition is still critical. She is conscious only part of the time.

CRUELTY CHARGES CLOSE UP SCHOOL

Startling Revelations Force Owner of Private Reform School to Quail.

Flemington, Aug. 9.—Showing evidence of the strain since his arrest Thursday in connection with the alleged cruelty to Henry Sparks, a Camden boy, Henry O. Knight, director of the Fairview Training School near Frenchtown, announced yesterday that the school would be closed in a day or so.

Seven of the eleven boys in the school where the conditions have been reported as intolerable, were sent there from Mercer county by Judge Frederick W. Gnichtel and they will be surrendered to any representative from that county authorized to receive them.

Two other children have just been taken away by their people. When the Mercer children leave, but two of their companions will be left. These two are boys who worked for their keep.

The closing of the school and the surrendering of the Mercer children is taken to mean that such a move would render unnecessary the investigation which Judge Gnichtel directed Probation Officer Edmond to make. The judge had told Mr. Edmond to take the Mercer boys away if conditions were such as reported.

When they thought they could speak without being overheard eight of the boys begged to be taken from the institution, and several of them whispered that they had been beaten and chained to their beds.

One sickly looking child, Foster Vanard, eleven years old, who was sent to the institution a year ago from Trenton, said he had been chained to his bed for days. "Oh, it was so long that I do not remember how many times it was light and dark;" he said, and then told of having been beaten with a buggy whip by Knight.

"Will I ever get out of here?" he asked in a half eager voice.

Some of the boys said they sometimes had school in winter, but did not know what they were taught, and asked if they had religious services they looked at the reporter closely for a time to see if he was joking and then they laughed. To sum up, the children are in rags and filthy, some of them say they have been beaten and chained, all are evidently afraid of Knight. The cottages are insect-infested and according to the children the food is poor.

According to residents of the surrounding country, this state of affairs has existed for years.

A visit to the well from which the drinking water is carted in barrels,and which was termed by Knight a "pure spring," turned out to be a dirty old well, the water from it muddy.

BOROUGH COUPLE MARRIED IN GRACE M. E. CHURCH

Miss Madeline Rose Kessell and James D. Bickson, both of North Plainfield, were married at 8:30 o'clock last night by Rev. C. C. Cain, of the Grace M. E. church, a number of relatives and friends of the couple attending the ceremony. Miss Kessell was attended by Mrs. James C. Dickson and Clement Howe was the best man.

The bride was attired in white Dutchess satin, draped with chiffon and pearls and wore a tulle veil caught up with orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of white roses and lilies-of-the-valley. The bridesmaid was gowned in lavender silk and carried a bouquet of pink roses and maiden-hair ferns. The couple left immediately after the ceremony for a short honeymoon trip and upon their return will be tendered a reception.

HOPE CHAPEL SUNDAY-SCHOOL EXCURSION IN TWO SECTIONS

Two sections of thirteen coaches each were required to carry the excursionists who left Plainfield this morning, under the auspices of the Hope Chapel Sunday-school, for a day's outing at Asbury Park and Ocean Grove, ideal weather conditions causing many to take advantage of this opportunity to visit New Jersey's seaside rendezvous.

The fact that this is the only Sunday-school outing conducted from this city on Saturday, gave the shop men and others who are not employed on Saturdays a chance to enjoy the outing and over 1,300 people made the trip.

CLARK AGAIN OUT FOR BORO OFFICE

Will Seek Mayoralty Again On Republican Ticket at Fall Primaries.

MAY BE NO OPPOSITION

Mayor Robert Clark, Jr., Will Take No Active Part in the Campaign for Re-election—Petitions In Circulation Today.

As predicted in this paper some time ago, Robert Clark, Jr., the present mayor of North Plainfield, today announced that he would be a candidate for renomination at the fall primaries on the Republican ticket. When approached on this subject by a Daily Press reporter during the early part of the week, Mr. Clark said: "You will have to get your information from the birdies as I have nothing to say." The "birdies" were interviewed with the result that several well grounded rumors were unearthed which indicated that Mr. Clark would again run for the mayoralty.

His decision was reached last night after considerable solicitation on the part of his friends in the borough and the "birdies" announced definitely this morning that he would once more be in the race. When Mayor Clark ran for the office he now holds his campaign attracted considerable notice in local and borough political circles, the candidate for the mayoralty taking no active part in the campaign, which, if successful, would make him chief executive of the borough. Mr. Clark announced at that time that he would make no speeches or statements but would dement, contending that if the people pend entirely upon the voters' judgo' the borough did not know him well enough without him declaring himself in public, he would be satisfied with defeat.

Mayor Clark's second campaign will probably be a repetition of the first, if present indications may be taken as a criterion, for the work of circulating petitions has been left entirely to his friends and Mr. Clark has evidenced no initiative in the matter. The circulation of petitions was started this morning and those having the documents found many ready signers.

Two years ago Mayor Clark was elected over St. John McCutchen, the Democratic candidate, who was supported by the "Smalley faction." No Democratic candidate for the office has as yet declared himself in the borough but it seems improbable that Mayor Clark will be opposed by any other candidate from his own party in the race.

Mr. Clark was for many years connected with the hat manufacturing industry, being president of the Walton Hat Company, of Newark. He has been a resident of the borough for the last fourteen years.

FLYNN GETS BOYS WHO BROKE INTO FRESH AIR CAMP

Detective Sergeant John J. Flynn yesterday arrested four boys as the miscreants who Thursday afternoon broke into the Netherwood Fresh Air Camp and stole many articles of clothing, several watches and other articles of jewelry. They are George Curtis, of 823 St. Mary's avenue; Michael and Pasqual Long, of 770 Midway avenue, and John Prine, of 281 Jackson avenue. The boys range in ages from 10 to 14 years.

As soon as Chief Kiely heard of the thefts he put Flynn on the case. After several hours' work gathering evidence among boys and residents of the East End of the city, the detective made the arrests. This morning the youths confessed. They will be arraigned Monday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock before Mayor Stewart, in the city court.

WILL TALK ON PLAYGROUNDS.

George P. Mellick, of this city, will give a short talk on playgronds at Parker Field tomorrow afternoon in connection with the weekly Sunday afternoon public recreation meetings. Mr. Mellick has been in close touch with the work in this city for some time past and is well qualified to explain the subject. The weekly band concert will be given as usual at 3 o'clock.

SPICER'S EXCURSION.

The Spicer Mutual Aid Society, a beneficial organization connected with the plant of the Spicer Manufacturing Company, will run an excursion to Highland Beach Saturday, August 16. The train will leave the North avenue station at 7.30 and returning leave the beach at the same hour in the evening.

Spend Sunday at Lake Hopatcong.

One dollar excursion leaves Plainfield every Sunday and holiday 10:01 a. m., via New Jersey Central.—Adv.

OUTLAW LAFITTE.

Old Time Patriot Pirate of the Gulf of Mexico.

HE WAS COURTLY AND BRAVE

And as Mild a Mannered Man as Ever Scuttled Ship or Cut a Throat—He Boldly Faced Andrew Jackson, Won His Friendship and Fought For Him.

In the brave days of old Jean Lafitte, the patriot pirate of the gulf, ruled over a little outlaw kingdom of his own within a few miles of the city of New Orleans.

A picturesque figure was Jean Lafitte, with a graceful, courtly delivery about him which made him popular with many of the most estimable dwellers in New Orleans. Handsome, able, averse to the shedding of blood and even possessed of loyalty to the government whose excise laws he made it his business to break.

Lafitte was French. He drifted to Louisiana in the early years of the nineteenth century and set up in piracy in the bay of Barataria, a sheltered harbor on the gulf of Mexico, protected by a long island called Grand Terre, where Jean Lafitte dwelt in a house of brick, with broad and comfortable verandas, where one might loll at ease in a hammock, smoking and drinking lazily, while pirate chiefs filed in to bring reports of plunder taken and prospects ahead.

No crude or common pirate was this Jean Lafitte. He held a privateer's commission from the republic of Cartagena, which had been recently established in South America and has long since been forgotten, and this commission gave him the right to plunder Spanish ships. Lafitte's followers were a motley collection—black, white, yellow and red—restless and reckless rovers of the sea. Lafitte trafficked in silk and gold and negroes and sold his goods openly at auction even in the city of New Orleans.

He was popular, too; there is no doubt of that. Had it been otherwise he would not have been permitted to remain five years in Barataria. As early as 1809 we find governors of Louisiana thundering against him, but Lafitte went calmly about his business. Occasionally a revenue officer was killed in a brush with the pirates. Invariably Lafitte expressed his sorrow that bloodshed had become necessary. A case was brought against him in the federal court. The district attorney was a man named Grymes. Lafitte went to see Grymes, and the result of the visit was that the district attorney resigned his office and undertook Lafitte's defense. He and the lawyer who assisted him were promised $20,000 apiece for their services and got it. After the case was dismissed Grymes went to Barataria to receive his fee and spent a week feasting with the pirates, who treated him with princely hospitality and escorted him back to the Mississippi in a handsome yawl, laden with caskets of gold and silver.

Repeated attempts had been made to organize a military expedition to destroy Lafitte's pirate colony, but up to the year 1814 they had always come to nothing. In September of that year a British brig anchored six miles from Barataria pass, and its captain came ashore and offered Lafitte a captain's commission in the British navy and $30,000 if he would join the British in an attack against New Orleans.

Lafitte pretended to consider the offer, sending word meantime to a member of the legislature of the British captain's offer and declaring that he would never accept it. He sent another letter to Governor Claiborne, who had offered $5,000 for Lafitte's head and for whose head Lafitte in return, in a spirit of gay bravado, had offered a reward of $50,000. Lafitte suggested that the governor extend clemency to his pirates, who in return would aid in the defense of the state against the British. The offer was rejected, and an expedition under Commodore Patterson of the United States navy swooped down on Barataria unexpectedly, tore down the brick house, confiscated much plunder and drove out the pirates.

Jean Lafitte and his brother Pierre escaped and established themselves on the lower Mississippi. Meanwhile Andrew Jackson had arrived to undertake the defense of New Orleans. Jean Lafitte went boldly into New Orleans to see him, although the fiery general had declared he would have nothing to do with "these pirates and hellish banditti." There must have been a peculiar charm and persuasiveness about Jean Lafitte, for after the interview Jackson changed his mind, accepted the aid of the pirates and showed the utmost trust in them. And throughout the siege of New Orleans the followers of Lafitte showed themselves worthy of confidence. They were excellent gunners, and two of Lafitte's captains, Dominique You and a man named Beluche, were put in charge of ships. When the British had been driven away Jackson recommended that Lafitte and his men be granted pardon for all previous misdemeanors, and the thing was done.

Nobody seems to know exactly what became of Jean Lafitte and his brother. In 1816 we find Jean in Galveston, Tex., whence he was chased by the Spanish government in 1820. Later there came stories of cruises in the Caribbean. The call of the sea was too strong for the one time Barataria.—Kansas City Star.

Our lives will be no higher than our sims.

Happenings Due Next Week

Washington, D. C., Aug. 9.—President Wilson's plans for currency legislation at the present session of Congress will be advanced an important step on Monday, when a currency bill will be reported to a caucus of the Democrats of the House.

A State-wide mass convention of Republicans and Progressives of Maryland is to meet in Baltimore Thursday to complete amalgamation with a view to defeating the Democrats in the coming senatorial election. A committee appointed for the purpose has drawn up a declaration of principles for the reunited party. This is said to contain practically all the planks, with the exception of the recall of judicial decisions, advocated by Theodore Roosevelt in the national Progressive party platform.

Beginning Saturday, elimination trial races for the German-American sonderclass yacht competition will be held off Marblehead, Mass., for cups offered by President Woodrow Wilson and Governor Foss of Massachusetts.

Saturday is the day fixed for the start from Southampton, England, in the water-plane flight round Great Britain for the $25,000 prize offered by the proprietors of the Daily Mail of London. The flight must be finished by August 30. Should no aircraft have completed the course within the stipulated time the donors of the prize reserve themselves the right to extend the period or to put off the competition until next year.

Plans for a widespread campaign for "votes for women," to be carried into all the States of the Union not now having woman suffrage, will be laid at a conference of the National Council of Women Voters, which will begin in Washington Wednesday and continue three days.

Other important gatherings of the week will include the triennial conclave of Knights Templars in Denver, the annual convention of the American Federation of Catholic Societies in Milwaukee, and the annual convention of the International Typographical Union in Nashville.

Profitable Roses.

Roses, though generally admired as the most beautiful flower, are not universally recognized as the profitable article of commerce that they really are. Trade roses are grown in various parts of Europe, but chiefly at Grasse, in France, and Kasanlik, in Bulgaria, where great stretches of rose gardens provide the chief supply of roses for the markets of the world. The highly cultivated roses are useless for commercial purposes, and both at Grasse and Kasanlik it is the cabbage rose that is chiefly grown—"the rose of a hundred petals," as they call it in southern France. The Grasse roses are used chiefly for pomades, soaps, rose water, and such commodities, and the demand made by the manufacturers of such on the rose growers of Grasse can be partly gauged from the fact that more than 2,500,000 pounds of roses are annually gathered in the district. Essence, or, as it is called, attar of roses, is rarely made in France, on account of the expense of production, but nearly all the Bulgarian roses are used for this purpose.

History Made by a Postage Stamp.

A postage stamp which played a part in history is told about by M. Bunau-Varilla in his book on the Panama canal. The incident occurred when the discussion over the relative merits of the Panama and Nicaragua routes was at its height. Bunau-Varilla had been working vigorously for the Panama route, making use of the two arguments of less cost and immunity from active volcanoes. One day he recalled that Nicaragua had issued a handsome stamp showing a volcano in full activity. He at once sent to the dealers in foreign stamps in Washington, and obtained ninety of these stamps, which he forwarded to the ninety senators, along with bits of paper bearing the words, "Postage stamp of the republic of Nicaragua; an official witness of the volcanic activities of Nicaragua." The catastrophe at St. Pierre took place about this time, to deepen the impression of volcanic danger, and the Panama route was adopted by the narrow margin of four votes.—New York Post.

Never Settled Questions.

The familiar saying that nothing is settled until it is settled right expresses only a half truth. Questions of general and permanent importance are seldom finally settled. A very wise man has said that "short of the multiplication table there is no truth and no fact which must not be proved over again if it had never been proved, from time to time." Conceptions of social rights and obligations and the institutions based upon them continue unquestioned for long periods as postulates in all discussions upon questions of government. Whatever conduct conforms to them is assumed to be right. Whatever is at variance with them is assumed to be wrong. Then a time comes when with apparent suddenness the ground of discussion shifts and the postulates are denied. They cease to be accepted without proof, and the whole controversy in which they were originally established is fought over again.—Senator Root in North American Review.

A Laureate on Lytton.

When Bulwer Lytton attacked Tennyson for accepting a civil list pension, Tennyson retaliated with a ten stanza poem in Punch, which has not been included in any collected edition of his works. He described his antagonist as:

That padded man—that wears the stays—
Who killed the girls and thrilled the boys
With dandy pathos when you wrote.
* * * * * * *
What profits now to understand
The merits of a spotless shirt,
A dapper boot, a little hand,
If half the little soul is dirt?

Tennyson felt ashamed of this outbust when he saw it in print. Punch of the following week contained his "After Thought," which ends:

Surely, after all,
The noblest answer unto such
Is kindly silence when they brawl.

WOMAN FORCES THIEF TO RETURN JEWELRY

Then, With Amazing Pluck, She Arrests Him.

New York, Aug. 9.—Alone in a room with a thief, Mrs. Mabel Kunzmann, a small woman and unarmed, stood with her back to the door and, by sheer force of will, made him take her $2,000 worth of jewels out of his pocket and give them to her.

"And now I think I will take you," said Mrs. Kunzmann, who is the wife of John Kunzmann, an attorney, and who was having this strange interview in her handsome home at 1716 Ocean avenue, Brooklyn.

The man looked around at the windows, but the leap was too great. The little woman strode toward him. He pushed her away, but returning to the attack she seized him by the arm and neck.

"You needn't do that," he said. "I'll go quietly." As she marched him downstairs servants rushed to her aid, but she said she was perfectly able to handle her captive.

At the door, however, he gave a sudden twist and escaped. He dashed along Ocean avenue, with Mrs. Kunzmann and the servants in pursuit. An automobile joined in the chase, and the man was caught and locked up in the Parkville station.

According to Mrs. Kunzmann, he had come to the house and asked if he could do any painting for her. She said there was no such work, but that she wished some parquet floors laid. He quickly became a parquet floorer and took the job.

Mrs. Kunzmann says that she left him alone in the room, but, hearing the sound of an opening bureau drawer, she crept to the door, peered in and saw him put her jewel case in his pocket. In a flash she was in the room and slammed the door.

WARRANT OUT FOR PRINCE.

Sulkowski, on His Honeymoon, Sought by United States Marshals.

San Francisco, Aug. 9.—The honeymoon of Prince Stanislaus Sulkowski and his bride of a fortnight, who was Miss Marie Freese, daughter of a Los Angeles millionaire, has become a game of hide and seek between the prince and deputy United States marshals.

As the result of testimony by Mrs. Clara Melcher, a Viennese laundress, a warrant was issued in Los Angeles, charging the prince with violation of the Mann act.

The prince and his bride are believed to be at Lake Tahoe, which lies on the California-Nevada boundary, and deputies are searching for him at the various resorts.

Three Shot In Quarrel Over Shoes.

Telluride, Colo., Aug. 9.—An argument over a pair of shoes led to a shooting at Sam's Spur, eighteen and a half miles from here, as a result of which William McCreedie, forty-two years old, is dead. George Taylor, thirty-nine years old, is dying and Robert McCreedie is slightly injured.

IMPEACH SULZER, IS PROBERS' PLAN

Campaign Checks to Protect Marginal Stock.

HEARING SUDDENLY ENDS

Senator Frawley, Chairman of Committee, Declares Sufficient Testimony Has Been Taken to Justify Impeachment Proceedings—Brokers on Stand.

New York, Aug. 9.—That sufficient testimony had been taken to justify impeachment proceedings against Governor Sulzer and that he saw no necessity for the examination of any further witnesses, was the declaration of Senator James J. Frawley, chairman of the legislative investigating committee, at the conclusion of the committee's session yesterday.

That was after Melville B. Fuller had testified that his brokerage firm, Harris & Fuller, had threatened last June to sell out the governor's account if he did not pay up a $26,739 deficit in margins, and after testimony had been introduced showing that a number of checks paid into the Sulzer campaign fund had been used by Frederick H. Colwell in paying for stock transactions in the office of that firm.

"Have you sufficient evidence to impeach Sulzer?" Senator Frawley was asked immediately after he had announced an adjournment of the committee at the call of the chair.

"I'm afraid we have," he responded, with a complacent smile.

"Will you examine any more witnesses here?"

"What's the use?"

Legislature to Decide.

"Do you think that the legislature will proceed to impeach at once next Monday or that you will wait until the following week?"

"I can't say as to that. The legislature meets on Monday night, and it will decide, of course. Adjournment will be taken now to give Mr. Richards an opportunity to prepare the matters which he proposes to bring before the committee. It will require about that much time."

Melville B. Fuller of the firm of Harris & Fuller told of the trouble that the firm had with Mr. Sulzer's account. It appeared that he was chronically behind on his margins. On Dec. 11 last, when he was governor elect, a message was sent to him at Washington asking him to put up more margin, and on Jan. 1, 1912, he was behind nearly $50,000. Mr. Fuller read another letter addressed to Mr. Sulzer at the executive mansion, Albany, on June last asking for more margin, and the letter threatening to sell him out followed two days later.

SUES TO STOP ELOPEMENT.

Husband Says Alienation Action Halted His Wife's Flight.

New Britain, Conn., Aug. 9.—A suit for $2,000 for alleged alienation of a woman's affections put a stop to an elopement, according to Marshall Stevens, who said his wife was planning to flee with Kalibador Tavetian. Stevens said he heard that his wife was about to elope, so he filed his suit, and a constable served the papers on Tavetian.

The domestic life of the Stevenses has been a tempestuous one since they were married in New York a year ago. Stevens has sued his father-in-law for interfering in his family affairs, and Mrs. Stevens has sued to have her marriage annulled. Both suits are pending in the higher courts, and the alienation now adds a further tangle to the situation.

CITY IN DARKNESS.

Municipal Electric Plant at Peabody, Mass., Out of Business.

Peabody, Mass., Aug. 9.—Peabody streets will be in darkness for at least a month, and a number of factories which rely upon electric motive power will be shut down as a result of a fire at the municipal electric lighting plant.

Electricity for lighting residences will be supplied temporarily by the Salem municipal electric plant, which, however, cannot furnish power for commercial purposes. Spontaneous combustion caused the fire, which destroyed the generators, engines, dynamos and switchboard.

BIG FOUR TRAIN WRECKED.

Hits String of Empty Cars—Engineer Pinned Under Wreckage.

Springfield, O., Aug. 9.—Big Four passenger train No. 1, on the Sandusky division, crashed into a string of empty passenger coaches in the yards here.

The engineer and fireman jumped, but the engineer was buried beneath the wreckage, which caught fire. A wrecking crew and the fire department of this city responded to hurry calls. No passengers were injured, according to reports.

Allis Loses Golf Title.

Kenosha, Wis., Aug. 9.—Ned Allis, young Harvard star, whose playing at Lake Forrest, Ill., two weeks ago was the sensation of the western golf tournament, was deprived of his title as Wisconsin state champion by Dick Cavanagh of Kenosha in the second round of the state tourney here.

NO REASON FOR IT.

When Plainfield Citizens Show a Way.

There can be no reason why any reader of this who suffers the tortures of an aching back, the annoyance of urinary disorders, the pains and dangers of kidney ills will fail to heed the words of a neighbor who has found relief. Read what a Plainfield citizen says:

Mrs. E. Dorflinger, 400 Clinton avenue, Plainfield, N. J., says: "The first symptom of kidney trouble in my case was a dull, heavy pain in my back and head. This was followed by a tired, languid feeling and I knew that my kidneys were gradually giving out. I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised and getting a box at Randolph's Drug Store, I began using them. Before long I improved and I continued until I was cured. I hold just as high an opinion of Doan's Kidney Pills now as when I gave my former testimonial. The cure they made has been permanent."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

PLAINFIELD, NEW JERSEY, AUGUST 9, 1913.

On Saturdays the editorial columns of the Daily Press are conducted by local citizens who are free to express their own views. The contributing editor for today is William Jeffery, president of the Plainfield Board of Trade.

PLAINFIELD BOARD OF TRADE LIVE WIRE SHOCKS.

A Board of Trade made out of old planks would be on a par with the old wooden bridges which up-to-date freeholders are discarding for new structures of steel and concrete.

The Plainfield Board of Trade is a concrete organization brought into existence by the irony of fate; it has a membership of two hundred men and should have five hundred by Christmas—this "is up to" the people. Our officers are men of experience in civic work and, most important of all, they do their work with the wholesome impulse, light, and courage of TRUE CIVIC SPIRIT—and they are "on the job." The least I can do is to thank them, publicly, for their active interest, thoroughness, and loyalty to the organization. It is through the efforts and support of such men only, that the Board of Trade or any other civic organization can be made a success.

Our organization has one exceptional advantage: its officers are, as a rule, in Plainfield during the day, practically every day, and can be assembled within a very few minutes to act in emergency cases. They meet every Monday afternoon for the transaction of regular business.

We desire to have it generally understood that there is a wide difference between individual complaints made to councilmen and officials, and public complaints made by an organization which represents the people as a whole.

In individual complaints, the official simply gets one individual's view of a grievance, a complaint from a civic body is the result of several individual complaints which, after discussion, become an "aggregate complaint" and a public grievance. This grievance is sent direct to the proper administrative department where it is accepted as a public complaint, and, if possible, remedied.

Publicity in all matters between civic bodies and governing bodies is highly essential, so that indifference on the part of either body can be eliminated, and thus the people are kept accurately informed on all subjects touching their interests. In this way, deserving representatives will get due credit for real work done.

Many people are prone to find fault needlessly, but when called upon to show up, they hide. We propose to name complainants, if necessary, and label the goods—everything "open and above-board."

As a new feature of its civic enterprise, the Board of Trade, this fall, will publish, each week, in both of our city papers, The Board of Trade Bulletin, for the following purposes:

1. To give to the public pointed and accurate information as to "what is doing" touching their interests in city affairs;

2. To formulate public opinion on subjects and problems that are sorely trying to the city and borough officials;

3. To provide our Mayors and Councils with a public support upon which they can confidently base needed improvements without having to fear, immoderately, the wolf cry, "Look out for the taxes."

4. To give officials such support in the proper execution of their work that they may be actually relieved from the fear of silent, mischievous, punitive, political influence and intrigue.

5. Last, but not least, it will, through publicity, secure to every fair official who is doing his duty, freedom from molestation, and eradicate the conniving influences. That much of this is rampant at present is not to be denied—it will be cut out through fear of exposure.

Proper support to the Plainfield Board of Trade, as at present organized, alert, fearless, patriotic, and guided by the Spirit of Civic Service, will result in vast improvements both in Plainfield and North Plainfield; it will

I. Increase the efficiency of local government:

II. Direct public opinion straight to evils to be cured;

III. Knock off the barnacles from the ship of progress;

IV. Transform existing nuisances into beauty spots that will be enjoyed by all; and

The Board of Trade will direct attention to the necessity of providing opportunities for our young men and young women to earn a living, and will restrain the present tendency to pleasure development only, and substitute the hat of reason for the egg-shell cap of frivolity.

The Board of Trade will provide proper opportunities for wholesome enjoyment acceptable to parents as well as to the young folks.

The Board of Trade will eliminate a lot of "hum-bug" that exists here quite as much as in many other places I know.

The Board of Trade will shorten the "red tape" line, and make it white.

The Board of Trade will awaken subordinates and clerks to the cold fact that they will best serve their departments by serious consideration of questions of public interest, which the Board of Trade may present to them from time to time; for the whole of the City Government—THE WHOLE OF IT—is not superior to the people; a branch of the government is subordinate to the government; a member of the branch subordinate to the branch; and the clerk or young woman stenographer is last—least.

We recognize all this, and fully understand the true relations of the units to the total; and in this connection we warn those serving in minor offices to avoid stupid references to the Board of Trade "putting on the lid." We need no lid. We want everything open and above board. Even if we had a lid big enough, we would not put it on Tier's Pond, unless we first deposited there some of those who are anxious to have the lid placed on it.

A word to the wise is sufficient.

Now, in conclusion: I beg to assure you that it is quite impossible to cover the Plainfield Board of Trade's work in so short an article, and so will ask you to accept its deeds for words.

WILLIAM JEFFERY,

FACE TO FACE WITH A LION.

It Took All This Woman's Nerve to Pass the Ordeal In Safety.

Few women can be so familiar with the king of the wilderness as Mrs. Fred Maturin (Edith Cecil-Porch), whose "Adventures Beyond the Zambesi" contain many thrilling lion tales.

One evening she met a lion in a forest of impenetrable brass. She was quite alone—her gun bearer, Lang Wan, having disappeared—two miles from camp.

"Through the long, dry grass a large male lion stood gazing at me. * * * I stood as still as he. All my blood appeared to rush to my head. I could not have stirred had I wished to. I stood still. I don't think I even breathed or that my heart gave one faint beat for some seconds. * * * I must stand quite, quite still, and stare back. * * * It was perhaps my only chance."

In all her terror she was conscious of the animal's great beauty. She watched him draw a step or two back: "I thought he was about to spring, but I took care not to move, mastering my terrible but fatal instinct to turn and run. Then he dropped his head * * * and with obvious fear slunk quickly away." That was at Dam river.

GERMAN "KURS."

They Are Not "Cures," Though Sometimes Translated as Such.

Many newspapers are hasty in announcing the discovery in Germany of some method of treatment more or less new, and not infrequently information is given the public through the failure to keep in mind the actual meaning of one little word. The German word "kur" does not mean "cure," although it is not an uncommon thing to find it so translated into English.

"To cure" in English means "to restore to health, to effect a cure," but in other languages it means merely to apply "a method of remedial treatment of disease, medical or hygienic care, method of medical treatment." The German word for "restoration to health" is "heilung," not "kur."

The Latin word "cura" means merely "care," a shade of meaning which is preserved in the derived term "curator." An Italian physician was recently made to say, when his article was translated into English, "I cured ten typhoid patients last month, and six of them died." What he really said was that he had treated ten patients. —From the Journal of the American Medical Association.

The Nervous Laugh—A Theatrical Test

In "The Spirit of Paris" Mr. Frankfort Summerville has an interesting chapter on the theater in Paris, including that curiosity of Paris, the Grand Guignol—a theater that was originally a church—and the "creepiness" of its art. The little, highly dramatic Grand Guignol plays "are chosen for their power of acting upon the 'nerves,' and the acting usually being superb, they never fail in their effect. A perceptible wave of nervousness communicates itself through the audience; some people begin to gigle in a perturbed manner, there is a tense silence broken by a scream or two or an exclamation, and then an 'Ouf!' of relief." "When I hear one or two nervous laughs," M. Brizard, one of the cleverest of the Grand Guignol actors, told me, "I know I have succeeded. I work up my effects to get that nervous laughter."

"Enuff's Enuff."

A few days ago a north side physician received a telephone call at his downtown office asking him to hurry home as speedily as possible. On arrival he was told that his small boy, age three, had found a box of belladonna pellets and had eaten some of them, the wife didn't know how many. The pupils of the youngster's eyes were dilated, which was proof that he had eaten some of the poison.

The father decided on an emetic and mixed a generous dose of mustard in some warm water. The youngster gulped it down. A minute or so later the father said, "Here, Ernest; here's another dose." The boy rebelled. "If you don't take it I'll lick you. You hear me?" "Yes, papa; I—I hear you. Please give me the lickin'."—Indianapolis News.

Panama Canal.

It is more than probable that the building of the Panama canal would never have been possible but for the discovery by Dr. Jesse Lazear of the United States army, who, by the way, sacrificed his life while making the experiments leading to the discovery, that yellow fever was transmitted by the bite of the deadly stegomia mosquito. But for that wonderful and timely discovery the mortality and attendant misery of the fever would have been a handicap too great to have been borne.—New York American.

A Pessimist.

"Persistence will gain you fame and fortune, my son," said the Sage.

"Oh, I don't know," replied the Fool. "If the dandelion wasn't so persistent the blame things would be raised under glass and would be worth as much as American Beauties."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

ROMANCE OF A DRAMATIST.

Jean Richepin's Flight From a Life of Drudgery to Fame.

The story of how Jean Richepin came to adopt a literary career is picturesque. For some time he had picked up a precarious livelihood by doing "odd jobs," including such prosaic occupations as that of bootblack and casual porter on the Quai Marseilles. One day he was engaged by a gentleman to carry to the railway station a heavy trunk. Arrived at the station, there was an instant mutual recognition. They were old college chums.

"What are you doing here?" asked his friend.

"Carrying your trunk, I believe," said Jean.

"Why do you do this?"

"Because I must."

"Where do you live?"

"Come and see," replied Richepin.

The future dramatist took his friend to his dwelling—a miserable room in an attic in the poorest quarter of the town. Upon the table lay scattered heaps of manuscripts—Jean's incursions in the realms of poetry when the more prosaic duties of the day were over. Looking through them, his friend was astounded at their quality. "Why do you carry trunks and blacken boots when you can do work like this?" he asked. Richepin had never given the matter a thought. He had never deemed these products of idle hours worthy of publication. Published they were, however, in a very few weeks and created an immense sensation. From that moment Jean Richepin never looked back.—Westminster Gazette.

SPLIT ON A TOOTHBRUSH.

Their Points of View Couldn't Agree; Hence the Clash.

When the tall girl found the mistress of the six room flat washing dishes she asked what had happened to Mary.

"Mary has left," said the housekeeper. "I insulted her yesterday morning at 10 o'clock, and at 11 she packed her trunk and skipped.

"We had a row over toothbrushes. Mary exhibited an unparalleled interest in toothbrushes. Every brush she came to was taken up and turned over and over and commented on admiringly or the reverse.

"Finally she came to mine. I could see at once that she liked it.

"'Whose is this?' she asked.

"'Mine,' I said.

"She poured out a glass of water and dipped the brush in.

"'Oh, well,' she said, 'I won't be afraid to use it, then.'

"For a moment I stood there literally stupefied, but soon I saw that prompt action was necessary, and I caught Mary's arm in a painful grasp.

"'Put it down this instant,' I commanded. 'Put it down.'

"Mary drew back and withered me out of the corner of her eye.

"'Dear me,' she said, 'how touchy some folks are! I never work for touchy folks.'

"And so we parted. She seemed unable to get my point of view on toothbrush etiquette, and I seemed unable to get hers, so we thought it best to sever our relations."—New York Times.

Wren's Bomb For St. Paul's.

St. Paul's—old St. Paul's—once knew the effect of a bomb that actually exploded. After the great fire it was at first thought that the ruins might be repaired, but too much damage having been done it was decided to pull the fabric down—a task in which many lives were lost. To put an end to the tedious work Wren hit upon the idea of inclosing eighteen pounds of gunpowder in a wooden box and exploding it under the central tower. The result was to lift the arches some nine inches, so that the ruins "suddenly jumping down made a great heap of ruin in the place without scattering." The architect proudly boasted that his powder box had lifted 3,000 tons and saved the labor of 1,000 men.—London Graphic.

"Celestial" as Applied to China.

Every one knows the epithet "Celestial" applied to China, but few know its origin. According to a very old legend, Tibet is a fragment of a planet, once peopled by a yellow race, which in some way became detached and fell on the earth. The dazed inhabitants of the fragment were uninjured and, cold and hungry, they made their way toward China, which they peopled. This origin of the Chinese race led to their calling themselves "Celestials," and it is for this reason that the emperor calls himself Son of Heaven. Such, at least, is the legend.—Toronto Globe.

Grandma's Old Friend.

An old lady laughed immoderately at a story told at a dinner in Chicago. The story teller looked at her inquiringly.

OVER A PRECIPICE

Climax to the Reckless Ride of a Fearless Horseman.

HIS WILD LEAP IN THE DARK.

It Carried Horse and Rider Past the Edge of a Sheer Cliff to a Fall of Two Hundred and Fifty Feet to the Rocks and Water Below, Yet the Man Lived.

Perhaps the most extraordinary fall that a human being ever survived is that described by Thormanby in his "Sporting Stories." The lucky man was Colonel William Yorke Moore, a British officer, who rode his horse in the dark over a sheer precipice 247 feet in height and came out alive! It seems incredible that such a fearful experience should result in anything but instant death, yet here are the facts, which once again confirm the adage that truth is more wonderful than fiction:

Colonel Moore, who commanded the troops at Dominica, lost his way one evening after sunset. In complete darkness he endeavored to make his way home. Two or three times he had difficulty in making his horse cross obstacles, and at last they came to something that the horse would not face.

Colonel Moore was a fearless rider. Again and again he rode his horse at full speed against the unknown obstacle, but in vain. At last, urged fiercely by whip and spur, the terrified animal, with a snort of terror, cleared the low hedge—for such the obstruction proved to be—and went over the cliff.

Colonel Moore says that during his flight on horseback through the air every event of his whole life seemed to pass in a luminous panorama before him. Suddenly there came a terrific concussion, which deprived him of his senses and left him with his legs in the sea and his body on the rocks, apparently dead.

He must have lain there stunned for some hours, for when at last the lapping water and the cool breezes restored him the moon was shining brightly in midheaven, and its beams fell upon the upturned, glittering shoes of his gallant horse, which lay dead and mangled beside him.

As soon as he had collected his scattered wits Colonel Moore coolly began to examine himself to ascertain what injuries he had sustained. He found that he was severely cut about the body and head, that his right ankle was dislocated and that his back was benumbed or paralyzed by the concussion of his fall.

When the sun rose it shone upon his bare, bleeding head with such intolerable heat that, as a protection from its rays, he tied his cotton handkerchief about his forehead. Above his head projected the two ends of the knotted bandage stained crimson with his blood.

After lying in horrible pain for several hours he spied a boatful of natives rowing toward the spot where he lay. As they came near he hailed them in a faint voice, but the moment they saw the ghastly figure of the colonel, with his bloody headdress, they set up a yell and rowed away as if 20,000 fiends were after them.

After some time a single black man came clambering over the rocks, intent on catching fish. He was within a few yards of the colonel when the latter hailed him. The moment the negro caught sight of the bleeding head and the blood stained bandage he, too, uttered a fearful yell, flung down his rod and line and scrambled off over the rocks as fast as his feet and hands would carry him.

The colonel now began to resign himself to the prospect of a lingering death, but fortunately his English servant, alarmed at his master's absence, went in search of him and, following the horse's tracks, at last came to the edge of the precipice.

The sudden disappearance of the hoof prints near the low hedge fence convinced him that an accident had happened. He ran to the barracks and got out a boat, which a party of soldiers rowed to the foot of the cliff.

Very tenderly and carefully the soldiers lifted the colonel into the boat and brought him back to the barracks. For some months he lay in great pain and danger, but in time the paralyzed muscles of his back recovered, and eventually he was restored to complete health. Not even the slightest touch of lameness remained to remind him of his fall.

Use Chloride of Lime.

Next to corrosive sublimate the most effective germ destroyer and deodorizer is chloride of lime. Corrosive sublimate is such a powerful poison that it is dangerous to have in the house. But chloride of lime is perfectly safe and very cheap. There are many uses to which chloride of lime can be put. Among these are sterilization of water supplies and sewage effluents, street sprinkling, flushing of gutters, disinfecting of all sorts in hospitals, homes, factories and railway cars; the extermination of vermin of all kinds, especially the typhoid carrying housefly.

Cheering.

Robby—I think I like you better than any of the other fellows that come to see sister. Percy—I'm pleased to hear it, Robby. Why do you like me the best? Robby—Because sis always lets me stay around and hear what you say.—Judge.

HUMUS IN THE SOIL.

This Valuable Substance Is Due to the Presence of Bacteria.

We find a vast difference in the fertility of different soils, writes C. L. McArthur, assistant bacteriologist, Idaho experiment station. For instance, sand, although it may contain all the elements necessary for plant food, is still found barren and without vegetation. Garden soils, however, may contain less plant food than the sand and still be considered very fertile. This difference is usually due to the substance known as humus. Where the humus is present the different elements are present in a form that plants can use. This humus is the remains of previous plants and animals. When plants die that part which is not used for commercial purposes usually goes back to the soil. In much the same way a great deal of the animal body reaches the soil.

As soon as this material reaches the soil it is attacked by millions of bacteria, which are known as the decomposition bacteria. These bacteria soon cause a great many changes in the material, each change tending to break down the complex into the more simple compounds. A part of this material is set free in the form of gases and is lost in the atmosphere, but the greatest part remains in the soil as a partly decomposed mass and is known as humus.

Different classes of bacteria continue their work on this material after it has reached the form of humus, decomposing it still further and building plant food and other substances from it. Thus we see that humus is continually changing. It is never the same in two different fields, and it also differs from year to year in the same field.

The addition of manure to a field does a great deal toward the formation of humus. It not only adds decomposing matter to the soil, but it also adds large numbers of bacteria which form humus out of the material already in the soil. Thus we find that if it were not for the work of bacteria there would not be any humus, as the various plant and animal matter would not decay.

CHOCOLATE AS A FOOD.

It Should Be Eaten After and Never Before Meals.

Chocolate is one of the most wholesome of foods. But it should be reserved for eating after meals. Nothing can be worse than chocolate eaten just before a meal, for then it ruins the appetite. Chocolate should consist of equal parts of sugar and cocoa. When it contains, as most of that sold in the cheap candy stores does, more sugar than cocoa it loses much of its real food value.

Koenig, the great German chemist, who has done so much to enlighten the world on the value of foods by publishing his analysis of them, says that chocolate contains 6.27 per cent of protein, .62 per cent of theobromine, 21.20 per cent of fat, 1.36 per cent of tartaric acid 53.70 per cent of sugar, 4.07 per cent of starch, 1.67 per cent of cellulose and 5.59 per cent of other carbohydrates. Therefore it is highly nutritive.

Athletes, polar explorers and mountain climbers know this well. In the Swiss Alps it is usual to carry chocolate in the pocket and to eat a little of it whenever the climbers pause for a rest. But chocolate is fattening and should therefore be eschewed by those who have a tendency to too great corpulency. It is an ideal addition to the diet of a vegetarian.

Chocolate and cocoa are almost as stimulating as coffee and tea, but have none of the injurious effects upon the nervous system which are for many people the great drawbacks of these drinks.

Chocolate is best when made overnight and allowed to stand.—New York World.

A Knight In Topcoats.

The late Sir Tatton Sykes, says the Manchester Guardian, had a way of his own of taking his walks comfortably. A visitor in the neighborhood of Sledmere would see the baronet set out for his morning round wearing two or three overcoats. When he felt warm enough he would take off first one and then another and lay it on the nearest hedgerow. The person who found an overcoat and returned it to the house always received the reward of a shilling, and no doubt the Sledmere boys were willing searchers.

Unappreciated.

"See, John," said Mrs. Slathers, with a happy smile, "I have taught the canary every time I come near him to stick out his little bill to be kissed."

"Humph!" said Slathers, eying the bird critically. "Seems to me you spend your time teaching creatures how to present their bills for my attention. I got one from your milliner this morning, not to mention a dozen or two others in the same mail."—Harper's.

Hopeless.

A woman went to the police station to inquire about her missing husband.

"What is his distinguishing feature?" asked the superintendent.

"A large Roman nose," she answered.

"Then he won't be found," emphatically exclaimed a policeman, "for a nose of that kind never turns up."—Pearson's Weekly.

Hard to Find.

"Don't get down in the mouth, old man," said the optimist. "Look on the bright side of things."

"That's all very well," mournfully replied the sufferer, "but what, tell me, is the bright side of a gumboil?"—Philadelphia Ledger.

STRENGTH OF HUMAN BONES.

More Powerful In Some Ways Than the Stanchest Oak.

Human bones are really tremendously strong and possessed of marvelous resisting power. Indeed, the bones of the fairest, most delicate looking woman are stronger than the strongest oak.

Of course a bone is hollow, and that is one of the chief reasons it resists such extreme weights. For instance, a small bone which is no more than a square millimeter in diameter will hold in suspension without breaking some thirty-five pounds, while a stick of best oak of similar width will not hold more than twenty pounds. Indeed, the average bone of the average man is stronger by one half than that of solid oak.

The principle on which our bones are constructed, being made hollow and consequently stronger than if they were solid and heavier, is the same mechanics have followed the world over. Constructive engineers employ tubes instead of solid cylinders.

In the case of animals thousands of years ago one reason of their bulky frame is attributed by scientists as due to the fact their bones were solid and added to their weight.—Chicago Tribune.

AVIATION TAKES NERVE.

And When That Is Lost the Aeronaut Should Fly No More.

He who flies constantly must look to one personal risk, which may vary according to the characteristics of the individual. This is the danger a man may incur by becoming a little careless while in the air. There is the possibility, in fact, that familiarity may breed not actual contempt, but a temporary relaxation of vigilance, and piloting an aeroplane needs such watchfulness, such minute precision, that any "staleness" on the part of the man at the wheel or lever represents a peril that is very real.

The pilot who flies a great deal should remind himself constantly that there is no room for error in the handling of aircraft.

A loss of confidence not difficult to understand is suffered by an air man sometimes after he has been the victim of a serious fall, and in similar circumstances a jockey, or, say, a racing motorist, may be robbed of nerve. When a pilot does lose judgment as the outcome of a bad mishap his wisest course is to cease to fly. With a broken nerve he is a menace to himself and to others as well.—Claude Grahame White in National Review.

For the Earache.

"I am afraid I have greatly interfered with my own practice," said a celebrated aurist, "by giving the following advice to many of my friends: At the first symptoms of earache let the patient lie on the bed with the painful ear uppermost. Fold a thick towel and tuck it around the neck; then with a teaspoon fill the ear with warm water. Continue doing this for fifteen or twenty minutes. The water will fill the ear orifice and flow over on the towel. Afterward turn over the head, let the water run out and plug the ear with warm glycerin and cotton. This may be done every hour until relief is obtained. It is an almost invariable cure and has saved many cases of acute inflammation. The water should be quite warm, but not too hot."

Of Interest to Women and the Home

The Housewife's Daily Economy Calendar

FRANCES MARSHALL

Longed-for Leisure.

There are many busy women in the world who sigh to themselves and say, "I know I could do great things if I only had leisure."

There is no reason why a woman, if she is doing necessary housework and sewing or work of any other sort should try to do anything else. But most of us think we possess some hidden talent which only fails to develop because we have no time to give to it. We could write, we could act, we could paint or we could do something else in a way that would bring fame if only we had time, we think.

The truth is that real talent generally finds a way to express itself whether its possessor has leisure or whether she is worried and harassed by the many duties that of necessity fill many a woman's life. It should be a consolation to most of us, therefore, to know that if we really have a talent worth giving to the world at large, it will find time for development.

Famous Women's Worries.

Harriet Beecher Stowe, author of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," was harassed and busy as a woman could be. She had a family who exacted all her time. Yet she knew she could. Finally she had a stove carried to an attic room so that she could escape from her duties for a little time each day and write in the attic.

Other famous women were not so fortunate as Mrs. Stowe in gaining the leisure for which they longed. Amanda Douglas, for instance, turned to writing to occupy her attention while she sat at the bedside of sick members of her family. Harriet Martineau use to write her famous stories in the middle of a room crowded with small step-brothers and step-sisters. George Sand, most famous French woman writer, ate, slept, lived and entertained her friends all in one small cluttered room.

Writing is not the only talent that will out in spite of you. Maria Mitchell, the most famous woman astronomer, for whom a comet is named, worked all day as a librarian and did house-work and knitted yard-long stockings for her father in the evening. Then she gazed at the stars far into the night. Luckily, of course, the stars were visible by night rather than by day, otherwise she would probably never have gained fame as the greatest woman astronomer. And Mrs. Siddons, surely one of the greatest actresses that ever lived, used to keep house for her husband and children between rehearsals and performances and used to wash out their scanty wardrobes over night.

So be contented. Perhaps the leisure you long for would make you happier. But it would hardly make you more famous. If you have a talent worth developing it would probably out in spite of your humdrum duties.

Some Cookery Suggestions

USES FOR COLD CHICKEN.

LIGHT and nutritious dishes, suitable for summer luncheons or teas when one does not care to cook much, may be made with the fragments left from a chicken dinner.

Scalloped Chicken.—Take equal quantities of chopped cold chicken and soft breadcrumbs, with enough white sauce or gravy to moisten the dish. Put chicken and crumbs in layers in a baking dish or in individual scallop shells. Season highly and cover with a nice sauce or gravy. Cover the top with sifted crumbs and bits of butter. Bake in a hot oven and serve hot.

A Nourishing Jelly.

Chicken and Veal Jelly.—Cut the remnants of cold fowl and some cold veal into small pieces, add five cupfuls of cold water, one small onion stuck with six cloves, half a bay leaf, a sprig of parsley, a teaspoonful each of peppercorns and salt and six slices of carrot. Heat slowly to the boiling point and then simmer on the back of the range, keeping the heat below the boiling point. Wet a piece of cheesecloth in hot water; then strain the hot liquid through and cool. Remove the fat, clarify and then mold or beat with a fork after it is firm and pile on a dish and serve.

Pressed Chicken.—Remove the chicken meat from the bones, separate the dark and the light meat and run it through the meat chopper. Add one-fourth of a cupful of breadcrumbs to a cupful of the dark meat, and the same proportion of chopped boiled eggs to the white. Moisten with the broth in which the chicken was boiled, seasoning highly. Pack in a square vessel, putting alternate layers of dark and light meat. Serve in slices on lettuce leaves.

Handsomely Molded.

Molded Chicken.—Pick all the meat possible from the bones. Chop it rather fine and season with pepper and salt. Put into the bottom of a mold some slices of hard boiled eggs, next a layer of chopped chicken, then more slices of eggs and layers of chicken until the mold is nearly full. Boil down the water in which the chicken was cooked, or if it is roast chicken the gravy it was served with, until there is about a cupful left. Season it well and pour it over the chicken. It should be rich enough to form a jelly around the meat. If not, add a little gelatin. Let the mold of meat stand overnight or all day on ice. Slice it and place on a pretty platter. Garnish with light colored celery leaves or with fringed celery.

The Mosquitoes on the Screen.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

Mrs. Skito's Party Is Rudely Interrupted.

OUTSIDE on the window screens a score of tiny black forms were dancing up and down. They were mosquitoes—hungry mosquitoes, very likely—and all waiting for a chance to sneak in and nip the plump arms or cheeks of Jack and Evelyn when they should snuggle down in their little beds and drift off to dreamland.

"Go way, skito!" Jack cried as one mosquito, more determined than the others, wriggled and shoved its thin head through the larger meshes in the screen. Jack had made the hole in the afternoon with the point of his lead pencil, and now he did his best to straighten out the wire.

"Yes," said daddy; "Mrs. Skito ought to be ashamed of herself. I heard her outdoors as I came in.

"She called to one of her friends, 'Come along tonight to the tango tea.'

"'Where; oh, where?' asked her sister mosquito.

"'Up in Jack's room,' Mrs. Skito answered. 'He's made a lovely doorway for us in the screen. I saw him when I peeped out from under my leaf.'

"Half a dozen other mosquitoes buzzed up. 'Oh, Mrs. Skito's going to have a party!' they cried delightedly.

"'Yes,' gushed Mrs. Skito; 'first there will be a dance on the screen outside the window, for it would never do for us to get in there before Jack's daddy goes downstairs. I've heard of shocking things happening to mosquitoes who went in too soon. My poor sister was crushed on that screen one evening.'

"'We'll be pleased to come,' the mosquitoes all buzzed.

"'How is your husband, ma'am?' Mrs. Bluebottle buzzed as she flew past. I'm afraid Mrs. Bluebottle doesn't care much for Mrs. Skito.

"'Oh, I dare say he is quite well!' Mrs. Skito answered haughtily.

"'At home taking care of the house while you're gadding, as usual,' Mrs. Bluebottle said grimly.

"'Home is a husband's place,' Mrs. Skito answered crossly. 'My husband, ma'am, doesn't take any interest in society.'

"'H'm!' Mrs. Bluebottle went on. 'And how are your helpless little children? Swimming around the brook, as usual, with no one to take care of them, I suppose.'

"'Certainly. My children are in their water nursery. In a few days they will be ready to join me, but you can't expect me to go in swimming just on account of the children.'

"But there," exclaimed daddy; "I don't believe there will be a party, after all, tonight. Just watch Mr. Spider."

A great big spider came scampering over the screen and pounced on a mosquito, while her frightened companions flew away.

LOVELY PINK CRAPE LINGERIE

Ways of Making the Summer Hotel Sleeping Apartment Comfy and Artistic—A New Portable Electrolier With Fascinating Oriental Shade.

Dear Elsa—As Dick cannot get out of town until August we are obliged to content ourselves these warm days with week end trips and an occasional visit to friends for over Sunday. Dick says it's such a bore when one is tired to be obliged to "drink more cocktails and play more golf than a fellow wants to." But last week he did go with me to the Thomas D.'s and lives now to be glad that I persuaded him to depart from his straight and narrow hotel path. He had a lovely time with the men at the club while Marjorie and I trotted around to luncheon and teas.

At one of these "eats" parties a new and dainty variant upon the public powder puff—if one may use the term for the usual ivory or celluloid box seen in clubs, with its perforated lid—was discovered.

Instead of the ivory box full of cotton wool provided by hostesses to be pulled out at will by the guests who wished to remove the shine from their noses, this hostess had made the daintiest little tufts of cotton wool, tied up at the top with baby blue and pink ribbons. These were placed on a small silver tray on the dressing room table, and every one exclaimed at their prettiness and usefulness. So I pass along the idea, which is as easy to carry out as it is adapted to the purpose intended. The little tufts are not more than an inch thick. They are so pinched together as to form a tiny powder puff, and the pinched end is tied.

And I must tell you about the charming guest towels they had at this house, something perfectly new to me in this line—handsome little white damask lengths with scalloped edges worked in white, but outlined with a plain stitch either in pink or blue to match the initial, which was done in French knots. Another towel was finished with crochet designs set in, and still another had an insertion of crochet lace with a monogram in colors.

Just before packing my grip for this little week end visit I went downtown to get a few indispensables, and what should my wondering eye behold on the counter of an exclusive shop but the most delightful underwear of pink silk crape, trimmed with incrusted white lace and, of course, tied with the inevitable ribbons. These garments are not expensive, so I plunged, but not enough to make Dick say things about the high cost of living.

The lovely little pink crape underwaists are worn under sheer shirt waists, with a white linen skirt, and they are perfectly charming as a background for the insets of lace.

This lingerie is easily washed, and, although it may slightly fade in time, it will wear as well as the white variety, which is not half so fetching.

Another thing I saw at a most attractive shop where they sell novelties was an electric lamp for the traveler. I did want to purchase it, but merely stayed to admire. One of the discomforts of the summer hotel bedroom I have always found to be the high swinging electric light. This light may be all very well as an illuminating means, but it has been an offense to my artistic eye. And even a pink silk shade hung over the hotel electric bulb will not soften the cold, white glare and give the room a homelike air.

The new portable electrolier does, and it has a shade exactly like the cover of a parasol. There are two kinds from which to select—a wide open Japanese parasol effect or one of the tubbed shapes so fashionable this summer. The shade opens with a spring like a parasol and may be closed up over the slender standard of the lamp.

The lamp fits neatly into a box that is easily packed. Each lamp comes with one or two electric bulbs, cord and plug ready to attach to the hotel electric light, just as one attaches an electric flatiron cord and plug. The shades are of oriental silk with bead fringe, or you can get them of cretonne in dainty colors. Such a thing is very comfy and nice when one wants to read at night in one's room, particularly on stormy nights, or when a book in the quiet of one's own sanctum is more alluring than bridge.

Shall I buy you one of these lamps? If so I am yours always to command,

MABEL.

Pulled Bread.

Remove the crust from fresh bread and tear the center in small pieces with two forks. Dry in a very slow oven until crisp all through. The center of biscuits may be prepared in the same way. Or take a freshly baked loaf and while it is still warm pull the inside out of it in pieces a little smaller than the palm of your hand. Bake the pieces on a floured baking tin in a hot oven until they are of a delicate brown color, when they should be crisp and of a nice nutty flavor. These are most digestible.

Ladies' Home Journal Patterns

The finest pattern articles in the world printed exclusively in Plainfield in The Plainfield Daily Press. Ladies' Home Journal Patterns are on sale at A. E. Force & Co., "The White Store."

There is a Daintiness, a Feminine Charm About the New Lingerie That is Most Fascinating.

Even in the lingerie, one sees the craze for diaphanous, filmy effects. In the exclusive shops, there are combinations and night dresses of chiffon and mull, and accordian-plaited net. Sometimes the lower part of the garment is of semi-transparent material such as fine batiste and filmiest of lace and insertion.

Nor does this craze stop there. The one time sensible, practical underves of gauze or swiss ribbed stuff, or Italian silk is masquerading in a most transparent brocaded silk gauze that is as sheer as a veil.

And there are the dearest of chiffon and tulle underbodices like 7852, trimmed with tucks and ribbon, and chiffon rosebuds, to be worn over the combination, and under the transparent blouse of lace or chiffon. There is little shaping to the top of these underbodices, as the ribbon is threaded through beading to hold it into the figure, and there must be some fullness to give a soft look. The shoulder straps are of ribbon.

Women there are, however, the more conservative sort, who do not accept the transparent underwear, but they do like the new crepe de chine lingerie, which is made in white and delicate tones of blue, pink and yellow. In white it would be pretty for the underbodice, with any color ribbon you please for trimmings. The closing is at the back, and you can have this in seven sizes, 32 to 44. For the 36-inch size 1 yard 36-inch material will be needed, with 1½ yards beading, and 3½ yards ribbon.

The underbodice is combined with a four-gored petticoat, 7740, which can be made up quite plain, or as illustrated with a scantily plaited flounce. The pattern also provides a circular flounce and a straight gathered one, and the back may be just a plain seam, or if you prefer it, you may have an inverted plait. For slender women the habit back is all right, but the woman who is stout needs the plait. The ideal petticoat, for lightness and comfort is made with flounce of messaline and upper part of Jersey silk, but you could use longcloth or batistes, and silk-dotted mulls make very satisfactory petticoats. Eight sizes, 22 to 36, and if made as shown, the 24-inch size calls for 5¾ yards 36-inch material.

The woman who has never before made an article of underwear for herself, should start with this nightdress, 7267. It is in one piece, so there are no sleeves to sew in, which means a big saving in time. Just seam front and back together at the underarm, cut the neck, square or round, or V, as you please, and then face the top in yoke effect with allover embroidery or shadow lace, and cut the material away underneath. Finish with ribbon-run beading, and have a smart bow in front, and on the outside of each sleeve. Four sizes obtainable 32, 36, 40, 44, and for size 36, 3½ yards 40-inch material required. Each pattern is fifteen cents.

A Beautiful Eyelet Border for Embroidering a Set of Covers for Your Bedroom.

A set of covers for the bed-room, including bureau-scarf, pin-cushion cover, bed spread, stand cover, lingerie pillow covers and pillow shams or day pillow cases if you use them, embroidered in one design on a good quality of white linen will be a good investment and you could not make anything more acceptable for the autumn bride. Separate covers of this kind will never go out of style and can be laundered any number of times without injuring the pieces in the least. The bureau scarf shown in the illustration was of round-thread linen embroidered in eyelet work with border 14328 which is seven inches wide. This pattern included two and one-fourth yards of border and you can make the bureau scarf to any size you wish to fit the top of the bureau on which it is to be used. The edge may be finished with a hemstitched hem, narrow Cluny lace, misle Crorhet or with plain scalloping. An initial or a monogram of three-inch letters placed in the center of the scarf would give a personal note of individuality to each piece of linen. The bed-spread may be finished in the linen lace or hemstitching to match the bureau-cover and the border should be placed so that it will be about four inches from each edge of the bed. A monogram of four-inch letters should be embroidered in the center of the spread. The pin cushion may be embroidered with one of the squares from this border and finished on the edges to match the bureau-scarf, while the table-cover, curtains and lingerie pillow covers may be worked to correspond with the other linens, used in the room. These may also be finished in the same way, with lace, hems or a scalloping. Transfer patterns for this border can be supplied to you for ten cents each.

ANTI-ALIEN LAW IN FORCE.

San Francisco, Cal., Aug. 9.—The Webb anti-alien land law, passed by the California legislature last spring and which called forth a vigorous protest from Japan and is still a subject of diplomatic negotiation between that country and the United States, will come into effect tomorrow. The law prohibits aliens from owning land in California. While applying to all aliens alike the law affects mostly the Japanese, who of late years have acquired extensive land holdings in California and who are obliged to remain aliens because of the law debarring them from citizenship.

—Among the special offerings at Neuman Bros.' tomorrow will be 50 baskets fancy Jersey muskmelons, special price by the basket.—Adv. **

ANTI-SUFFRAGE

Conducted by Plainfield Branch New Jersey Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage.

When we first started this column I was anxious to head it "Woman's Rights," but it was felt that perhaps some might be deterred from reading it (for every one is not broad-minded enough to read both sides) because that term has been so often misapplied. But now our national association has issued an authoratative statement of our reasons (some of them) for organizing to oppose Equal Suffrage, and they begin this statement by saying:

"We, more than any other organization, believe in woman's rights. We are fighting for woman's rights. First in the catalogue of woman's rights is the right of exemption. By that we mean exemption from entrance into active politics and all that it involves. We have an abiding faith in both the justice and the necessity of this exemption because, by virtue of it, woman is able to do her half of the world's work. Deprived of this exemption woman becomes an incongruity. Called upon to do double duty she will face the failure which is the fruit of an unnatural task.

"By no juggling of the phrase 'woman's rights' can the suffragists, who number only 8 per cent. of the women of America, justify their claim that the lawmakers of this country should force the burden of the ballot upon the remaining 92 per cent., who protest against it or are unwilling to have it.

"In the catalogue of woman's rights is the right to do good works. On the rolls of our organization are the names of women nationally famous for their charitable and philanthropic work. Actuated by the same motives which led them to help the needy and suffering they have undertaken the fight against woman suffrage because they are convinced of the criminal injustice of the proposition to thrust upon the vast majority of American women the additional and unnecessary duties of the voters.

"When the suffragists define the ballot as a woman's right they manifest a distressing ignorance of political economy. The franchise is not a right, nor a privilege. It is a duty, a stern duty, imposed by the State upon that class of persons thought by the State to be best equipped to perform it. Most particularly is the franchise not a plaything to amuse idle women. It is not something which can be used or ignored at the will of the person to whom it has been given. The suffragists do not appear to realize this fact when they degrade their doctrine with the absurd declaration that those women who do not want to vote may remain away from the polls.

"As a matter of fact we consider the franchise to be so big, so sacred and so binding an obligation, when once it has been conferred upon women, that we ask all our members and sympathizers in suffrage States to go to the polls at every primary and every election.

"We have just done so in Illinois, although we are convinced that the limited suffrage for women was obtained in that State in an outrageous manner. We believe that the annals of American politics show no duplicate of this act in which the Legislature of a State arbitrarily forced the franchise on the women of that State without giving them an opportunity to be heard even through the votes of the men. We hope and expect to see this law repeated, but while it stands on the statute books our women, having had the responsibility of the franchise thrust upon them, must exercise it as good citizens of the State."

Mrs. Goodwin was asked at the meeting last week, if all antis voted at school meetings and she had to say no. If we are asked why this is so, we should answer, in the first place, that many of us have not known our rights in the matter, and, in the second place, that it is only lately that the women not actively engaged in the suffrage movement have realized the fact that, having a right, we are bound to use it. Many have acted as did a woman whom I was urging to vote at a school meeting. "No," she said, "there's no need of my going. I'll tell Sam how he is to vote and he'll do it." But, at that time we had never heard of all the miracles that the mere possession of the suffrage could work.

A correspondent sends me the following clipping:

"Mrs. Ellen Richards, the domestic science expert, has called attention to the fact that seventy-five per cent of food contamination takes place not outside, but inside the house. Women do not need the ballot to combat this evil."

At a suffrage meeting at Quogue, Long Island, last week, the statement was made by the speaker that the suffragists now placed their chief hope in the passage of a Constitutional Amendment, as there seemed to be little chance of the people of individual States granting it. But some, at least, of the Congressmen who are advocates of woman suffrage, do not believe in taking the matter out of the hands of the people. Surely, this is a case where the government should exist by the will of the governed, and most of the States have shown, in no uncertain way, that the people, men and women, do not want woman suffrage.

DIES WHILE FATHER PITCHES.

Chicago, Aug. 9—Shortly after the National League game started yesterday at the West Side Park a message was received telling of the death of an infant son born to Mrs. Thomas Seaton, wife of the pitcher for the Philadelphia Nationals, who was then in the box. The news was kept from Seaton until the last out. He left immediately for the east.

JAS. E. SULLIVAN REAPPOINTED.

Mayor Gaynor yesterday appointed James E. Sullivan, secretary-treasurer of the Amateur Athletic Union of the United States, a member of the Public Recreation Commission of the city of New York, to succeed himself.

Queries, Comment and Answers

Sporting Editor:
Query—Where will the Army-Navy football game be staged this fall? V. B.
Answer—It has not been definitely decided as yet but there is some talk of playing it at the Polo Grounds and others want it at the Trenton Fair Grounds

Sporting Editor:
Query—Where can I secure an application to take part in the Baby Parade at Asbury Park, August 27? M. N.
Answer—Write to the Publicity Bureau, Asbury Park.

Sporting Editor:
Query—Does a man who came to this country when he was four years old, who has attended school and lived here for thirty years, have to take out naturalization papers if he wishes to become a citizen? B. H.
Answer—He certainly does.

Sporting Editor:
Query—Did Marquard or Fromme get charged with that defeat at Chicago the other day and why? Y. U. O.
Answer—Fromme was charged with the defeat in question because the winning run was made off his delivery. You ought to state the date in these kind of questions but in this case it happens that but one game can be found in which Fromme and Marquard appeared together recently.

Sporting Editor:
Query—What school is the oldest in the world? D. F. T.
Answer—Experience, has the most graduates, too.

Sporting Editor:
Query—How many ounces are there in one pound of dough? G. H.

CUBS RELEASE OVERALL.

Chicago, Aug. 9—Pitcher Orval Overall, the veteran who rejoined the Chicago Nationals this year after an absence from the game for two seasons, was released by Manager Evers yesterday to the San Francisco Club of the Pacific Coast League. The Chicago team announced the purchase of Catcher Hargrove, of the Terre Haute Central League Club.

BASEBALL NOTES

Newark, which bids fair to cop the International League pennant, has not won a championship since 1886.

Catcher McGee is showing some nice work with the Detroit Tigers, both behind the plate and at bat.

The White Sox look like a strong aggregation, but they certainly got away to a bad start in their present eastern trip.

The Ottumwa champions are out in front and making a great fight for this season's pennant in the Central Association.

Great is the timely hitting of Connie Mack's Athletics. So far this season the Mackmen have averaged nearly six runs to a game.

The Kitty League is producing a classy pennant race this season, with Paducah, Hopkinsville and Clarkeville running as fovarites.

The Cincinnati Reds are shy on heavy stickers, Manager Joe Tinker being the only Red Bird who is batting in the .300 circle.

It doesn't look as though Larry Lajoie is all in by a long way, judging from the game he has been putting up for the Naps in the east.

Horrors! Joe Jackson is surely going back. He played in a double header at Boston the other day and didn't get a hit all afternoon.

In Hamilton, Weilman and Leverenz, the St. Louis Browns probably have the strongest trio of southpaws in the business this season.

Rumor has it that Hugh Duy will dispose of his Portland (Me.) club and that next season will find him again piloting a big league team.

Billy Hamilton, one of the old-time stars of the Boston Nationals, has assumed the management of the Fall River team, of the New England team.

Olaf Henriksen, of the Red Sox, is at his home in Canton, Mass., recovering from an operation for appendicitis performed on him recently in Chicago.

While the Phillies, the Cubs and the Pirates have been getting their share of the games of late, they don't seem able to gain any on the Giants.

It is said the Brooklyn Superbas will recall Ralph Atchison, of Newark, the latter part of this month. He tops the list of International League pitchers.

Brooklyn fans had fond hopes of the Superbas keeping up in the race this season, but it looks now as though the Dahlen crew is destined to finish in the second division.

Uninvited guests to the press coop at Fenway Park, Boston, have been putting it over on President Jim McAleer of the Red Sox. Jim got wise the other day that the ringers were inhaling the refreshments he provides for the scribes.

George Washington—the first in peace, the first in war, etc.,—had nothing on the Indianpolis Indians. Mike Kelly's tribe is last in batting, last in fielding and last in the American Association team standing.

PROTEST USE OF SLANG IN BASEBALL STORIES

A protest against the use of slang in accounts of baseball games has been headed by a Chicago newspaper, which will let its readers decide by a vote the future style of these writings. Some followers of the game assert they are unable to follow the plays because of the slangy character of the stories.

President Ban B. Johnson, of the American League, said he would be glad to have the question of preference for styles of reporting baseball games decided. "I have often wondered which style readers as a rule prefer" he said. "I am not ready to commit myself."

BIG RALLY IN THE EIGHTH WON IRONSIDE'S FIRST GAME

The Ironsides won their first game in the Parker Field Senior League yesterday by defeating the Parker A. C. by a score of 5 to 3. The Ironsides cou'd do nothing with Clarke's delivery until the eighth when Kyle's double, Lawton's triple, C. Gullberg's homer and Dunning's double netted a trio of counters.

Dilts twirled air-tight ball and deserved a shut-out but was accorded some ragged support by his fielders

The score:

BIG DEAL FOR YANKEES.

Manager Frank Chance, of the Yankees, put through one of the biggest trades yesterday, when the New York American League Baseball Club gave Outfielder Bert Daniels and Third Baseman Ezra Midkiff, together with a $12,000 bonus, to the Baltimore Club, of the International League, in exchange for Third Baseman Fred Maisel, of the Orioles. Maisel will report to the Yankees this afternoon and may get into the game.

BILLY HARTMAN WILL PLAY WITH BRUNSWICK

Former Leaguer Engaged to Help Wallop Plainfield Tomorrow Afternoon.

Dave Driscoll is evidently going to insure his team against any possibility of losing to the Plainfield Pets when they meet at Amusement Park tomorrow afternoon for the Brunswick pilot has been doing some bolstering for the second meeting of the old pets and the new ones. Besides his usual array of stellar talent he will have Billy Hartman, the former big leaguer, at short, replacing Nick Powers, the Bound Brook boy in that position. Doc Scanlon, with two no-hit no-run games tucked away under his belt, will do the mound honors for the home nine, while Plainfield will have Cliff Randolph on the mound, he being kept out of the game today to rest up for the big affair tomorrow.

Plainfield fans are all aware of the fact that the locals won the first encounter with the Driscoll herd and that the former Plainfield captain and first baseman will go to the end of the ropes in an attempt to even up matters. Many local followers of the pastime will accompany the Pets to New Brunswick tomorrow afternoon to root for another victory over the rivals and former team-mates of the Queen City crew.

GAFFNEY, OLD UMPIRE DIES.

John H. Gaffney, for many years a National League umpire, died in New York Thursday. He was 54 years old and retired several years ago on account of failing eyesight. A native of Boston, Gaffney entered professional baseball when he joined the Live Oaks team of Lynn in 1877, but after a brief career in the field he was forced to retire because of an injured arm. In 1884 he was appointed to the National League staff of umpires, and for the remainder of his baseball days he stuck to this work, with the exception of the season of 1886, when he managed the Washington team. Gaffney was the first umpire to appear on the diamond with a chest pad to protect him from foul tips when umpiring behind the bat. When asked to what he attributed his success in umpiring he said: "Pleasant words to players in passion will work far better than fines."

CYCLE TRACK DEAL PENDING.

If a deal now pending, which began more than a week ago with the amalgamation of the rival bicycle interterests in Newark, is consummated, the Brighton Beach Motordrome will become a part of a string of bicycle tracks throughout the country, which will also include contracts with all the leading cyclists. The deal involves a change in ownership as well as policy, but the owners'ip is still a matter of uncertainty. John M. Chapman, recently connected with the Newark Velodrome, will probably enter the field in connection with the Brighton Beach deal. The plan of Mr. Chapman is to regain admission to the National Cycling Association, from which body he recently resigned, and apply for the Greater New York franchise in cycle racing. This would place New York in the chain which now includes Boston, Newark, New Haven and other Eastern cities.

NEW BICYCLE RECORD.

Paris, Aug. 9.—Marcel Berthet broke the world's one-hour bicycle record, unpaced, by covering 26.35 miles in one round of the clock. The American unpaced bicycle record for one hour is 25 miles 600 yards. It was made by W. W. Hamilton at Denver, Colo., July 6, 1898.

TWO LOCAL HORSES WIN AT FLEMINGTON

Straight Heats Won All of Yesterday's Races at the Fair.

Flemington, N. J. Aug. 8—The Flemington Fair was the objective point toward which the people of Hunterdon county turned their faces yesterday, and the races proved to be the chief attraction. The track was fast and the horses made good time in the different heats.

Edna Hamlin won the 2.30 pace and Wetherell the 2.30 trot. Sir Mathews, M. J. Callahan's bay horse, won the five-eighths mile running race in 1:50 for a purse of $100. Briarus was second and Nod third. Golden Vale, Race King and Biddy McGee also started.

Two local horses got into the prize list during the afternoon, "Ashlock," driven by Tom Brantingham, of Park avenue, Plainfield, taking second money in the 2:30 pace, three in five, and "Downing," owned by Harry Huff, and driven by Adam Blair, also of Plainfield took fourth place in the 2:30 trot. A number of horsemen from Plainfield were here yesterday and those who witnessed the performance of Harry Huff's steed predict a bright future for the animal on the track.

Today's racing card includes the 2:35 trot and pace county race, quick-hitch mule races, bull race, automobile races and motorcycle races. There are a large number of entries in the motorcycle races.

The summaries:

CARLSTROM WILL PLAY AT POLO GROUNDS SEPT. 29

When Albin Carlstrom, formerly shortstop for the Plainfield Baseball Club, appears in a Boston Red Sox uniform at the Polo Grounds on Monday, September 29, against the New York Yankees, local baseball fans ought to show their respect to Plainfield's only major league performer by attending the game and treating him to a "Carlstrom Day." Carlstrom's rise in baseball has been watched with keen interest by those who first saw him perform with the famous old Bushtowns several years ago. The elongated first sacker of the Lawrence Club has always played a steady game no matter with what team he performed.

Carlstrom has been hovering near the .300 mark in batting throughout the season and in fielding at the initial sack for the champions of the New England League has been the cause of the many lines of praise written about him by some of the expert scouts and baseball writers.

RIVALS WILL MEET.

The Netherwood A. C. baseball team will cross bats with the fast East Ends tomorrow afternoon on the Netherwood grounds. The East Ends will have four of the Netherwood's former players in their fold, Moore, Miller, Luthman and Trotter being the new ones. Betzemberger will play short and W. Mullin will take care of second. The Netherwoods will take the field as follows: Denny, p; Dodd, c; Hoffmister, 1b; W. Mullin, 2b; Betzemberger, ss; Schinkle, 3b; Henzel, lf; Stebor, cf, and V. Mullin, rf.

NAPOLEON'S BAD OMEN.

He Was Superstitious, and His Presentiment Came True.

Napoleon the Great was exceedingly superstitious. The following is told as one of the illustrations of this:

When Napoleon, in the spring of 1799, was lying before Acre he was anxious for news from upper Egypt, whither he had dispatched Dessaix in pursuit of a distinguished Mameluke leader. Not many days after a courtier arrived with favorable dispatches, favorable in the main, but reporting one tragical occurrence on a small scale that to Napoleon outweighed the public prosperity.

The commander as a brave man felt that any fate that awaited him would be better, than to fall into the hands of the enemy. He set fire to the powder magazine. The vessel blew up and the crew perished.

For all this Napoleon cared little, but one solitary fact that was in the report which struck him with secret alarm—this ill fated boat was called L'Italie, and in the name of the vessel Napoleon read an augury or the fate which had befallen the Italian territory. He felt certain that Italy was lost, and Napoleon was inconsolable.

But what possible connection, it was asked, can exist between this vessel on the Nile and a remote peninsula of southern Europe? "No matter," replied Napoleon, "my presentiments never deceive me. You will see that all is ruined. I am satisfied that my Italy, my conquest, is lost to France." So, indeed, it was.—New York Press.

Dr. Johnson and Ghosts.

Dr. Johnson expressed himself with characteristic caution and common sense on the subject of ghosts. "It is wonderful," he said, "that 5,000 years have now elapsed since the creation of the world, and still it is undecided whether or not there has ever been an instance of the spirit of any person appearing after death." Yet the credibility of some stories of apparitions can hardly be called in question. Edward FitzGerald was far from being a superstitious man, and there is a story of FitzGerald in a book called "Tennyson and His Friends." He once told some people "how he had one day clearly seen from outside his sister and her children having tea in his dining room. He then saw his sister quietly withdraw from the room so as not to disturb the children. At that moment she died in Norfolk."—London Mail.

Saw Wood After the Wedding.

Many of the small towns in Europe have distinctive wedding customs which must be observed, and of these the old mountain town of Wildermann, in Germany, claims one that is particularly interesting and quaint. On the day before the wedding the young men interested in the couple place a sawhorse on the top of the house where the bride is lodging, usually upon a chimney, and the bridegroom has to take it down before the wedding. On the wedding day the couple find a rope barring their way after they leave the church, and they are not allowed to pass until they have sawed in two the knotty log lying upon the horse. The inhabitants of the town gather around to watch the sawing, which is supposed to show whether or not the couple will pull well together.—Popular Mechanics.

Berlin's Palaces.

Berlin owes its palaces and many of its finest buildings to Frederick William I. That monarch had a passion for building and transmitted it to others. Whenever he heard of a rich merchant settling in the capital he ordered him to build a residence in keeping with his wealth. If the merchant obeyed he was duly rewarded, and many German families owe their title of nobility to an ancestor having built a fine house.

We Never Go Outside of Our Regular Manufacturers for Our August Furniture

This is a safeguard that makes GENUINE the August economies.

Of course, we open relations with new manufacturers as they prove to us that they can produce furniture up to Wanamaker standard. But we are never enticed by the apparent cheapness of furniture offers from manufacturers we do not know and have not yet "proved up."

So that, whether special purchase or regular stock, ALL the furniture in the August Sale is the kind that will give lasting satisfaction in the home.

This is the only kind of furniture worth buying at any price.

Feel perfectly free in browsing over the three Furniture Galleries and when you find a piece you like you may buy it with the assurance that it is trustworthy and that the economy in price is exactly shown on the tag.

For Reversible Velour Portieres as Fine as These at $14.50 You Will Have to Pay at Least $22 Anywhere Else

And this is why—

The makers of the velour—the best of the six in America that we pay any attention to—usually sells only to jobbers. They not only made an exception in our case, but gave us special terms, because they wanted our business, which went last year to the tune of a good many thousand yards—to another maker.

Figuring their lowest yard price for the same velour and our own of making up into portieres, sets the cost mark higher than $14.50.

Exquisite Colors

The velour is made of selected 2-ply cotton yarn. It has a finish like silk. The colors—red, rose, green, gold, blue, brown—are exquisite shades, and permanent. The combinations—stitched together with French open seams—

Red and green	Green and green
Red and green	Brown and blue
Green and gold	Rose and brown

Monday, the first offering; 347 pairs, $14.50 the pair.

THE PLAINFIELD THEATRE

George Primrose and Lew Dockstader, veteran stars of the minstrel world, who have reunited their respective minstrel companies after remaining apart for nearly ten years, will be the attraction at the Plainfield theatre, Thursday night, August 14. Messrs. Primrose and Dockstader will be accompanied by an all prominent aggregation of burnt cork vocalists, dancers, instrumentalists and fun makers in what is heralded as the most joyous minstrel event of a decade—a performance that sets a new high-water mark both in rounded excellence of delineation of negro character and picturesque sumptuousness of adornment. "The Temple of Mirth and Melody," is the title of the first part. Tom Brown will be seen at one end of the half circle as the curtain rises and "Happy Jack" Lambert at the other. Harry Sievers will occupy the interlocutor's chair. Raymond Wylie, the phenomenal male soprano and other excellent ballad singers will be heard prior to the entrance of Mr. Primrose and Mr. Dockstader. In the first part Mr. Primrose will sing to the accompaniment of which he will execute the famous Primrose soft shoe dance, that has made him know nas "America's most graceful dancer," and Mr. Dockstader will tell some of his inimitable stories. The olio will open with a musical idea of camp life in the Philippines by the Four Mayors, an exceptionally able coterie of vocalists. They will be followed by Mr. Dockstader in his impersonation of the Bull Moose Chief, Colonel Roosevelt, and his speech to the suffragettes. Mr. Primrose, assisted by Foley and Murphy will present a series of novel terpschorean divertisements. Then comes the Six Musical Brown Brothers, who will present what is said to be the best musical act on the American stage. The afterpiece, "Down Home," is from the pen of Mr Primrose. The playlet is in four scenes, which are said to be most elaborate. The entire company takes part in this number. A street parade will be given on the day of the performance at noon, headed by Messrs. Primrose and Dockstader. The tour is under the personal management of Earl Burgess

PERSONAL.

Jacob Voehl, Sr., of Grove street, who has been critically ill, is reported to be slightly improved with a chance for recovery.

Rev. E. C. Barrows, pastor of the Eastern Presbyterian church, Washington, is spending the summer in Plainfield. He is an enthusiastic golfer and frequently plays on the local links.

Preparatory services will be held at Netherwood Reformed church next Friday night with communion the following Sunday at the evening service. This will be the last Sunday the pastor, Rev. Royal A. Stout will be with his present congregation, as he takes charge of the Green Hill Presbyterian church, Philadelphia, September 7.

NEW ARREST IN POISON PEN CASE

Elizabeth Woman Is Up on a Second Accusation.

DOCTOR IS COMPLAINANT

Declares Prisoner Sent Him a Scurrilous Letter—When Woman Was First Accused She Was About to Become a Mother and Case Was Put Off on Several Occasions.

Newark, N. J., Aug. 9.—Mrs. Nelson L. Pollard, the young woman of Elizabeth, N. J., who a few weeks ago was accused in the police court in that city by her neighbors, Mrs. Charles F. Jones, of having written letters which gave the affair the title of the "poisoned pen" case, was arrested by federal officers. She was placed in an automobile and taken to this city, being arraigned before United States Commissioner Stockton.

The case had been adjourned again and again in the Elizabeth police court before Justice Mahon. When Mrs. Pollard was first accused she was about to become a mother. For this reason the proceedings were conducted so as to distress her as little as possible, and since then the case has been adjourned for ten days at a time on several occasions.

The new information against the woman charges that she sent a scurrilous letter to one Dr. Charles E. Schlicter of Prospect and East Jersey streets, Elizabeth. The information is sworn to by Inspector Butler, who is the complainant of record.

When arraigned Mrs. Pollard denied having sent any such letters as mentioned and demanded a hearing at the earliest possible moment. Commissioner Stockton said Tuesday would do, but Mr. Schleimer said that the Pollard case was due for a hearing on Tuesday before Judge Mahon at Elizabeth, so the case was set over until Tuesday next. Mr. Schleimer entered a plea of not guilty for his client and the bond of $1,000 was furnished.

2 DIE IN ATLANTIC CITY SURF

Girl and Man Drowned While a Crowd Looked On.

Atlantic City, N. J., Aug. 9.—While a crowd looked on without making the least effort to rescue them, Miss Edith Rockey, aged twenty-one, of Quarryville, Pa., a town twelve miles outside Lancaster, and William Lewis of 711 Eleventh street northeast, Washington, employed as chief of the linen room at a beach hotel, were drowned off State's avenue while bathing in the ocean before the guards went on duty.

It remained for a colored man, who came on the scene just before the girl sank out of sight, to risk his life in a vain effort to save her.

This hero, Rufus Bradley, is in the City hospital recovering from the effects of his brave effort to save the girl. His condition is serious and he has only a fighting chance for recovery.

Both bodies were recovered several hours later. Strenuous efforts were made to resuscitate the victims by mechanical means, but these failed.

The tragedy was enacted before the eyes of 500 people, who congregated on the beach and boardwalk when the girl's screams suddenly pierced the air. There was not one in the crowd with the nerve to attack the high seas and go to the rescue of the girl.

ATTACKED BY JEALOUS RIVAL.

Hoboken Man Says He Has Been Assaulted Several Times.

Hoboken, N. J., Aug. 9.—Max Snyder, twenty-two years old, of Garden street, this city, appealed to the police for protection, alleging that he has been assaulted several times because of his attentions to a young woman, whose name is withheld. His assailants are being sought.

Snyder was shot in the right shoulder on Tuesday night by a man concealed in the dark hallway of Snyder's home. He reported the shooting and told the police of his other experiences with a jealous suitor. On Sunday night he was held up and robbed of $20. Two weeks ago two men tried to rub red pepper in his eyes and a week earlier a man dashed vitriol over him. None of the acid struck him in the face.

LANSDEN SCHEDULES FILED

Business Edison Founded Has Debts $193,000, Assets $304,000.

Newark, N. J., Aug. 9.—Schedules of the Lansden company, truck manufacturers, founded by Thomas A. Edison in 1904, were filed with Referee in Bankruptcy Edwin G. Adams here. They show liabilities of $193,000. The assets, according to the schedule prepared by its counsel, aggregate over $304,000, and consist mainly of machinery and stock on hand.

In 1912, according to announcement, new interests gained control of the company and increased its capital to $1,000,000. Many branches have been established in this country and Europe.

SENATOR JOHNSTON.

Succumbs to Pneumonia at His Apartments in Washington.

Senator Joseph F. Johnston of Birmingham, Ala., died at his apartments in Washington. Senator Johnston had been in poor health and had not attended sessions of the senate for a week. He had been confined to his apartment most of the time, but his trouble was not diagnosed as pneumonia until a few days ago. Although the senator's son, Forney Johnston, had been summoned from Birmingham, it was believed until yesterday that the senator was not in any immediate danger.

FATHER OF ROSALIE JONES TRIES DEATH

Suffragette's Parent, Long Ill, Shoots Himself.

New York, Aug. 9.—Dr. Oliver Livingston Jones, father of "General" Rosalie Jones, the suffragist who led the "hikes" to Albany and Washington, attempted suicide in his home, 116 West Seventy-second street. He shot himself once through the head and was removed to the Polyclinic hospital, where it is said he will probably die.

Dr. Jones' family is one of the oldest and wealthiest on Long island. They are known in New York society as "the Long Island Joues," and Mrs. Jones, who has long been prominent in exclusive circles, has been called the "Mrs. Astor of the West Side."

Miss Louisa Jones, one of his daughters, heard the shot and with a servant rushed to the bathroom, where they found her father lying near the door.

Besides the bullet wound, it is feared that he sustained a compound fracture of the skull when he fell and struck his head against the bathtub.

Members of the family insisted that the shooting was an accident. They declare that there was no reason for Dr. Jones to wish to take his life.

Two years ago his summer home on Long island burned down, and the shock is said to have affected his nerves to such an extent that he has been under the attention of a nurse when not cared for by one of his daughters.

WILSON IS FIRM; HUERTA DEFIANT

President Determined Lind Shall Finish Mission.

SITUATION STILL ACUTE

Administration Claims That United States Government Is Clearly Within Its Rights in Sending Envoy to Get Line on Affairs.

Washington, Aug. 9.—The following is printed in the Washington Times from its correspondent in Mexico City:

"I was received at the palace by President Victoriana Huerta. He authorized me to make this statement for him:

"'I will resist with arms any attempt by the United States to interfere in the affairs of Mexico. The limit of patience has been reached over the policy of nonrecognition adopted by the United States. I intend absolutely to ignore Lind's presence unless he bears official credentials as ambassador. Under no conditions will he be received by governmental departments. I refuse to accept mediation or intervention by the United States here. The republic's dignity and decorum demand that we accept no compromise with the revolutionists.'"

The declaration of the Mexican government that the presence of John Lind in Mexico will be undesirable having reached the state department officially, the situation with regard to Mexico was admitted to be acute even in the most conservative circles within the administration.

Heretofore the president and Secretary Bryan had clung to the belief that either the statement reported in the press dispatches was a pure fabrication or else that it was issued for local purposes only and was not intended to reach the United States government officially. Both of these views are now dispelled, the statement having been received at the state department through the American embassy in Mexico City.

Bryan Issues Statement.

By direction of President Wilson, Secretary Bryan issued the following statement:

"The statement of the Mexican foreign office was based on misrepresentations for which the government is not responsible. In sending Governor Lind as adviser to the embassy the president is entirely within his rights, and this department will not assume that his going will be regarded as unfriendly when the character of his mission is understood."

Beyond causing considerable apprehension and uneasiness the receipt of the defiant statement of the Mexican government will not in the least alter the present course of this government. It is intended that nothing shall be done to alter in the slightest degree the plan of the president in sending Mr. Lind to Mexico until Lind himself has reported on the situation. Therefore the president will not recall his envoy by wireless, as he has been advised to do, but will await developments after Lind lands at Vera Cruz.

In some quarters there is great fear for Lind's personal safety. It is admitted that the Mexican government has practically invited its people to assail Lind, if they care to do so. The governor of the military district of Mexico City has served notice that he cannot guarantee protection to Lind from mob violence.

AFTER SARATOGA GAMBLERS

Police Raid Fails, but Their Vigilance Makes Bookmakers Quit.

Saratoga, N. Y., Aug. 9.—Acting on a report that open gambling was in operation in a private house in the village, the police raided the place, but found no evidence of any kind of gambling.

The village and county officials repeated their assertions that gambling would not be permitted here this year and that they would close any place they found open.

A number of gamblers left, saying that the card at the track had been a hard one from which to pick winners and that without a chance at night to carry on their business they were losing money.

TEN BABY BUFFALOES.

Born to Government on National Forest and Game Refuge.

Washington, Aug. 9.—Ten baby buffaloes have been born to the government herd on the Wichita national forest and game refuge near Lawton, Okla., advices to the forest service announced.

The new arrivals bring the herd up to a total of forty-eight head, twenty-seven of which are bulls and twenty-one are cows. The herd is reported to be in excellent condition and now numbers nearly four times as many animals as it did when turned over to the government six years ago.

Major Langhorne Goes to Berlin.

Washington, Aug. 9.—Major George T. Langhorne of the Fifth cavalry has been selected to fill the post of military attache to the American embassy at Berlin in succession to Captain Alfred W. Bjornstad. His selection has been approved by Emperor William.

Are You Utilizing 100% of Your Advertising Possibilities?

Advertisers may fail in accomplishing the full measure of their possible earnings and handicap their growth by contenting themelves with less than their full selling capacity; others, by means of intelligent advertising, approximate the possible 100 per cent. volume of sales with no increase of "over-head" expense.

But how about the merchant who is advertising, but who is not realizing 100 per cent. of his possibilities?

In advertising, as in merchandising, the point must be reached where expense of operation is overcome and profits begin.

Practically all business transacted over that mark yields a much larger percentage of profit—is nearly all v-e-l-v-e-t.

In advertising, as in retailing or manufacturing, it's the last certain per cent. of effort that counts.

Some very clever advertisers in Plainfield are spending large sums of money in advertising without securing 100 per cent. in results, and a few are hitting the "bull's eye." Waste is responsible for most advertising failures.

But what about the under-advertised business—the store that is on the right track, but limits its advertising to the development of 50, 60, or 80 per cent. of the sales of which it is capable.

This type of business most frequently is the specialty store that has sufficient capital and sufficient credit to do a much larger business, but is not willing to venture the needed ten, twenty-five or fifty per cent. added advertising effort to achieve the full results.

The store, for instance, that is doing a business of $40,000 or $50,000 annually, but with facilities for doing an additional $50,000 without added fixed expense, could well afford to spend $5,000 in advertising to get that $50,000 extra business. And the Daily Press would give it to him.

The Daily Press' circulation embraces the class and the best of the mass in Plainfield, and will yield rich returns to any advertiser who appeals to it intelligently.

"The proof of the pudding is in the eating thereof." The proof that the Daily Press readers respond to advertising is the year-in and year-out use of its space by discerning advertisers.

It is quite true that even an under-advertised business may pay a pleasing profit; but why not more profit, at no extra fixed expense, for the moderate outlay of a Daily Press advertising appropriation?

Think of the "pure v-e-l-v-e-t" business, entailing no extra investment except advertising, on which the net profits would possibly equal the net profits of the entire business now done on the under-advertised plan.

NEAR HURRICANE BROUGHT RELIEF

'Anti-Cyclone' Broke the Back Bone of Hot Wave and High Humidity.

WIND PLAYED HAVOC

Terrific Storm Did Considerable Damage In Nearby Districts—Trolley Conductor Taken to Hospital.

A terrific cyclone that broke over this city late yesterday afternoon, endangered the lives of hundreds of people in all parts of the State, trees were uprooted and considerable damage done by wind and rain to property in this city and vicinity. Up to the time when the storm broke at 5:30 o'clock the city sweltered from the most oppressive hot weather of the present summer and the stay-at-homes who found the heat almost unbearable wasted their envy on those at the seashore and mountains, for those places were little better off, the hot spell reaching around a wide radius. The storm broke so suddenly after a sultry day that those who went out of town found themselves encountering hurrying crowds, packed trains and heavy seas, beside thunder, lightning and rain in returning to their homes.

While the storm broke the backbone of the hot wave it spread disaster in its wake, a large toll of dead and injured being reported throughout the Metropolitan district and everywhere in New Jersey. When the mercury had reached its zenith for the day a group of peculiarly colored clouds made their appearance in the southeast and then swung over to the northwest. The darkened sky was accompanied by sharp flashes of lightning and a distant rumbling of thunder, and without further warning, the storm broke with all its fury, uprooting small saplings, tearing limbs from tall and sturdy trees and blowing telegraph poles endangering the lives of pedestrians who did not have an opportunity to get under cover.

Street Commissioner Andrew Gavett reported that a number of trees had been torn from their moorings in various parts of the city and the streets in some parts of town were flooded from curb to curb, making transportation practically impossible. Trolley cars running on the Fourth street line were tied up for a period of over half an hour by a large tree that had been blown over on the tracks at Fourth street and Plainfield avenue. A large maple tree on the premises at 308 West Third street was blown over on the house doing considerable damage to the gutters of the structure. A corps of city employes were busy until a late hour last night and started out again this morning cleaning up the debris left by the rainstorm.

The only local accident occurred at Fourth street and Spooner avenue, when John Peterson, a trolley conductor, in trying to remove a tree from the tracks had his leg broken in two places when the trunk of the tree rolled over on him. He was removed to Muhlenberg Hospital. A tree on Plainfield avenue was struck by lightning and the fire department was called, the limbs having taken fire from the bolt of lightning. Telephone wires in various portions of the city were torn down and on Leland avenue a large telegraph pole was knocked over.

In the Borough of Fanwood many trees were uprooted and dashed to the ground either by the strong wind or a bolt of lightning. No one was struck, though, as far as can be ascertained. The electric lighting and trolley car systems were crippled by fallen wires and one tree in Westfield avenue started to burn as a result of coming in contact with a live wire which had fallen from its connections and was dangling loose in the air to the danger of pedestrians and property. Constable Clark, who comprises the police department of Scotch Plains, enlisted the services of several men and stood guard near fallen wires throughout the downpour, to warn persons against coming in contact with them.

The storm was almost a hurricane in the vicinity of Union Village, Mt. Bethel and Mt. Horeb and nearby places. At Union Village the roof was torn off the barn of Mrs. William Kyrtze, and while her son-in-law, Echo Solomon, was in the barn, the structure was struck by lightning, tearing out a window sash near where Mr. Solomon was standing. He was stunned and lay unconscious for sometime. He was found by members of the family, removed to the house and revived.

The fruit trees suffered great damage throughout the whole section, particularly the apple trees and it was reported today that the crop is practically ruined. This was also true at Mt. Bethel and Mt. Horeb. Large trees were uprooted and many small buildings were demolished. While the rainfall was not as heavy as during

FUNERAL SERVICE FOR LATE MAYOR

Father of Mrs. John H. Van Winkle, of This City, Laid to Rest.

The funeral service of Jacob T. Stout, former mayor of Atlantic Highlands, who died at his home on Friday, was held there Saturday night and a second service was held at the Middletown Baptist church, at which Rev. George H. Gardner, of Atlantic Highlands, officiated. The interment was made in Fairview cmetery.

Mr. Stout was seventy-seven years old, being born in Middletown in 1836, where he spent his earlier years. When Atlantic Highlands was first organized as a town, Mr. Stout located there and afterwards served two terms as mayor. He was president of the building and loan association since it was first instituted in 1887 and was president of the national bank since 1905. He was also a former chief of the fire department. He is survived by three daughters, Mrs. John H. VanWinkle, of this City; Mrs. Frank C. Vanderbilt, of Morristown, and Mrs. E. T. Steadman, of Hoboken, as well as by two sons, Jonathan T. Stout, of Atlantic Highlands, and Richard W. Stout, of Bayonne.

COUNTY REPUBLICANS HELD ANNUAL OUTING

Absence of Political Talk and No Booms Launched During the Day.

Little political talk and the absence of booms marked the ninth annual outing of the Union County Republicans held Saturday. The politicians left Recreation Pier, Elizabethport, shortly after 10 o'clock for Witzel's Point View Grove, where the day was pleasantly spent and a shore dinner enjoyed early in the afternoon.

Although Carlton B. Pierce and Charles N. Fowler, candidates for the nomination for Governor, were present, little active work was accomplished in their behalf. The only touch of politics that attracted considerable notice was the petition favoring Major William B. Martin, of Elizabeth, for the Assembly nomination. Ernest J. Beutel, of Rahway, and Ruford Franklin, of Summit, were also mentioned as Assembly candidates.

Among the prominent county Republicans who were in attendance were Hamilton F. Kean, Surrogate George T. Parrot, County Clerk James C. Calvert, Register Frank H. Smith and Sheriff William H. Wright.

Among those in attendance from this city were V. W. Nash, Jr., William Newcorn, Alexander Ayers, John H. Cose and Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., Herbert Buxton, Francis J. Blatz, Edward Bauer, Henry Pflug, Roger F. Murray, Elias Bird, Michael Colucci, Charles H. Dunham, James Morrison, Joseph Harrigan, John Bowman, William R. Townsend, Joseph F. Burd, N. B. Smalley, Dr. J. C. Anderson, A. D. Jennings and John Kriney.

A telegram was received from former Governor E. C. Stokes expressing regrets at his inability to be present.

FUNERAL OF HENRY ZAHN.

A large number of relatives and friends, together with business associates from New York and Philadelphia, attended the funeral of Henry Zahn, at his home on Woodlawn avenue, Saturday morning. Rev. Bernard M. Bogan, of St. Mary's church, officiated. There were a large number of flowers, among which were set pieces from the firms with which he was connected. The interment was made at Woodlawn cemetery, Brooklyn.

HUGH A. TODD.

The Fort Pierce Citrus and Produce Company has accepted the resignation of Hugh A. Todd as treasurer, and elected John D. Kirch in his place, and A. I. Smalley has been made general manager of the company. The office, which is now on North avenue, will soon be removed to another place in the city.

INDICATES COLLECTION HOURS.

Under the supervision of Postmaster E. H. Bird, new cards have been placed in the letter-boxes throughout the city and borough indicating the hour of collecton from each box.

LOCAL MARKSMEN LEAVE FOR OHIO

Three Members of Co. K Will Shot For International Honors.

TEAM LED BY MARTIN

International Interest In Coming Championships—New Jersey Representatives Leave Tomorrow For the West.

Company K, of this city, wil have three of its sharpshooters in the international limelight during the coming week in the rifle matches which open at Camp Perry, Ohio, next Friday, a trio of the local men having qualified in the trials of skill and nerve and eye at the National Guard camp in Sea Girt during the preliminaries last week. The matches will be held under the auspices of the National Rifle Association of America, the opening event of which will be the thirty-eighth annual contest for the Wimbledon cup, a trophy offered for the individual long range championship of the United States. Ten nations will compete in the program of events which have been arranged as one of the features of the Perry's Victory Celebration, now being held on Lake Erie.

The riflemen will be captained by Major William B. Martin, formerly of this city and will leave here tomorrow morning for the West. While many of the New Jersey team's marksmen are veterans, there are also a number of younger men who have been making enviable records on the ranges and who are expected to do good work in the coming matches. Captain Charles A. Peterson, Lieutenant Arthur R. Phillips and Q. M.-Sergeant James A. Thompson are the men selected from Company K. The New Jersey team will arrive at Camp Perry on Thursday morning and will go to the ranges as soon as possible for a day's practice.

Brigadier-General Bird W. Spencer, inspector-general of rifle practise in this State, is not going out to Camp Perry, and named Major Martin, one of the State's finest shots, to head the Jersey team. The other members of the team are Lieutenant-Colonel William A. Tewes, Major Winfield S. Price, Captain Adolph H. Pfeil, Captain William A. Baker, Captain Charles A. Peterson, Captain Lawrence C. Dehn, Captain Arthur G. Jaggard, Lieutenant Charles R. Bohn, Lieutenant Arthur R. Phillips, Lieutenant Harry H. Disbrow, Battalion Sergeant-Major Adam W. Muller Sergeant George C. Wright, Quartermaster-Sergeant James A. Thompson, Sergeant Curt O. H. Kayser, Sergeant Seth Eberhardt, Sergeant William Workman and Corporal Elmer G. Tewes.

MOOSE PARADE ATTENDED BY DELEGATES FROM HERE

A monster parade was held in Elizabeth, Saturday night, when 2,000 members of the L. O. O. M. formed a procession. The Newark lodge took first place, a loving cup, for having the largest number of men in line. An American flag was presented to the Albany (N. Y.) lodge for having the neatest appearing delegation present. The third prize, a Moose set, for having the second largest delegation present, also went to the Albany lodge.

After the parade, a class initiation was held at Saenger Halle, when over 100 were introduced into the mysteries of the order. Representatives were present from Plainfield, New Brunswick, Newark, Jersey City and other cities of the State.

WANTED IN DOVER.

Detective Sergeant John J. Flynn arrested on Saturday Miss Alice May Levers, alias Miss Bruns, and James Sexton, who said they were seeking work in this city. The couple are wanted by the Dover police on a charge of stealing $60 from the home of a resident in that city.

HARD TIME FOR FISH.

A party of Plainfield business men will leave tomorrow for Barnegat for a four days' fishing trip. Among those in the party will be Alfred Zimmerman Dr. Elmer Giddis, Jack Horner, Fred H. Firstbrook and Edward A. Laing.

DRUNK COST $3.00.

Henry Conners was arraigned this morning in the borough court before Recorder Gano on the charge of being drunk. A fine of $3 was imposed.

THE TEMPERATURE.

The temperature report from The State Trust Company today is as follows: 9 a. m., 73 degrees; 11 a. m., 76 degrees; 1 p. m., 81 degrees.

ACTIVITIES AT NETHERWOOD FRESH AIR HOME ARE MANY

Religious services yesterday afternoon at the Netherwood Fresh Air Home, were featured by a short sermon by Rev. Dr. G. M. Russell, assistant pastor of the Presbyterian church at Cranford, and a program of vocal selections rendered by the children's choir, connected with the insctitution. Although confining his discourse mainly to biblical subjects, Dr. Russell gave many interesting personal versions of the work he has performed in the ministry.

The Christian Endeavor Society, of Warren chapel, will be in charge of services that will be held at the Home tomorrow night, and Tax Collector William R. Townsend will appear in the role of an entertainer Wednesday night, when he will operate his Victrola at the camp. At the meeting Friday night, George E. Horne will be the principal speaker.

Prominent speakers have promised to address the members of the Home on Sundays during the balance of the summer. On August 17, L. D. Albin, of this city, will make an address and on the following Sabbath days Rev. Dr. W. S. Richardson, of New York, and Rev. Ernest R. Brown, pastor of the Dunellen Presbyterian church, will speak, respectively on August 24 and 31. Dr. Richardson is actively connected with the philanthropic work conducted by John D. Rockefeller, Jr.

SCHOOL WILL NOT RE-OPEN.

The Plainfield Training Institute, which was the successor of the Drake Business College, on West Front street, was closed on July 1 for the summer vacation of one month, but will probably not re-open again under the same management, at least. Miss Pauline Denton, who was associated with the management of the school until July 1, has withdrawn, and taken a position in New Yor.

MISS ROBINSON TO WED.

Announcement is made of the approaching marriage of Miss Robinson and Fred Mason, both of Murray Hill, which will take place on Wednesday, September 3, at the home of the bride-elect. Miss Robinson has been a teacher in the public school at Murray Hill for several years and both she and Mr. Mason are well-known here.

APPROACHING WEDDING.

Arthur Denton, eldest son of Mrs. L. J. Denton, of West Sixth street, and Miss Edith Fairbrother, of Providence, R. I., will be married at the latter place on Saturday, September 27. Mr Denton, who has been spending a few days in Providence, will leave this week for Chicago on a business trip.

RECREATION COMMITTEE MEET.

An important meeting of the Recreation Committee has been called by the chairman, G. Stuart Simmons, for Wednesday night, to be held at the Public Library. Several matters of general interest will be discussed at that time.

MRS. RISING RETURNING.

Mrs. Lucie E. Rising, missionary of the First Baptist church, who has been attending the International Sunday-school convention in Switzerland, has been sight-seeing in London recently. She is due home on August 17.

POLICE SAY GREEN SET HOUSE ON FIRE

Colored Man, After Quarrel With Housekeeper, Started to Burn Up Her Clothes.

FIREMEN SAVE BUILDING

Piled Possessions In Middle of Floor, Poured Kerosene On Goods and Touched Match to Them—Hasty Run By Dept. Averts Serious Fire.

Lives and property in the immediate vicinity of 532 West Third street, were endangered yesterday morning, according to the local police, when Caesar Green, colored, becoming enraged beyond reason because of a quarrel he had with his housekeeper, Mary Jacobson, also colored, gathered her clothes and other belongings in a heap in the kitchen of his home at 532 West Third street, poured kerosene oil over them and applied a lighted match to the articles. Mr. and Mrs. William Harris, who live in the same house with Green, by quick action, prevented a serious blaze. Hearing Green's threats that he would burn the house to the ground, the couple watched his movements. When they saw the first little blaze they quickly ran to a fire box a block away and turned in the alarm. When the fire apparatus arrived the blaze was eating its way to the side walls along the floor. The flames were soon extinguished, however, and the damage to the structure amounted to less than $100.

Green, who is a freak of nature, in that he has six fingers on each hand, was arrested earlier in the day by Patrolman Vanderweg on a charge of disorderly conduct, and released for future appearance. Fire Chief Doane, when arriving at the blaze realized immediately that the flames were of incendiary origin. After superintending the work of extinguishing the fire he sought Mr. and Mrs. Harris, who told him that they saw Green set the articles of clothing belonging to Miss Jacobson on fire, after he had thoroughly saturated them with oil. Green was then arrested for the second time within several hours by Patrolman Vanderweg who had a chase of several blocks before he caught his man.

Green will be arraigned late this afternoon before Mayor Stewart in the City Court, on a charge of incendiarism.

The house in which Green lives is owned by Mrs. Ida Levine, of Elm place. It is of frame construction as are the neighboring houses which are built close together, with but a narrow alley separating them. Chief Doane, speaking of the blaze today, said considerable damage would have been wrought had the flames been given a good start before being attacked by the fire fighters. "The houses are bunched close together, there," he said, "and they would have burned like kindling wood, if the flames got a good start."

FIGHT BETWEEN RIVALS FOR HAND OF MISS SABINO

George Katovick, of Dunellen, according to a story told the police, was engaged to Miss Mary Sabino, of Scotch Plains, and suspecting that she was becoming lax in her loyalty to him, started out Saturday night to investigate. He lay in waiting around her home and it was not long before the front door of the house opened and out stepped a girl leaning on the arm of another man.

Up Front street, to East Front street, Plainfield, the couple walked. As Westervelt avenue was reached, Katovick is said to have started hostilities. With several words of scorn for Miss Sabino, the lover dashed at her escort with arms cutting the air in genuine pugilistic fashion. The fistic argument was culminated when Patrolman Kelly, one of the "big men" on the local force, happened along and placed the participants under arrest. Katovick's rival gave hs name at headquarters as Michael Stase and said his home was also in Dunellen.

The men will be arraigned before Mayor Stewart late this afternoon in the City Court. They are charged with disorderly conduct.

PREACHED SERMON.

Rev. Abram Duryea, assistant to Rev. Dr. Cornelius Brett, pastor of the Bergen Reformed church, Jersey City, occupied the pulpit at Trinity Reformed church, yesterday morning, preaching an interesting, practical sermon. Mr. Duryea has many friends here who welcomed the opportunity to hear him. He left this morning for Mt. Pocono, Pa., to join his family for the remainder of the month.

'HILL TOP' WANTED FOR SANITORIUM

Somerset County Freeholders Favor Wilson Farm As a Site.

The Somerset county Board of Freeholders, in its efforts to find a suitable location for the proposed county tuberculosis sanitorium, has been impressed with the advantages of the Wilson farm above Watchung, known familiarly as "Hill Top." This is one of the oldest and most attractive farms in Somerset county, and the freeholders, after an inspection, are agreed that it offers perhaps the best advantages for the reason that but little grading will be necessary and the elevation is ideal for the required purposes.

The present owners of the farm are not anxious to dispose of the property, it having been in the family for many years and has been a favorite summer home for city folks for a long time. It is understood that the owner has set a high figure on the property which it is possible that the county would not be willing to pay. Several other sites throughout the county have been considered as desirable for the sanitorium.

OLD GLORY COUNCIL HAD BIG OUTING

Hoffman Home at Bound Brook Scene of Outing For Local Organization.

On the spacious lawn of "The Gateville," property of John Hoffman, of Bound Brook, the Old Glory Council, No. 62, Daughters of Liberty, enjoyed its annual picnic and summer outing Saturday afternoon and evening. The scene of the festivities was appropriately decorated with American flags and red, white and blue bunting, and at night lighted Japanese lanterns provided an additional decorative effect. Games were played, guests and members of the Council rendered a musical program and Mrs. I. N. Wyckoff entertained as a recitationist. The trip from this city was made by trolley cars the party leaving here at 1:45 o'clock in the afternoon. The program of fun continued after supper was served on the lawn at 7 o'clock the affair culminating with the congregational singing of "America," at 11:30 o'clock in the evening.

Mrs. Hoffman was assisted in the arrangement of the event by a general committe composed of members of the Council. Among those present were: Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Laper, Sr., Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Ganun, Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Thomas, Mr and Mrs. Robert Metler, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Van Pelt, Mr. and Mrs. W. Stewart, Mr. and Mrs. John Hoffman and Mr. and Mrs. Suer; Mrs. Anna Wakefield, Mrs. Peter Van Fleet, Mrs. I. N. Wyckoff, Mrs. George Demarest, Mrs. E. J. Moore, Mrs. J. F. Kettenring, Mrs. Lottie Anson, Mrs. Staats and Mrs. Chandler; the Misses Martha Laper, Marion Wakefield, Edith Ganun, May Van Fleet and Grace Hoffman; F. L. Laper, Jr., Charles Wakefield, Walter Thomas, William Stewart, George L. Watts, L. C. R. Dunham and Fred Hoffman, of Plainfield; Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Mundy, Mr. and Mrs. Henderson and Miss Viola Rose, of Somerville; Mrs. Ferguson, of Westfield, and Mr. and Mrs. Fenner, of Bound Brook.

MEETING OF ORCHESTRA AT WASHINGTON SCHOOL TONIGHT

A special meeting of the Municipal Orchestra will be held tonight at Washington school, when a march composed by Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan, of Duer street, will be rehearsed for the first time. A full attendance is desired as arrangements for the open air concert to be given on September 6 are to be completed at this time. The concert on the above date is to be the first of a series of public appearances of the orchestra to be made during the coming season.

VAN ARSDALE'S ANNUAL SALE.

Following his usual custom, Morris C. Van Arsdale will hold his annual sale of shoes beginning tomorrow, and lasting until August 25. The sale, which is a clearance of low shoes and pumps only, is a strictly cash one, and no goods are returnable. The bargains offered are real ones, and the sale is looked for annually by a large number of local people, who know that in the Van Arsdale stock are always to be found only the best and most up-to-date goods. The sale is on in all departments.

SOMERVILLE CAR RAN OVER A BOY

Hope Chapel Excursionists Saw Youngster Crushed Beneath Auto's Wheels.

AN EVENTFUL OUTING

Sunday-School Clears $150 On Excursion—Plainfielders Saw Dyott Fly—Wild West Show's Parade Also a Feature.

Plainfielders who accompanied the Hope Chapel Sunday-school pupils on their annual outing to Asbury Park and Ocean Grove Saturday were treated to a number of thrills throughout the day and the outing was one of the most eventful of the season from this city. The trip to and from the shore was made without incident, good time being made in both directions, but those who arrived at the shore on the first section witnessed a horrifying sight while walking toward the beach on Lake avenue. As the throng of pleasure-seekers from this city and Newark were crowded on Lake avenue shortly after 10 o'clock, Henry Lewis, the 10 years old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Lewis, of Fulton, Ark., who are stopping at the seaside resort, darted out of the crowd and was crushed under the wheels of an automobile driven by Joseph Condit, a chauffeur for Arthur Cortelyou, of 19 Ross street, Somerville. Women became hysterical at the gruesome sight and the cries of those who witnessed the accident drew hundreds from the beach who surrounded the chauffeur and for a time it looked as though the driver would be roughly handled by the frantic mob. He was hustled away to the police station, however, and when arraigned before Judge John A. Borden, was held in $500 bail to await the outcome of the boy's injuries. Mr. Cortelyou, who was in the car at the time of the accident accompanied by several women, furnished the bond. Witnesses of the accident say that the auto was not traveling at an excessive rate of speed and that it stopped at once upon striking the boy.

Two wheels of the heavy touring car passed over the boy's body and when picked up in an unconscious condition, was taken to the hospital. Those who saw the accident thought the lad had been killed and the report circulated among the excursionists, who, upon arriving in this city said that a boy had been killed by an automobile there Saturday. One of the bones in his left shoulder was broken and he was internally injured, as was indicated by the expectorations of blood.

A number of those who went from here Saturday took the opportunity to view the National Guard encampment where Company K was breaking camp in preparation for returning to this city and still others took advantage of the run of fish near the Asbury Park and Ocean Grove piers, large catches of the finny tribe being reported among the Queen City anglers.

For the younger generation, the arrival of the Vernon C. Seaver's Buffalo Wild West Show, was a big event. At 11 o'clock, shortly after the arrival of the second section of Plainfielders, the parade of the United Wild West, Hippodrome and Far East Shows along Ocean avenue attracted many to see the unwonted sights of foreign and domestic wild animals with all the pomp and panoply of the characters of the wild and woolley west and the deserts of the far east. It was the most picturesque and unusual display ever given in connection with a tented exhibition in Asbury Park.

George M. Dyott, the airman who is planning a fly to Washington and return, went up in his machine for the first time since he landed unceremoniously on Bradley Beach a week ago, and gave his air-bird its first trial after undergoing extensive repairs necessitated by his accident on the beach. He made several flights over Asbury Park Saturday and his sensational flying was witnessed by the excursionists during the afternoon.

The Hope Chapel excursion was one of the most successful taken from here this season, about $150 being netted by the Hope treasury as a result. Two sections of thirteen cars each made the trip, carrying about 1,800 people.

SULZER SILENT AS CRISIS NEARS

New York Legislators May Make History.

STILL TALK IMPEACHMENT

Friends of Governor Say Present Plan of Attack Was Decided on In Meeting at Which Charles F. Murphy Presided.

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 11.—Rehearsals for the impeachment of Governor Sulzer were in progress in hotels and clubs where the Democratic legislators gathered in preparation for one of the most remarkable crises in the history of the Empire State. Lawmakers denounced or scoffed at the report that Governor Sulzer, driven into a corner and refusing to recognize the existence of the Frawley investigating committee, which turned up evidence of his stock speculation and campaign checks, contemplated ordering out the national guard to prevent the legislature from meeting Monday to indict him. Men recalled that in Kentucky during the Goebel-Taylor strife the national guard of that state took active part at the door of the statehouse.

Governor Sulzer remained silent, but the Tammany members of the legislature were busy denying the charge by the governor's friends that all the attacks on the state's chief executive were decided upon at a meeting in Delmonico's, New York, in May.

Say Mr. Murphy Presided.

Governor Sulzer's friends asserts that at this meeting Charles F. Murphy presided, while those present were Aaron J. Levy, Tammany floor leader of the assembly; Alfred E. Smith, the speaker; Robert F. Wagner, Tammany leader of the senate; Lieutenant Governor Martin H. Glynn, Edward E. McCall, chairman of the public service commission; William H. Fitzpatrick of Buffalo, Patrick McCabe, clerk of the senate; Norman E. Mack, national committeeman; Justice Victor J. Dowling, John H. McCooey of Brooklyn and Senator James J. Frawley. The Sulzer version is that one of these men withdrew, warning the others they were going too far.

Albany yesterday presented the unusual spectacle of the state capital thronged by members of the legislature on a hot Sunday in August, called here by Mr. Smith and Mr. Wagner. In hotel rooms the men who will have speaking parts in the session tonight when, it is predicted, the impeachment proceedings will be launched, conferred with the leaders. The state capital throbbed with suppressed excitement. Men were grave in the face of an unprecedented occasion in state history.

BURGLARS IN JUDGE'S HOME.

Two Men Caught by Policeman After Climb Over Roof.

New York, Aug. 11.—Two burglars were captured in the home of City Judge Joseph I. Green at 178 East Seventy-ninth street.

An alarm that was shouted out from a window near Seventy-ninth street and Third avenue caught the attention of Sergeant Percy. He went up through the house of Dr. M. Jackson, which adjoins that of Judge Green, and came down into the latter through the roof scuttle, which was open.

In the front parlor he found Louis Friedman, whom he arrested. A pistol discovered on the stairs led to the capture of the other burglar in a rear closet. The latter said he was John Russell.

Judge Green and his family were in Atlantic City.

W. T. OSBORNE 101 YEARS OLD

He Reads the Daily Papers and Keeps a Diary.

Newburgh, N. Y., Aug. 11.—William T. Osborne was 101 years old yesterday. He went to church in the morning, held a reception in the afternoon and had dinner with his family in the evening. He has extended an invitation to the public to visit him next week.

Osborne is strong and in full possession of his faculties. He keeps a diary of events daily, which he has been doing for years. He is posted on all events of the day, reading the papers himself. He rarely misses a Sunday service and frequently attends midweek prayer meeting and participates in the exercises.

PARENTS FIRE BATHHOUSES.

Cause of a Blaze Where Children Were Drowned, Police Believe.

Lawrence, Mass., Aug. 11.—Fire, believed to have been of incendiary origin, destroyed three of the municipal bathhouses, at one of which eleven boys were drowned a month ago by the collapse of a runway.

The police believe that some foreign born parents, crazed with grief at the loss of their children, fired the structures. The houses have been closed since the disaster. The loss is $1,500.

Weather Forecast.

Fair today; cooler in southern portion; tomorrow fair; moderate to brisk northwest to northeast winds.

STYLISH—RELIABLE

REPUTATION THE PILOT

Macaulay humorously says that the writings of Sir William Temple were very highly praised by those who NEVER read them.

Which is like saying that a store is thought highly of by those who have NEVER purchased in it.

The reputation of the Rothberg store has been formed by those who know it best—which is the final test!

We submit the Rothberg reputation to guide you when buying "Most Things Men Wear."

And reputation is a good "pilot," especially when buying Clothing and Fixings.

THREE STATES SWEPT BY TERRIFIC STORM

High Wind and Lightning Cause Many Fatalities.

New York, Aug. 11.—Sweeping eastern Pennsylvania, the lower section of New Jersey and southern New York late yesterday afternoon, the most severe storm of the summer left death and destruction in its path. The death toll was taken by lightning, waters whipped into foam and a wind which at times reached a velocity of eighty miles an hour.

Prior to the storm the people of three states had sweltered in a temperature ranging from 92.5 degrees in New York to 96 degrees in Philadelphia. Five succumbed to heat in the latter city and many were taken to hospitals here and in New Jersey. In Philadelphia bolts of lightning took two lives; in New York other bolts claimed three more victims.

The storm broke when hundreds of thousands of men and women, many of them accompanied by children, were in the open seeking cooling breezes, and scores were injured by falling trees. Not in years has the havoc among trees been so great.

The wind crushed plate glass windows as though they had been made of cardboard, and stores and private dwellings were deluged in many surrounding villages.

The damage on Manhattan island was small compared to that in the Bronx, Westchester county and across the Hudson in New Jersey.

The greater number of accidents occurred on the water. Long Island sound was particularly unfortunate in this respect. The Hudson river contributed its share. New York bay, usually the scene of fatalities in times of storm, was practically undisturbed, the tempest veering around to the north and going out to sea after crossing Long Island in the vicinity of Riverhead.

GIRL STILL PUZZLES DOCTOR

They Have Been Trying to Awaken Her Since July 30.

New York, Aug. 11.—The doctors at the Hydropathic Institute, Madison avenue, are greatly interested over the case of thirteen-year-old Jeannette Dutterman of 1046 Tiffany avenue, the Bronx, who has been in a state of coma since July 30.

The girl's pulse is normal and her breathing is regular, but all efforts to awaken her have proved unsuccessful.

Dr. Gilbert Miller of the institute believes that her condition is the result of a scalp wound which she sustained when she was three years old.

HUERTA CHEERED AS LIND ARRIVES

Students and Laborers In Anti-American Parade.

WASHINGTON WAITS NEWS

Again Made Clear That Present Ruler of Mexico Will Not Be Recognized by United States—Bryan at Telegraph Key.

Mexico City, Aug. 11.—Carrying banners as a token of their approval of President Huerta's stand against accepting mediation by the United States, 1,500 students and laborers paraded the streets.

President Huerta had given his approval to the demonstration, and he and the members of his cabinet reviewed the parade from the balcony of the palace. There was no disorder.

This had scarcely taken place when ex-Governor Lind of Minnesota, President Wilson's personal representative, and Mrs. Lind and Dr. William Bayard Hale, who has been in Mexico for some time studying conditions on behalf of President Wilson, reached Mexico City. They arrived about 8 o'clock last evening.

Bryan Waits News.

Washington, Aug. 11.—With his coat off and thrown across the back of a chair, William J. Bryan hovered around the telegraph key in the state department that connects Washington with Mexico City. The secretary of state got word that John Lind, President Wilson's envoy to Provisional President Huerta, had left Vera Cruz with Mrs. Lind and Dr. Hale and was due in Mexico City. He also got word from the battleship Michigan that she had joined the New Hampshire and the Louisiana at Vera Cruz and found everything quiet.

Mr. Bryan refused to make any comment on the situation, but administration officials appear to feel no alarm.

Through the conference between the president and senate foreign relations committee it became known that the mission of Mr. Lind to Mexico carried with it no intention to recognize the Huerta government. The administration's position, as outlined by the president to the committee, was as follows:

The administration's peace proposals will not be communicated to the Mexican government until after Mr. Lind has reported on the situation.

That the administration has no intention to recognize the Huerta government.

That the president will welcome suggestions from Republicans as well as Democrats.

To Submit Peace Proposals.

The peace proposals communicated to Mr. Lind by President Wilson before he left Washington will be communicated to the Huerta government through Nelson O'Shaughnessy, the United States charge d'affaires, who has good relations with the Mexican foreign office. By transmitting these through Mr. O'Shaughnessy it is hoped that the rebuff predicted in news dispatches from Mexico City will be avoided.

Perhaps 200 curious Mexicans watched the arrival of the New Hampshire, but there was none on the pier when Mr. Lind landed. When Mr. and Mrs. Lind appeared at the concert at the Diligencias hotel Mrs. Lind attracted some attention by being the only woman in the throng wearing an American hat instead of a mantilla, but they attracted no other attention.

When Mr. Lind reached Vera Cruz he asked Mr. Canada if it was safe for him to proceed to Mexico City.

"You can go any time you care to," replied Mr. Canada, "and be as safe as though you were in your own home in Minnesota."

The Mexican government has announced that no obstacle will be placed in the way of Mr. Lind going to Mexico City. The arrival of Mr. Lind is reported to be awaited in the capital with deep interest, but absolute calmness. Senor Gamboa will take the oath of office as foreign minister before Mr. Lind's arrival.

QUAKE AT LAKE PLACID.

Brief but Sharp Shock Followed by Drop In Temperature.

Lake Placid, N. Y., Aug. 11.—An earthquake shock occured here at 12:15 a. m. yestreday, followed by a drop in temperature of 16 degrees. The vibration was brief, but sharp enough to awaken guests at the summer hotels.

Two shocks of longer duration were felt here last May, and these also were succeeded by a lower temperature.

GUESTS OF BRIDE TO BE ILL.

Five of Twelve Who Attended Shower Stricken With Typhoid.

Winsted, Conn., Aug. 11. Five of twelve young women who recently attended a linen shower in Waterbury given in honor of a prospective bride, Miss Mary Carey, daughter of Joseph F. Carey, a Winsted contractor, are suffering from typhoid fever, while other members of the party are threatened with malady.

Miss Carey, whose engagement to Dr. M. J. Reidy was recently announced, is among those stricken, and her illness was diagnosed as typhoid. Miss Mary McCaffery, also of Winsted, who attended the shower, became infected with typhoid last week.

The cause of the outbreak has not been determined.

DESTROYER MISHAP INQUIRY.

Board Is Ordered to Investigate the Grounding of the Henley.

Newport, R. I., Aug. 11.—A board of inquiry has been ordered for next week to investigate the grounding of the torpedo boat destroyer Henley during the maneuvers off Fisher's Island in Narragansett bay, Thursday night.

The announcement of the calling of the board was the first intimation of the incident.

During the attack of the "Black" fleet upon the forts Lieutenant Commander William R. Littlefield was ordered to the south side of Fisher's island to attempt to destroy a search light. In carrying out the order the Henley grounded on a sand bank and bent her propeller blades.

DESERVES RE-ELECTION.

Mayor Robert Clark, Jr., North Plainfield's efficient executive, has decided that he will be a candidate for re-election, and the decision has been received with pleasure by the residents of the borough. Mr. Clark has proven to be an excellent official, and has given the borough a splendid administration. During the two years he has been in office he has had the time, and that much more essential thing, the inclination, to busy himself with looking after the best interests of his community. As a result there have been moves for efficiency and economy in the management of affairs, which have been appreciated by the borough taxpayers. Mr. Clark has not been a publicity seeker, but has in a quiet and effective way attended to the duties of his office. There is some talk of his being the only candidate for the office this year, and on the theory that, to paraphrase a well known saying, "one good term deserves another," the borough people could do no better than make it unanimous. It will help to take any possible unpleasantness and rivalry out of the local campaign, and will give the voters in the borough plenty of time to devote to the State issues, which promise to be more absorbing than usual.

GENERAL BIXBY RETIRES.

In the retirement today of Brigadier General William K. Bixby, chief of engineers in the United States army, the Government loses the services of another man who has served the nation faithfully and well. The retiring officer leaves with an unexceiled record of great deeds, and although he has reached the age limit which arbitrarily determines that a man is no longer fit for service, it is safe to say that he will be frequently called into consultation when engineering problems confront his successors in the future.

It was at his own request that General Bixby was retired, although he could have served until next December, and his action further indicates the calibre of the man. He is succeeded by Colonel William T. Rossell, and if the latter had waited until next December to take Bixby's place, he too would have been almost at the retiring point, as he retires in February next. General Bixby, by getting out now, gives his successor a chance to serve a few months, thus securing promotion to the highest office in the engineer corps before his transfer to the retired list.

General Bixby is a native of Massachusetts and was graduated from West Point in 1873. In his long career in the army he has had to do with many of the great engineering projects which have fallen to the charge of the army engineers. Particularly has he been associated with the various projects for the improvement of the Mississippi River. He is regarded as an eminent authority in the construction of bridges, having demonstrated the practicability of a 3,000-foot span across the Hudson River in the face of strenuous opposition in engineering circles. He investigated the earthquake at Charleston and had charge of the raising of the battleship Maine.

The United States army loses a brilliant and capable officer, whose record will not be bettered for many years to come.

TOUGH ON THE HOGS.

Out in Cincinnati a lot of condemned products, including 1,500 pounds of milk chocolates, 3,000 pounds of peanuts, 850 pounds of shelled cocoanuts, fifteen barrels of sugar and about twenty barrels of other odds and ends used in making candy were fed to hogs because they were condemned as unfit for human consumption. It was rather tough on the hogs, but of course the stuff tasted good, and was practically forced upon them.

As the Scranton Times puts it: "Somehow, a good many people have an idea that swine are the filthiest animals we have, and that any food or quarters are good enough for them, but the fact is the pig is not cleanly because it has no choice, most farmers and hog raisers not providing for keeping clean quarters and such accommodations as afforded the horse and cow. Children will live on poor food in squalid quarters, and unsanitary conditions, but they show disease and neglect, and the death rate is higher, than where attention is given to food and living quarters. It isn't a matter of choice, but more of environment and circumstances."

If newspaper reports emanating from Sea Girt are true, it can be safely predicted that former Governor Edward C. Stokes will not be a candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor. Mr. Stokes is quoted as saying that he fears that the Republicans will fail to elect their candidate this fall. No one ever accused Edward Casper of seeking any office when he thought there was no chance to win. He is not that kind of a patriot.

The honorablejimsmith is quoted as saying that he had no choice as a candidate for Governor, having been mainly interested in eliminating Wittpenn as a candidate for the Democratic nomination. It's a safe bet that he would mighty soon make a choice if President Wilson should come out in favor of Fielder as opposed to Katzenbach.

City Judge DeMeza, although seeking re-election, is evidently not worrying much about the fall campaign. He is enjoying himself in Maine, evidently satisfied, as are many other people, that his record in the office has been such an unusually good one that the people will see to it that he is returned to the place for another term.

If Governor Fielder sticks to the schedule which has been set for him, in his tour through Somerset county on Wednesday, it is safe to say that he will have a busy time.

THE PLAINFIELD THEATRE

Many stars of the theatrical world have received their first recognition in the companies of Primrose and Dockstader, the famous minstrel stars, who will appear at the Plainfield Theatre, Thursday night. To enumerate the list would be to name some of the most prominent comedians and vocalists of the present day. Messrs. Primrose and Dockstader possess the happy faculty of discovering talent, and then the ability to develope it. The splendid organization gathered together by these stars for their revival of old time minstrelsy includes many artists of the first magnitude, many of whom have been individual stars at the head of their own companies. There are a number of "finds" with this attraction this season who will, no doubt, have their names displayed in brilliant lights in the near future.

"POISON PEN" HEARING TUESDAY

Opposing Counsel Now Ready to Try First Charge.

MRS. POLLARD CONFIDENT

Elizabeth Woman Says She Is Guiltless of Sending Scurrilous Letters to Her Neighbors—Counsel Says He Wants to Completely Clear Her of Charge.

Elizabeth, N. J., Aug. 11.—Opposing counsel in the lethal typewriter case, in which Mrs. Nelson L. Pollard of 114 Madison avenue is accused by Mrs. Charles F. Jones, her next door neighbor, of writing scurrilous letters, declared that the police court action against Mrs. Pollard would surely get a hearing before Judge Owen P. Mahon in this city tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock.

This action will be entirely separate from the action taken by the federal authorities and which resulted in Mrs. Pollard's arrest and arraignment in Newark before United States Commissioner Stockton for the alleged sending of obscene matter through the mails. On the federal charge Mrs. Pollard was released on $1,000 bail for a hearing before Commissioner Stockton next Thursday morning.

Lemuel Schleimer, counsel for Mrs Pollard, said: "I mean to vindicate Mrs. Pollard completely. I don't want her to go through life with this hanging over her. We want everything to come out."

An attempt was made to reach Mrs. Pollard, but failed through her refusal to answer the doorbell. Through Mr. Schleimer Mrs. Pollard reasserts her innocence in both cases and denies that she wrote the letter regarding the ten-year-old daughter of Dr Charles H. Schlichter, on which the federal charge is based.

The government, it is said, professes to have its evidence in the case against Mrs. Pollard complete. It has been established that the envelope containing the letter went through the mails, the postmark appearing on the envelope and bearing the date Oct. 28, 1912. The letter was written on a typewriter and in this very fact the government pins its hope of conviction it is said.

DECLARES COUNCIL IS NOT PLEDGED

Councilman Fred Endress Denies Rumor As to Purchase of Auto Engine.

Councilman Fred Endress denied emphatically, today, that the councilmanic fire committee or any member of the Common Council was pledged to the purchase of a certain auto-fire engine as rumored, adding that the city is free to buy in the open market from any manufacturer who has the best proposition to make.

Referring to the proposition made by the International Motor Company to lease for one month one of its engines, Mr. Endress explained that the fire committee was instructed by Mayor Percy H. Stewart to see what arrangement could be made toward renting an engine for a month on trial, and accordingly made inquiries along that line. One concern wanted $200 to let the city have an engine for a month, the city to engage a driver, while the International Motor Company offered its engine for a month for $25 a week, that sum to cover the expense of furnishing a driver. The city was to pay for the gasolene and oil needed to operate machine.

When told that there was a rumor to the effect that it was practically understood that an International Motor Company's engine was to be purchased, Mr. Endress stamped the rumor as a falsehood. "No one is pledged to buy any certain engine. The city wants to get the best machine possible for the least money and that is all there is to it, the fire committee will probably hold a meeting tomorrow or Wednesday night, when the several bids received will be considered preparatory to making a report to the Common Council at the September meeting."

SPEAK-EASY RAIDED.

Raritan, Aug. 11—County Detective Totten, with the assistance of Warden Major, of the Somerset county jail, and Justice of the Peace Joseph Navatto, raided the premises of Charles Kizonack, on Thompson street, this place, last night, and arrested a number of the inmates, mostly foreigners. It is alleged that the place has been run as a speak-easy for some time.

GENERAL CASTRO CAPTURED.

(By Telegraph to The Daily Press.)

Caracas, Venezuela, Aug. 11.—General Torries Castro, a relative of the deposed President Cipriano Castro, has been captured by Government troops, according to an official announcement made today. The number of the general's officers also have been taken prisoners. Fighting continues in the State of Tachira.

Mrs. S. A. Bready, of 316 West Sixth street, has gone to Cleveland, Ohio, where she will visit her son until October 1.

AUTO DRIVEN BY WOMEN RUNS DOWN ITALIAN BOY

An Italian boy, aged about 12 years, was run down by an automobile at Lehigh and Maple avenues, South Plainfield, this afternoon, and his leg was severely injured. The lad was riding a bicycle at the time and was turning a corner when the automobile in which four women were riding, struck him. The boy was picked up and taken to his home. His name could not be learned.

The names of the women in the auto could not be ascertained, although it was reported that the name of the woman driving the car was Mrs. O'Donnell. It is not known where the party came from, but it was believed to be Plainfield.

PERSONAL.

Daniel Runkle, Mrs. Grafflin Cook and Grafflin Cook, Jr., are registered at the Shoreham, Spring Lake, from Plainfield.

William Gowie and family, of Madison avenue, will remove to Youngstown, Ohio, where Mr. Gowie has taken a position with a large manufacturing concern as mechanical engineer. He was formerly employed by the Diehl Manufacturing Company, of Elizabethport, as an expert systematizer.

Mrs. James C. Field, Sr., of New Market, who is at Muhlenberg Hospital under treatment for serious injuries received in a runaway accident, continues to show slight improvement, although she is not out of danger.

Former Councilman Jan van Herwerden, who now lives at Williamstown, South Jersey, is visiting his father, Councilman Cornelius van Herwerden, of South avenue.

Chester Denton, of West Sixth street, who holds a responsible position with the Standard Oil Company, will enjoy his three weeks' vacation at Stormville, N. Y.

Miss Pauline Denton, of West Sixth street, has taken a position as typewriter and stenographer with the General Electric Company, of New York.

SITUATION BETTER NOW IN MEXICO

Press Censorship But No Delay In Government Messages—Lind Is There.

(By Telegraph to The Daily Press.)

Washington, Aug. 11—Reports received here today indicate that the Mexican government is exercising a rigid censorship over press and other dispatches. No attempt, however, has been made to interfere with messages to the State department, although there appears to be some delay in transmitting them. Officials of the State department said today that they did not expect any further developments in the Mexican situation until after Nelson O'Shaughnessy has delivered the communication borne by President Wilson's special envoy, John Lind, to President Huerta.

President Wilson feels today that the situation in Mexico is less threatening than it was forty-eight hours ago. He is gratified that Mr. Lind's reception was peaceful, upon his arrival, last night. He is very much pleased with support being given him by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and is optimistic of a peaceful working out of the general situation.

Secretary of the Navy Daniels announced today that acting under the request of the State Department, he would despatch at least one more gunboat to Mexican waters within the next twenty-four hours. Advices from Admiral Fletcher at Vera Cruz saying that the larger American warships cannot enter the Mexican harbors because of their great draught prompted the State Department to request that several smaller warships be sent to Mexico.

POLICE SEEK CLUE TO JAM CONSUMING INTRUDERS

Police Chief Patrick Kiely has ordered a rigid investigation to be made into the series of petty thefts and attempted lootings, in the house of Mr. and Mrs. George B. Disborough, of 119 Crescent avenue. Within the past year the couple have reported about a dozen times to police headquarters that their home has either been entered by thieves, or that an attempt had been made to do so. Mr. Disborough told the police that he retired at 2.30 o'clock Sunday morning and that everything about his abode seemed serene and quiet. Later in the morning he asserted that he found a cellar screen pried loose and that eight cans of preserves had been stolen from his storeroom. Three cans of sweets were devoured by the miscreants, he said, before they left the premises.

Additional mystery was added to the case by the presence of a small bunch of rags on the cellar floor, that were ignited by the intruder or intruders, and allowed to smoulder, filling the basement with smoke. Mr. Disborough told Chief Kiely that he has always been on the alert for burglars since the first attempt was made to enter his house, and asked the chief if he would be acting within his rights to shoot anyone that he found in his home on an illegal mission. He had the law explained to him in this respect. Mr. Disborough also said he has a watch-dog, but that neither he nor the dog heard the activities of the jam-eater. Whether Mr. and Mrs. Disborough are the victims of jokers or whether earnest attempts have been made to relieve them of some of their valuables, are mysteries which the police will endeavor to solve.

Mr. and Mrs. Sigfried H. Arens are at the Breakers Hotel, Spring Lake, for a few weeks.

TWO BROTHERS SLAIN; WOMAN ALSO IS SHOT

Band of Four Lay In Wait For Victims.

Newark, N. J., Aug. 11.—Two brothers, Caspar and Joseph Provinzano, were murdered while on their way home from work. They were killed by four men almost within sight of their home at 43 Monroe street.

One of the shots hit Mrs. Elizabeth Richards, who was passing by. She was taken to the hospital seriously wounded. Salvatore Provinzano, who was with brothers who were killed, fell in a faint at the first shot and escaped being hurt. He is in the hospital now, suffering from hysteria.

The police have made no arrests in the case, though it is understood they know who the murderers are. They are supposed to be four Italians who were discharged last week by one of the Provinzanos, who is the foreman of a gang of coal passers on a Coney Island boat. There was trouble in the stokehold and the four were discharged following an outbreak. They went away vowing vengeance, it is said.

It is thought that they followed the brothers after their night's work and shot them down in the quiet street in which they live. They made their escape before the police were called.

Caspar Provinzano died on the way to the hospital from his wounds and his brother died three hours later.

NEWPORT HEARS DR. SHIPMAN

New York Pastor Preaches on Unhappiness of the Rich.

Newport, R. I., Aug. 11.—The unhappiness of the rich and the successful was the theme of the sermon preached at Trinity church by the Rev. Herbert Shipman, rector of the Church of Heavenly Rest of New York, who with Mrs. Shipman are occupying the Gilbert cottage on Bellevue avenue this summer. In the large congregation there were many of the summer residents, who are regular attendants at this church.

"We live in a restless and unsatisfied age," said Dr. Shipman. "We are a pathetic sight of unhappiness and disappointment. There is, no doubt, misery and suffering in the slums. I do not now refer to that, but to the pathos of the unhappiness of the rich and the successful; not of the bread line, but of the automobile line. Men who have everything money can buy, everything the world can give are still yearning with unexpressible longing for what they have lost or have missed."

POWELL HEAD OF HOBART.

Will Leave New York University For Geneva Presidency.

Geneva, N. Y., Aug. 11.—The Rev. Lyman P. Powell, head of the department of business ethics, New York university, accepted a call to be president of Hobart college. Mr. Powell was elected unanimously to fill the vacancy occasioned by the resignation a year ago of the Rev. Langdon C. Stewardson.

Mr. Powell was notified of his election by a telegram sent to his summer home at North Dana, Mass., and he wired his acceptance. It is expected that the Rev. Mr. Powell will enter upon his new duties at the opening of the college on Sept. 15.

President Nominates Three.

Washington, Aug. 11.—The president sent to the senate the nomination of William P. Cresson of Nevada to be secretary of legation at Quito, Ecuador; James J. Walsh to be collector of internal revenue for the district of Connecticut; Joseph L. Murray to be special examiner of drugs, medicines and chemicals in the district of Philadelphia.

—Advertise in the Daily Press.

—The store that can always present economy-chances to the householder can always make its advertising IMMEDIATELY RESULTFUL!

DO YOU READ ADVERTISEMENTS?

Do you?

The question is one of exceptional importance.

It has so many intensely interesting angles.

Advertisements themselves constitute a class of literature that daily commands world-wide attention.

Think of the number of daily newspapers there are in North America.

Think of the dollars spent daily in advertising.

Think of the enterprises that are behind the advertising in the daily papers; the millions of dollars invested; the countless number of employes; the enormous number of shoppers—more than 10,000,000 each day!

Would all this exist if advertising were not an element of colossal power?

Take THE PRESS for instance.

Look at the advertisements.

Note the daily message to an appreciative public.

Observe how the advertisers aim to obtain your patronage.

Reflect what must stand behind good advertising.

Integrity of character; good store service; stocks of merit; stocks comprehensive enough to meet a varied daily public demand. Proper and effective stock displays.

These are the spokes in a gigantic commercial wheel.

So when you read the advertisements in THE PRESS give this subject some thought, and you will have a better appreciation of the power and purpose of advertising.

RANDOLPH SIGNED BY THE YANKEES

Local Twirler Will Report at the Polo Grounds For a Trial September 9.

Cliff Randolph, Plainfield's product of 1913 pitching battles, has at last adjusted matters with Frank Farrell, of the New York American League Club, and the curly headed hillock performer will report to Frank Chance at the Polo Grounds at the Polo Grounds September 9. Cliff holds a responsible position in this city and because of this fact he was undecided as to whether he would take a tryout with the Yanks. This matter has been arranged agreeably to both parties, however, by Farrell's concession agreeing to let the Plainfielder show what he can do while on his vacation in September.

Randolph will go to ew York on September 9 and it is probable that he will work against some of the western teams that appear at the New York field during the two weeks he is there. During this time Cliff expects to find out whether Farrell will really keep him or send him back to the minors. The New York manager has agreed to release him unconditionally in the event that he does not make good with the Yanks and he will return immediately to this city and resume his work here.

RANDOLPH QUITS PLAINFIELD NINE

Star Moundsman Twirled For the New York Suburbans

... Saturday Afternoon. ...

A big offer of salary, said to be thirty dollars per game, win or lose, caused Cliff Randolph to shift the scene of his twirling performances from Plainfield to New York, Saturday afternoon, and the big fellow was also absent from the Pets' lineup in Brunswick yesterday afternoon. Randolph has signed with the New York Suburbans but it is not definitely known how long his contract calls for or whether or not he will adorn the local lots again this season.

Frank Farrell, owner of the New York Yankees, was dickering for the local boys' services but the Plainfielder's demands were so exacting that the matter was finally dropped and it is a safe bet that Randolph will be a local product and will heave local pellets for some time to come. His absence, if it becomes permanent, will considerably weaken the Plainfield outfit and his twirling powers are needed just at this time when the Central New Jersey League fight is waxing hot. George Ortlieb is doing some good work but he is not as steady and the players do not have the same faith in him as they do in Randolph. Without the big pitcher on the mound against Somerville next Saturday afternoon the Plainfield team's chances of tying the Somervillians for the pennant look exceedingly dubious.

SIX INNINGS ENOUGH TO WIN FOR THE ATHLETICS

Another walloping was annexed by the Athletics on Parker Field Saturday when that aggregation took the Parker A. C. contingent into camp on the heaviest end of a 17 to 8 count. Six innings was long enough to prove the Athletics the masters of the situation and at the end of that time the winners had their opponents yelling for help.

The run getting was the direct result of heavy clouting, the winners making a total of fourteen bingles in the curtailed engagement. But four bingles were allowed by Mann while the two teams contributed a total of thirteen miscues during the six rounds.

RALLIED IN LAST INNINGS BUT LOST

Spicer Team Scored Six Runs In the Final Three Trips to the Plate.

Playing a consistent game in the last three rounds, the Spicer baseball team, cellar occupants in the City Baseball League, came dangerously near winning their second contest of the season, Saturday afternoon, at the hands of the Dixie Giants, but after the Spicer team had tied the score with two counters in the ninth, the colored ballists came back with the winning tally in their half of the final session.

Fourteen fielding errors contributed by both teams, gave the opposition numerous opportunities to score runs and they made good use of their chances in the rounds where the fielding became ragged. Six runs in the third inning apparently sewed up the game for the ebony ball nine, but the Spicer sluggers clouted the pill for hits that resulted in a total of six runs in the final trio of stanzas, two counters being pushed across in each of the last three sessions.

BERNARDSVILLE BEATEN BY SENSATIONAL FIELDING

In a hotly contested game to decide the championship of the upper Passaic Valley, the New Providence A. A. won the third and deciding contest from the Bernardsville B. B. C., Saturday afternoon by a count of 4 to 2.

Whelan, who was in the box for the wnners, pitched fine ball and allowed but five scattered bingles. Mills made a sensational catch in the eighth of a line drive by Dixon with the bases full, which resulted in a double play and prevented Bernardsville from scoring the run which would have sewed up the game. Ahearne performed the same feat in the ninth by pulling in a liner from the bat with two men on and one out, touching the second sack.

—Every day is "Election Day" with the shoppers of this city. Every day some store receives a vote of confidence, presaging continued support, from the housewives. The store whose ads present the widest variety of opportunity news is "elected," always. For such a store brings ACTUAL RELIEF to the people from the oppression of high prices—not, as is often true in politics, mere promises of relief!

The Laundry Basket.

What arrangements are there in your house for taking care of soiled clothes? Is there a hamper standing in the bathroom where from one Monday morning to the next the soiled clothes of the family—dainty lace frocks next to damp bath towels, starched linen next to the children's rompers—are lying in confusion?

There are several ideal ways of caring for the soiled clothes—as nearly ideal, that is to say, as the arrangements for any branch of housekeeping may be.

Without a Hamper.

One way to get along without a laundry hamper is to have a laundry chute built in the house. This is a chute extending from the second and perhaps the third floors of a house to the laundry, with openings on each floor. The clothes are put in the chute as soon as they are soiled and they drop down to the laundry.

A laundry chute is an admirable way of solving the trouble of caring for soiled clothes, if it is properly cared for. There should be a big basket at the bottom of the chute, into which the clothes can fall. Everyday someone should go to the laundry and sort the clothes sent through the chute. Anything damp, like bath towels, should be hung up and dried. Table linen and clothes should be separated. If a laundry chute is managed in this way it is nothing but a convenience to be thankful. However, if it becomes choked with clothes and linen, which drop from it into an untidy heap on the laundry floor, there to mould and mildew for a week, it is a nuisance.

One Way to Manage.

Most houses do not have laundry chutes and even when they do it is not always convenient to go to the chute to deposit a soiled collar or handkerchief or shirtwaist every time you discard one. So every room should be provided with some sort of soiled clothes receptable.

For the nursey or sick room there should be a white-enameled metal box. The tightly covered, round ones are the most satisfactory. These can be emptied every day and thoroughly scalded from time to time and then aired and dried in the sun.

Each individual should have a couple of ample, washable laundry bags. These should be hung from closet hooks or doors and should be used as temporary receptacles for the laundry.

In the bathroom there should be a hamper for towels, and these should be taken to the laundry and dried every day, if possible, on a clothes horse.

In the butler's pantry or kitchen there should be a basket or box for soiled table linen. This should always be put in folded. If it is damp, it should be dried before it is put in.

There should be a system about collecting the laundry and everyone in the household should be required to have their laundry ready on Saturday evening. Even young children can be taught to take this responsibility. If everyone is ready, the work of sorting and soaking the clothes on Sunday takes little time.

All laundry baskets should be free from points that might catch and tear clothes. They should be often washed in hot water. They may be painted or enameled white outside and inside to advantage.

ABOUT FOOTGEAR.

It Should Be of Good Quality and Well Fitting.

In buying hosiery the sensible woman gets it a half size larger than her foot. When wearing her stockings she has the toes pulled well forward to allow plenty of room when the shoes are on and her foot pushes forward. She takes care, however, that the hosiery is so adjusted that it does not wrinkle under the soles.

The feet should be bathed daily and dusted with talcum or some special foot powder, and a pair of stockings should never be worn longer than a single day.

It is an important matter for the health as well as appearance that the heels of shoes should be kept straight. When the slightest edge is worn at the side a new layer should be put on.

The feet should always be kept properly warm. So the woman who wishes to look well shod should avoid light, showy footgear and don high, well soled shoes of stout leather for her tramps. These, if treated with an oil which comes for that purpose, may be made waterproof, though this destroys the gloss and is objected to by many women on that account. Applied to the soles, it prevents them from soaking up water from the pavement. Melted mutton tallow put on when hot and in its liquid state will also waterproof the soles of shoes. Linseed oil or ordinary vaseline serves the purpose, though not so well as the former.

When not in use shoes should be kept in a bag or box, where the weather will not affect them. Cold seems to have a disastrous effect on patent leather. Rubber overshoes should never be left in a cold room. If there is any latent dampness in the lining of rubber shoes the gum will crack.

Light trees should be provided for all shoes if possible. If these are not available the shoes should be stuffed with paper when put away. This serves to preserve the shape.

Every four weeks it is a good plan to clean off black and tan shoes with harness soap. Scrub them off as you would harness. This will remove the dust, grease and caked blacking and make the shoes last longer. Shoes treated in this way will then take on a better polish.

Neat, fresh shoe laces should be provided, and the buttons should be sewed on firmly. When one comes off sew it on at once. The adjustment of the buttons should be carefully considered, for a shoe whose buttons are not properly placed will never look nice and may weaken or strain the ankle, according to whether it is too loose or too tight.

WHEN BEING PHOTOGRAPHED.

Follow This Advice and Your Portrait Will Be Fine.

If you want to look your best when you have your photograph taken these hints may be of use:

Don't wear a dress which is very fussy or fashionable. The trimmings, which look so pretty in real life, won't show up in a photograph, while anything very fashionable quickly goes out of date and make the picture seem ridiculous. The best things to choose are:

For an outdoor girl, a plain shirt and a skirt which matches it in color.

For a more artistic girl, a chiffon scarf draped softly round the shoulders.

For a child, a plain white frock with white shoes and stockings.

Never be photographed in a hat, veil or glasses. Don't do your hair in a great many elaborate puffs and waves or it will come out looking as stiff as a wig.

Don't try to hold the pose too long or you will get a fixed, unnatural expression. Let the photographer put you in the place where he wishes you to sit or stand, but don't try to keep your face still before he says "Now!"

If you feel uncomfortable in the place where he has put you say so and ask leave to move. If you are taken when you feel at all uneasy the picture can never be a success.

As a rule, the subject of a photograph looks better in a low necked blouse than in a high necked one, for the line around the throat made by a high, tight collar is not at all artistic.

Don't take any one else's opinion on the choice of a photograph. When the proofs come home one person will prefer this and another that. Let them say what they like, but take no notice unless you happen to agree with them. You know best how you want to look, and a picture chosen by yourself will have individuality, which is better than all the prettiness in the world.

To Hold the Bride's Linen.

One of the dainty devices to add to the beauty of the fall bride's household chest is the band of ribbon to hold piles of sheets, pillow slips, towels, tablecloths and napkins in order.

The band is made of pink, lavender, blue, green or yellow satin ribbon an inch and a half or two inches wide. It is fastened with a small bone clasp, and the ribbon is adjusted to different lengths by means of bone slides that move back and forth along the ribbon. A big satin rose covers the clasp. Two of these straps are fastened about each pile of linen.

When the packages of linen are piled one on top of the other on closet shelves or in a chest the roses are pulled to the front of each package, and so the packages can be unfastened and a towel pulled from one, a pair of sheets from another, without disturbing the whole pile.

Some Cookery Suggestions

SWEET SANDWICHES.

SANDWICHES prepared with fruit, nuts or any sweet make nice foods for the summer porch tea or for the picnic basket.

Brown, white or rye bread sliced very thin and with the crust removed makes a good foundation for these sandwiches. Wafers or buttered crackers or crisp buttered toast may be also used for this purpose.

Cream Fillings.

Stiffly whipped cream sweetened with confectioner's sugar and combined with grated nuts or sweet chocolate or melted chocolate makes a dainty filling.

A good orange filling may be made by taking a sirup of sugar and water, the grated rinds and the strained juice of oranges and thickening it with a little cornstarch.

Fruit Sandwiches.

Grape Sandwiches.—Take twelve slices of bread, four tablespoonfuls of grape preserves, one tablespoonful of chopped nuts and two tablespoonfuls of chopped apples.

Butter the bread and spread with the mixture of grape, nuts and chopped apples.

Fig Sandwiches.—Soak dried figs overnight in cold water to cover them and then simmer over a slow fire until tender. Add half a cupful of sugar and the juice of half a lemon to each pound of figs during the cooking. Chill them thoroughly in the icebox and then chop to a paste and spread on thin white bread or on thin slices of pound cake. Use a diamond shaped cutter for shaping these.

Nut Dainties.

Cream Chestnut Sandwiches.—Peel, boil, drain and mash large French chestnuts. Rub them through a sieve and mix thoroughly with sweet cream. Add a touch of salt or sugar, as liked, and spread the paste on thin slices of fresh white bread which have been pared of crust and cut in round disks. Use a biscuit cutter for shaping after slices are cut.

Nut and Marshmallow Sandwiches.—Toast some fresh marshmallows and mix them in a bowl with chopped English walnuts. Cut white bread in star shapes. Put the paste on the lower slice.

This is the rule for all sandwiches.

Their Mother Tied Bows In Their Hair.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

Funny Little Edna Pretends To be Blind.

JACK and Evelyn were glad to hear daddy say he had a new story about Edna. They had relished stories about Edna before. She is a little girl who does and says many funny things.

"Since she has come home from visiting her grandpa and grandma," daddy began, "Edna has become very shy. However, some folks think Edna is only pretending, for she used to be a very friendly little girl.

"A short time ago her sisters, Florrie and Mimi, were to go to a picnic. Edna begged to be allowed to go too.

"'I don't see why you want to go,' Florrie said. 'You will only run away and hide from the little girls.'

"The picnic was to be given by the lady who taught the children's class at Sunday school. She had said that they would have it at what is known as Flat rock. Flat rock is a big level stone at the head of a little brook that goes gurgling down between mossy banks and tall, shady trees. Flat rock is only a short way from Edna's home.

"When the morning of the picnic came round the children's mother dressed them in nice white dresses and tied pretty bows in their hair.

"Then she started out with them for the picnic ground. They had not gone very far when Edna's mother felt a little hand slipped into hers. It was Edna's hand. When she looked at Edna she saw that the little girl had her eyes tightly closed.

"Edna's mother shook her gently. 'Open your eyes,' she said. 'You won't be able to see the picnic if you keep your eyes closed.'

"But Edna only shut them tighter. Florrie and Mimi made fun of her. Still Edna would not open her eyes.

"When they reached the picnic ground there was no one else there. 'No one can see you. Open them now,' Florrie urged, but Edna's eyes stayed shut.

"Several little girls came to Flat rock just then. The picnic was really held at Silver lake instead of at Flat rock, but not all of the children had got the postcards telling them so. This was the reason Florrie and Mimi and the other little girls had come to Flat rock.

"When the little girls saw Edna walking about with her eyes shut one of them said to the other:

"'Poor little thing; she must be blind!' Edna heard and opened her eyes just for a minute to dart a glance at them.

"'Why, no; she isn't blind at all!' one little girl exclaimed.

"'No; she's a little humbug,' the other little girl said. And Edna was so angry she forgot to close her eyes until they were nearly home again."

Two Dainty, Practical Designs for Embroidering Combination Garments or Corcet Covers.

There is not a woman in the land who does not want to have fine dainty underwear, yet when bought ready-to-wear it is too expensive for most of us. However, underwear is very easy to make and the materials cost very little, for you can buy a good quality of batiste, nainsook, or fine long cloth for from 12½ to 20 cents a yard and if you make these garments at home they can be trimmed with dainty hand embroidery at practically no expense. This is, after all, the most economical trimming you can have, for it wears even better than the material itself, while unless you buy a good quality of linen lace, is very apt to tear or wear out when it has been laundered a few times. The wreath design 14079, may be used on a front or back-closing, or slip-over corset-cover, chemise or combination garment and the embroidery may be done in solid or eyelet work. This is an exceptionally easy pattern to embroider, and it can be done with No. 25 working cotton in a few hours. Lace edging may be added if you wish a more elaborate trimming.

The wreath design, 14035, may be developed in solid or eyelet work on a slip-over or back-closing garment and by omitting the sleeve sections this pattern may be used on a night gown or it may be adapted to a lingerie waist. If you like, a monogram of ½-inch letters may be embroidered in the center. A dainty chemise embroidered with this design and a monogram would be an acceptable gift for the bride's trousseau. Transfer patterns for stamping these designs can be supplied to readers at fifteen cents each.

FANCY SHAPED PANAMAS ARE FAVORITES FOR SUMMER WEAR

SUMMER OUTING HATS.

PANAMA hats retain their popularity for outing wear, and, although their initial cost is greater, they are really cheaper than ordinary straws since they require none or very little trimming. Two of the season's most popular shapes are illustrated here. A novelty in one case is the trimming on the front of the headgear, a band of satin ribbon and a fancy feather taking the place of the usual scarf.

FASHION NOW DEMANDS THAT THE HAIR BE DRESSED SIMPLY SIMPLE NEW COIFFURE.

WERE they only able to realize it, most women look better with their hair dressed simply. A new coiffure of this kind is illustrated here. The hair is parted, waved, brought down over the ears and arranged in a modish figure 8 coil at the back. Small, neatly dressed heads are fashionable now, large and elaborate coiffures being considered bad form. The hair is arranged to show the shape of the head, though forehead and ears are hidden.

Sporting Editor:

Query—What is meant by a Civil Service position in the State service and where are such positions located? T. R.

Answer—Civil Service positions in State service are none other than State Civil Service positions, such as State supervisor of public roads, clerk of the State Board of Health, assistant commissioner of the department of labor, clerk of the bureau of weights and measures, inspector of the Public Utilities Commission and others, which are on the schedule.

Sporting Editor:

Query—If property is in the name of husband and wife and the wife dies, does the second wife of the husband have to sign papers before the property can be sold C. F.

Answer—Consult a lawyer.

PASTIMING IN DUNELLEN

Some queer stunts have been pulled off in the Central New Jersey organization during the present season, but the rarest of all was staged Saturday, when the teams took the field and Harter was waiting at the bat before it was discovered that there was no mask on the field.

Nibs Hand was willing to take a chance with the foul tips, but "Big Six" Nelson, profiting by what a fellow countryite of his received while performing behind the bat without the necessary cage at Dunellen a few days ago, refused to continue until one was procured.

Harold Schenck, the little Rutgers' centerfielder, who hangs his hat in this city when at home, took Earl Moran's place in the outfield, and after he got started made a good showing.

The New Brunswick collegiate made a grand stab for Alberts' wallop in the last half of the second but the pellet got loose and the clout went for two bases.

Five hits were clouted to the outfield in the Dunellenites' half of the second and it looked as though Ortlieb was going to get some rough handling for a while. DeNitzio led off with a single, Alberts smashed out a two-bagger and Hand duplicated the trick, and Giddes and Schiller each got a sing'e.

Playing in the initial trio of cantos was anything but interesting, both aggregations displaying an inferior article of the National sport. In the first Joe Harter and Bill Stallings figured in the feature "bone" of the contest. Nelson threw to second to nip Giddes stealing and the ball went over the sack without being molested, Harter and Stallings both doing the sleeping act. Giddes walked around to third in the meantime.

For the fans who like lots of hitting and spasmodic exhibitions of stellar fielding Saturday was a big day. Joe Alberts pulled down a couple that were ticketed for homers and also did some good sticking for his combination.

It was the last game of the season on the Dunellen field and none annexed the gold watch for the first home run clout. Looks as though that honor would have to be held over until next season.

Howard Craig pulled the feature fielding stunt when he crossed the left field foul line after a high one and bagged the bird.

There was a noticeable decrease in the attendance figures at the final game. Compare the receipts of the first encounter with those of the last one and note the difference. Just a few hundred cents involved.

TOOK EARLY LEAD BUT WERE BEATEN

Pets Yielded Dunellen Four Hits In the First But Won the Encounter.

ORTLIEB DOES DUTY

McLaughlin Pitches Well But Is Given Some Faltering Support By His Backers—Plainfield Increases Gap Between Somervillians.

Rallying after a bad start, in which George Ortlieb was bumped for five bingles in the short time it took to reel off one round of play, the Plainfield Pets easily annexed another Central New Jersey League clash at the hands of the Dunellen contingent Saturday afternoon, coming out on the bigger end of a 9 to 5 count. Spectacular fielding stunts which followed some listless opening play, featured the game and Plainfield did not have the encounter sewed up until the ninth round was reeled off, three counters having been pulled across the gutta percha in that session.

Some grandstand catches were pulled off by Bill Stallings, who nailed Schiller's fly out in deep right in the fifth, by Joe Alberts who pulled Bill Stallings' clout that resembled a circuit swat to the earth in the sixth and Garretson's scoop of Harter's wild throw, catching the speedy Samuels at the initial station in the sixth. Schenck, a new member of the Plainfield outfit, and formerly a Rutgers College outfielder, pulled off a number of pretty running atemps and topped off his work in the eighth by poling a bingle to center for two cushions and gave a swift exhibition of base running when he traveled home on Ortlieb's single.

Warry McLaughlin proved himself the same old war horse that he has been all through the season, disposing of the Plainfield batters with a total of 147 pitched balls. Ortlieb did still less work, throwing but 107 of the pills across the rubber during the nine rounds he froliced on the hillock.

How the Runs Were Made.

Plainfield tallied in first inning after Harter struck out. E Stallings singling to left and going all the way home on W. Stallings double to center. Craig got a berth on first on Denitzo's fumble, and was thrown out at second by J. Alberts when trying to steal. Nelson struck out. 2 runs.

3rd inning—Harter got to first on Giddes's fumble, and went all the way to second on the play, took third on E. Stallings' sacrifice fly. W. Stallings walked, stole second, went to third and came home on Craig's sacrifice fly. Nelson struck out. 1 run.

4th inning—Garretson struck out, Dorman struck out, Schenck walked, went to second on Ortlieb's single to left. Schenck went home and Ortlieb went to third on aHrter's double to center. E. Stallings flyed out to Samuels. 1 run.

5th inning—W. Stallings walked, went to second on Craigg's bunt hit. Stallings went to third and Craig to second on Nelson's sacrifice hit. Stallings scored and Craig went to third on Garretson's sacrifice fly. Dorman put up a pop fly to Catcher aHnd. 1 run.

8th inning—Schenck doubled to left, went home on Ortlieb's single to center. Harter reached first on a fielder's choice by Schiller, who threw out Ortlieb at second. Harter stole second and went to third on Hand's passed ball. E. Stallings flyed out to Samuels, W. Stallings flyed out to J. Alberts. 1 run.

9th inning—Craig singled to Giddes, Nelson bunted to Warry, putting Craig on second. Craig went home and Nelson to third on Garretson's single to left. Dorman sacrificed to Warry, putting Garretson on third and Nelson went home. Schenck walked, Ortlieb died at first, Barry doubling Schenck at second. 3 runs.

Dunellen—1st inning — Denitzio singled to center and went home on Alberts double to center. Alberts went home on Hand's double to right. Schiller flyed out to Schenck. Hand went home on Giddes' singlge to center. Giddes went to third when no one was around the second station to receive Nelson's throw down to second. McLaughlin struck out, Samuels doubled to center, Barry struck out. 4 runs.

3rd inning—Hand went out at first, hitting to short. Schiller singled through Craig, went to second on Gidde's sacrifice hit to Ortlieb. McLaughlin walked, went to third and Schiller home on Samuels' double to center. Barry struck out. 1 run.

PLAINFIELD GAINED GROUND IN RACE FOR THE CENTRAL PENNANT

CENTRAL NEW JERSEY LEAGUE.

Saturday's Results.

Plainfield 9, Dunellen 5.
Somerville at High Bridge (called off).

Standing of the Clubs.

	W.	L.	P. C.
Somerville	9	3	.750
Plainfield	9	4	.692
Dunellen	5	8	.384
High Bridge	1	7	.125

Plainfield managed to increase the gap existing between first place a little bit Saturday afternoon at the hands of the Dunellen combination by putting up a steady uphill fight behind George Ortlieb, who did the mound honors for the Pets. High Bridge cancelled its engagement with the Somerville league leaders at the last moment and this left the first place holders without a contest over the week-end.

Plainfield and Somerville are due to clash next Saturday afternoon and this will decide whether or not a play-off will be necessary. Should Plainfield win its game next Saturday against the Somerset county seat delegation a play-off for the bunting would be on the card for the following week, repeating the occurrence of two years ago when the Pets put it over the Somervillians in an after-season game. Should Somerville take the game at Parker Field scheduled for next week, the bunting would go to to that aggregation without further dispute.

SAURER COMBINATION HAS CLINCHED THE CITY LEAGUE CHAMPIONSHIP

CITY BASEBALL LEAGUE.

Saturday's Results:

Saurer 12, West Ends 0.
Dixie Giants 10, Spicer 9.

Standing of the Clubs.

	W.	L.	P. C.
Saurer	8	2	.800
West Ends	7	4	.636
Dixie Giants	5	6	.454
Spicer	1	9	.100

By wielding the whitewash brush to the tune of fourteen healthy slaps, the Saurer baseball team established an undisputed claim to the City League pennant Saturday afternoon and it now looks as though that aggregation would be the ultimate winner. Spicer ballists came unusually near to a victory, but were nosed out in the last frame by the Dixie Giants.

Nearly 200 points separates the Saurers from their nearest rivals the West Ends just at present, and with only a few more contests to go, it looks as though the aggregations would finish the league season in their present order. The Spicer contingent cannot possibly hope to climb out of the cellar in the few contests left to be played while the West Ends are reasonably sure to remain in the second berth.

Because of the Hope Chapel outing at Asbury Park, Saturday there were no games played in the Sunday-school Baseball League, all of the teams having a day off and many of the players taking advantage of this opportunity to go to the shore for a day's outing.

The league will resume activities next Saturday, however, when two games will be staged. The teams are closely bunched and the pennant is still a matter of contention.

'CANNON BALLIST' BEAT PLAINFIELD

Smith Too Much For the Pets and Brunswick Is Now Even With Locals.

ALLOWED THREE HITS

McLaughlin Took Randolph's Place On Plainfield Outfit—Pets Do Some Ragged Fielding In Throwing the Game.

"Cannon Ball" Frank Smith, of the Montreal team of the International League, trying to disguise himself under the title of "Wilson," proved to be the undoing of Manager Dorflinger's Plainfield Pets at New Brunswick yesterday afternoon and the Driscoll crew won by a count of 7 to 1. Smith, who was for six years a member of the Chicago Cubs of the National League and who is one of the best known pitchers in baseball allowed the visitors but three scattered hits and held the situation at his fingertips all the way. His speedy crossfire delivery was a puzzle to the Plainfielders and the only ones who could do anything with his offerings were Bill Stallings, McLaughlin and Hickey, the former getting a two-bagger.

Driscoll was unable to sign Doc Scanlon as was also Dorflinger unable to get Cliff Randolph, both of the prieviously announced twirlers having better paying engagements for that afternoon, and the result was that Warry McLaughlin, a former Pittsburg Pirate, met Frank Smith, a former Chicago Cub. Warry's delivery was nicked for seven bingles but the ragged support he received was largely responsibles for his defeat, six miscues being credited to his teammates. Of these Hickey and Samuels made costly "bulls" and on one occasion Torpey tossed to catch a runner at second but nobody was at the keystone sack to cover the ball.

NETHERWOOD TOOK RIVALS INTO CAMP

Errorless Ball and Some Good Pitching Responsible For Victory.

Playing an errorless game of ball, the Netherwoods took the Rivals into camp by a score of 11 to 2 in a fast game on Netherwood Field, yesterday afternoon. It was a case of too much Denny with the Rivals, twelve of them going out by the one, two, three route. The game started like a championship contest until Luthman kicked "Matty" Coughlan's roller about the diamond giving him his base, then the heavy artillery of the Netherwood's came up and put the game on ice.

Dodd got a two-bagger over Moore's head, who, with a poor throw, tried to get Dodd at second, Coughlin scoring. A pair of timely hits sent in three more runs and after the smoke had cleared away the Netherwoods had four runs over the plate. Denny, the phenomenal twirler of the West Ends, was on the mound and pitched A1 ball all the way. Coughlan, another West End player, played centerfield with the opposing side and incidentally made both of his team's runs off his team mate.

The game was marked by some great fielding on both sides. Hoffmeister made a great one-hand catch of Jones' liner while Carney stabbed Schinkle's bid for a hit in the same manner. Carney, Jones and Force played a good game for the Rivals in the infield. Third base was the one weak spot and as most of the hits were knocked in that direction it did a lot of damage. In the outfield Coughlan was the strongest, and fearing to depend on his leftfielder, he made several great running catches. The Netherwoods played together like a machine, every part of which was in perfect running order.

FANS ON EXCURSION, GAME CALLED OFF

High Bridge Management Did Not Like Idea of Playing to Empty Grandstand.

Another disruption evidenced itself in the Central New Jersey League, Saturday afternoon when the High Bridge and Somerville contingents failed to get into action in their scheduled contest. While the result would probably have mattered little, the Somerville team was robbed of its weekly workout and this may have some telling effect on the combination's playing next Saturday afternoon, when it meets Plainfield on Parker Field in what may turn out to be the deciding contest in the league race for this season.

Manager Jack Torpey, of the league leaders, received word to 'phone to the High Bridge manager Friday morning, but did not get an opportunity to call him until that night and it was then that he was first acquainted with the cancellation and then it was too late for him to schedule a substitute team to appear at Somerville.

An excursion left High Bridge, Saturday, for Asbury Park and Ocean Grove, and this annual outing took most of the inhabitants away from the town for the day and as the Somerville clash was scheduled to be pulled off in High Bridge the latter team's manager thought it wise to call the game off, rather than encounter a deficiency in the receipts which was sure to occur should the Somervillians be brought to High Bridge for the contest. This will probably be the last that will be heard from High Bridge this season as it now seems doubtful if they will keep their engagement with Dunellen for next Saturday afternoon, that game not being necessary in deciding the pennant winner for the season.

WHITEWASH DOSE FOR THE WEST END A. C.

Saurer League Leaders Find Their Rivals of Week-end Easy Prey.

Twirling for the Saurer City League leaders against his old pals, the West End A. C. nine, Saturday afternoon, Katz Miller doled out but two hits and held the West End contingent scoreless while his teammates were circling the bases a total of fourteen times. Never were the West Ends dangerous and Miller took things easy during all of the nine frames.

Matty Coughlin, the former Plainfield High School twirler, and Eddie Conshay, a former semi-pro heaver, divided the loser's mound honors and between them they yielded thirteen clouts. The West Ends made five slips behind their hillock representatives while the winners were guilty of three misplays.

ROWDY TACTICS BY SOME LEAGUE FANS

Wordy Exhibitions at Dunellen Game Cause for Complaints By Spectators.

Frank Wilcox, the well known decision server in the Central New Jersey Baseball League, is very much peeved over the notoriety that has come to him as a direct result of baseball this season and threatens to quit and leave the sport to its own destiny if the matter is carried any farther. Frank makes mistakes once in a while but the fans can't seem to forget his miscues like they do any other arbitrater's and insist on calling him every time he steps into the limelight.

When he started the game at Dunellen, Saturday afternoon, Wilcox was made the target for an exhibition of rowdyism that should not be tolerated at these contests. An intoxicated spectator hurled all kinds of abuse at the umpire and although the officer of the law who sat next to the trouble maker in the grandstand warned the offender several times the nuisance was carried on altogether too long to suit the fans present. One of Dunellen's "finest" appeared to be rather afraid of the intoxicated fan and took little pains to quell his utterances, which were objectionable to say the least.

This condition is one that has lowered the attendance at Central New Jersey League games considerably and if allowed to continue will finally kill all interest in the sport.

COUNTRY CLUB PLAYERS TIE IN GOLF SWEEPSTAKES

J. Whitney Baker and R. C. Blancke Jr., were tie for first honors in the golf sweepstakes, the only event at the Plainfield Country Club, on Saturday. There was quite a field out, but only five cards were returned in the competition. The weekly phonograph dance was held at the clubhouse in the evening, which was well attended by the members. These scores were posted in the sweepstakes:

J. Whitney Baker, 80, 7—73; R. C. Blancke, Jr., 100, 27—73; Dr. F. E. DuBois, 98, 19—79; D. H. Rowland, 96, 17—79; W. A. Engeman, 88, 9—79.

NISCHWITZ AND WARD WIN PARK GOLF CLUB EVENT

In the "goats" competition at the Park Golf Club, Saturday, William H. Nischwitz and Marshall H. Ward, challengers, defeated Charles B. Morse and H. H. Woodland, holders, 5 up and 4 to play. Despite the extreme warm weather there was a large field out and an unusually large number of cards were returned for this time of the year. These scores were posted for the President's cup:

W. H. Nischwitz, 98 23—75; W. E. Lough, 96, 11—85; H. L. Moodey, 98, 13—85; Dr. H. K. Carroll, 92, 5—87; Charles B. Morse, 96, 9—87; J. B. Betts, 115, 27—88; William P. Taylor, 83, plus 7—90; J. L. Watson 111, 18—93; Nelson A. Miller, 112, 18—94; Clarence L. Hand, 122, 22—100.

RANDOLPH DEFEATED BY CHINESE PLAYERS

Local Box Artist Twirled a Losing Contest For Suburbans Yesterday.

In a well played contest yesterday, on Suburban Oval, Brooklyn, Cliff Randolph, of this city, pitching for the Suburbans, was defeated by the Chinese team of the University of Hawaii by a score of 3 to 1. Randolph's team scored its lone tally in the eighth inning.

The local twirler was originally scheduled to twirl against the New Brunswick team in a Plainfield uniform yesterday afternoon but accepted an alluring offer from the Suburban management almost at the last minute and left Dorflinger in a hole for a box man. Sharp fielding featured the contest in Brooklyn, Randolph yielding ten bingles and his Chinese opponent was touched for nine of the safe variety. Two errors were made behind the Queen City artist and the opposition made three.

SEIDEL' INITIAL BINGLE BROUGHT HOME A VICTORY

Seidel's hit in the eighth, his first one of the season, brought home the winning run for the Ironsides, Saturday, at Parker Field, when that aggregation lined up against the Rovers. The game was nip and tuck all the way and good fielding and some timely hitting featured.

Each twirler yielded nine bingles but held their opponents well in hand at all stages of the fray.

20,000 PAIRS OF SHOES

From the Country's Greatest Factories

2.00 to 3.00 Pumps, Oxfords and Shoes

AT ONE DOLLAR A PAIR

This is to be a "Get-Rid-Quick" Sale because these are not shoes from our regular lines but special purchases of surplus lots from various factories gathered together for a mighty sale at a diminutive price.

In making purchases we did not accept many lots offered us because of their doubtful quality. We made sure that all the shoes we bought were worthy a sale in this establishment. We avoided trash, and we can come to you with this presentation confident that you will profit by participating in it.

We are going to undertake to surpass all our former big shoe sales, and you know how successful they have been, what crowds have been here, and how eagerly the shoes were gathered in by thrifty shoppers.

In this great collection of shoes are women's, misses, and children's

Pumps, Oxfords, High Shoes—the Values Run 2.00, 2.50 & 3.00. You may pick any pair in the lot and only pay $1

There are Women's Patent Leather Oxfords, with welt and hand-turned soles, worth $2.00 to $3.00.

Women's Patent Leather Pumps, Ankle Strap Pumps, with welt and hand turned soles, worth $2.00 to $3.00.

Women's Gunmetal Oxfords, Pumps and Ankle Strap Pumps, with welt soles, worth $2.00 to $3.00.

Women's Oxfords of Tan and Black Vici Kid, worth $2.00 and $2.50.

Women's High Shoes of Vici Kid and Patent Leather, in both button and lace styles; worth $2.00 to $3.00.

Women's Tan Russia Calf Pumps and Ankle Strap Pumps and Oxfords, with welt and turned soles, worth $2.50 and $3.00.

Women's Hospital Shoes with rubber heels—plain and patent leather tipped, worth $1.75.

ERRATIC FIELDING SEEN IN PARKER FIELD TILT

In a game featured by erratic fielding and light hitting, the Jackson Bible Class combination took a close one from the Arrow A. C. on Parker Field Saturday by a count of 10 to 9. Six errors were chalked up by the losers against the winner's six and the slips were generally contributed when they meant runs.

Kennedy, twirling for the losers, allowed but six bingles against his opponent's yield of seven. Vincent Mullin and his brother Frank, playing on opposite sides in the fray, were the leading hitters, each getting a trio.

FIELDED WITHOUT A SLIP BUT WERE BEATEN IN TENTH

One run in the tenth inning after repeated scoring spasms that had brought the count up to 14 to 14 gave the Arrow A. C. a victory over the Red Stars on Parker Field Saturday.

While the Red Stars fielded without a single error their nine hits were well scattered and when offered an opportunity to sew up the game in the tenth they were powerless to pull off the stunt.

The Mid-Summer FURNITURE SALE Is Now in Progress at Macy's

Plenty of Furniture sales about town just now, but there's one sale that is in a class by itself. That Sale is now in progress at Macy's.

Other stores may have Furniture just as dependable, but no store in town can match Macy's prices.

Macy's inflexible policy of buying and selling dependable merchandise for cash only makes possible these great values.

Therefore, if you are in need of Furniture for any room in the house, whether odd pieces or suites, Macy's Mid-summer Furniture Sale will save you money.

A Booklet containing items of interest will be handed you as you enter the Store.

The Mid-Summer WHITE SALE Is Now in Progress at Macy's

Macy's White Sale is the result of many months of careful planning. Domestic and foreign markets have been under the watchful eyes of experts for choice merchandise.

Included in the White Sale for women are

Undermuslins, Infants' Wear,
Waists, White Wash Goods,
Corsets, Brassieres,
Bed Muslins and Linens,
Table and Decorative Linens, etc.

The men are represented in this Sale by

White Shirts, Underwear,
Pajamas, Hose,
Neckwear, Handkerchiefs, etc.

Reliable merchandise, and at prices that are absolutely "Lowest-in-the-City," make this the most profitable (to you) White Sale in town.

ARTS TAUGHT IN THE PLAYGROUNDS

Handicraft Work Has Become Popular Among Many Juvenile Attendants.

MANY ARE BENEFITED

Instructive Program Being Carried On By Miss Frances Betz and Her Assistant at the Franklin School—Entertainment For All Classes.

Having already fulfilled the need for which they were instituted and continuing to increase in popularity each week, the four local playgrounds are rapidly outgrowing their limits of recreation and within another year several juvenile amusement centers will provably be established. Attendance figures have soared far above those of last season in every one of the four school yards and the branches of work have been developed accordingly, a variety of instructive entertainment that will interest children of every class and of both sexes having been inaugurated this summer. One of the school yards in which recreative equipment was given a trial last season and one in which the feature proved so successful that an assistant supervisor was engaged for this season is the one located between the Franklin and Stillman schools in charge of Miss Frances M. Betz, with Miss Emma Hymo as her assistant.

In this rendezvous the work has been varied to a greater extent than in any one of the other three yards, basketry, folk dancing, sewing, athletic competition, apparatus work, clay modeling, drawing and the teaching of recreative outdoor games being promoted by those in charge of the work. Miss Betz has established classes in each one of these divisions and has personally instructed the juvenile applicants, who range in age from three to fourteen ears, in the various arts. With an average daily attendance of 100 the work has been scheduled in a way that will assure work of some kind for everyone at all times.

The articles of handicraft made by the pupils are kept by Miss Betz until the end of the playground season when they will be placed on exhibition and afterwards returned to the owners. Sewing has occupied the time of numerous girls and not a few boys who have made aprons, caps, kimonas, doll's clothes and bags. Basket weaving has proven another popular art and baskets, bags and other useful articles have been woven in two or three colors. Folk dancing is one of the forms of entertainment that the boys enjoy equally as much as the girls, but the male recreation seekers have a tendency to divert their attention toward the more strenuous forms of entertainment such as basketball, swinging, foot racing and other boys' games that are taught by the supervisor and her assistant.

Competitive athletics are promoted, especially among the boys, and this feature serves to hold interest and supply a cause for rivalry among the boys of all ages. Perodical parties are conducted at each of the playgrounds and the parents are given an opportunity at these times to witness the work that is being accomplished.

MANY APPLICANTS FOR MAIL MESSENGER JOB

Postmaster E. H. Bird has received about a dozen applications for the position of carrying the mail between the postoffice and the North Avenue station, and the several bids have been forwarded to Washington. The job is on the competitive basis, the man willing to take it for the least money usually getting it. As a result the successful man finds the work more than he bargained for and is sorry he bid so low.

During the past few years Mr. Bird has had considerable difficulty in keeping a mail messenger any length of time. When the new postoffice is located on Watchung avenue this trouble will be avoided for it will be up to the railroad to transport the mail between the station and postoffice. At present the office is just outside the prescribed distance to compel the railroad to do this work.

A Day On the Hudson

BETTER WATER FOR SOMERVILLE PATRONS

Other Important Measures Passed By Borough Council at Monthly Meeting.

Somerville, August 12.—Report was made at the meeting of the Borough Council last night that the Somerville Water Company has employed a person to thoroughly examine its watershed throughout its entire source, and also that the company has perfected arrangements to install at once additional filter at its pumping station at Raritan, and that it is also taking other measures to safeguard the water furnished its patrons, details of which were given at length in a communication to the special committee of the Council appointed at a prievious meeting.

In view of this communication from the water company, it was stated that nothing further would be done in the matter of selecting a bachteriologist to analyze the water of the water company other than the expert now employed for this purpose by the borough. The work of improving the pumping plant of the water company, it was stated, would be started at once and would be completed in a few months.

Complaint was made of the condition of Van Derveer avenue, by reason of which the sidewalks along the same thoroughfare become flooded at every rain storm. The contention of the residents along that street is that the grade as established by the borough engineer left them in bad shape, because of the fact that the street had not been improved and in consequence was higher than the sidewalks. A map of the property of the Van Derveer tract had been placed on file in the County Clerk's office, after same had been approved by the Council subject to certain changes that were to be made by the owners, and it was claimed by the members of the Council that these had not been done, and a motion passed that the resolution adopted last year approving the map for filing be reconsidered.

It was voted to expend about $758 in the improvement of East Main street, and the street committee also recommended that East High street approach to the bridge over Peter's brook be improved as originally planned at the time the bridge was erected by the county. This would cost in the neighborhood of $2,700 and the project did not meet with favor from the rest of the members of the Council, and the recommendation did not carry.

Steps were taken to adopt traffic regulations similar to those in force in other places, the matter being left in the hands of the street committee.

It was voted that $7,500 be borrowed in anticipation of taxes to meet the current expenses of the borough, the report of the borough collector showing a balance on hand of about $700. A number of bills for damage done to chickens in the borough were held up for investigation. The bill of Central Hook & Ladder Company was also referred back to the street committee for adjustment, the street superintendent having stated that the company had instructed its driver not to work on Sundays, and that the company had worked its team but one Saturday afternoon during July.

LAST EXCURSION OF THE SEASON GOES THURSDAY

The last of the Sunday-school excursions to be run from the city this season will be held on Thursday, under the auspices of Warren chapel. Eight full hours at Asbury Park, and a great day of fun and sport are assured those who take in the outing. Those interested in aviation may take a short trip to Long Branch and view the human bird who will exhibit at that place on Thursday. The afternoon organ recitals at the Auditorium have been attracting the attention of excursionists all season, and are still being continued.

The excursion will leave the North Avenue station at 8:15, stopping at the Netherwood station both ways. The return trip from the shore has been set for 6:10.

TROLLEYMEN'S PICNIC.

Two special trolley cars were engaged today to convey the members of the Public Service Railway Athletic Association, of New Brunswick, and their families to Palisade Park, where the association's annual picnic is being held. The affair was arranged by Superintendent Luhr, of this city.

A Novelty In Plainfield.

WESTFIELD MAYOR MAY BE CANDIDATE

Friends Want Henry W. Evans to Run For Assembly on G. O. P. Ticket.

Mayor Henry W. Evans, of Westfield, is being urged by Republican friends in all parts of the county to announce himself a candidate for the assembly nomination. He was unable to make any definite anouncement when waited on by a delegation yesterday owing to anticipated important developments in another direction, but said that he would give his answer in the course of a few days.

Major William B. Martin, in whose behalf a boom for assembly was started on the Union County Republican outing Saturday, has not yet returned from Sea Girt, but his friends assert that it was with full knowledge and consent that his name was brought out.

Ruford Franklyn, of Summit, who was also boomed on the outing, sent word to his backers yesterday that it would be impossible for him to accept the proffered candidacy. He said he was deeply appreciative and thanked his supporters for the consideration given.

Mayor Evans has lived in Westfield practically all his life. He is about 40 years old and is engaged in the brokerage business in New York. Before being elected mayor for a three-year term last fall, taking office January 1, of this year, he served two years as a member of the Common Council. It was the record made as a councilman that directed public attention to him for the mayoralty and since assuming the duties of that office he has attracted county-wide attention. He is a vigorous campaigner and it is said that he would greatly strengthen the Rebpulican ticket in the event of his being able to make the run.

JOHN H. COSE CANDIDATE FOR COUNCILMANIC NOMINATION

Petitions are being circulated in the Third ward, endorsing John H. Cose for the nomination for ward councilman on the Republican ticket, to succeed Frederic E. Mygatt, the present incumbent. It is understood that Mr. Mygatt, who has served five years in the Common Council, has stated that he will not seek a renomination.

Mr. Cose is in the tinning and slating business, and has served several terms on the Republican City Committee.

LOCAL TRADE BOARD WILL ASSIST NEW MARKET BODY

President William Jeffery and a delegation from the local Board of Trade will go to New Market tonight to assist the residents of that place in organizing a board similar to the Plainfield one, a move that has been agitated in that town for some time past. Members of the Plainfield board are interested in the commercial and civic wellfare of the neighboring town, many of the active members owning property in that vicinity which will be materially benefitted by an organized civic body in that section.

A call has been issued to those interested in the move in and about New Market, and it is expected that the call will bring out many representative business men in that vicinity ready to lend their services in organization.

DOG CATCHER BITTEN.

Charles W. Barnes, aged 19 years, colored, of 205 Plainfield avenue, who is engaged in the work of catching stray dogs, was bitten by a canine which he was removing from his net to the wagon, this morning and was taken to Muhlenberg Hospital, where the wound, which was not a serious one, was cauterized. Barnes left the hospital immediately afterward to continue his work.

FIRE IN LUMBER PILE.

A quantity of lumber owned by the Central Railroad, and which was being used in repairing the Madison avenue bridge, caught fire at 5 o'clock this morning and a passerby pulled box No. 41. The fire which was probably started by a spark from a passing locomotive, was soon put out and the damage resulting was trifling.

WANT GREEN VEGETABLES.

The management of Muhlenberg Hospital would appreciate donations of green vegetables during these days of "high cost of living," and would be grateful for anything in the vegetable line. It is believed that there are cases of a surplus and this could be used to good advantage at the hospital.

CAUSED SMALL BLAZE, JAILED FOR 30 DAYS

Caesar Green, Arrested for Arson, Denies Intending to Set House Afire.

Arraigned in the city court this morning before Mayor Stewart charged with attempting to set the house in which he lived at 532 West Third street, afire, Caesar Green, colored, was sentenced to spend thirty days in the county jail, after Assistant Corporation Counsel Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., had asked that he be held for disorderly conduct. Green, when brought before the Mayor, demanded examination. The testimony taken showed that while Green did not attempt to commit arson, he did take his housekeeper's clothes, pour oil over them and set them on fire, which necessitated the calling of the city's fire apparatus to put out the blaze after the dwelling had become ignited.

Green, according to his own admissions, had been drinking and had figured in a quarrel with Miss Mary Jacobson, his housekeeper. The latter said on the witness stand that Green locked all the doors of their apartment gathered her clothes in a heap in the kitchen and applied a lighted match to them after pouring some oil over the articles. Mr. and Mrs. William Harris, colored, who live in the same house with Green, said the prisoner evaded a reply when they asked him, "Who are you doing setting the house afire?" Mr. Harris forced open a rear door leading into the kitchen and pulled Green out, while his wife ran for Patrolman Vanderweg, who pulled the fire alarm.

Chief Doane testified that the clothes were saturated with oil and that Mrs. Harris had told him that Green had purposely set the house on fire. All the testimony taken, however, failed to show any intent on Green's part to set the dwelling afire, although it was shown that he did apply a match to his housekeeper's clothes. He claimed however, that the fire was started accidentally when he knocked a lamp from a table. He said he ran for Miss Jacobson's clothes and dashed them on the blaze in an effort to extinguish the flames.

Green was taken to the county jail in Elizabeth this afternoon by Detective-Sergeant Flynn.

BOY LEAVES STATE TO ESCAPE POLICE

George Curtis Feared Confinement Behind Bars—Arrested for Petty Larceny.

Evidently fearing that he would be sent to jail for the alleged theft of clothes and jewelry last Thursday from the Netherwood Fresh Air Home, George Curtis, 19 years old, of 823 St. Mary's avenue, according to Detective-Sergeant John J. Flynn has left the State. His parents are heart-broken at his action and have pleaded with the police to locate him and bring him back to Plainfield. Accompanying this pleading was the offer to make good the loss of any articles he is said to have stolen.

Curtis was arrested Saturday by Detective Flynn in company with Michael and Pasqual Long, of 770 Midway avenue, and John Prine, of 281 Jackson avenue, and told to appear in court today. These boys, when arraigned this morning before Mayor Stewart in the city court, pleaded guilty to the charge and were put on probation. All have been arrested before for minor offenses.

The three boys when arrested told the police of a man with a black moustache who persuaded them to steal the articles, saying they rightfully belonged to him and that he would pay them well. This man is said to have run from the fresh air camp when several men happened along and saw the boys with the articles of clothing. The police are looking for the stranger who is alleged to have led the boys to commit a crime, but to date no trace of him has been found.

AUTO SPEEDER IN COURT.

C. B. Lawrence, a business man of Hoboken, who was arrested on August 3 by Patrolman Welch on a charge of speeding his automobile at 25 miles an hour along West Seventh street, said when arraigned yesterday in the city court, that he would "take a chance" on Mayor Stewart, who sat on the bench, and would not go to the trouble or expense of hiring a lawyer. He also said he had several witnesses who were with him when arrested and whom he claimed knew that he was not violating the law. "But I do not need their testimony," he said, "I'll rely on Your Honor's good judgment." Councilman Endress, who was an eye-witness to the alleged violation of the speed law, was not present, however, and Lawrence was released in his own custody for his appearance in court on Monday, August 18.

MISS MOORE BRIDE OF CARL T. ULRICH

Former Well-known Plainfielders Are Married in New York City.

Announcement cards were received here today of the marriage of Miss Caroline Randolph Moore, daughter of Mrs. William Harvey Moore, and Carl Thomas Ulrich, son of Mrs. Charles Ulrich, both formerly of Plainfield, which took place in New York city, yesterday, Rev. Dr. E. S. Williams, of New York, officiating. The wedding was a quiet one, being attended only by the relatives and a few friends. The couple will make their home in Manhattan, where the bridegroom is employed.

Both the bride and bridegroom are widely known in this city, where they were born and lived for a number of years. Mrs. Ulrich was a student at the Plainfield Seminary, and was a favorite in the younger society of this city. Her father, the late William H. Moore, was for a number of years the head of the Plainfield Electric Light Company, prior to its absorption by the Public Service Corporation. Since that time Mrs. Moore and daughter traveled extensively. Their present residence is "Laureate Hall," 435 West 119th street, New York.

Mr. Ulrich formerly attended the Plainfield High School. He removed from this city several years ago. His father, who died a few years ago, was prominent here, being engaged in the provision business on West Front street. Mr. Ulrich has been making his home with his mother in New York. His sister was married some time ago and is living in the west.

DR. JUSTUS H. COOLEY AFTER RENOMINATION AS ASSESSOR

Dr. Justus H. Cooley has filed his petition with the borough clerk for renomination for assessor on the Republican ticket at the coming primaries. Dr. Cooley has served in that capacity for the last twelve years, succeeding Elston M. French.

George Kirch has also filed a petition for renomination as freeholder on the Democratic ticket. Mr. Kirch has served one term on the Somerset board, representing North Plainfield.

ANTI-SUFFRAGISTS PLAN TO INVADE SCOTCH PLAINS

Plans for a meeting in the interest of the anti-suffrage movement to be held at Scotch Plains were discussed at a meeting of the Plainfield Branch of the New Jersey Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage, held at the Public Library, yesterday afternoon. While the attendance was not large, those present were much encouraged with the outlook as indicated by the various reports from committees.

Mrs. Goodwin, who recently addressed an anti-suffrage meeting at the Washington school, will probably be the speaker at the meeting to be held in Scotch Plains. A little later other meetings will be arranged for by the committee.

"HOUSEKEEPING CENTER" NEW FEATURE OF Y. W. C. A. WORK

The latest institutional feature to be added to the work of the local Y. W. C. A. is the Housekeeping Center which is to be opened to girls from nine to fourteen years of age on September 15.

A "model flat" has been furnished in the Y. W. C. A. building where classes of the younger girls will be organized and instructed in cooking and housekeeping. The membership of these classes will in no wise be limited to those belonging to the Association as it is their desire to broaden their usefulness to the city at large. Classes will be conducted daily from 3.30 to 5 in the afternoon.

While the Housekeeping Centre is a new departure for the local Association, the plan has been successfully carried out in other cities, especially in New York, where the work is under the personal direction of Miss Mabel H. Kitrich. The local center has been patterned after those in New York. The special committee that will have charge of the work in this city will be announced later.

ESCAPED INMATE CAUGHT.

For the third time in several months, Daniel Hatchett, colored, formerly of this city, has escaped from the institution of the State Board of Children's Guardians, at Trenton. He was caught early today, however, by the Jersey City police. Hatchett was sent to the home by City Judge DeMeza after he had been arrested several times on various minor charges.

DEMOCRATS WOULD BALANCE TICKET

Organization to Endeavor to Have One Assembly Candidate Not from Elizabeth.

Elizabeth, Aug. 12.—For the purpose of having a better geographically balanced ticket than usual, one Democrat from outside of Elizabeth will probably be supported by the organization forces in Union county for a Democratic Assembly nomination, it is said. Among those mentioned as possibilities from the suburban territory are TenEyck R. Beardsley, of Fanwood, and City Attorney Francis V. Dobbins, of Rahway, both of whom were aspirants last year, but the Elizabeth vote prevented a nomination.

James J. McCann, of Plainfield, who was elected a member of the small Board of Freeholders last year, will probably be a freeholder candidate at the September primaries, whether or not the mandatory small board bill is passed at the special session of the Legislature. He made a good showing in Plainfield last year and apparently has assurances of backing if he enters the race for the large board in the event of the small board legislation failing.

Many Republicans on the outing Saturday were anxious to sign the petition of Senator Carlton R. Pierce, Republican candidate for the gubernatorial nomination. The Senator will have more than the required number of signatures long before the time for filing the petition on August 23.

Freeholder George Teller, who wants to see Senator Pierce nominated for Governor, was forced to stand for a lot of jibing following the Governor's luncheon at Sea Girt. Mr. Teller got into a picture with former Governor E. C. Stokes and his friends wanted to know if he'd change front on the gubernatorial situation.

ROBERT GORMAN, GRANT AVE. MAN, MYSTERIOUSLY MISSING

Robert Gorman, a coachman in the employ of George J. Tobin, of Grant avenue, has mysteriously disappeared. The police of this city have been notified and a general alarm has been sent out to the authorities of neighboring municipalities. The cause of Gorman's strange absence is not known. Yesterday morning he did not report for work and today no word was heard from him. When last seen he wore his regular working clothes. He made no preparations at his home for his departure nor did any of his actions, say his friends, signify that he contemplated going away.

MATHEWSON CELEBRATING A DOUBLE ANNIVERSARY

Christy Mathewson is celebrating a double anniversary today, it being the occasion of his thirty-fifth birthday anniversary and his thirteenth consecutive season as the "dean of baseball pitchers," twirling for Johnny McGraw's New York Giants. "Matty," as he is familiarly known by every loyal supporter of the national pastime, visited his sister-in-law, Mrs. P. B. Cregar, in this city, yesterday and played a game of golf on the Plainfield Country Club links.

The big pitcher can play the "bally" game of golf just as well as he can pitch the horsehide covered spheriod and he hung up some good scores in friendly competition yesterday.

EXCURSION TO BELLEWOOD.

The annual excursion of the colored churches from Newark, Elizabeth, Westfield, Rahway, Plainfield and other nearby cities and towns to Bellewood Park, will be held on Thursday. The Plainfielders will go to Bound Brook by trolley and complete the journey by train on the Lehigh Valley Railroad.

FIGHTERS FINED $5.

George Katovick and Michael Stase, of Dunellen, who were arrested Saturday night on East Front street on a charge of fighting, were fined $5 each when arraigned yesterday afternoon before Mayor Stewart in the City Court. They were fighting over the affections of a girl living in Scotch Plains.

WILL PICNIC AT MIDLAND.

The local trolleymen will hold their annual picnic at Midland Beach, tomorrow, two special cars being secured for the trip. Superintendent George Luhr is in charge of the arrangements. The men will be accompanied by their wives and children.

NEW LIGHTS MAY NOT APPEAR OCT. 1

Public Service Official Seems to Doubt Whether Company Will Furnish Them.

WANT NEW CONTRACT

Corporation In All Probability Will Refuse Any Different Style Lights Until City Makes New Contract.

That the Public Service Corporation will decline to grant the Common Council's request to change the style of lamps used here for street lighting, is the opinion of some people who have been making a study of the question, unless the city waives the "free lighting" clause. The company maintains that any change in the system of street lighting breaks the agreement between the city and the company, one provision being that the company is to furnish certain free lighting, which includes the city's offices, police headquarters and the fire department houses. That was the statement made a few months ago before the Council by L. D. H. Gilmour, representing the company.

Corporation Counsel Reed took exception to Mr. Gilmour's statement, placing a very different legal construction on the agreement between the city and the company. William R. Causebrook, the local representative of the company, when seen today, said that as yet he had not received a copy of the resolution passed by the Council nor a request or order to make the reported changes. He thought that if the changes were to be made by October 1, no time should be lost in placing the order.

Questioned as to whether he though the company would make the changes as requested without objection, Mr. Causebrook replied that he was not prepared to say. He recalled what Mr. Gilmour stated to the Common Council and said that he had not heard of any change in his opinion. Mr. Causebrook added that when he received the copy of the resolution and order from the Council he would forward the same to the company's head offices and it would be for the officials to decide what it proposed to do in the matter.

The city's present street lighting system is furnished under what is called "an agreement," in which for certain rights such as permission to erect poles and string wires in the streets the city is to have "free lighting" for its offices and public buildings.

Mr. Reed, as well as the Councilmanic light committee and other members of the Council are of the opinion that the fact that the city wants to change the style of lamp will not break this agreement in any way. They claim that for the privilege of doing business in this city the company, which was succeeded by the Public Service Corporation, agreed to the free lighting clause, and when the latter company became the successor of the other company it was bound by this agreement.

It is understood that the matter of serving the company with a copy of the resolution and order has been delayed for a few days awaiting the return of City Clerk James T. MacMurray, who has been out of town. The papers will probably be served on the company today or tomorrow. As the whole street lighting system is to be changed the company would require a reasonable amount of time to comply with the request, provided it decides to do so.

MAYOR'S SUMMER HOME DAMAGED BY LIGHTNING

A bolt of lightning, during the heavy thunder, wind and rain storm of Sunday, struck Mayor Percy A. Stewart's summer home at Southampton, L. I. The city executive and his family were in the front part of the dwelling when the shock came. The chimney was knocked to the ground and a hole was torn in the roof of the structure. When the lightning struck, the house shook from cellar to roof and every electric bell in the house started to ring.

"I never want the lightning to come so close to me again," said Mayor Stewart when speaking of the affair.

ASBURY PARK IN BLAZE OF GLORY

Carnival Season Now In Full Swing — Queen Will Be Crowned Friday Night.

Asbury Park, August 12.—Everybody in this section is now preparing for the arrival of Titania, who on Friday night at the Ocean Grove auditorium is to be crowned Queen of the Asbury Park Children's Carnivals. The character will be impersonated this year by Miss Hazel Florence Reuman a beautiful Brooklyn brunette, who has spent nearly all of her eighteen summers at Asbury Park. For the coronation Tali Esen Morgan has drilled nearly 1,000 children. Scenic artists and electricians are now at work preparing for the auditorium a magnificent woodland scene. The Queen and her fourteen maids will be transported from the Coleman House to the auditorium in roller chairs via the boardwalk in order that the crowd may gaze upon the handsomest carnival court Asbury Park ever had. The return from the auditorium will be made in automobiles.

Sousa and his band played two concerts yesterday to immensely enthusiastic audiences.

Pryor's band will play at Asbury Park until September 10 and his orchestra until October 1, arrangements having been made last night to extend the season four weeks.

Lee Saubert, manager of the New York Hippodrome, who is summering at Asbury Park, stated yesterday to the Press correspondent that the Saturday night performance of the Messiah at Ocean Grove was the greatest oratorio performance ever given in America.

Aviator George Dyott soared over the beach-front yesterday and then went on to Long Branch where he will make daily flights this week.

A novelty in the way of kites has made its appearance on the beach. A regular box kite is used and when it has attained great altitude a parachute is sent up on the string until it strikes a knob. This releases the parachute which sails away, generally out of sight.

The largest bathing crowds of the summer were in the surf Sunday and yesterday. Because of the extreme heat on Sunday, the noon temperature being 94, bathing was continued until 2 o'clock.

Every hotel and boarding house in Asbury Park is well filled and proprietors say that August business will be a record breaker.

A movement has been started to give Asbury Park a commission form of government. Seven petitions are out, but signers aare not very plentiful.

A banquet to Governor Fielder and staff has been arranged for Wednesday night, August 27. It will take place at the Coleman House and will be a public dinner for which tickets are being sold by the carnival association. Queen Titania and her court will be guests of honor.

Among the Plainfield residents registered at Asbury Park hotels are: Lafayette, J. C. Abbott; New York, K. L. Phillips; Surf House, Mr. and Mrs. William McD. Coriell and daughter; Metropolitan, Mrs. P. S. Brown; Girard, Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Radford, Madison, Miss Mae Dutcher; Sunset Hall, A. E. Griffith.

G. Q. Packer is registered at the Fountain House in Ocean Grove.

The temperature on the boardwalk at noon yesterday was 70; at 8 a. m., 63.

GOVERNOR FIELDER TO TOUR SOMERSET TOMORROW

Sea Girt, Aug. 12—Governor Fielder had a rare treat Saturday afternoon when he attended the annual Salt Water Day at Manasquan, the event being the great get-together and picnic of farmers from Monmouth, Ocean and Mercer counties. Farmers came in all kinds of rigs, from ancient two-wheelers right down to 1913 automobiles. It was a great day for the farmers and a great day for the governor who enjoyed mixing with them.

Governor Fielder will attend a dinner of the Long Branch Chamber of Commerce tonight, leaving Trenton after the legislature holds its special session.

He will tour Somerset county tomorrow, an itinerary having been arranged that will tak him from one end of the county to the other, starting at nine o'clock in the morning at North Plainfield.

Friday will be the last of the series of "Governor's Days" at Sea Girt, the visiting delegations for this week to be from the counties in the southern part of the State.

Saturday, the governor will attend a clambake at Manasquan.

FIFTY MEMBERS OF BRITISH CORPS KILLED BY DERVISHES

(By Telegraph to The Daily Press.)

London, special cable from Central News, August 12.—It was officially announced here today that fifty members of a British camel corps were either killed or wounded on August ninth in a fight with Dervishes in Somaliland. The camel corps was badly cut up.

The tribesmen are moving northward and an attack on Burao is feared. A despatch from Aden says that 300 troops have been sent from there to the scene of the trouble.

THE PLAINFIELD THEATRE

George Primrose, "the man with the velvet feet," and Lew Dockstader, "the fellow of infinite jest," are appearing together again this season as joint stars with their consolidated minstrel company. They are featuring old time negro minstrelsy, plus magnificent scenic embellishments, sumptuous costuming and with an all-star company of minstrel celebrities, and will be seen at the Plainfield theatre Thursday night.

LONGEST NON-STOP FLIGHT.

SEARCHING SULZER'S EARLY RECORDS IN UNION COUNTY

Elizabeth, N. J., August 12.—A man who said he was a friend of Governor Sulzer, of New York, was in this city yesterday, seeking information on Sulzer's record.

The only things learned was that Sulzer was born in the outskirts of Elizabeth, near Roselle, April 18, 1863, and that an indictment for alleged election frauds was found against his brother, Charles Sulzer, thirty years ago. Several visitors called at the Court House, recently to look up the Sulzer record, but nothing to the latter's disadvantage was found.

PROCTOR'S ANNIVERSARY BILL.

Anniversary week at Proctor's theatre, which began yesterday, was crowned with many big vaudeville features to delight both young and old. The top-liner act is Hope Booth & Co., in George M. Cohan's comedy satire, "The Little Blonde Lady," the scene of which is laid in a newspaper office. Miss Booth appears as a stenographer, but who has ambitions as a playwright. Her supporting company is good. Harry Lamont and his bevy of chorus beauties, comedians and dancers offer a musical sketch, "Fun on the Ocean," which is full of fun and music. Mr. Lamont is some comedian and a laugh-producer. Memmito and Brother, are world wonders in comedy and acrobatic pantomime. Clara May is a charming soprano singer, and Lewis and Lewis are clever singers and musicians. The small man has an excellent voice, the tall one is a wonderful whistler and saxaphonist.

ITALY ORDERS DESTROYERS.

(By Telegraph to The Daily Press.)

London, Oct. 12.—A dispatch from Rome says that the Italian Government has ordered thirteen torpedo boat destroyers.

HEAT AND THE BODY.

We Are Able to Drink Liquids That Would Scald Our Hands.

The human body can stand far greater heat if it be dry than if it be wet, and, strangely enough, it can stand far hotter liquids inside than out.

For example, the average tea drinker sips tea at a temperature of about 140 degrees F.—sometimes as high as 145 degrees. But he cannot bear his hands in water at 120 degrees or his feet in water higher than 112 degrees. Few people can stand a bath in water at 105 degrees.

In parts of central Australia men live in an average temperature of 115 degrees F. in the shade and 140 degrees in the sun, while 151 degrees has been registered. In the Persian gulf the thermometers on ships vary between 122 degrees and 140. A recent explorer in the Himalayas reports that he found at 9 a. m. in December and at more than 10,000 feet altitude a temperature of 131 degrees F.

Drs. Bleyden and Chantrey, two English scientists, desiring to ascertain how high a temperature the human body could stand, shut themselves in an oven, of which the heat was gradually raised and they were able to bear it until the thermometer registered 212 degrees F., the boiling point of water. —St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Ruskin as a Patient.

Matlock, so dear to John Ruskin, brought him within sight of death in 1871. It was a wretched, wet summer; he went out in a miserable morning to paint, took a chill, and aggravated the internal inflammation that followed to a dangerous degree by refusing to take the doctor's medicines. The sequel is delightful. Irritated at the doctor's remonstrances, he demanded what was the worst thing he could take. Beef, they told him, and beef he insisted upon having at once. It was late at night and Matlock was scoured for some time before beef could be found. Then, says Mrs. Arthur Severn, he "enjoyed his late supper thoroughly, and, though we all waited anxiously till the morning for the result, it had done him no harm. And when he was told pepper was bad for him he dredged it freely over his food in defiance."

The Least He Might Do.

Little Faith was possessed of a most friendly disposition, but had not yet reached the age where she could understand the silence that may wrap itself around a wordless intimacy. In fact, she demanded speech, frequent and loving.

One night her brother was studying most assiduously his arithmetic lesson, and after calling to him several times without receiving an answer, she appealed to her father.

"George is busy," said father.

"I know," replied Faith, "but he might at least have said, 'Shut up.'"—Woman's Home Companion.

WILSON TALKS OF JINGO LOBBY

Lind Installed as Adviser In Mexico City.

RESPECTFULLY RECEIVED.

President Declares There's No Occasion For Alarm, While Indicating There Is Organized Desire to Bring on War With Troubled Republic.

Washington, Aug. 12.—That there was an organized desire proceeding from sources unknown to him to bring on a war between the United States and Mexico was indicated by President Wilson. The president does not regard the movement as extensive, but as very troublesome, and referred to misrepresentations in some newspapers. He indicated that he shared somewhat the views of Senator Williams, who declared in a speech that an organized lobby existed to involve the United States in war.

There is no occasion for alarm, in the opinion of the president, who told callers that within the last forty-eight hours the Mexican situation had improved materially. It was made clear by the president to those with whom he discussed the situation that the instructions to John Lind, his personal representative, now in the City of Mexico, were chiefly to inform the American government how things stood generally in Mexico and just what were the opportunities for the good offices of the United States in the interest of peace.

Dispatches From Lind.

Sooner or later, it was said, Mr. Lind will make certain suggestions to the Huerta government through the American embassy, but in just what circumstances has not yet been fully determined upon. Anything in the suggestions that may properly be made public will be revealed, according to administration officials here, and foreign governments will be constantly apprised of the various steps taken by the United States. This may not take place, however, for several days.

Mr. Bryan had a long conference with President Wilson on the Mexican situation. They had before them the first dispatches from Mr. Lind, but no information as to their contents was disclosed.

Lind at Mexico City.

Mexico City, Aug. 12.—Mr. John Lind, the personal envoy of President Wilson in Mexico City, installed himself in temporary offices at the United States embassy as unofficial adviser to the American charge d'affaires, Nelson O'Shaughnessy. Mr. Lind passed several hours in close conference with the charge d'affaires discussing the difficulties of the Mexican nation, for which he, it is alleged, brings a panacea.

Mr. Lind was an early riser. The sun had not mounted high over Popocatepetl mountain before he was astir. He took a stroll through the park in front of the hotel and down San Francisco avenue before the shutters were removed from the store windows.

A few hours later an embassy automobile called at the hotel and conveyed Mr. Lind to the embassy of the United States, where, to the accompaniment of the hammering of carpenters in adjoining rooms, where they were preparing the household goods of Henry Lane Wilson for shipment to the United States, the envoy entered upon his duties.

In the meanwhile Mrs. C. A. Parker, the wife of an embassy attache, called on Mrs. Lind and arranged for a drive.

Conference at Embassy.

Dr. William Bayard Hale, who no longer hides his identity as the confidential envoy of President Wilson, called at the embassy and held a long conference with Mr. Lind and Mr. O'Shaughnessy. No one at the conference would state what the first steps of the pacification scheme were to be or when they were to be taken.

Federico Gamboa, the new Mexican secretary for foreign relations, speaking with regard to Mr. Lind's mission, said it could scarcely be properly described as one of peace since no war exists between Mexico and the United States.

"I have great faith," the secretary said, "in the reasonableness of the judgment of the United States, and I have the conviction that the difficulties between Mexico and the United States soon will be adjusted."

13 KILLED IN EARTH SLIDE.

American Among the Victims of Accident at Panama.

Colon, Aug. 12.—Thirteen men were killed by an unexpected slide at the Portobello quarry, which completely buried a steam shovel in the neighborhood in which they were working. The dead comprise Charles Nyland, an American citizen, and twelve colored powder men, drill men and pit men.

Dr. Belisario Porras, the president of Panama, sent his condolences to Nyland's widow.

Two Americans Decorated.

Paris, Aug. 12.—Two Americans—William Morton Fullerton and Charles Risk Beach—have been made chevaliers of the Legion of Honor. Mr. Fullerton, who was born in Norwalk, Conn., is a writer, and Mr. Beach, a Kentuckian, is a well known lawyer and author of legal works.

MOSQUITO EXTERMINATION ALSO KILLS THE FISH

Millburn, N. J., August 12.—That the sprinkling of oil in Campbell's Pond, Millburn, has killed many of the fish there was the opinion expressed yesterday by Fish and Game Wardens Frederick J. Hall and William C. Klein, who visited the place and afterwards stated that a full investigation would be made.

The pond is one of the reservoirs of the Orange water system and lies within the South Mountain Park reservation. In the summer time there is very little water there and many of the residents have complained that the place was a menace to health and a breeding spot for mosquitoes. Acting upon these complaints the Mosquito Extermination Commission poured oil on the pond.

CHARLTON LEAVES FOR ITALY.

Jersey City, August 12—Porter Charlton, charged with the murder of his wife three years ago at Lake Como, Italy, will end his long stay in the Hudson county jail here tonight. He will sail tomorrow for Italy to stand trial for the crime of which he is accused. The famous prisoner will make the trip in company with two police officers sent over by the Italian government. Whether his father, Paul Charlton, formerly United States judge in Porto Rico, is to sail on the same steamer has not been made known. It is known, however, that Judge Charlton intends to be on hand when his son's trial begins.

During his stay of more than three years in the Hudson county jail young Charlton has won the friendship of all of the jail officials and he undoubtedly will have their best wishes when he departs for his trial on the other side. During the long period of his confinement he has been granted every privilege that the regulations would allow. Most of his time has been spent in reading newspapers and novels and smoking cigarettes. During the past year he has done much writing. He has been visited regularly by his father, brother and other members of his family. Despite his long time in prison, Charlton is in good health and is said to weigh considerably more than when he was arrested on June 22, 1910, as he stepped ashore from the North German Lloyd Liner Princess Irene.

POLICE FIND CLEWS IN MURDER OF GIRL

Think Victim Drugged Before She Was Slain.

New York, Aug. 12.—Evidence that the Inwood assassin drugged his girl victim before she was murdered in a lonely pathway leading to Cold Spring cove, 200 feet west of Broadway, near Two Hundred and Seventh street, came to the surface when detectives found a four ounce bottle that had contained a powerful drug. The bottle was lying near the body of the young woman.

On the bottle was a label bearing the inscription, "Carlos Erba, Milan, Italy." The bottle was sent to police headquarters for examination in the hope that it would afford a clew to the identity of the girl and the finding of her slayer.

In addition to the bottle the police have a lock of curly brown hair which was taken from the clenched hand of the young victim. It had evidently been torn from the head or mustache of the man who attacked her. A blood stained knife four inches long and carrying the edge of a razor and an iron last such as shoemakers use made up the stock of evidence in the hands of the detectives.

The detectives are particularly interested in trying to establish the identity of the murdered girl. Her body was brought to the St. Nicholas avenue station house, where it was carefully examined by the matron.

ASSEMBLY SEEKS TO OUST SULZER

Impeachment Resolution Offered by Levy.

GOVERNOR STILL SILENT.

Tammany Didn't Have Votes Enough to Go Through With Program Last Night, and Final Action Is Deferred Until Today.

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 12.—Majority Leader Aaron J. Levy, introduced in the assembly a resolution calling for the impeachment of Governor William Sulzer for wilful and corrupt conduct in office and for high crimes and misdemeanors.

No attempt was made to put through the resolution. It merely was presented and laid over for debate until this afternoon. There were present fewer than 100 of the 150 members of the lower house. Some of them showed fight. The spirit of belligerency transcended party lines. There was no doubt that any attempt to force action last night would have ended in disaster for the governor's enemies.

The leaders of the majority in both houses of the legislature, however, declared after the two houses had adjourned just before midnight that they were ready to go through with their program of throwing the governor into the political discard.

The impeachment was introduced in the assembly after a preliminary report of the Frawley investigating committee submitting the disclosures regarding unacknowledged contributions to the Sulzer campaign fund and the governor's alleged speculations in Wall street.

Brings In New Charges.

The report reviewed all the evidence brought out at the hearings with regard to the Sulzer campaign fund, but did not rest the case on the governor's failure to comply with the provisions of the corrupt practices act or his alleged use of campaign contributions for stock speculation in Wall street. It went further and referred to the governor's use of patronage and his veto power to reward the friends and punish the opponents of the direct nominations bill.

The committee's report does not demand the impeachment of Governor Sulzer, but urges action either by the legislature or the courts.

"We submit to the senate and assembly that the facts above stated are sufficiently serious in character and are so violative of the laws of this state and the rules of fitness for and conduct in high office that the public interests demand some action in reference thereto whether through the exercise of powers of the legislature or by referring the facts and evidence to other duly constituted officers charged with duties in respect thereof," says the committee in its report.

Its Work Not Completed.

"There is in the possession of this committee," the report continues, "further authentic information of other similar evidence in respect to the subject of this report as strong in quality and in large amounts involved as that on which sworn testimony has already been given.

"This committee, therefore, has not completed its investigation either on this account or others covered by the resolutions under which it is acting, but it has felt that the resolutions set forth in this report and the testimony accompanying it should be brought to the attention of the legislature at once without awaiting a final report either on this or other subjects.

"The questions here involved are vital to clean government. They are above party or partisanship. They are vital to the citizens of the state and call for prompt and well considered action. They call for an answer from Governor Sulzer, because both his obstructive tactics and his silence warrants the conclusion that the charges can neither be answered nor explained."

The report calls for the punishment for contempt of Louis A. Sarecky, Governor Sulzer's former confidential clerk, who was called as a witness before the committee and declined to answer all questions with reference to the Sulzer campaign fund, which he helped to administer. Similar action was urged against Frederick L. Colwell, Governor Sulzer's alleged agent in the stock market, who is referred to throughout the report as the governor's "dummy."

The report of the Frawley legislative committee, charging Governor Sulzer with having diverted campaign contributions to his own private use, was adopted by the legislature.

Sulzer Not at Capitol.

Governor Sulzer did not go to the capitol last night, as had been his custom when the legislature held night sessions. The executive department was in darkness.

The governor spent nearly the entire day consulting with his friends regarding ways and means to stave off impeachment. He turned a face that was pale and haggard to the newspaper correspondents who appeared in the executive chamber at the hour set for the afternoon interview.

"There is no statement to be made," said the governor.

"Will you come to the capitol as usual on an evening when the legislature meets?" he was asked.

"No," said the governor.

"There is a rumor that the assembly will adopt an impeachment resolution at the session tonight. Will you have any statement to make if the rumor proves true?" asked one of the newspaper correspondents.

"I am not in the habit of worrying about rumors," the governor replied. "I shall have no statement to make, no matter what the legislature does," said Mr. Sulzer.

GOVERNOR SULZER'S TROUBLES.

If it were not for the fact that it is known that the investigation of the business and political affairs of Governor Sulzer was based upon spite, and done for the purpose of covering up Charles F. Murphy's political demands, the result would have much more influence upon public sentiment than it has. Sulzer has offended Tammany Hall and for this the people honor him, while the Murphy machine execrate him. All feel that the attack upon him is to punish him for doing right politically.

What a spectacle it is to see a public man put on the rack because he attacks a man like Murphy. If Sulzer had followed where Murphy led none of this would have happened. There are two sad things about the Sulzer situation. First, that low down politicians of the Murphy stripe can bring about such condition, solely to punish an official who is trying to do right, and, second, that men will fall, high or low, who go into Wall street stock gambling. Stock speculation on margin, whether by Governor Sulzer or a clerk in an office, is dangerous business. It leads, practically always, to crime in the end.

Governor Sulzer misapplied, at least, money given him for one purpose to another, and the clerk who speculates misappropriates money for the same purpose. Is there no way to legally check stock purchases on margin? It is taking more young men down to social, political and business ruin than all other causes combined. It is not often that a case like that of Governor Sulzer becomes known, but, thousands exist. They are of daily occurrence. Next to ruin stock gambling is leading more young men to the "gates of hell" than any other single evil influence in America.

SIGNED COMMUNICATIONS.

For two years there has been a law in Australia, which provides that all newspaper articles on political issues must be signed, and the act was enforced for the first time during a recent election in that country.

The act provides that from the issue of an election writ to the completion of the election "every article, report, letter or other matter commenting on any candidate or political party or the issues submitted to the elections, printed and published in any newspaper, circular, pamphlet or dodger, shall be signed by the author or authors, giving his or her true name and address or names and addresses at the end of the matter." Any newspaper editor or proprietor who permits a breach of this rule is guilty of an offense under the act.

While it seems to us that the act goes a little further than is necessary, it would be well for some of the State Legislatures in this country to put through a somewhat modified measure, affecting all articles submitted to newspapers for publication by others than the regular members of their staffs. The Daily Press has for several years refused to accept any letter for publication on any subject that did not have the full name of the writer affixed. Not only is it unfair to accept such communications with initials or non-de-plumes attached, but it makes any newspaper the target for criticism, in that it might be accused of hiding behind such subterfuge as a method of expressing its own views. Signed communications are the only kind that any newspaper should print.

If the charge made by the Board of Trade, that the fire engine offered to the city by the lowest bidder on auto fire apparatus is a second hand piece of machinery, with parts in it which cannot be replaced except by sending for them to Switzerland, the bid should be thrown out. The Plainfield fire department needs more apparatus, and needs it badly, but for the sake of a few hundred dollars the City Council should not purchase any machine that is not fully up-to-date, and which cannot be repaired within a reasonable amount of time. Having to send abroad for parts, or to wait until special ones can be made up may be all well enough in a city where there are forty or fifty other pieces of apparatus that can be depended upon, but in Plainfield equipment is wanted that can be on the job all of the time, and for which parts can be secured on very short notice. It is to be hoped that the fire committee of the Council will investigate the matter thoroughly.

The campaign in the Progressive party for the nomination for Governor will be watched with much interest. Everett Colby has announced the platform upon which he stands and has said that he will not take the stump in an effort to get the votes of the party members at the primaries. Edmund B. Osborne, his opponent for the nomination, has given out a radical platform upon which he stands, and is further declaring his principles by going about the State making speeches each day. The result of the contest will be watched with interest, and perhaps have bearing in the future upon the primary campaigns in other parties. If Colby is successful, it will indicate that a whole lot of the campaigning now being done is superfluous.

Probably no set of suggestions sent out by the Department of Agriculture at Washington should be more carefully observed than the following concerning the handling of bottled milk during the summer months:

Place in refrigerator immediately upon delivery.

Wash neck of bottle and cap before pouring.

Do not remove milk from original container.

Keep milk bottle covered after opening.

Do not let milk stand in warm room before drinking.

Never take milk bottles into a sick room.

Carefully wash bottles before returning to delivery man.

Woman in Kennebunkport, Me., had $9,000 worth of jewels stolen the other night. Scoop, the cub reporter, says that City Judge DeMeza and Editor Morrow, of the Press, must be having a profitable vacation.

JOURNALISTIC OPINION

Modern Campaigning.

Senator Carlton B. Pierce, of Union county, candidate for Governor on the Republican ticket, may or may not win the nomination he seeks, but he has certainly adopted a commendable method of political campaigning. Senator Pierce has chosen to go straight to the people through the newspapers with his views on important State questions. By means of a few well considered statements he will attempt to let the people know why the five problems which he purposes tackling if he is nominated and elected Governor of the State are of greatest importance to the people and to tell just where he stands with regard to them.

Those who will take the trouble to follow Senator Pierce's campaign will be sure, whatever the result of the contest may be, to receive valuable information on State affairs. Every one of the planks in the Pierce platform aims at a State problem for which there is crying need for a solution. Senator Pierce believes that he knows the way out of some of New Jersey's perplexities of government. He has had years of experience in the State Legislature, and all the while he has been an intelligent, conscientious and thorough student of State problems. He has had exceptional opportunities to master some of them. His campaign, under the circumstances, can hardly fail to interest and instruct.

Senator Pierce's method of campaigning is in striking contrast with that chosen by Governor Fielder, for example. The latter is traveling about the State, speaking at every town and hamlet where opportunity offers. He is expending physical energy most liberally; he is sharing his time with the people with extraordinary generousness. But it is surprising, after all, how few people he is reaching. Few people nowadays take time to attend political rallies. Though there are always some who see an advantage in meeting a candidate for political office face to face, the day of the public meeting seems to be passing. In the rush of modern life the people have no time for them. It will all be in the newspapers, what's the use of sitting in a hot hall?

Appreciating the changed attitude of the people, and desiring to reach the largest number of the voters, Senator Pierce has prepared appeals to the people, which are direct, concise and conclusive, for publication in the newspapers. He has inaugurated a plan of compaigning which is somewhat novel and which is, no doubt, a good deal of an unknown quantity in State politics, though eminently fair to the people. It was, to be sure, fruitful of rather extraordinary results when put to use by Senator Pierce in his senatorial campaign two years ago, and it would not be surprising if it proved a vote getter in the primary campaign in which we are now engaged. It will be worth watching.—Elizabeth Journal.

HARRY DREIER HAS SISTER & BROTHER-IN-LAW ARRESTED

A quarrel at a public sale of some property on East Second street, belonging to the Dreier estate, resulted in the arrest this afternoon of Mr. and Mrs. Charles P. Senger, of West Front street. Harry Dreier, brother of Mrs. Senger, is the complainant. Mr. Dreier claimed that his sister struck him in the face with her umbrella and he bore a severe cut on his nose and cheek to substantiate this statement.

When brought to the police headquarters by Patrolman Welch who made the arrest on the demand of the complainant, Mrs. Senger became hysterical. At one time she asserted that Mr. Dreier had made threats of injury against her husband and she cried out to Detective Sergeant Flynn, "Do you think he will shoot Mr. Senger if we walk up Front street?" Flynn assured her that he did not think Mr. Dreier would resort to fire arms. The couple were released to appear in the city court Monday afternoon for arraignment.

Mrs. Senger is suing the Dreier estate to recover property due her, she claims, under the terms of the late Samuel Dreier's will. Harry and Garrett Dreier, brothers of Mrs. Senger are executors of the estate and are defending the suit brought by their sister.

SENDS FIFTY DOLLARS BACK AS CONSCIENCE MONEY

William A. Woodruff, the fire insurance agent at Park avenue and West Front street, was somewhat puzzled this afternoon when he received a letter by mail inclosed in which was a sum of money, with instructions to return the same to the "Home" office. According to the letter, the writer, who did not give his name, was conscience stricken over receiving the money as he "explains" and is anxious that it be returned to the right party.

As Mr. Woodruff represents a number of fire insurance companies, he is at a loss to know just what the writer means by asking him to return it to the "Home" office. He requested that an announcement be made in The Daily Press of the receipt of the letter so that the writer would know that it reached its destination all right. If Mr. Woodruff has further information as to when company the money belongs he would be able to straighten out the matter. The money enclosed in the letter included a $50 bill and a quarter of a dollar for an advertisement. The letter follows:

"Dear Sir: Will you kindly return this $50 to the Home office as it is money owed them not justly got and I would like to pay it back. Don't know how else to get it to the right party, if you will please give it in the right place. You know how as you are their agent. Please advertise in the Daily Press so I will know you received the money. Here is a quarter to put in the add. Just say you got the money and will see to it."

ASSEMRLYMAN JUST SAVED SPECIAL LEGISLATIVE SESSION

Trenton, N. J., Aug. 12—When 210 candidates were taking a Civil Service examination yesterday in the Assembly Chamber for the position of road foreman and automobile inspector they were startled by the sudden appearance on the Speaker's rostrum of Assemblyman Hervey S. Moore, of this county, who called the House to order.

The candidates stared in wonder as Francis B. Lee, acting as temporary secretary, called the roll of the House, and then announced to the Speaker pro tem. there was no quorum. The House was declared adjourned until today. Moore and Lee then took their departure from the chamber, and after vainly wondering what it was all about the candidates resumed work on their examination papers.

When the special session of the Legislature adjourned last Tuesday it was to meet Friday, and from thence until Tuesday. The provision of the constitution that the House shall not adjourn for more than three days in a legislative session was overlooked, however, and as more than three days would have elapsed from Friday until today, the time fixed for the next meeting, the special session of the Legislature would have automatically come to an end had it not been for Moore's foresight.

SULZER DECISION LATE TODAY.

(By Telegraph to The Daily Press.)

Albany, Aug. 12—It is believed that the vote on the Sulzer impeachment resolution will not be reached in the assembly before 4 p. m. today.

—Make a business task of your search for business employment. You can't do that, however, unless you advertise.

DO YOU READ ADVERTISEMENTS?

Do you?

The question is one of exceptional importance.

It has so many intensely interesting angles.

Advertisements themselves constitute a class of literature that daily commands world-wide attention.

Think of the number of daily newspapers there are in North America.

Think of the dollars spent daily in advertising.

Think of the enterprises that are behind the advertising in the daily papers; the millions of dollars invested; the countless number of employes; the enormous number of shoppers—more than 10,000,000 each day!

Would all this exist if advertising were not an element of colossal power?

Take THE PRESS for instance.

Look at the advertisements.

Note the daily message to an appreciative public.

Observe how the advertisers aim to obtain your patronage.

Reflect what must stand behind good advertising.

These are the spokes in a gigantic commercial wheel.

So when you read the advertisements in THE PRESS give this subject some thought, and you will have a better appreciation of the power and purpose of advertising.

Not a home in this city but has its quota of discarded furniture, rugs, stoves perhaps, a wheelbarrow maybe.

A few cents for a Press want ad and some one who needs the very article that lies rotting in your garret will call and pay you for it.

You are better off—new owner is pleased—and the article itself is contributing to the reduction of the high cost of living.

STUDY YOUR NOSE

It Is a Most Wonderful Organ and a Really Fine Furnace.

ACTS AS A PERFECT FILTER.

This Facial Ornament Strains, Heats and Moistens All Air Drawn Through It Into the Lungs—Its Delicate Nerves and Microbe Catching Mucus.

Ordinarily we regard our own or another person's nose from the standpoint of personal beauty. If the organ is a becoming one it wins our admiration, and unless occasion arises we give it no further thought. A delicious or a repugnant odor reminds us at times that we possess a sense of smell, and a cold in the head is apt to make us wish that there was no such thing as a nose.

Beyond these points, however, we really penetrate, and as a rule we fail to fully realize what an important part of the human anatomy is this most prominent feature of the face.

No stove or furnace that ever was made by man can equal in efficiency the human nose, for the nose, in the space of three inches and in two seconds of time, can raise the temperature of the air it draws in nearly fifty degrees and at the same time saturate it with moisture and thoroughly purify it.

The nose is really one of the most extraordinary organs of the body. Its nerves are more sensitive than those of fingers or ears or eyes, for they can perceive distinctly an almost incredibly minute amount of a gas so subtle that its presence can be detected in no other way. It is also a perfect filter and thus the most important guardian of the body against disease.

All air that is breathed into the lungs should be at a temperature of nearly 90 degrees F. It should also be moist, even wet. Cold, dry air is fine for the outside of the body, but has no place in its interior. In heating the air the nose works on the principle of a steam coil. It is not merely two tubes leading up into the head and so down to the throat, but from the bones on either side three twisted bones curl out into the passage, one above the other, each coated with elastic cushions of blood vessels and tiny glands. These form coils with a great, hot, damp surface, over which the air spreads as it is drawn up. Thus is the air warmed for its entrance to the lungs.

A furnace maker told the present writer that any man who could invent an efficient apparatus for mixing moisture with air in its passage through a hot air furnace could make a fortune, as every device now in use is only a makeshift and of very little real value. The Almighty Maker of the human—and the animal—nose solved the problem. The entire surface of the inside of the nose is composed of a membrane that pours forth a fluid called mucus. This is composed largely of salt water, which is taken up by the passing air until this is saturated before it reaches the throat.

This mucus is also a microbe catcher and a dust catcher. Almost all the dirt and germs of disease that enter with the air through the nostrils are trapped by the mucus. The living enemies are killed, for the mucus is antiseptic and germicidal. Thus the air is heated, moistened and purified before it reaches the lungs.

Air breathed in through the mouth is not warmed, moistened or purified except to a very slight extent. Consequently it reaches the lungs cold, dry and laden with dust and disease. Bronchitis, tonsilitis, diphtheria and consumption are the result.

The mucous membrane of the nose is subject to diseases such as catarrh, "cold in the head" and hay fever. Adenoids grow in the back of the nose and stop up its tubes. A simple and easy operation will remove the latter, while the former if taken when they first show themselves can be cured without difficulty. If neglected they may become incurable. Thus not only do they prevent the necessary warming, moistening and filtering of the air, but they spread and cause many diseases of the throat and lungs and are the commonest cause of serious and intensely painful trouble with the ears.—New York World.

May Have Been All Right.

The angry citizen puffed into the office of the city editor.

"See here, sir," he yelled, "what do you mean by publishing my resignation from my political office in this way?"

"You gave the story out yourself, didn't you?" asked the editor.

"Of course I did," replied the angry citizen. "But your fool paper prints it under the head of 'Public Improvements.'"—Exchange.

Worse Than That.

"I know you don't like me, Miss Iphigenia, but won't you please tell me why, just to gratify a natural curiosity?"

"Why, Mr. Orkids, I have never regarded you as a natural curiosity!"—Chicago Tribune.

MOSQUITO FIGHT HAS BIG RESULTS

Expenditure Was Slight and Land Values Have Been Enhanced Greatly.

"How much money has New Jersey spent to wipe out the mosquito pest?" a representative asked Dr. Thomas J. Headlee, State Entomologist, in his office yesterday afternoon.

"Speaking in round numbers, I should say, exclusive of this year's appropriations, about $200,000," promptly replied the professor, putting aside some research work.

"And with what results?" asked the reporter.

"The taxable valuation of the shore property from Jersey City to Monmouth Beach has increased $5,500,000 in the last ten years while this work of mosquito extermination has been going on," he replied, "and the increase is largely due to the work. The heaviest increase has been in the residential sections, in some instance running as high as 300 per cent."

"Are there fewer mosquitoes this year than before?" he was asked.

"There is absolutely no comparison in the amount of mosquito trouble this year and those years preceding the effective anti-mosquito work," he replied.

"Are the counties of the State co-operating with you under the authority given to them by the law providing for the establishment of County Mosquito Extermination Commissions?"

"This year Hudson, Essex, Union and Atlantic counties are engaged in a serious effort to prevent the breeding of the fresh water species of mosquitoes. Although there has been in northeast New Jersey an extra bad season for mosquitoes, Essex and Hudson have had comparatively few while Union and Atlantic have had practically none.

"We are dealing with two phases of the work," he continued. "One concerns drainage of the salt marshes, which will get rid of the salt marsh mosquito, which migrates forty miles inland. The work is under the direction of the State. Already we have proceeded from the north as far south as a few miles below Barnegat. Such mosquitoes as escape from the drained area, which is not one-tenth of 1 per cent. of those that escaped before drainage, breed in areas incompletely ditched or in areas where the ditching system has become blocked. As a result of many years of experimenting with methods for salt marsh control the late Dr. John B. Smith adopted a method of cutting open ditches, connecting all pools on the salt marsh with creeks and ditches opening into the ocean that the water in them would rise and fall with the tide. This prevents the mosquito wrigglers from reaching maturity. If the pools are shallow they are laid dry at low tide and the just-hatched wrigglers killed by exposure. If deep, the killie fish make their way into them and devour the wrigglers as they hatch. This drainage has relieved the whole shore.

"While the principal salt marsh species invade the lawns and porches it is the fresh water species that get into the homes and spoil sleep. The extermination of this species rests with the counties themselves."

This year the State has appropriated $25,000 for the salt marsh work and the counties have raised about $140,000 for the war on the fresh water species.

Sour Milk Delicacies.

August is a month of thunderstorms and sour milk. There is no scientific basis for the theory that milk turns sour in a thunder storm, it is said; but possibly the excessively warm weather that generally precedes a thunder storm, and that makes the keeping of sweet milk difficult, is accountable for the belief that thunder turns milk sour.

At any rate when there is sour milk on hand, make the best of it. Remember that there are many dainties that can be prepared with it.

Curly Peters.

Anyone who has ever eaten Curly Peters thinks them the best drop cake that can be made. To make them, cream a cupful of butter and a cupful and half of granulated sugar. Add the yolks of two eggs, beaten. Measure three cupfuls flour and dredge a cupful of currants with part of the flour. Add the rest, alternately with a cupful of sour milk in which a teaspoonful of soda has been dissolved, to the sugar, butter and eggs. Then add a teaspoonful of salt, half a grated nutmeg and half a teaspoonful of allspice. Drop the batter in spoonsful on a buttered baking tin and bake to a light brown.

Cream waffles are made with sour milk. They are a treat for a cool summer day—for the sort of coolness that comes after a thunder storm. To make them, mix a quarter of a teaspoonful of salt, three tablespoonfuls of cornstarch and a cupful of pastry flour, and to it add a cupful of sour milk, a well-beaten egg and a teaspoonful of baking soda dissolved in a tablespoonful of hot water. Beat the mixture until it is smooth. Have the waffle irons smoking hot and pour the smooth batter into them. When the waffles are golden brown they are done. Serve them with butter and powdered sugar, with jelly or with maple syrup.

Spice Cake.

To make sour milk spice cake a cupful of rich sour milk is needed. Cream half a cupful of butter with a cupful of brown sugar. Add a cupful of seeded raisins, chopped and floured, two cupfuls of flour, the sour milk, a teaspoonful of soda dissolved in a little boiling water, and a teaspoonful each of allspice, grated nutmeg, cinnamon and cloves. Bake in a flatcake slowly for half an hour and then frost with chocolate or white frosting. Mark off in two-inch squares before the frosting is quite hard.

Sour milk cookies are made like this: Mix a cupful of sour milk, a quarter of a cupful of butter, a cupful of sugar, a teaspoonful of soda and flour enough to roll. Add salt, and the juice of half an orange. Roll thin, cut, and bake brown. Sprinkle just before they are done with granulated sugar.

MRS. EMMA S. DE VOE.

She Will Preside at National Council of Women Voters.

The national council of women voters will meet in Washington beginning Wednesday, Aug. 13. This is a conference of leading women from the ten states where women suffrage is now in force, and its object is to help the women who are fighting for suffrage in other states. The congress will have a hearing before the rules committee of the house of representatives to ask for the establishment of a special house committee on woman suffrage. Mrs. Emma Smith De Voe of Tacoma, Wash., will preside at the conference.

KITCHENETTES.

If you rinse a plate with cold water before breaking the eggs in it, add to them a pinch of salt and then stand where there is a current of air you will have no difficulty in beating them to a froth.

To make arrowroot jelly moisten two tablespoonfuls of arrowroot in a little cold water and then add a pint of hot water to this and boil for five minutes, stirring constantly. This should be prepared in a double boiler.

When taking cakes baked in a tin out of the oven stand the tin on a wet cloth for a few minutes. The cakes can then be turned out without the aid of a knife and will not stick to the tin, as frequently happens otherwise.

To make oatmeal jelly boil four tablespoonfuls of oatmeal in one pint of water (in a double boiler) for three hours, adding water from time to time, and then strain.

Charming Afternoon Gown.

Embroidered net flouncing is used in the creation of the costume illustrated here. The skirt is very closely fitted, the flounces draped over it giving the fullness to the upper part which is markedly contrasted by the narrowness of the lower tier. The flouncing is draped over the shoulders, caught in by the satin girdle and falls over the skirt to form a graceful tunic. The hat matches the gown and is supplemented by a dainty parasol.

Protecting Glass.

To keep a glass or cup from bursting when any boiling mixture is put in try putting a silver spoon in and pouring the mixture on it. That generally keeps the glass from cracking or breaking.

Refrigerator Ice.

Refrigerator ice is often dirty and may bring in bacteria. On this account no food should be brought into direct contact with it, nor, unless its purity is above suspicion, should it be put into drinking water.

Some Cookery Suggestions

LEFTOVER FISH.

BREAKFAST MENU.
Fruit.
Cereal, Cream.
Creamed Fish.
Lyonnaise Potatoes.
Toast.
Coffee.

COLD fish may be used to make many tempting breakfast dishes.

Breakfast Cakes.

Fish Cakes.—Fish cakes can be made with any cold cooked fish. Add mashed potatoes or breadcrumbs to the fish, season with pepper, salt and chopped parsley and moisten with half a well beaten egg mixed with a little milk. Brush the cakes over with the rest of the egg, dip in breadcrumbs and fry in hot fat.

How to Make a Pudding.

Fish Pudding.—Flake one pound of cold boiled fish and place in a greased pie dish. Mix one ounce of flour, half a teaspoonful of salt and a quarter teaspoonful of pepper to a smooth paste with a little milk. Boil half a pint of milk and pour over the paste, return to the saucepan and let it boil. Add one dessertspoonful of chopped parsley and pour over the fish. Mash one pound of potatoes with a little milk and spread smoothly over fish. Ornament and place in a quick oven to brown the top.

Fish Hash.—For each cupful of cold flaked fish take half a cupful of mashed potatoes. Heat in a saucepan a cupful of boiling water, melt in it a large tablespoonful of butter, salt and pepper at discretion and put the fish and potato with this. Stir until steaming hot, adding more boiling water if the mixture seems too stiff. It should be almost soft enough to pour, but not quite.

Daintily Creamed.

Creamed Fish.—To make creamed fish any cold cooked white fish which flakes may be used. Remove the fish carefully from the bones, letting it separate into flakes. Season it with pepper and salt and a few drops of lemon juice. For every pint of fish prepared make a rich melted butter sauce with four tablespoonfuls of butter, two ounces of flour and one pint of milk, in which a small piece of onion has been boiled. Arrange the fish in a pie dish, pour over the sauce, sprinkle with buttered crumbs and bake in a rather hot oven.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

The Sad Story Of the Little Early Worm.

"Oh, mother," cried the little birds.

"HUMPH!" said daddy as Jack and Evelyn settled down beside him. "I was just dozing off when you two came in and scared the sandman away."

"He's just gone around the corner to wait for us," Evelyn suggested.

"Maybe he has," laughed daddy. "I hope he will leave enough sand to keep you two in bed a little longer than he did this morning. Getting up at daylight does not agree with me every day."

"Well, you know, you said that it was the early bird that caught the worm," Jack reminded, "and Evelyn and I wanted to go fishing with grandpa."

"Ah, so I did say something about an early worm!" daddy admitted. "He was a very early riser—got up before daylight; was even known to be out of bed at midnight.

"Indeed, he got up so early that it seemed scarcely worth while for him to go to bed at all.

"He was a nice fat worm and lived in a soft bank by the side of the brook, where he didn't have to work hard to tunnel his way through the ground.

"'I want to get up to see the sun rise,' the worm would say when any one asked him why he got up so soon.

"'You'll be sorry some day,' Mr. Mole warned. 'There's a family of young birds over in the beech tree. They have just learned to fly and are the hungriest little creatures I ever knew.'

"The worm said he wasn't afraid of any birds. He thought it was all nonsense about birds eating worms. He had never seen a bird eat a worm, and what he didn't see he didn't believe.

"'You are very foolish,' Mr. Mole replied. 'But never mind; I've warned you. It's your own fault if you get into trouble.'

"When he got outdoors he stretched himself out on the bank of the stream, and one of the little birds that had just learned to fly cried, 'Oh, mother!' and another of the little birds that had just learned to fly saw him and cried, 'Oh, mother, he tastes fine!'

"'Yes, dears,' answered the mother bird. 'I told you if you got up very early and looked about you would be sure to catch a nice fat worm.'

"Now, that's what happened to Mr. Worm. He made a very good breakfast for the little birds, but I can't help thinking that if he hadn't been such a very early worm perhaps the early birds might not have eaten him."
